ADVANTAGE OF SEWAGE BEDS

NO STREAMS TO POLLUTE AND NO QUESTIONS TO SETTLE.

Trouble Caused by Sewage Running Into the Passaic—Raritan River Would be the Same if a Pipe Line Was Built.

The residents of Plainfield may congratulate themselves over the construction of their sewerage system with its proposed purification plant, when they consider the present condition of the Passaic River and the difficult problem of preventing the further pollution of that stream by the sewage of the cities and towns along its banks. Had the sewage of Plainfield been discharged into the Raritan River in its crude state, Plainfield would have been contributing towards a future possible condition of that stream such as now exists in Passaic, but which the construction of the filter beds will render impossible.

The pollution of the Passaic River has been steadily increasing for a number of years with the growth of the population in the valley and the construction of sewerage systems in towns and cities one after another with outlets into the river. Paterson and Passaic both discharge their sewage into the river, and so do numerous smaller places along the stream until beneath the bridge of the Greenwood Lake Railway at North Newark, the combined sewage of the cities of Oronge, Montclair and Bloomfield empties into the stream. These municipalities, together with East Orange, which has just been connected with the Newark sewers, are none of them upon the river but find it the most convenient outlet for their sewage. A large portion of the sewage of Newark also goes into the stream and is bandied back and forth by the tide. During the past summer the water of the river was extremely low, exposing to sight and smell a most disgraceful pollution of the banks and bed of the stream. It is alleged that some of the persons occupying summer residences along the river have been compelled to abandon them on account of the intolerable odors, and that the great popularity of the river drives is steadily diminishing for the same reason.

This summer the residents of the upper part of the river became so agitated over the matter that they held public meetings and called upon the State Board of Health to aid them in stopping the nuisance. A conference of the local Boards of Health in the cities and towns concerned, with the State Board of Health, was held at Trenton during the latter part of September and the whole situation discussed in detail. A resolution was adopted at this meeting providing for the appointment of one representative from each of the Boards of Health of the different communities concerned, who should constitute a committee to take steps to devise some means of solving the difficult problem. The committee thus appointed met at Passaic on Tuesday, October 29th, and after discussing the situation agreed to secure the introduction, as early as possible in the next session of the Legislatnre, a bill referring the whole matter to the State Board of Health for investigation. A bill with the same provisions was introduced late in the last session of the Legislature, but did not pass, largely owing to the confusion at the close of the session, it may be. This bill will be re-introduced.

It authorizes the State Board of Health to employ engineers and in general to present plans for the abatement of the nuisance. What means should be adopted to this end it is left for the board to decide after a careful investigation. An appropriation of $10,000 is provided to carry on the work. Having decided on this measure the committee named above adjourned after having appointed as a committee to secure the introduction and passage of the bill the following gentlemen:

Dr. J. L. Leal, of Paterson; Dr. G. W. Philhower, of Franklin; M. N. Baker, of Montclair, who is a member of the editorial staff of Engineering News, of New York; Dr. J. A. Exton, of Arlington; and Dr. Chas. Lehlbach, of Newark.

In supporting the adoption of the proposed bill by the committee Mr. Baker pointed out the great difficulties that were involved in solving the problem from an engineering, legal and financial point of view, and explained the absolute necessity of laying before the Legislature a well considered scheme. He urged that the State Board of Health was a body already in existence in which the health interests of the State are confided and therefore that it was the proper body to carry on the investigation. He also called attention to the fact that while the solution of a problem of this kind was without precedent in the State of New Jersey that Massachusetts had been over the same ground in a very successful way. In 1889 the Legislature of that State referred to the State Board of Health the question of devising some system of sewerage which would prevent the further pollution of the streams and beaches in and around Boston and a number of adjoining municipalities. The recommendations made by the board were adopted by the Legislature, which provided for the appointment of a commission to construct the necessary works, and these works are now drawing to completion, after the expenditure of large sums of money. The funds for the work were provided, in the first instance, by the issuing of State bonds, a course which at present would probably be impossible in this State. These bonds are redeemed, the interest on them paid and the cost of maintaining the system raised by taxation upon the several municipalities benefitted.

If the proposed New Jersey bill is passed and the investigation carried out with success it may be expected that it will be but the beginning of other investigations looking to the preservation of the purity of other rivers of the State, notably the Raritan and the Rahway.

SOLD THE STOVE TO BUY CANDY.

An Incorrigible Twelve-year-old Boy's Remarkable Prank.

Constant Daruchetti, twelve years old, of Linden, was committed to the Union county jail yesterday afternoon on a charge of larceny preferred by his mother. The boy is said to be incorrigible. He has frequently stolen money from his mother, and it is alleged that one day last week he robbed the Linden Post office of a small amount in stamps.

Tuesday his mother left him in charge of the house while she visited a neighbor. During her absence Constant raked the fire from the kitchen stove and sold the stove to a junk man for seventy-five cents. He spent the money for candy, and then ran away, fearing his mother's anger. A constable found him yesterday morning hiding in the woods half a mile from the village. The boy will be sent to the reform school.

LOTS OF NEW MEMBERS.

The Board of Directos of the Y. M. C. A. Met Last Evening.

The Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A. met last evening and elected one hundred and six new members, the largest number ever elected at one meeting. The principal object of the meeting was to settle on some agreement to present to the city for the damages done to the property by the cutting through of Watchung avenue. About fifty feet of the Y. M. C. A. property is to be taken by the city but the Board is in favor of the extension and a satisfactory agreement can, without a doubt, be made. The Board received an anonymous subscription of $150 from one of the orginal members of the New York City Y. M. C. A. The routine business of the Board was then transacted.

Expert Banjoists.

Despite the rain, Somerset Hall in Somerville was crowded with those who came to attend the grand banjo concert given by George Jenkins. A number from this city were present. Those from Plainfield, who took part in the concert, were Fred Van Eps, of Park avenue, and Will Cook, of North avenue. George Jenkins expects to give another concert at Plainfield the last of next month. It will be held at Music Hall. Jenkins is the baggagemaster on the 6:15 train out of New York in the evening.

Riding to See Football.

There a number of Plainfield football enthusiasts who are going to Princeton on Saturday to witness the Harvard-Princeton game, and Captain T. A. Cuming, of the Y. M. C. A. Cyclers, has decided to hold a run to that place tomorrow. The start will be made from the Y. M. C. A. building at half past ten.

Stated Meeting.

A stated meeting of Union County Branch, State Charities Aid Association of New Jersey, will be held in All Souls church, Park avenue, on Monday, November 4th, at 8 p. m.

For a pain in the side or chest there is nothing so good as a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of pain. It affords prompt and permanent relief and if used in time will often prevent a cold from resulting in pneumonia. This same treatment is a sure cure for lame back. HALLOWE'EN BARN FESTIVAL.

INTERESTING FEATURES ARRANGED FOR ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH.

The Rain Prevented Many From Attending, but Those Who Did Go Spent an Enjoyable Evening—Those in Charge

Hallowe'en was not a success last evening owing to the weather, for a hard, driving rain, which commenced early in the afternoon from the east drove all the romance out of any out of door performances. Although the severe rain kept many from attending the Hallowe'en festival in the barn of C. P. Ralli, of Belvidere avenue, there were quite a number present. The illumination of the lawn with Japanese lanterns had to be given up, but the interior of the barn was most wonderfully changed from its every day appearance. Jack o' lanterns grinned from the stalls and secluded the corners, while flags and greens were draped over the doors and windows. Ferns and flowers were also tastefully arranged about the barn. The candy booth was the first to draw the attention of the new arrival. Coming in from the pelting rain, the visitor was almost dazzled with an artistiely arranged table loaded with sweets, both home-made and of the most celebrated New York make, and brilliantly lighted with electric lights. Here Miss Beatrice Potter and Miss Josephine Simmonds were stationed and looked after the interests of the candies. In the next booth, Miss Clara Woltmann was prepared to tell some startling secrets of the future of all who wished.

In the main room of the barn the rest of the booths were to be found. On a prettily decorated table a handsome display of cakes was shown, while Mrs. A. J. Beal, Mrs. N. P. T. Finch and Miss Grace Edson were ready to give the purchaser full value for his money.

The mystery table brought many of the young people to it by its name and when there they were allowed, for a small sum, to select any of the mysterious packages. Miss Trotty Smith, Mrs. Woodward and Miss Clara Woodward were in charge here.

The artistic tea table was presided over by Mrs Foote and Miss Mary Ellis.

Another table covered with fancy articles, mostly the work of the women who gave the festival, was looked after by Miss Maud Lord, Miss May Sandford, Miss Abbie Burt, and Miss Ellie Braine.

One of the chief attractions of the evening was a short one-act play entitled "Six Cups of Chocolate." One end of the barn was tastefully fitted up as a stage and curtained off from the maid floor. The play was given with the following cast and was received with great applause:

Adelaide von Lindau.....Miss May Simpson
Jeanette Durand.....Miss Anthony
Hester Beacon.....Miss Sprague
Marion Lee.....Miss Beale
Dorothy Greene.....Miss Maud Lord
Beatrix VanKortland.....Miss Madeline Ostermoor

After the performance American Beauty roses were presented to the cast.

The festival was given by the Altar Society of St. Stephen's church, and the committee who took charge of the arrangements consisted of Mrs. S. S. Guion, Miss Edith Clark and Mrs. A. J. Beal.

The decorating of the barn was done by Edmund S. Simpson, Clement B. Morgan, and Richard G. Simpson.

Carrier Boy Hurt.

Charles Pawson, one of The Daily Press' faithful carriers, while returning home from the North Plainfield public school yesterday afternoon, was knocked down and run over by a horse and wagon on Somerset street, driven by some farmer. Besides being covered with mud, he luckily escaped with a few bruises on one of his legs.

Bought a Fast Stepper.

Dave King has purchased the trotting horse Alonzo from parties at Guttenburg. Alonzo has a record of 2:17.

—L. W. Randolph, the druggist, is making a specialty of hot soda these cold days, and there is none better.

W. A. McGuire, a well known citizen of McKay, Ohio, is of the opinion that there is nothing as good for children troubled with colds or croup as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He has used it in his family for several years with the best results and always keeps a bottle of it in the house. After having la grippe he was himself troubled with a severe cough. He used other remedies without benefit and then concluded to try the children's medicine and to his delight it soon effected a permanent cure. 25 and 50c bottles for sale at Reynolds's pharmacy, Park and North aves. KIRMESS MATINEE DANCES.

PRETTY GIRLS AND MANLY BOYS TO FORM AN ATTRACTIVE FEATURE.

Dancing in Measured Steps to Musical Accompaniment They Will Be the Cynosure of Admiring Relatives and Friends.

Although not much has been heard of the matinee dances of the Kirmess, it does not signify that they are not as beautiful and as enjoyable as any of the evening dances. Indeed, according to the testimony of those who have seen the Kirmess in other cities, they are even better, if that were possible. The young folks glide and whirl about as gracefully as their older brothers and sisters.

The old English custom of celebrating May day with song and dance about the May pole furnishes one of the prettiest dances in the Kirmess. The graceful maidens, clad in the simple gowns of the country, gather about the May pole and celebrate the beginning of summer. The boys are given a chance to distinguish themselves in the Hornpipe. In this dance the onlooker thinks that he has either run afoul of one of the white squadron or a party of fishermen. The sailor lads come out in full costume and go through their manœvres in a catchy way.

The Carnival dance explains itself. The young people, dressed in fancy costumes, glide and whirl through various fancy figures and group themselves in many pretty tableaux.

The Flowers and Bees meet together and the insects hum about while the flowers wave back and forth in the wind. This is one of the most artistic dances in the Kirmess.

The little Japs give one of the most amusing of all the dances and yet a very pretty one. The foreigners, with solemn faces, dance about in the most natural manner until everyone is transported to the "Land of the Rising Sun," and are only brought back when the last strain of the catchy music dies away.

The rehearsals for the Kirmess are going on and those who are to take part in it are hard at work preparing. The lists of the participants in the dances have all been completed and the list of the dances, published in The Daily Press several days ago, is completed. They are as follows:

German Harvest Dance—Chaperones, Miss E. Sceipper, Mrs. Evarts Tracy, Mrs. J. F. Wrechers; the Misses Alice Barlow, Cornelia Faber, Helene Graff, Marion Henderson, Antania Methfessel, Elvira Methfessel, Anna Miller, M. Stirling, E. Stirling, Helen Taylor, May Tracy and Edith Tracy, Messrs. Siegfried Arens, Barlow, Walter Douglass, Charles Faber, Bryant Harman, Edward Rushmore, McAnery, Stevens, E. C. Sprowl, Allen Taylor, Henry Wells and Albert E. Woltmann.

Spanish Dance—Chaperone, Mrs. James Scott; the Missess Annie Murphy, Laura Underwood, Mabel Pierson, Clara Woltmann, A. McCready, Margaret Holly, Mary Anderson Reinhart, D. McCready, Daisy Van Boskerck, T. McClure, Eleanor Underwood and May Holly, Messrs. Harry Johnson, Louis Timpson, Carl Peiffer, William McClure, Irving West, A. G. Waring, Harry West, Howard Huntington, C. C. Hutchins, E. Swayze, Frank E. Richards and F. Van Boskerck.

Minuet—Chaperone, Mrs. Walter Stewart; Mrs. Lewis G. Timpson, Miss Anna Murphy, Miss Kittie Stewart, Mrs. James Scott, Mrs. Harry Depew, Mrs. J. W. Reinhart, Miss Carrie Vail, Mrs. J. H. Hallock, and Miss Annie Stewart. Messrs. Laurens Van Buren, Lewis G. Timpson, Harry Patton, Charles Faber, Howard Beebe, Harry Johnson, Fred Walz, Edward F. Finch, J. H. Hallock and Frank Frost.

THE REDS WIN.

End of the Y. M. C. A. Membership Contest With 115 New Members.

The membership contest at the Y. M. C. A. closed last night with excellent results. The contest was for one month and during that time 115 new members were secured, representing over $600. The "Reds," with D. A. McPhie as captain, were victorious, with 88 members, while the "Blues," championed by George Cornwell, finished with 27 to their credit. The Board of Directors met and went over the work, which was very satisfactory.

It was decided that the Ladies Nine should get up the supper for Saturday evening, Nov. 9th, when the winning side will partake of the good things to eat, and the losing side will sit by and see them eat.

Both sides have done good work and their efforts are much appreciated by the officers of the association.

RELIEF CORPS ENTERTAINMENT.

Many Pleasing Numbers Rendered for Those in Attendance.

The attendance at the entertainment given by the Woman's Relief Corps last evening was excellent and all were well pleased with the programme. Vincent W. Nash was master of ceremonies and opened the affair by introducing Miss Ada Nash, who rendered a pleasing piano solo.

A dialogue followed, entitled "Farmer and Dude," by W. Sherwin and W. Nash, which was very amusing. Miss Anna Cooper, of Westfield, gave a delightful recitation and was obliged to respond to an encore.

A feature was the broom drill by the Misses Bird, Hand, Riker, Nash, VanNess and Casey. It was heartily received. Another dialogue was given by Miss A. Ward and Miss L. Sheldon, entitled "Genius and Application."

The Peake Sisters from Alaska were then introduced and amused the audience with recitations, vocal and instrumental music and bell ringing.

Miss Radin and Miss Fish rendered an excellent piano duet, which preceded a dialogue entitled "Story Telling." Those taking part were Miss May Howlett, Mrs. Cox, Mrs. Bowman, Mrs. A. E. Dobbins, Miss Ada Nash and Walter Magie.

A pantomime, "Jesus Lover of My Soul," by Miss Cooper, with singing accompaniment by Miss Horse, was finely rendered.

A recitation by W. R. Mattox, and a tableau, "North and South," brought to a close an evening that all thoroughly enjoyed.

ONLY TWO EXPERIENCE DOLLARS.

Rain Prevented Temperance Women From Turning Out.

On account of inclement weather the attendance at the W. C. T. U. yesterday was small and little was done. Mrs. S. R. Krom, Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson and Mrs. R. K. Case gave reports of the recent State convention held at Paterson, which were full of interest to all. The feature of the session, that of each member giving a dollar and telling how it was earned, did not come up to the expectation of those present, as there were only two present who had earned their dollar. One had secured a dollar by selling books, and the other by selling flowers.

At the close of the session chocolate and wafers were served to the members.

COAL GOES UP FIFTY CENTS.

Retail Dealers Say That It is Necessary Because of Wholesale Advances.

The retail price of all grades of domestic coal was raised last night fifty cents a ton. This action was taken at a meeting of the members of the New Jersey Coal Exchange held at the office of John Thiekstun. This makes the price $5.50 a ton, which is fifty cents a ton higher than last winter and the same price that was charged two years ago.

The advance is made by the local dealers on account of the sharp advance made by the wholesale dealers. This is occasioned, so it is said, because of the lack of water and the unusual demands made by the western States for coal.

Victors at Progressive Euchre.

The Young People's Progressive Euchre Club, of Dunellen and North Plainfield, met at the home of Miss Janie C. Churchill, of Dunellen, last week. The first ladies' prize was won by Miss Mattie T. Barrett, Miss Janie C. Churchill took second. John Fisher was the victor among the other sex and Fred Haynes and Robert Carpenter tied for second prize. Haynes won on the cut. A most enjoyable evening was spent. The club meets again next Friday evening.

Boys' Brigade Growing.

The Boys' Brigade recently organized at the First Baptist church is growing rapidly, which is very encouraging to the leaders. At the last meeting twenty-seven boys were present. Another meeting will be held tomorrow evening at the church.

Croup is a terror to young mothers. To post them concerning the first symptoms, and treatment is the object of this item. The first indication of croup is hoarseness. In a child who is subject to croup it may be taken as a sure sign of the approach of an attack. Following this hoarseness is a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's Cough remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the rough cough has appeared it will prevent the attack. It has never been known to fail. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

THE FIRST LARGE RECEPTION.

MRS. FRANK SARGENT GRANT RECEIVES AT HER HOME.

The House Prettily Trimmed With Palms and White Chrysanthemums—Names of Those Who Helped Receive.

The first large reception of the season was given yesterday afternoon when Mrs. Frank Sargent Grant received her own and her daughter's friends from four until seven o'clock at her residence, 59 Jackson avenue. The morning clouds that threatened rain developed by the afternoon into a steady down-pour, preventing many persons, especially out-of-town friends, from enjoying the hospitality generously proffered by Mrs. Grant. Those who braved the elements were all repaid by the good cheer awaiting them. Mrs. Grant was assisted in receiving by her daughter, Miss Smock, a fair debutante, the Misses Florence and Minnie Marsh, Miss Grant, from Brooklyn, a sister of Dr. Grant, Madenoiselle Rangel, from Paris, France, Miss Wills, from Newburyport, Mass., and Miss Risley, from New York. The parlor decorations were palms and white chrysanthemums, pink shaded lights shedding a warm glow over the pretty scene.

The same colors and decorations prevailed in the tea room and dining room where ices and confections were served. Mrs. Childs, from New York, a sister of Dr. Grant, and Mrs. S. St. J. McCutchen presided at the table over tea and chocolate. The rare old mahogany table in the dining room was beautifully decorated with broad white satin ribbons laid in squares, terminating in bows at the sides. The centre piece was a large bowl of exquisite white chrysanthemums surrounded by smilax.

In the evening a dance pondre was given by Miss Smock for her young friends and the powdered hair of stately dames and picturesque peasants gave a quaintly pretty charm to the graceful figures gliding through the dances. The supper room, where a delicious repast was served, was decorated with American flags and chrysanthemums, the artistic table being a pleasing feature of the room. Rogers and Conde furnished the music.

Dr. Grant and family are planning to spend the winter in New York, expecting to leave in about two weeks.

JUSTICE NEWCORN'S COURT.

Summonses Issued and Judgments Taken in Various Cases.

In Justice Newcorn's court the case of Scheppe against Miller has been adjourned for one week. The contract case of Dunn against Rockafellow was tried and judgment rendered for the plaintiff, as was also the case on contract of MacDonald against Hale. The case of Morrison, administrator, against Pierson was discontinued. Lawyer Murphy represented the plaintiffs in the last three cases. The case of Tobin against Sutton was adjourned one week.

Summonses were issued in the following contract cases: Boone against Fields, returnable November 6th, Lawyer Runyon represents plaintiff; Linke against Hipp, returnable November 7th, Lawyer George W. De Meza represents the plaintiff; and Appleby against Mortimer, returnable November 8th, plaintiff represented by Reed & Coddington.

OPENING OF THE CYCLE ACADEMY.

A Brass Band and Trick Riding Riding Among the Features.

The opening of the Columbia Cycle Academy tonight promises to be an important event in the cycling life of Plainfield. Guttman's brass band will be present and furnish music during the evening. Maltby, the world-famous trick rider, and one of his young pupils will also be present and give exhibitions of their fancy riding.

A number of tandems and about seventy-five single wheels, all Columbias and Hartfords, will be ready for those who care to try the floor. Everybody will be given a chance and those who bring their own wheels can have the use of the floor for the entire evening.

Henry Wilson, the postmaster at Welshton, Florida, says he cured a case of diarrhœa of long standing in six hours with one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. What a pleasant surprise that must have been to the sufferer. Such cures are not unusual with this remedy. In many instances only one or two doses are required to give permanent relief. It can always be depended upon. When reduced with water it is pleasant to take. For sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. R. Armstrong, Manager.

NEW FRENCH CABINET

All the Portfolios Are Accepted But One.

Career of Prime Minister Bourgeois and Minister of Marine Lockroy—The Latter a Widely-Known and Active French Politician and Leader.

Paris, Nov. 1.—M. Bourgeois has succeeded in forming a cabinet, all the portfolios having been accepted with the exception of that of the foreign ministry. The new cabinet is constituted as follows: Prime minister and minister of the interior, M. Bourgeois; war, M. Cavaignac; marine, M. Lockroy; finance, M. Doumer; justice, M. Ricard; colonies, M. Combes; public instruction and worship, M. Berthelot; public works, M. Guyot-Dessaigne; commerce, M. Mesureur; agriculture, M. Viger.

Bourgeois' Career.

M. Leon Victor Auguste Bourgeois was born in Paris May 21, 1851. Summarized, his political career has been as follows: Secretary general of the prefect of the Seine, 1885; prefect of Haute Garonne, 1885; director of communal affairs in the ministry of the interior and prefect of police, 1887; returned a member of the chamber of deputies for the first time at a bye-election, 1888; under secretary of state under Minister Floquet, 1888; re-elected member of the chamber, 1889; minister of public instruction (cabinets of MM. de Freycinet and Loubet), 1892; minister of justice, cabinet of M. Ribot, December, 1892, and January, 1893.

Lockroy Widely Known.

M. Lockroy is one of the most widely known Frenchmen. In politics he is a radical republican. After completing his studies he made a journey to the Holy Land, and afterward took part under the orders of Garibaldi in the expedition to Sicily. On his return to France he made his debut in journalism, though it was originally designed that he should be a painter. His articles at last resulted in his being sent to prison for four months. He was chief of a battalion of the National guard during the siege of Paris. In 1871 he represented the Seine in the national assembly. Thereafter his political life was a stormy one. He became a member of the chamber of deputies, and in 1885 was minister of commerce, and in 1886 minister of public instruction. He was elected vice-president of the chamber in 1889 and again in 1894. Recently he has been president of the budget committee. The other members of the new cabinet have more or less been political leaders in France for several years.

SUCCEEDS HER HUSBAND.

Mrs. Amelia Frost Installed Pastor at Littleton, Mass.

Littleton, Mass., Nov. 1.—Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Amelia A. Frost succeeded her husband as pastor of the Congregational church in this town. A public installation was held, participated in by many clergymen from surrounding towns. This is the first time in New England that a woman has been called as pastor of a church of this denomination. Mrs. Frost was educated in the Chelsea common schools and at the Salem Normal school. She taught in the public schools of Chelsea for seven years. While there she was married to Mr. Frost, while he was in Andover Theological seminary. They settled at Oxford, where Mrs. Frost did the work of a pastor's wife. Ill health required a change, and they went to North Dakota in the service of the Home Missionary society. While there Mr. Frost was obliged to give up work, and his wife took up his duties. She for a while preached in New Hampshire. Shortly after coming to Littleton, Mr. Frost was again taken ill, and Mrs. Frost was gladly accepted as preacher to the church in his stead. Since then Mrs. Frost has been preaching every Sunday.

TO PREVENT FILIBUSTERING.

Spain Strengthening Her Consular Service in This Country.

Washington, Nov. 1. — Spain is strengthening her consular service in the United States at every point. This is obviously due to the Cuban situation, particularly the organization of filibustering expeditions in this country. Yesterday the president granted exequators to three new Spanish consular officers. They are Juan Patonsy Martinez, vice-consul at New Orleans; Jose Maria Lluch, consul at Boston, and Juan Vasquez, vice-consul at Key West.

STORM ON JERSEY COAST.

Surf Very High and Life Savers Are on the Alert.

Asbury Park, N. J., Nov. 1.—A high northeast wind set in at nightfall last night along the New Jersey coast and a few hours later resolved itself into a furious gale. The surf is very high today and the life-saving crews are watching closely for any signs of a wreck. Several jetties have been built at Ocean Grove to protect the beach at that place.

Indicted for Libel.

Boston, Nov. 1.—The Middlesex grand jury, sitting at Dowell, has brought an indictment for criminal libel against Thomas H. Eaton of Waltham, president of the United States watch factory and editor and proprietor of the Waltham Evening News. The complaint was made by Charles E. Sayward, alderman-at-large from ward 4, Waltham.

Abbott Issues a Sweeping Challenge

New York, Nov. 1.—Stanton Abbott, lightweight champion of England, has issued a challenge to fight any white man in the world, at any weight from 128 to 133 pounds. Abbott has never been beaten decisively in a fight in this country and has never barred any one.

Paying Interest on Bonds.

Washington, Nov. 1.—United States Treasurer Morgan last evening mailed 1,788 checks, aggregating $1,015,116, in payment of interest due to-day on United States bonds.

For Proselyting Purposes.

Rome, Nov. 1.—The American Methodists are about to start two periodicals in the English and Italian languages for proselyting purposes.

END OF DURRANT TRIAL.

The Case To Go to the Jury This Afternoon.

San Francisco, Nov. 1.—District Attorney Barnes delivered his peroration in the Durrant case this morning, and Judge Murphy will charge the jury this afternoon. Mr. Barnes made a telling point against the defendant which caused a pathetic scene. Barnes said that from the beginning of the history of criminal jurisprudence it had been a characteristic of murderers to leave undone what they should have done, and to do what they should have left undone. Why he had taken the rings from his victims fingers and taken them to a pawnshop God alone knew; but he had done it. The cataloguing of her son with infamous murderers moved Mrs. Durrant to tears. She had with difficulty maintained her composure earlier in the day when Barnes excoriated Durrant by saying that Cain was the George Washington of murderers compared to him, and that by antithesis H. H. Holmes was a gentleman and a scholar, and Prof. Webster a kind and human murderer. But when she could no longer be calm she laid her head upon the shoulder of her son, who sat in front of her, and wept violently. Durrant took her affectionately in his arms and pacified her. Barnes referred to the incident, and said he sympathized with the sorely tried mother who had been by her son's side every day since the trial had begun, but he called attention to the other mother in Montana to whom the mangled remains of Durrant's victim had been sent, and said that the duty of the jurymen raised them above sentiment.

TO VISIT WASHINGTON.

Duke of Marlborough Will Be Sir Julian Pauncefote's Guest.

Washington, Nov. 1.—The Duke of Marlborough and his cousin, Ivor Guest, will spend a few days in Washington as the guests of the British ambassador, Sir Julian Pauncefote. They will leave New York this afternoon arriving at Washington at an early hour in the evening, and will remain at the embassy until Monday, when they will return to New York. The duke and his companion are coming here for a few days of rest and no entertainments will be given in their honor as their expressed purpose is to remain as quiet as possible. The announcement that Sir Julian Pauncefote will attend the Marlborough-Vanderbilt wedding as the representative of the duke's family, is incorrect. Sir Julian will be present, but simply as an invited guest.

THE KATAHDIN A SUCCESS.

In a Rough Sea She Makes More Than Seventeen Knots.

New London, Nov. 1.—The ram Katahdin had her official trial yesterday, and, although the result will not be positively known for forty-eight hours or more, it is believed the final official record will show that she has done better than the seventeen knots required by the government. This vessel has excited unusual interest for the reason that she is unique among the navies of the world, and the fact that she is purely an experimental type of war vessel lent unusual uncertainty to the result of her trial. The day was distinctly unfavorable. Although at the start the government's representatives said the sea would be officially termed calm, before the run was over it was admittedly blowing what sailors call "half a gale."

MGR. SATOLLI A CARDINAL.

Official Announcement of His Elevation Received.

Washington, Nov. 1.—Monsignor Satolli has received official notice of his elevation to the rank of cardinal. The first announcement came by letter. The following cable dispatch to Cardinal Gibbons has been made public:

"To the Most Eminent Cardinal Gibbons, U. S. A.: I am happy to inform you that the holy father having decided to confer the cardinalate upon the apostolic delegate, Monsignor Satolli, your eminence will be delegated to impose the cardinalat beretta, his holiness intending in this way to perform an act gratifying to your eminence. "Rampolla, Cardinal."

To Remain in Washington.

Rome, Nov. 1.—It is stated here that Mgr. Satolli will probably remain in Washington for some time after he is raised to the dignity of cardinal, with the title of pro-delegate apostolic. His successor has not yet been selected.

MRS. C. L. DEAN DEAD.

SYMPATHY FOR CUBANS

Meetings Held in Three Cities Last Night.

Resolutions Expressing Compassion for and Calling for Belligerent Recognition of the Patriots Were Adopted at Washington, Pittsburg and Cleveland.

Washington, Nov. 1.—The sympathy of Washingtonians for the cause of Cuba was put to the test last night and responded in tones in which there was heard no note of discord. The drizzling rain made an uncomfortable night for a mass-meeting, but soon after the hour announced Metzeratt's hall was filled, many ladies being present. The crowd gave every evidence of its friendliness for the cause under discussion. Office holders were conspicuous by their absence, but a number of ex-office holders were present, and among those who participated were Corporal Tanner and Simon Wolf, consul to Egypt, who made one of the speeches of the evening. The hall was appropriately decorated, the emblem of Cuban independence being among the flags festooned about the stage. The speeches all overflowed with sentiments of liberty and patriotism and extended sympathy and hope to the citizens of the queen of the Antilles.

Resolutions of Sympathy.

After referring to our own independence the following resolutions were adopted: That we, the citizens of Washington, the capital of the great republic of the west, cannot view with indifference the struggle of any people, especially a people of this continent, to secure constitutional rights or a republican form of government; and that we extend our hearty sympathy to the island of Cuba in her present effort to follow our example; to throw off the tyrannical yoke of Spain and make herself the gem of the Antilles. That while we would discountenance all filibustering and would not have our free soil converted into a rendezvous of freebooters or buccaneers; that while we would discountenance all violations of international law, we shall gladly hail the day when our legal authorities can see their way clear to grant to this island belligerent rights, and afford her a fair chance to set up a government patterned after that which has given this republic her happiness and glory. A copy of the resolutions will be transmitted to the president, the honorable secretary of state of the United States and to both houses of of congress, so soon to assemble, as well as to the public press.

Mass Meeting at Pittburg.

Pittsburg, Nov. 1.—About seventy-five persons met in common council chambers, city hall, last night to act upon the situation in Cuba, with Mayor McFadden presiding. John S. Lamble reviewed Cuba's history and dwelt upon the Monroe doctrine. After alluding to the wealth of the province, he said his wish was that it become the fiftieth state. The resolutions adopted extended sympathy and declared that the recognition of the Cuban rebels as belligerents by the United States is demanded, together with aid.

Sympathizers at Cleveland.

Cleveland, Nov. 1.—A Cuban sympathy mass-meeting was held here last night at the city hall. Many of the most prominent citizens were present and speakers were greeted with great enthusiasm. Delegates were selected from labor and political organizations to act in concert with the business men and others who instigated the movement. H. C. Abels, the first speaker, devoted most of his address to the reading of correspondence from secretaries of numerous societies and prominent men who were unable to be present. A. N. De Arango, a prominent resident of the city of Cuban nativity, spoke on the matter of recognizing the Cuban insurgents as belligerents. Deafening applause greeted the conclusion of his address. Other speakers spoke in a similar strain and resolutions of sympathy for the patriots were adopted.

NEW JERSEY'S FINANCES.

State Fund Balance Now Stands at $893,747.88.

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 1.—State Comptroller Hancock has sent the following dispatch to Gov. Werts at Jersey City: "The state fund balance at the close of business last night was $893,747.88, after payments during the fiscal year, for the building of armories, enlargement and improvement of state institutions, costing $339,012.94, and the payment practically of all current obligations. A condition of state finances which is certainly very gratifying."

SERIOUS FOR BRITISH.

King of Ashantee Said To Be Well Prepared for War.

London, Nov. 1.—The news of the king of Ashantee's preparation for war may be quite a serious matter for the British if, as his envoys say, he has 50,000 rifles. He rules more than 8,000,000 people.

Killed His Mother.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 1.—James McLaughlin, aged about 23 years, shot and killed his mother at the latter's home in Olneyville, last evening. He escaped and when subsequently arrested it was found that the man had attempted to commit suicide. Domestic troubles are believed to have been the cause of the tragedy.

Stenographer at the White House.

Washington, Nov. 1.—George T. Cartelyou of New York has been appointed stenographer at the White House in place of Robert L. O'Brien of Massachusetts, resigned. Mr. Cartelyou was confidential clerk to the fourth assistant postmaster general.

Gray Held for Murder.

Woodsville, N. H., Nov. 1.—The hearing in the Gray wife murder case terminated yesterday and he was taken to jail at Haverhill, to await action of the grand jury during the present month at Plymouth.

Gentry-Patchen Race Postponed.

Charlotte, N. C., Nov. 1.—A special from Reidsville says that on account of a storm of rain and wind the Gentry-Patchen race has been postponed till next Tuesday next.

PROOF IS POSITIVE

THAT LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Is Daily Curing Backache, Dizziness, Faintness, Irregularity, and all Female Complaints.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS]

Intelligent women no longer doubt the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It speedily relieves irregularity, suppressed or painful menstruations, weakness of the stomach, indigestion, bloating, leucorrhœa, womb trouble, flooding, nervous prostration, headache, general debility, etc. Symptoms of are dizziness, faintness, extreme lassitude, "don't care," and "want to be left alone" feelings, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, flatulency, melancholy, or the "blues," and backache. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct all this trouble as sure as the sun shines. That causing pain, weight, and backache, is instantly relieved and permanently cured by its use. Under all circumstances it acts in perfect harmony with the laws that govern the female system, is as harmless as water. It is wonderful for Kidney Complaints in either sex.

Womb Troubles

Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills work in unison with the Compound, and are a sure cure for constipation and sick-headache. Mrs. Pinkham's Sanative Wash is frequently found of great value for local application. Correspondence is freely solicited by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., and the strictest confidence assured. All druggists sell the Pinkham remedies. The Vegetable Compound in three forms,—Liquid, Pills, and Lozenges.

MANY STATES SHAKEN

Reports from Yesterday's Earthquake Sections.

The Shocks Felt from Lakes to Gulf. Houses Swayed and People Thrown from Their Beds—Great Alarm Caused But No Great Damage Reported.

Washington, Nov. 1.—The scientists of the naval observatory find that no magnetic variations accompanied the earthquake yesterday morning, the exceedingly delicate instruments of the magnetic laboratory which in times of solar disturbances show minute details of the disturbances, have been unaffected by any unusual influences in the past twenty-four hours. Southern Associated press reports received here indicate that the shock was felt at Atlanta, Ga., and all over north Georgia, eastern Tennessee and north Alabama. Also at Jackson, Miss., where the vibrations are said to have lasted for nearly sixty seconds, and appeared to be from east to west. Fears were entertained for the old capitol building but no damage was done.

THROWN OUT OF BED.

Earthquake Causes Great Alarm at Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, Nov. 1.—Reports from all parts of Ohio say the earthquake shocks felt here yesterday morning was general all over the state. In this city they were accompanied by a rumbling sound which continued for a time after the quaking ceased. In the tops of buildings persons were thrown from their beds by the violent rocking. A guest on the eighth floor of the Palace hotel says that the walls of the building swayed to and fro, apparently a foot. A number of cracked walls are reported, but it is believed that no one was injured. Mr. Swick, a druggist, was thrown out of bed, and a whole family at Oliver an Lynn streets reported a similar experience. Col. Deitsch, chief of police, was thrown out of bed.

No Damage in Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—While the earthquake shocks yesterday morning were felt very distinctly here and shook things about for nearly a minute no damage has been reported. The shocks were felt all over the state. Speaking of the disturbance of yesterday a north side resident who passed through the Charleston earthquake nine years ago said: "I felt the shock and recognized it immediately. It equalled in force the forerunner of the South Carolina shake-up. My bed yesterday was shaken from east to west."

Worst Ever Experienced in Indiana.

Indianapolis, Nov. 1.—The earthquake shocks which were felt all over this state yesterday morning were the most pronounced in the history of the weather service. Every building in this city was violently swayed and thousand of people were awakened.

Great Alarm in Three States.

St. Louis, Nov. 1.—Reports from all parts of Missouri, Michigan and Wisconsin are to the effect that yesterday's siesmic disturbances were plainly felt and that great alarm was caused at many points.

RAIN IN WYOMING VALLEY.

Drought Broken and Mines Will Be Able To Resume.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Nov. 1.—A steady downpour of rain struck this valley at noon yesterday and continued all night. The rain is a welcome one to the whole Wyoming valley and is expected to fill the empty reservoirs of the water companies and furnish the various collieries, which have been crippled for the past two months by the drought, an abundance of water with which to resume on full time.

MRS. LEITCH NOT DEAD.

False Report Regarding the Missionary in Ceylon.

Boston, Nov. 1.—The recently published announcement of the death in Ceylon of Miss Mary Leitch, a missionary in that country, was entirely without foundation. Miss Leitch, who has been communicated with since the announcement of her decease, is in the enjoyment of good health and is attending as usual to the duties of her position.

A CONCESSION BY HARVARD.

Willing To Compete with Yale in a Proposed Shooting Match.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 1.—The Yale News says a telegram from Princeton states that Harvard has withdrawn her refusal to compete with Yale in the proposed triangular shooting match. The Yale team will therefore go to Monmouth Junction to-day.

Twelve Homes Burned.

Hazleton, Pa., Nov. 1.—Fire at Beaver Meadows yesterday destroyed the homes of Daniel Brogan, John Reese, Daniel Davis, James Brady, John Cole, Con Gallagher, Peter Gillespie, Mrs. Henry, Patrick Dougherty, Thomas Pettit, Michael Livinko and John Harkin. There was no water and the flames spread rapidly.

Drought at Altoona Broken.

Altoona, Pa., Nov. 1.—The long-continued drought has at last been broken in this section and everybody is rejoicing. Yesterday snow and rain combined began to fall, and this was shortly succeeded by a steady downpour of rain which continued all last night.

Two Companies Chartered.

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 1.—The Darlington Fire Brick company of Beaver county, capital $25,000, and the Oakdale Electric Light, Heat and Power company of Oakdale, Allegheny county, capital $3,000, have been chartered.

Trouble Brewing in Arabia.

London, Nov. 1.—The Standard will to day publish a dispatch from Constantinople saying that trouble is threatened in Arabia. The ministers are hurrying reinforcements to the Red Sea.

Honolulu Free of Cholera.

Washington, Nov. 1.—Reports just received at the navy department pronounce Honolulu free of cholera.

THE BIG FIGHT FIASCO.

Present Situation of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons Farce.

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 1.—From all appearances Bob Fitzsimmons is not likely to be at liberty to participate in a prize fight for several days to come. To-day he is under arrest and will appear before Judge Martin on the charge of entering the state to violate a law. Even if Fitzsimmons is discharged from custody to-day there is the redoubtable Gov. Clarke who will be on his trail again with some species of legal weapon within five minutes. Fitzsimmons denies the story that he had thrown himself in the way of Sheriff Dillard when he might have surrendered to Sheriff Houpt of Garland county and been taken safely to Hot Springs.

John L. the Lion of the Hour.

Hot Springs, Ark., Nov. 1.—The arrival on the early morning and noonday trains of between 400 and 500 sports from New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Memphis and other points, has a tendency toward making the scenes in and about the Arlington hotel decidedly animated. Parson Davies, with his aggregation of stars, including John L. Sullivan, Paddy Ryan, Tommy, of the same surname, came in after dinner and their appearance created an instantaneous furore. Everybody wanted to see the redoubtable John L., and between dignified citizens and the big-boned, wiry individuals who came in from valley and mountain, the ex-champion's right arm was pretty severely tested for nearly an hour. Then he was piloted about the town with an admiring crowd of men and boys following in his wake.

The Situation at Present.

The situation at present is this: Probably the two men can be gotten together early next week if the court proceedings result in their being placed under peace bonds; Maher and O'Donnell will meet at Whittington park on Monday afternoon and Smith and Ryan at the same place on the following day.

DECLARED A "DEATH TRAP."

Grand Jury's Report on the Government Printing Office Building.

Washington, Nov. 1.—The grand jury of the District of Columbia has reported to Judge Cole the result of a recent visit to and examination of the building occupied as the government printing office. The report says "that a disregard on the part of congress to the conditions existing at the government printing office will entail a responsibility which no one of us would desire to assume, and a liability which the government of the United States cannot afford to ignore." There are often from 1,200 to 1,500 people employed in the building which has been repeatedly denounced as a "death-trap." Measures for relief has invariably been stopped by a disagreement between the two houses of congress as to the new site to be selected, charges of jobbery being always made either on one side or the other.

MOHAMMEDAN REVOLT.

Assuming a Threatening Form—Troops Sent Against Them.

Washington, Nov. 1.—Full credence is placed in the St. Petersburg dispatch which announces that the Mohammedan insurrection in the Chinese province of Kan Su is assuming a threatening form. Unofficial advices from Pekin state that the number of Mohammedans in that locality is 800,000 and that a large force of troops have been sent against them. Kan Su is in the extreme western portion of the empire and the government has found great difficulty up to the present time in transporting soldiers to that region.

DYNAMITE OUTRAGE IN SPAIN.

Bomb Exploded in a Convent and Several Nuns Reported Killed.

Madrid, Nov. 1.—The greatest excitement has been caused at Corzuela, in the province of Biscaya, by a dastardly dynamite outrage. Some miscreant placed a bomb in the convent at that place and an explosion followed, causing much damage to the building. One report has it that several of the nuns were so terribly frightened that death resulted.

GOING HOME TO VOTE.

Exodus of Government Employes from Washington.

Washington, Nov. 1.—The exodus of clerks and employes who intend to exercise the right of suffrage in the several states has commenced. Those living in Ohio and northern New York have, many of them, already gone and each outgoing train is carrying others. Many of the high officials are already at home. The exodus is said to be more general than last year.

MISS FLAGLER INDICTED.

She Must Stand Trial for the Killing of a Negro Boy.

Wahington, Nov. 1.—Miss Flagler, daughter of Gen. Flagler, who shot and killed a negro boy who was stealing fruit several months ago, in her father's yard, has been indicted for manslaughter.

His Punishment a Farce.

London, Nov. 1.—A dispatch from Shanghai says that the punishment of Viceroy Liu-Pin-Chang for the Szechuan outrages has been utterly farcical. Upon returning to his home he did not suffer the smallest inconvenience; on the contrary he was presented with glowing testimonials by the officials of the province.

Dies of His Wound.

Cobourg, Ont., Nov. 1.—John Y. Cruickshanks, the lawyer who was shot Wednesday night by John Phillips, who subsequently committed suicide on his daughter's grave, died last evening.

Monarchist Conspiracy Discovered.

Rio Janeiro, Nov. 1.—A monarchist conspiracy has been discovered in the state of Sao Paulo. Several persons accused of complicity in the plot have been arrested.

Two Killed by a Train.

Elizabeth, N. J., Nov. 1.—Augustus Hadner and Henry Vogel, both of Linden, N. J., were struck by a train on the Pennsylvania road last evening and instantly killed.

Big Lumber Blaze.

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 1.—The lumber yards of Kramer & Stevenson at Dauphin were destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon, entailing a loss of $60,000.

E. V. Lindabury effectively replies in The World of yesterday morning to the charges made by the Republicans that he agreed to defend the race-track gamblers. He states that he refused a retainer of $10,000 for that purpose, and at his own expense he labored against the race-track bill of 1891-'92.

How fast a lie can travel. Witness the following from the Camden Courier:

In Plainfield the other evening he (Lindabury) boasted of having counseled the people to vote for Republican candidates, and that he might do so again, a declaration that caused some two hundred voters, or one-fourth of his audience, to leave the hall in disgust.

If there was any who left the hall in disgust at this remark those present failed to observe them.

The fiscal year of the State ended at midnight, and this morning the new appropriation bill passed at the extraordinary session of the Legislature goes into effect. Last evening Controller Hancock informed Governor Werts that the State fund balance at close of business was $893,747.88, after payments during the fiscal year for the building of armories, enlargement and improvement of State institutions, costing $339,012.93, and the payment practically of all current obligations. The expenditures for the year were considerably in excess of the previous fiscal year. The balance in the treasury at the close of the last fiscal year was $986,855.91.

Application has been made to Auditor Baldwin of the Treasury department for the certification of bounty claims of Louisiana sugar-producers, with the object of getting the cases before the Comptroller, and on his disallowing them to bring suit in the United States District Court in Louisiana, and thence take an appeal to the United States Supreme Court. The Auditor refused, holding that as a case had been certified for decision by the Court of Claims, it would be against the practice of the office to send another, though he would do so if the Comptroller desired. The effect of the Auditor's action is to leave the cases in the same position as they were left by the Comptroller, who refuses to certify claims until the constitutionality of the appropriation act is determined.

MEDAL FOR WALTZING.

Six Couples Glide Gracefully About at the Jersey Central Ball.

The third ball under the auspices of the Jersey Central club, held in Red Men's hall last evening, was a successful affair. The hall was prettily decorated with Chinese lanterns and bunting. The evening was pleasantly spent in dancing to the strains from Naylor's orchestra, which was kept up until early morn.

The main event that was looked forward to with great interest was the prize waltz which took place at 12 o'clock. About thirteen couples contested and out of these six couples were picked for the final heat. Ten minutes was given for the waltz, and at the finish the handsome gold medal was awarded amid loud applause to James Wilson, of Chester, Pa., and Miss Jennie Kilpatrick, of this city. The five judges that were selected by the committee were G. Barry, E. O'Reilly, G. Greder, D. Curtis and P. J. Doughtery.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

F. Burdick, of West Front street, is kept at home by illness.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Teeple are the proud parents of a little son.

Duer Randolph, of Dunellen, has secured a position at Edsall's.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Runyon and Mrs. Runyon's sister, Miss Jennie Cuthbertson, of West Fourth street, went to Philadelphia today to attend the funeral services of the latter's grandmother which are held today.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. J. Drake, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. J. B. Drake, of Elizabeth, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Hetfield, of Madison avenue. Mr. Drake was a former editor of the Elizabeth Herald and now holds a responsible position in the Government printing office.

NO BAD PRANKS.

The Rain Spoiled Much of the Prospective Fun of the Youngsters.

The rain of last night put a quietus on the wholesale celebration of Hallowe'en, but the festive young boy was not entirely suppressed and in various sections of the city they succeeded in extracting some fun in lifting gates from their hinges and depositing them in places where their owners might give vent to not the choicest of language when they viewed the work of the youngsters, scaring old maids and immature girls by the tick-tack on the window pane, pulling up cabbages and conveying them to neighboring doorsteps where the belated member of the family might fall over them, and doing other pranks that their boyish minds could prompt. But the mischief-making was, as a rule, of a harmless variety, and the five extra policemen, put on in the city to preserve order and prevent depredations, had nothing to do.

TRAMPS IN FULL SWAY.

They are Having a Glorious Time Scaring People Around Westfield.

For the past week this place has been overrun with tramps who rendezvous in Ripley's woods at Garwood, about a mile from this village, says The World correspondent from Westfield. They annoy the people living in the neighborhood by begging eatables and money. In the summer months the town was rid of these fellows, but of late they come in gangs, and it is estimated that there are nearly two hundred tramps in and around Westfield at the present time. Each day a number are detailed to get provisions for the gang and with the regular tramp story they are most of the time successful in securing provisions from merchants. Of late the farmers have complained to the authorities that they have lost their chickens and attibute it to tramps.

At night the hoboes build a campfire and enjoy themselves with a dinner in tramp style. Late last night about thirty gathered on the county road near Roselle and started on a march along the county-road towards Garwood. They sang and shouted and created a disturbance. Wheelmen and others on the road were greeted with insulting remarks and jeers. In several instances persons in carriages indiscreet enough to reply to them got a volley of stones.

The tramps had the road to themselves. Everybody got out of their way as quickly as possible. When they reached Garwood they went into their camp in the woods and enjoyed themselves in their own peculiar way. The authorities will consider the tramp question.

MR. MORRIS'S WORK.

The City's Testimonial to Dr. Coles Artistically Engrossed.

The testimonials to be presented to Dr. Jonathan Ackerman Coles by the Mayor and Common Council as a memorial of the city's recognition of his gift of the bronze group of statuary, to be place in Lincoln Park, is a beautiful specimen of the art of engrossing. The memorial is in album form, bound in dark leather of the finest quality, the fly leaves being of rich white moire silk. The body of the memorial contains the communication of the Mayor to Common Council announcing the offer of Dr. Coles, the resolutions passed by the Council in accepting the gift and the announcement by Mayor Lebkuecher to Dr. Coles of the acceptance. The entire work is engrossed in India ink on a surface of Payn's gray, with high lights of silver and gold, which render a beautiful effect to the lettering. The groundwork has the appearance of rolled paper, surrounded by oak and ivy branches and leaves. The Mayor and the members of the Common Council who have seen the memorial are highly pleased with and warmly commended the delineator, John B. Morris, secretary of the Board of Assessment. Mr. Morris himself considers it to be the best thing he has ever done in the engrossing line.—Newark Advertiser.

A Hallowe'en Dance.

Miss Louise Holmes, of East Front street, entertained a few of her friends with a Hallowe'en dance last evening.

—Miss Rose Verdon is not one of the dancers in the Russian Military dance in the Kirmess, but simply one of the chaperones.

THEATRICAL.

The famous aquatic drama "Lost in New York" comes to Music Hall this evening and we are promised one of the most elaborate productions of the season. The story of the play is well known. There is nothing of the impossible about it, it is one of everyday life, but it is well told and dressed up in a popular manner with scenic and mechanical accessories. The plot hinges on the efforts of a scheming rascal to defraud the widow who's blind and helpless and at the mercy of her unscrupulous brother-in-law, but she has a young daughter, Jennie, the Waif, who is afraid of nothing, and who goes ahead to rescue her mother and defeat the plans of her uncle. The incidences and climates are very well brought out as the story progresses, and Jennie is finally successful in her efforts to place her mother where she belongs.

A strictly first-class vaudeville company will appear at Music Hall tomorrow evening, when James Thornton's Elite Vaudeville Company will be the attraction. Mr. Thornton is known through the country as one who stands at the head among the many song writers before the public, known as the man who has set the world a singing. Bonnie Thornton, who heads his well selected company, alike the star, is well known as a comedian and singer.

—There was a grand rush for monthly tickets this morning at the North Avenue station.

A Household Treasure.

D. W. Fuller, of Canajoharie, N. Dykeman Druggist, Catskill, N. Y., says that Dr. King's New Discovery is undoubtedly the best cough remedy: that he has used it in his family, for eight years, and it has never failed to do all that is claimed for it. Why not try a remedy so long tried and tested. Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store. Regular size 50c. and $1.00.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION.

The Civil Service Commission at Washington has ordered that an examination be held in this city on December 7, 1895, commencing at 9 o'clock, a. m., for the grades of clerk and carrier in the city postoffice. Only citizens of the United States can be examined. The age limitations are as follows: For carrier, not under 21 nor over 40; for all other positions, not under 18 years. No application will be accepted for this examination unless filed with the undersigned, in complete form, on the proper blank, before the hour of closing business on November 18, 1895.

The Civil Service Commission takes this opportunity of stating that the examinations are open to all reputable citizens who may desire to enter the postal service, without regard to their political affiliation. All such citizens, whether Democrats or Republicans, or neither, are invited to apply. They shall be examined, graded and certified with entire impartiality, and wholly without regard to their political views, or to any consideration save their efficiency, as shown by the grades they obtain in the examination.

For application blanks, full instructions, and information relative to the duties and salaries of the different positions, apply to the postoffice to

G. C. GODOWN,
Secretary Board of Examiners.

Dancing in Sheets and Pillowcases.

The rain kept many at home, but the Ghost Dance of the New Market Tennis club, held last evening at the home of one of its members, Miss Emma Nelson, was a great success. About forty were present. The house was handsomely decorated. Prof. Snowden furnished the music.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces, such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Beneath the Haik.

Disappointing is a glance beneath the haik of a Moorish maiden. The faces of the Moorish women are too broad to be beautiful. Their eyes are dark and lustrous, but every device of art is used to give them the appearance they present in the street to the curious stranger. Art also generally supplies the complexion. The eyelashes are luxuriant, and the eyebrows finely arched. The mouth is large, but the teeth are beautifully white. In the middle of the forehead and on the chin are generally two tattoo marks of peculiar device—the distinctive badge or crest of the family to which the individual belongs.

Whatever may be said of its women, Tangier has long been famous in the annals of art. Here Regnault painted his "Executioners" and Fortuny his "Snake Charmers," and here also Alma Tadema is said to have received the inspiration for many of his characteristic combinations of color. The chief hunting ground of the brotherhood is the sok, but at every street corner innumerable scenes present themselves worthy of artistic treatment.—Good Words.

For Mental Worry.

An eminent physician of the last century, Dr. Manseman, in an exhaustive treatise on "The Physical and Mental Treatment of the Human Body," gave a remedy for mental worry as follows: "Let the sufferer think of the person whom he or she loves best, dwell upon his or her charms and graces, cogitate deeply upon the affection one bears for the other." The good doctor's postscript, however, suggested a want of faith either in himself or his patients, for it reads: "If this does not have a soothing effect, then let the patient try a small draft of strongly brewed tea, with a lump of ginger in it. The efficacy of this is wonderful," an encomium, by the way, which he did not bestow upon the first paragraph.—New York Times.

Practical Instruction.

In Australia the school children are all taught what to do if bitten by a snake. This drill is rendered necessary by the fact that all the Australian snakes are venomous, and they are almost as common as in India. The reason why fatalities are less is because the snakes are comparatively small and are timid.

In Germany the walls of the schoolrooms are hung with maps of different species of pestiferous weeds. There are colored plates of weeds in all stages of growth and also the way in which the seeds are scattered and propagated.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The Blossoms Covered Them.

Among the reminiscences of the Grand Army of the Republic was recalled a singular incident at Shiloh, where the dead were laid in a peach orchard, and the detonations of the artillery, having shaken off the blossoms, veiled their bodies with the delicate petals. A theme for a poet.—Boston Transcript.

HOLMES SCORES A POINT

About Fifty of the State's Witnesses Barred.

Judge Arnold Decides That the Killing of the Children Has No Direct Bearing upon the Present Case—Defense Now More Hopeful of Acquittal.

Philadelphia, Nov. 1.—The first gleam of hope that has come to Holmes since he was arraigned for the murder of Benjamin F. Pietzel yesterday broke through the rift of the dark cloud of damaging evidence in which he has been enveloped. His attorneys late yesterday afternoon succeeded in keeping from the jury all evidence bearing directly upon the murder of the Pietzel children. The decision of the court ruling this evidence out, left the prosecution in confusion, and in consequence the district attorney asked for time in which to rearrange his case. The court granted the request and the regular night session was not held, and the case went over for the day.

Prosecution Still Hopeful.

Despite the decision of the court in refusing to admit the testimony showing that Holmes killed the Pietzel children, District Attorney Graham is convinced that the evidence he has already presented to the jury will convict Holmes. Although the direct evidence possessed by the commonwealth that Holmes killed Pietzel is circumstantial, so strong is this chain of presumptive testimony that, to any one who has followed it, there can hardly remain a doubt that on that Sunday in September, a year ago, Holmes killed Pietzel in the house at No. 1316 Callowhill street.

Completely Unnerved.

The decison of Judge Arnold and the confrontation in the witness box of Holmes by the woman whom he deceived into believing she was his legal wife, and the breakdown of the prisoner that followed, were the leading features of the day's proceedings. After several witnesses had testified the name of Miss Yoke was called. Holmes had expected that the woman whom he had lured into marriage, with the belief that he was single, would be called upon to give testimony against him, but the prospect of her appearance in the witness box completely unnerved him.

Really Loved Her.

He called eagerly to his counsel and urged them with earnestness to object to the witness. In the meanwhile, however, Miss Yoke had taken her place in the witness stand. From his behavior as she did so, it it would seem as if Holmes really loved this woman. As she came forward his pallid face flushed to the brows, and then the blood retreated, leaving him ghastly white. He looked appealingly at her, but she carefully avoided glancing in his direction. When the girl so evidently avoided even so much as looking at him Holmes bowed his head and struggled with a sob that shook his frame, while he wiped the tears from his face. He appealed piteously to his lawyers to take the witness from the stand.

Not So Damaging as Expected.

Before she began her testimony Holmes' counsel stated to the court that the prisoner would cross-examine the witness himself. Miss Yoke was one of the star witnesses for the commonwealth, but beyond proving that Pietzel called on Holmes the night before the day the prosecution claims he was killed, and that Holmes told her that he had an engagement with Pietzel on the next day, and was absent from the house from 10:30 in the morning until 4:30 in the afternoon on Sunday, her evidence was not so damaging to the prisoner as as those in the court room expected. She seemed to have no knowledge of any of the events bearing directly upon the murder of Pietzel or the children. Throughout the period of the time in which these events occurred she was constantly with Holmes.

Cross-examined by Holmes.

Holmes readily deceived her as to the reason for their hurried movements from city to city by specious lies. During Miss Yoke's testimony Holmes recovered his composure and when he arose to cross-examine her his voice was steadier and louder than it has been at any time since the trial began. His examination of the witness was not long and he succeeded in abstracting from her some statements that were favorable to himself. Holmes did not conclude his examination of Miss Yoke, but gave notice that he would call her as a witnes for himself.

The Defense Hopeful.

The attorneys of the defense are joyful over the decision of Judge Arnold, and they now affect to believe that there is a prospect of the jury returning a verdict of acquittal. Judge Arnolds decision has cut off the testimony of about fifty witnesses for the commonwealth from Indianapolis, Toronto and other places and, in consequence, the prosecution will call but two more witnesses. It is expected that the trial will close by tomorrow night at the latest.

HISTORIC IMPOSTORS

SEVERAL INSTANCES OF SWINDLING ON A GRAND SCALE.

An Impersonation Aided by a Remarkable Likeness—Treachery of the Bibliophile, Jean Aymon—How the Chinese Farmers Were Robbed.

In 1823 French society was much interested by the reappearance of the Comte de St. Helene, a wealthy and agreeable young man of high family, whose death in Spain had been reported two years before. He had not the least trouble in proving his identity, for every one recognized him, the royal family included. For form's sake, he produced his papers, which were quite correct. The king, delighted, gave him "a step," and when he rejoined his regiment officers and men recognized him unanimously. We find no mention of the comte's relatives, but it must be supposed that they did not object. For two years he enjoyed himself mightily. At the end of that time, when parading with his squadron at some court ceremony, a drunken loafer greeted the brilliant captain vociferously as "Ami Cognard." He would not be silenced and the police arrested him. On recovering his senses he persisted that the Comte de St. Helene was his old comrade of the hulks. In brief, so it proved. After a sensational trial the hero was condemned to the galleys for life and died at Toulon 16 years later. But such impostures are mean beside the grand school of antiquity. Read the amazing tale of Alexander the Paphlagonian, or that of Peregrinus, which Christian antiquarians have not ceased to discuss—both told with spirit inimitable by Lucian. The career of the Comte de St. Germain is mysteriously interesting even yet. It is not to be hoped that the world will see again such a wondrous humbug as George Psalmaneser, who actually invented a language and grammar to support his fictitious adventures in Formosa. The talent could be found no doubt and the impudence, but science would nip the enterprise in the bud.

A name of evil celebrity among bibliophiles is that of Jean Aymon. He was a very able man, of course, a fine scholar and in early years perhaps a devout Roman Catholic. Pope Innocent XI made him a prothonotary—one of those offices of which the title is a household word to most of us, but comprehended by few. In the height of his favor, for reason unknown—probably unedifying—Aymon fled to Switzerland and became a Protestant. There also he made an excellent position—deserted it and went to Holland. A rich and pious widow fell in love with him, his eloquent preaching charmed the Dutch, and for some years wealth and fashion kept him quiet. Suddenly he declared his intention of visiting Constantinople upon mysterious business which would bring great advantage to the Christian faith. When his admiring friends left him, however, he went to Paris. There this extraordinary man presented himself to M. Clement, keeper of the Bibliotheque de Roi, professing such remorse for his apostasy that Clement was persuaded to introduce him to the cardinal archbishop of Paris. That dignitary, overjoyed to recover such a precious soul, enjoined a pious "retreat" for six months, but he allowed Aymon to pass the time in the royal library.

Before the six months expired, however, he was back in Holland with a number of large and heavy boxes, and there in no long time he announced the publication of various works profoundly interesting to scholars and theologians. Among them was to be a transcript of the proceedings of the last council at Jerusalem, of which the only manuscript known lay in the Bibliotheque du Roi. The hapless Clement saw this advertisement and rushed to his shelves. His manuscript was gone! There was no catalogue of the library. What Aymon took will never be known. But he had foraged at will among the unique and priceless treasures which were the glory of the collection. Fourteen sheets even had he torn from the Bible of St. Denys itself—these were recovered from the Baron von Stocks years afterward—35 sheets from the seventh century manuscript of the Pauline epistles. Earl Middleton returned 34 of them in the end. The last has never been heard of. Volumes of secret dispatches, confidential letters from popes and kings, antique manuscripts and records—the sagacious and erudite Aymon had patiently overhauled the lot and appropriated the most valuable.

For a century the officials of the bibliotheque, supported by the government, were negotiating, intriguing and threatening to recover such lost treasures as they could identify from the persons to whom he had sold them. The thief meanwhile lived in high consideration at Amsterdam and died in the odor of sanctity. The Dutch government would not be persuaded nor coerced to proceed against him and his congregation never lost faith.

An instance of another sort well worth recalling is told in the "Annals of Lord Elgin's Mission to China." Some weeks after the taking of Canton native merchants brought a proclamation to his lordship asking whether it were authorized. The document was most imposing, printed on official paper, signed and countersigned and sealed. It read, in Chinese: "Whereas, the British fleet is now stationed from Shakok to Shakmum, it is hereby ordered that, in return for protection against lawless persons who would cut grain without authority, 2 mace per acre shall be paid into the British office at Ning-i-Tong (the hall of peace and patriotism), at Netong, to which all cultivators are directed to repair on Oct. 30, or the two following days, with money in hand." On due payment they would receive a license under seal, "which will be recognized all over the earth." Any cultivator who presumed to cut his grain without such license would be seized forthwith "by the vessels of the Ning-i-Tong of Great Britain," and carried to the said hall, there to be punished for contempt and to lose the whole of his property without a moment's delay, their papers vised and indorsed. The proclamation, in fact, was a masterpiece of businesslike drafting.

It did not come to the knowledge of the British authorities until Nov. 1, and for two days money had been pouring into the hall of peace and patriotism. When Mr. Wade hurried to the spot, he found a crowd struggling for admission. Six persons of the most dignified appearance sat at a table. They were arrested, but somehow only one could be proved guilty—the compadre who had supplied her majesty's ships with provisions.—London Standard.

Tea Trays.

It is a mistake to clean tea trays with boiling water, for this is liable to crack and spoil the varnish. The best way is to sponge them over with warm water and soap, then dry and polish with flour. Trays often get marked from hot teapots, jugs, etc., standing on them. These marks should be rubbed with a little sweet oil before the tray is washed.

CHAPTER II.—CONTINUED

Then the door was thrown open, and Minnie, her face white as the dead, drawn with a great terror, stood within the room.

"Harriet!" she gasped. "Harriet!"

"What about her?" cried Robert France.

And Ned noted, with fresh amazement, that he seemed in a moment to have recovered himself, and to look and speak as usual.

"I—I—can't—find her—anywhere!" panted Minnie.

"Why, where have you been looking for her? Have you been to her Aunt Catherine's?"

"No," said the girl.

"Well, that's where she is, of course. Go to bed, my girl, and don't alarm yourself about her. She'll turn up right enough to-morrow morning."

Minnie burst into a passion of sobs.

"I can't!" she stammered. "I can't sleep till I know what's become of her! And

"HARRIET!" SHE GASPED. "HARRIET!"

I wonder at you, Bob, drinking and enjoying yourself when for all you know she may have drowned herself."

"Drowned herself! What nonsense! Why should she drown herself?"

"Why, you didn't make her so happy that she need have wished to live," sobbed Minnie, whose grief and anxiety were piteous to see.

Robert started forward in a great rage.

"How dare you say that? How dare you say I didn't make her happy? Why, everybody knows I worship the ground she treads on."

As he came round the table towards her, Minnie moved away in the opposite direction; and in so doing she suddenly came in sight of the sleeping man on the sofa, who remained entirely undisturbed by the noise they made. She stoppd short with a cry.

"What have you done to him?" she cried in an awestruck whisper.

And she came nearer and looked into the sergeant's face.

"Done! Nothing! Bless the girl! She's going crazy, I believe," muttered Bob, as he went round to her, and seizing her roughly by the arm, dragged her round to the door. "You can ask him yourself in the morning, when he's sober, unless he takes himself off before you're up, ashamed of himself! Go along with you. A nice talking to your mother would give you, if she knew you went marching about the house, spying into the rooms, at this time of night! Do you think that's proper behavior for a girl staying at an inn?"

But the girl, though she flushed a little under his harsh words, was too much disturbed, too much distressed, to be deeply moved by them. Ned, however, was roused to anger by this treatment of the pretty young girl, whose fears, fanciful though they might be, were born of her love for her sister. He remonstrated with France, and did his best to comfort poor Minnie, who, however, went quietly away down the corridor to her room with the tears still running down her cheeks.

France lit a candle for Ned, and spoke apologetically about his own behavior.

"But wasn't it enough to make a man mad, now, to hear her talking as if I didn't care for my wife?" said he, as they went along the corridor together. "Why, I'm that fond of my old woman, though we do have a few words sometimes, like most married folks, I'd go through fire and water to hunt down any rascal that would do her harm!"

"Why, you don't surely think—"

"Oh, no. She's at her aunt's safe enough. But if she doesn't come back the first thing to-morrow morning, I shall just let things here slide, and go and fetch her."

As they parted for the night, and Ned went into his room, he heard poor little Minnie's sobs through the door of her room which she had left ajar.

Ned Fothergill went to bed rather disturbed by the occurrences of the evening. Although he was inclined to think the husband's explanation of his wife's absence the most plausible one, he had yet been sufficiently infected by pretty Minnie's fears to feel rather uneasy about the attractive hostess of "The Griffin." He had seen enough of Bob's sombre jealousy, of his wife's coquetry, of the sergeant's evident admiration, to feel doubtful whether there were not more in this disappearance of the lady than met the eye.

And he was turning the matter over and over in his mind when he fell asleep.

He was aroused, by he hardly knew what, when the early rays of dawn were creeping through the curtains of his room. Springing out of bed in an indescribable fright, he heard a shout, which rang through the house, followed quickly by another, and then another.

"Help!" cried the voice, a man's voice. "Help! Murder! Oh, my God, it's murder!"

There was a noise, as of a heavy weight crashing down on the floor. And then there was dead silence.

CHAPTER III.

A Black Deed.

Ned Fothergill flung himself into his clothes, and rushed out of his room and along the corridor, towards the room where he and the landlord of the inn, and Eben Miles, the soldier, had had supper on the previous evening.

It was instinct, rather than an acute sense of the direction whence the cries came, which led him straight to that apartment.

But before he reached it, a woman's frantic scream echoed through the house in such a piercing note of agony, that he was seized with panic, with a sort of paralysis of horror, and stopped short, bewildered and terror-struck, absolutely unable to make out, besides, from which direction this new sound came.

One moment he stood, irresolute; then, touching the walls with shaking, clammy fingers, and creeping blindly along with slow footsteps, instead of the run at which he had started, he came to a door which yielded, creaking, to his hand. At the same instant there came from within the room another cry, the cry that he had first heard:

"Help, help! It's murder!"

Ned threw open the door, and entered the room. It was the club room, but it did not seem the same apartment to Ned as that in which, not more than three hours before, he and his two companions had supped so merrily. The long table had been pushed back; the wooden shutters had been thrown open; and the sickly morning light of a grey, rainy day streamed through the tiny latticed panes, and showed him such a sight as he never forgot.

Half on the worn carpet which covered the middle of the floor, and half on the oilcloth beyond, lay, stretched at full length, the body of a woman whom Ned at once knew to be Mrs. France, although the face he had seen the previous day with the flush of robust health in lips and cheeks was now a livid and hideous grey.

Her head was thrown back, and round her neck was a dark ring of discolored bruised flesh. Her arms lay straight down by her sides, and her hands were tightly clenched.

On the floor beside her, supporting the motionless form upon his knee, was the young sergeant, Eben Miles. His head was bent down so that Ned could not see his face. He was uttering no articulate word, but from his lips there issued indistinct mutterings, like the whispered gibberish of an imbecile.

A little way off, leaning heavily against the table, was the landlord, Robert France. He was shaking from head to foot; his black eyes seemed to be starting out of his head; his matted hair hung in rough disorder far over his pale face. As the door opened, and Ned came in, France rushed towards him, and seizing him by the arm in a strong grip, pointed to the two figures on the floor with a shaking finger.

"Look at him! Look at her! She's dead. He's killed her, murdered her—my wife, my poor wife!"

He seemed scarcely sane, as, gnashing his teeth and clenching his fists, he suddenly dropped Ned's arm, and made a frantic rush in the direction of the sergeant. When, however, Eben looked up, with a wild stare, as if not recognizing the person of his would-be assailant, the landlord fell back a step, and staggering against the table again, threw himself into a chair, and buried his head in his hands with a loud groan.

"Gone! Gone! My darling, my darling wife! Killed! Murdered!" sobbed he once more, as Ned advanced into the middle of the room and gazed in bewilderment at the soldier and his ghastly burden.

It was upon this quiet, silent figure and not upon the raving, bereaved husband, that Ned's interest was an once centered. What did this passive behavior, this marvelous reticence in the face of the accusations of the other man, mean?

Surely, thought Ned, they could bear but one interpretation; if Eben had killed this woman he had done the terrible deed while under the influence of drink, and while he was not responsible for his actions.

But another look at the man, at the handsome, open face, now distorted, and drawn with grief, with bewilderment, made Ned doubt even this. The sergeant was holding the lifeless body with a tenderness, an absolute obliviousness that he was in the presence of the dead woman's husband, was touching the hands with so gentle a pressure, looking into the glassy, fixed eyes with so earnest an expression, that it seemed impossible to connect him with the ghastly work. Ned turned, and looked from him to the prostrated, sobbing husband.

"If he killed your wife," said he, shortly, "why do you let him hold her?"

Robert France staggered to his feet.

"Why? Why? Because I don't know what I'm doing," moaned he. "Because I can't go near the brute, I can't look at him, any more than I can at her, at my darling." He stopped, breathing heavily, and gnashing his teeth again. "The police!" cried he suddenly. "We must send for the police. They won't be afraid to touch him."

At that moment the sergeant looked up again, and fixed his eyes sombrely upon France.

"Yes," said he. "Fetch the police."

And rising from the floor with his burden, he crossed the room to the little horsehair-covered sofa on which he himself had been sleeping, and placed the dead woman tenderly and carefully upon it. Then he turned round.

"Where's the police-station" he said shortly, walking quickly to the door.

But the landlord dashed across the floor, and turned the key in the lock before the sergeant could get out.

"No, you don't," said he, between his set teeth. "No, you don't leave this house till they come. Mind, I say nothing; I make no accusations against you, or anybody. But I say this, that no one in this house shall leave it till I know who it was that murdered my poor wife."

The sergeant fell back a little, and looked puzzled. He was quite silent for a moment, and then he said quietly:

"All right."

Taking a handkerchief from his pocket, he wiped his face, his neck, his hands. And Ned saw that his fingers were shaking, as if with palsy.

France stared at him with his gleaming black eyes.

"So you're going to brave it out, are you?" said he.

Ned stepped forward quickly, between the two men.

"Come," said he. "Treat the man fairly. Nothing's proved yet; he doesn't own up, and he doesn't deny. He was drunk last night, remember."

IT WAS HER LAST CRY.

But France was vindictive, savage.

"Drunk!" he repeated. "I don't believe it. He was shamming. Did he drink enough to make him drunk, answer me that?"

Ned hesitated. The question revived his doubts of the night before. And yet, although the evidence began to look strong against the sergeant, Ned's sympathies were all with him, and not with the distracted husband.

France went on:

"Who else could have done it but him? Didn't you hear the noise? The struggling? The screaming?"

Ned nodded reluctantly.

"I didn't hear a struggle. I heard a scream. But it was after you called out."

"It was her last cry," said France. "That was just after I came in."

The sergeant, who had been sitting on a chair, close to the sofa, with his head bent down, and his hands loosely clasped together, looked up.

"That's a lie," said he briefly, in a low voice.

Robert France started angrily, and raised his fist in a menacing manner.

"You dare to tell me what I say is a lie!" cried he, advancing towards the sergeant in a threatening manner.

Ned got between them.

"Come," said he, "he has a right to tell his version of the story."

"His version!" shouted France. "His version! Who cares for his version? Who cares for the word of a murderer?"

He stopped, and a silence fell upon all the group. For in their midst there stood a girlish figure, all in white, with a white face and wild eyes.

It was Minnie.

(To be concluded.)

THE SHAKERS DO THEIR DUTY.

"If a man discovers a valuable medicine," said Horace Greely, "it is his duty to advertise it." Yes and at once; for suffering demands the speediest relief possible. But let the man first be sure. Suffering had better wait than be deluded by false hopes. Medecine, like surgery, must often seem cruel in order to be really kind. On this principle the Shakers, of Mt. Lebanon, N. Y., withheld their great indigestion and dyspepsia remedy from the public for several years. With them rightdoings is everything,—money, comparatively nothing. Hence the popularity and success of whatever they offer for sale. Having satisfied themselves of the merit of their medicine by employing it in the worst cases of digestive disorders in their own vicinity for years, they did their duty—they advertised it, under the name of the Shaker Digestive Cordial. In all cases where their is distress after eating, pain in the stomach, chest and back; aversion to food with the resulting symptoms, such as headache, furred tongue, eructation of gas, with weakness and loss of flesh, etc., the Cordial has a most happy effect. Being itself a digested food with power to digest other foods, it relieves the weak and possibly inflamed stomach of the labor it is in no condition to perform, gives new strength to the body and presently restores to the digestive organs their normal vigor. Taken immediately after eating this remedy insures the digestion of the meal and prevents fermentation of the food, which is the sourse of most of the afflictive symptoms which accompany dyspepsia. It is also as agreeable to the taste as it is potent as a medicine. To show their own confidence in it, and to hasten its universal adoption, the Shakers authorize druggists to sell trial bottles at the nominal price of ten cents.

WALTZ OF ROSES.

Olivier Metra's "Waltz of Roses"
Sheds in a rhythmic shower
The very petals of the flower,
And all is roses,
The rouge of petals in a shower.
* * * * * * *
Alone apart, one dancer watches
Her mirrored, morbid grace.
Before the mirror face to face
Alone she watches
Her morbid, vague, ambiguous grace.

Before the mirror's dance of shadows
She dances in a dream,
And she and they together seem
A dance of shadows,
Alike the shadows of a dream.

ABOUT EDITOR STOREY.

How His Raids on the Newspaper Workers Were Checked.

Wilbur Storey, though a great editor, never had fame for good humor, and as he grew old he grew irritable. Little things worried him; small matters made him furious. If some mistakes shone forth in any fashion of bad, ragged work in the Chicago Times, Storey was liable to inquire the criminal out and deal with him.

There came a time in his life when his dismissal from the service of his paper averaged four a week, good men too. James B. Runnion, now editor in chief of the Kansas City Star, was then managing editor of Wilbur Storey's Times. To preserve his force from the devastating swoops of Storey's irritability something had to be done.

Runnion studied the situation long and hard. He noticed that after Storey had discharged a man he appeared to experience great relief and would get along in peace and comparative quietude for a time. The record showed that Storey never fired more than one man a day.

If Runnion could only provide the right sort of a victim every day, all would be well. A bright idea struck Runnion. He had a splendid, competent boy in the elevator. He removed that competent youth to another field and hired another boy, the worst that he could find.

The boy knew nothing of an elevator and did everything wrong. The first time Storey got into the elevator with the worthless boy he started the machine too soon and almost caught the great editor in the door frame. Had he succeeded it would have ended Storey's career. Upon arrival at the top floor Storey ordered the dangerous youth discharged. It was done, and the old elevator boy was sent back until a fresh victim could be brought in.

The next morning a new and clumsy elevator boy was discovered by Storey and promptly told to go. The morning following Runnion fed the great editor another. Now and then a boy would last two days, but the rule was five a week.

Storey would immolate a quintet of elevator boys each week, and with that he would rest content. It was a good thing and kept him off the regular force and restored tranquillity among the hired men. But it was a bit rough on the boys.—Washington Star.

Historical Anecdotes.

"Would to God that night or Blucher would come!" exclaimed the Duke of Wellington as his anxious eye surveyed the dark masses of Napoleon's forces.

"Night will be here in 3 hours and 11 minutes, your grace," said his chief of staff, consulting his watch.

"Oh, I ain't so particular about night," responded the iron duke.

"All is lost save honor," exclaimed Francis I as he looked upon his defeated army.

"How about honor?" asked a sorrowing courtier.

"Oh, we didn't have any of that."

"Soldiers," exclaimed Napoleon, "40 centuries look down on you from the pyramids!"

"Oh, they look down on us, do they?" asked Murat. "Well, I should think 40 centuries on top of the pyramids would feel stuck up!"

"Stuck up!" said the little Corsican. "They are out of sight!"

"Gentlemen of the English guards, fire first," shouted the French guards at Fontenoy as they ensconced themselves behind a brick wall.—Boston Transcript.

The Engaged Man.

An aggrieved young man calls attention to the false position he is placed in by becoming engaged. Society has deliberately set up a period of engagement in order that the young people may try their temper and tastes on one another before marriage has made the situation irrevocable. Otherwise when two young people become engaged they might as well be married at once. Now, when the young man, being assured by society he has an opportunity to give his feelings a chance to change, changes his feelings, the law steps in and informs him that an engagement is a contract and he is involved in a process of law. The institution of marriage is thus run on two different and conflicting principles, which for obvious reasons bear hardly on his sex.—Chicago Post.

Impressiveness of the Tree.

Not many things in nature can be compared with the tree. Upright, stable, vigorous and with great size above all other things that grow, it is everywhere the impressive type of life and endurance and beauty. We admire a great tree as the most magnificent object that we see in all the splendid world of vegetable life and growth. Neither the height of a tall spire, nor the altitude of a cloud capped peak, nor the stony antiquity of the great pyramid ever so impresses us with wonder and admiration as does a great tree.—Richmond Central Presbyterian.

A Pointer For Wheelmen.

The telegraph and telephone poles are landmarks which are often of great aid to the bicyclist who is on a tour. The lines of wire usually skirt the main thoroughfares, and many journeys between fairly large centers of population can be made without danger of losing the way if these poles are followed.—New York Tribune.

Bigger Nuisance.

"No?"

"No; it is the one who tells all he doesn't know."—Detroit Free Press.

"One does not look for beauty in a man." This seemed a high and noble sentiment, and he waited to hear her allude to intellect, courage, strength. She continued, "One looks for money."

EFFECTS OF HASHEESH.

The Feeling Experienced After Partaking of the Insinuating Drug.

During quite a good half hour I felt nothing in any way abnormal, but when the meal was drawing to its close a subtle warmth, which came, as it were, in gusts to my head and chest, seemed to permeate my body with a singular emotion. Later on the conversation around me reached my understanding charged with droll significance. The noise of a fork tapped against a glass struck my ear as a most harmonious vibration. The faces of my companions were transformed. The particular animal type, which, according to Lavater, is the basis of every human countenance, appeared to me strikingly clear. My right hand neighbor became an eagle; he on my left grew into an owl, with full projecting eyes. Immediately in front of me the man was a lion, while the doctor himself was metamorphosed into a fox.

But the most extraordinary circumstance was that I read, or seemed to read, their thoughts and penetrate the depth of their intelligence as easily as one deciphers a page printed in large type. Like an experienced phrenologist, I could indicate accurately the force and quality of their endowments and the nature of their sentiments. In this analysis I discovered affinities and contrasts which would have escaped one in a normal state.

Objects around me seemed little by little to clothe themselves in fantastic garb, the arabesques on the walls revealed themselves to me in rich rhymes of attractive poesy, sometimes melancholy, but more generally rising to an exaggerated lyrism or to transcendent buffoonery. The porcelain vases, the bottles, the glasses sparkling on the table—all took the most ludicrous forms. At the same time I felt creeping all around the region of my heart a tickling pressure to squeeze out, as it were, with gentle force a laugh which burst forth with noisy violence.

My neighbors, too, seemed subjected to an identical influence, for I saw their faces unfold like peonies—victims of boisterous hilarity, holding their sides and rolling about from right to left, their countenances swollen like Titans. My voice seemed to have gained considerable strength, for when I spoke it was as if it were a discharge of cannon, and long after I had uttered a sentence I heard in my brain the reverberation, as it were, of distant thunder.—Cornhill Magazine.

An Ancient Traveler's Outfit.

A small "Traveler's Guide," dated 1780, has just come to hand. It contains a good deal of advice as to the luggage which should be taken. We take a few paragraphs from this booklet, leaving our readers to draw their own conclusions as to whether a century of travel has improved us in this connection. "Take," says the book, "two suits of clothes, one coffee colored and one blue, a chest flannel, a pair of leather breeches, a sleeping suit, three pairs of stockings, two pairs of gloves, two wigs, one hairbag (?), two caps, two hats, two pairs of shoes, one pair of slippers, six 'undershirts,' four 'overshirts,' six neckties, six collars, six handkerchiefs, four pairs of cuffs, three cravats, two pairs of cotton hose, two pairs of socks." But this is not all, as is shown by the following items: "Take a Bible, a book of sermons, a 'Traveler's Guide,' two albums, a diary, a quire of white paper, quills and ink, an almanac, a mirror, a silver watch, a silver snuffbox, a silver spoon, a pair of silver shoe buckles, a silver tiepin, three silver studs, a gold seal ring, a knife and fork with silver handles, a sewing case, an opera glass, a compass, a wax light and a tinder box, a toothbrush, a silver toothpick, a sword, a silver mounted cane, a padlock with which to fasten your door at night inside, a clothesbrush, a box of medicines."—Westminster Gazette.

TALK OF THE TOWN!

AND EXPLANATION WHY

Amos H. VanHorn

LIMITED.

73 Market st., Near Plane Street,

are doing all the business. Our stock is the largest, prices are the lowest and terms the easiest in the city. Just give it a passing thought that you can get an antique oak bedroom snit, 8 pieces, for $15, $20, $25 and $30, including a woven wire bed spring and a mixed mattress. No house in the city offers such inducements.

And then to think again that you can get tapestry Brussels carpet for 50, 60, and 70 cents a yard, made and laid with paper, which is a saving of 15c per yard. Where is there a house in the city that will offer such bargains?

And then imagine and wonder how we can afford to give away a moquette rug or parlor table with a parlor suit for $20, $30, $40 or $50.

Some of our competitors say that our ads are too much sameness, and that this ad. is old. Well, we will admit it, but as long as it does the business and saves the people money we will continue to run it.

THIRTY YEARS A FIREMAN.

CHIEF DOANE AGREEABLY SURPRISED BY HIS COMRADES LAST NIGHT.

Presented With a Beautiful Gold Watch as a Token of Esteem by the Various Members of the Fire Department

It was just 8:45 last night when First Assistant Chief Engineer Martin mounted the stairs of the fire department headquarters and tip-toed to Chief Doane's office, where the Councilmanic Fire and Water Committee were in session, and called the Chief out and informed him that he wished to introduce him to a Newark fireman on the floor below. The two officers came down, preceded by Councilman Fisk, who expressed a desire to breathe a little fresh air.

Gathered around at the foot of the stairway were a number of the members from each company, whom the Chief greeted as "Hello, boys."

"They say boys," said Councilman Fisk ascending to an elevated position on a step of the stairway, "that there is a band of fellowship among the fire boys. They tell me, too, that thirty years ago there was a young fellow here in town who became a fire boy by joining Engine Company No. 1. They say he always expressed a determination to be at the head, and I guess that his head is about the best thing about him. He went to war and was shot through the head; then he came home and fell off a ladder and struck on his head; he went to a fire and got hit in the jaw with a hose nozzle, and finally a short time ago, we are told, he was thrown out of his wagon, but he escaped because he struck on his head. But his determination to get up to the head has been reached. He went into the ranks, was chosen second assistant foreman, then first assistant and now he is the chief.

"Thirty years is a long time to be in active service, and now, Chief," said the Councilman addressing himself to Mr. Doane, "the boys in the different companies want to express their friendship and appreciation of your interest in the department by presenting you with a little token of esteem." Here Mr. Fisk handed the Chief a neat little package, but as the Chief said himself this morning "I couldn't open it to save my life," so surprised was he at the proceeding which had just been enacted.

But the dexterous fingers of Assistant Chief Martin soon brought forth the present—a beautiful solid gold Waltham watch, chain and charm. On one side was engraved the initials "T. O. D." in a monogram, and on the opposite side "1895" was engraved. The charm is a miniature chief's fire helmet.

"Well boys," said the Chief, "this has so taken my breath away that I don't know what to say, but I thank you all from the bottom of my heart for this evidence of esteem and especially when I consider from where it comes."

The Chief tried to make an appropriate reply, but his surprise was so great that he was unable to find words to express his feeling. Those who were present extended their congratulations and best wishes to the Chief over his thirtieth anniversary of service in the department.

The presentation was to have been made by Councilman Erickson, but he was unable to come out from New York in time. He telephoned the following:

Congratulations and best wishes. Plainfield is proud of this fireman; no man more deserves our applause and sympathy. He is the slave of the alarm gong as it sounds at all hours of the night. Instantly he is on the alert and hurrying to the possible signal of danger. Flames are nothing to him. He rushes through the flames as though he was a salamander, but he is not, as some frightful scars and many funeral processions, abundantly testify. All honor to the men who do not hesitate because their duty is perilous. They are the heroes of many thrilling adventures, and a recital of these duties during the past thirty years would seem like a story of imagination.

Mr. Doane became a member of Engine Company No. 1, on November 30, 1865. In 1868 he was elected second assistant foreman of the company, and a year later was made first assistant. It was during this year that the big Scheptlin block fire occured and Mr. Doane performed one of the heroic deeds of his life, when he rescued from under the falling debris of the building William L. Force, John Case and Carman Dunn. Later on he was chosen foreman of the company. In 1876 he was elected chief engineer by the department and re elected the following year. He refused the office in 1877, but in 1878 was prevailed upon to accept office again. During these years the borough and city fire companies were all under one head, but in 1888 the two departments were separated and the city made a paid department and the office of chief engineer appointive by the Mayor. Mayor Male selected Mr. Doane for the position and ever since he has served with satisfaction and efficiency and it is through his efforts principally that the department has the reputation of being one of the best in the country.

SHOT IN THE ARM.

Lucky Escape of a Young Hunter in the Mountains Yesterday.

A young man by the name of Parkinson had a narrow escape from an untimely death yesterday afternoon while hunting in the woods on the mountains. His companion was taking aim at a rabbit which Parkinson was unaware of and as a result he got in almost the direct path of the charge of shot, when the gun was discharged. Several of the shot entered his arm and one was embedded in the flesh directly over the heart. The injuries were not especially serious and Parkinson was able was able to walk home and call on a physician.

BECKWITH PROPERTY ATTACHED.

Receiver Evarts Granted a Big Writ in the Union County Court.

The largest writ of attachment ever issued in the Union County Court has just been given by Judge VanSyckel against Leonard Forbes Beckwith, an absent debtor, for $300,000 at the instance of Allen W. Evarts, receiver for Arthur Beckwith, a supposed lunatic.

Mr. Evarts claims that Leonard Forbes Beckwith is indebted to him as receiver for $180,154, and to partly recover this money he has attached five and a-half acres of valuable land in Linden township with a frontage of several hundred feet on Staten Island Sound.

A New Brunswick Editor Assaulted.

Hugh Boyd, editor and proprietor of The New Brunswick Home News, was assaulted on Thursday by August Streitwolf, a liquor dealer, of New Brunswick, and one of the three Middlesex county candidates for Assembly on the Democratic ticket. The matter was kept quiet, Mr. Boyd not publishing a line about the assault in his paper, either on Thursday or yesterday, and outside of a few people the affair was not known until last evening. Streitwolf was prominent on the stage of Allan's Theatre at the Democratic mass-meeting on Thursday evening, but not even his closest political friends knew of the occurrence. The assault was the outcome of an editorial which appeared in the Home News on Wednesday evening.

Graduates Meet.

A class of '96 in the North Plainfield public school held a class meeting yesterday afternoon. This is the second meeting the class has held. At the one two weeks ago the following officers were elected:—President, John H. VanWinkle, Jr.; Secretary, Miss Adel H. Kirly. Orange and white were selected as class colors. At yesterday's meeting, a committee consisting of Miss Emma Stevens and Miss Lyda Loizeaux, was appointed to look into the question of class pins. A class motto was also discussed.

Not Used to Celebrating.

A horse ridden by John Coles, of Westfield, was frightened last night by the explesion of some fireworks at Newark avenue and Second street, Jersey City, where a political meeting was being held, and ran away. Coles was thrown over the horse's head. The runaway dashed through a crowd of men, women, and children who were looking at the fireworks, and created a panic. Several children were knocked down, and three of them severely injured.

Evening Social.

An evening social will be held at the home of Albert Ryno at Dog Corner on Thursday evening of next week. Music will be furnished for the occasion by Sam Frazee, of this city.

Children's Entertainment.

The children of St. Mary's and St. Joseph's churches are rehearsing for an entertainment to be held in Sangerbund Hall on November 13th and 14th.

For a pain in the side or chest there is nothing so good as a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of pain. It affords prompt and permanent relief and if used in time will often prevent a cold from resulting in pneumonia. This same treatment is a sure cure for lame back. TWO PLEASANT PARTIES.

FRIENDS OF MRS. L. B. WOOLSTON ARRANGE A SURPRISE FOR HER.

A. C. LaBoyteaux Entertained His Sunday-School Class in a Hospitable Manner—Those Present at the Other Event.

One of the most delightful social events of the season was enjoyed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Woolston on Fairview avenue last evening. The occasion was the anniversary of Mrs. Woolston's birthday, and Mrs. John Emmons and Mrs John Vetterlein very quietly arranged the event.

The party met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter A. Emmons on Jackson avenue and proceeded to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Woolston. Mr. Woolston was made aware of the coming party, but his wife was completely overcome with surprise.

The evening was passed in dancing, music for which was furnished by Miss Hasbrouck.

Mrs. Woolston was again surprised during the evening when she was presented with a China chocolate set. She accepted the gift very gracefully.

Excellent refreshments were served during an interval in the dancing, and it was late when the happy party eft for their homes.

Those present included: Mr. and Mrs. John Whitenack, Mr. and Mrs. William Shotwell, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Emmons, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Buckle, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. James Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. R. I. Tolles, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Woodruff, Mr. and Mrs. John Emmons, Mr. and Mrs. John Vetterlein, Mr. and Mrs. Messerschmidt, the Misses Lanning, Mrs. Blackwell, Miss Hasbrouck, Dr. Pocock, John Steiner and Bert Steiner.

Anthony C. LaBoyteaux, of 39 Fairview avenue, celebrated the anniversary of his birthday last evening in a very pleasant manner. He invited his Sunday-school class to his home and an enjoyable time was passed socially.

The company were entertained by P. Ludwig Conde on the violin. Those present joined heartily in singing several favorite selections.

A feature of the event was the presentation of a handsome arm chair to Mr. LaBoyteaux by the class, which was a complete surprise as was also the presentation of a very pretty stand by Mrs. LaBoyteaux's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Powlison. At the close of the festivities refreshments were served.

Those present were Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Powlison, and the following members of Mr. LaBoyteaux's Sunday-school class: H. J. Martin, J. A. Powlison, J. H. Allen, W. Bulk, P. Ludwig Conde, F. Dean and Charles Belknap.

WINDOW BREAKERS.

A Gang of Young Toughs Operating on Madison Avenue.

The young tough characters of this city seem to think Madison avenue an especially good field for operations. Last evening several of them came to the little shoemaker shop of John Sullivan at 131 Madison avenue, and broke one of the front windows.

There was a light inside and Sullivan was asleep on his lounge when the glass was broken. Sullivan is at a loss to see why they should attack him as he has done none of them an injury. Five years ago, some one threw an immense stone through his window, just missing his head and a lamp.

Democratic Enthusiasm.

A largely attended Democratic meeting was held last night at Mt. Bethel. Candidate for member of Assembly, Charles N. Hoagland; candidate for Sheriff, Calvin D. MacMurtry and the candidate for County Clerk, Augustus Vanderveer, were present. Ex-Prosecutors of the Pleas W. V. Stelle and James J. Meehan made stirring addresses. Fred. A. Pope, of Somerville, a nephew of E. R. Pope, of this city, also addressed the meeting.

W. A. McGuire, a well known citizen of McKay, Ohio, is of the opinion that there is nothing as good for children troubled with colds or croup as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He has used it in his family for several years with the best results and always keeps a bottle of it in the house. After having la grippe he was himself troubled with a severe cough. He used other remedies without benefit and then concluded to try the children's medicine and to his delight it soon effected a permanent cure. 25 and 50c bottles for sale at Reynolds's pharmacy, Park and North aves. CYCLE ACADEMY OPENED.

IMMENSE CROWD VISIT THE NEW ATTRACTION LAST NIGHT.

Guttman's Band Kept All in Good Humor, While the Trick Riding Astonished Many—The Floor Also Tried.

If the first year of the Columbia Cycle Academy is as successful as the opening night, there need be no doubt but that it will be a pleasant one for all concerned.

The ponderous folding doors have been removed and a salesroom placed on the left and a smaller door on the right.

A number of wheels were arranged in the racks in the salesroom, while palms and other potted plants were artisticly arranged in the show window and around the room. Others were placed in the rear of the long entrance hall.

A number of extra seats had been secured until there were enough to seat about seven hundred people, but the enormous throng that appeared soon filled every vacant seat and so crowded every vacant space that even standing-room was at a premium. And there were plenty who wanted to ride, and they kept the large number of Columbias and Hartfords there constantly in use. There were several young women who took advantage of the invitation and tried the floor.

Guttman's band occupied the band stand and kept the crowd good natured with selections.

The event of the evening was, of course, the trick riding. The first to exhibit his skill was Jack Garthard, a little lad, who certainly showed his great ability in that line. He rode a full nickle-plated Falcon and some of the feats he performed on that wheel were wonderful and brought forth round after round of applause. After the lad had finished, his instructor, W. S. Maltby, one of the kings of trick riding, exhibited his marvelous skill on a high-framed, full nickeled Keating wheel. All of his tricks were loudly applauded, especially the one in which he rode completely around the room on his back wheel.

After the trick riding was over, many of those present departed, while the rest waited to listen to the music and try the floor.

THIRTEEN YEARS OF GROWTH.

Special Anniversary Services at All Saints Church at Fanwood.

The thirteenth milestone in the history of All Saints P. E. church at Fanwood was appropriately celebrated yesterday. The communion service was largely attended in the morning, and in the afternoon a very large congregation listened with much pleasure to an address by Miss Sibyl Carter, who has a worldwide reputation as a missionary and church worker among the Indians. Mrs. Harriet P. Taggart, of Sycamore avenue, North Plainfield, was also present and made an interesting address before the Woman's Auxiliary.

Among the other speakers were Mrs. White and Mrs. Clark, of Elizabeth, Mrs. Ryder and Miss Tweedy, of Plainfield, and Miss Mead, of Fanwood. The church was prettily decorated with roses, chrysanthemums and ferns.

The Woman's Auxiliary served tea at the home of George T. Kyte at the conclusion of the afternoon session.

In the evening the vested choir of Holly Cross church attended the service and rendered a musical service. The selections were appropriate to the festival of All Saints, from which the parish is named. Rev. E. M. Rodman and Rev. T. Logan Murphy were present and made addresses appropriate to the occasion.

SALAMAGUNDI PARTY.

Epworth League Members Entertained by Mrs. John Valiant.

About thirty members of the Epworth League of the Grace M. E. church met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Valiant, on Craig place last evening and enjoyed a salamagundi party. Among the principal games played were go bang, parchessi, and dominees. There were nine tables and an interchange of partners during the evening. At the conclusion of the games apples and popcorn was served in abundance and everybody had a genuine social time. The committee who arranged the affair include Mrs. Most, Miss Alice Loomis, Miss Margaret Schuck, and Miss Steiner.

The First Snow Man.

James Frisbie, the mail messenger, was the first to have a snow man this winter. At about ten o'clock he gathered up enough snow with his hands to make a snow man six inches long and four inches thick.

WANT THE ASSOCIATES.

First Baptist Church Endeavorers Contemplate a Change of By-laws.

At the meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church last night several important topics were discussed. For sometime past the society has had no associate list, owing to the fact that there has not been any associate members, and it was thought best to do away with this stepping stone to the society. At the meeting last night an amendment was offered which provides for an associate list and it will be voted upon next week.

Another important matter will be voted upon, that is whether the by-laws will be done away with. Some of the members are desirous of condensing the governing rules and constitution of the society. Every member is urged to be present next Friday night.

TAPPED THE TILL.

A Colored Waiter in the Revere House Makes a Small Haul.

George Scott is a colored waiter at the Hotel Revere and his desire for money was too great for him yesterday, which resulted in his taking some which did not belong to him. George tapped the till in the office at an opportune moment and gently lifted about $14 therefrom.

The clerk discovered the loss a little later and notified Sergeant Kiely. He, together, with Policemen Flannagan instituted a search at the young man's home on North avenue.

In the meantime George skipped and left no trace of his whereabouts. The impression seemed to be that he had boarded the Metuchen stage which was due about the time of the theft.

Registration in County.

There are, according to the figures of the election officers of the county, 20,131 voters registered in Union county, an increase of several hundred in the county. The comparative registration is as follows:

Look Out for Him.

The confidence man is abroad in every channel of life, and no one of his class is more dangerous than the apparently harmless itinerant who pretends to fit your eyes with glasses for a trifling cost. Whatever you pay him is an admission fee to the land of trouble and suffering; only a skilled optician can fit your eyes with the glasses they require, and this will be satisfactorily demonstrated to you by a call at Collier's, 103 Park avenue.

Golf Course Opening.

The golf course of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club will be formally opened on Election day. From 3 to 5 in the afternoon a tea will be served at the club house. Mrs. John D. Miller will receive, assisted by several young ladies of the club.

New Real Estate Firm.

C. VanHerwerden and C. Nichols, of this city, have formed a partnership and leased the office next to the Metropolitan Livery Stables owned by Rev. J. P. Taylor, where they will conduct a real estate and insurance business.

Both New.

The new young man is always popular, so is the new kind of candy sand Tier is having a special sale today of a number of new varieties, at only fifteen cents a pound.

Doing More Work.

Contractor John Marsden is now laying about 60 feet of pipe a day which is 42 feet more than when the city were complaining about his work.

Croup is a terror to young mothers. To post them concerning the first symptoms, and treatment is the object of this item. The first indication of croup is hoarseness. In a child who is subject to croup it may be taken as a sure sign of the approach of an attack. Following this hoarseness is a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's Cough remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the rough cough has appeared it will prevent the attack. It has never been known to fail. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

BOROUGH COUNCIL WORK.

PROSECUTION OF GREEN BROOK POLLUTERS STILL TALKED OF.

The Board of Health Ask the Co-operation of the Other Borough Officials—Sidewalk Talk—Money to Be Borrowed.

The atmospheric condition of the Borough Council chamber was such last evening that the members of the council were obliged to keep their overcoats on, though it was not believed that Mr. Spencer intended to freeze them out. The only member absent was Councilman Schutt.

After Clerk Arnold read the minutes of the last regular and adjourned meetings, and they were approved, he presented his monthly financial statement which was as follows:

	Balance.	Deficit.
Borough	$1,302.29
Fire department		$ 595.37
Light	$ 2.30
Roads	$1,314.62
Poor		$ 388.50
	$2,619.21	$ 983.87
	$ 983.87
Total balance	$1,635.34

He also reported that $74.09 had been collected during the month. The reports were received and filed.

The Borough Board of Health communicated with the council in regard to the condition of Green brook, stating that as a result there were several cases of illness. They asked council to take steps towards prosecuting those who were emptying into the brook such matter as would pollute the stream. It was referred to the laws, ordinances and elections committee.

George C. Evans petitioned council to lay a crosswalk from the corner of Mercer and Washington avenues to Chas. Lyman's property on Washington avenue. It was referred to the street committee. W. J. Buttfield in a communication stated that he had laid sidewalk in front of his property on Rockview avenue as he had agreed to and asked that the other property owners be made to comply with the law in this respect. This was also referred to the street committee.

A petition from C. W. McCutchen, George T. Rogers and W. J. Buttfield, asked Council to lay crosswalks at the following places:

Northwest side of Rockview avenue to southeast side of Magnolia avenue; northwest side of Rockview avenue to southeast corner of West End and Rockview avenues and across Maple and Willow avenues to northeast side of West End avenue. It was referred to the street committee, with power, on Mr. Howell's motion.

The usual batch of monthly bills were presented and later ordered paid. Mr. Lounsbury stated that a heater had been placed in the borough lock-up and that the overcoats had been ordered. The latter at an expense of $17.55 each. The report was received and filed.

Mr. Smith, of the street committee, reported that the grading on Johnston's drive was about completed, and that two loads of stone were yet needed to do the work as ordered. He reported favorably on the work on Harrison avenue. The report was received and filed.

Mr. Valiant spoke of Mr. Buttfield's request that property owners be compelled to lay their walks, and thought that Mr. Buttfield was worthy of all the support the Council could give him for the improvement he had made by laying walks. Mr. Peck said that the fire department needed money and offered a resolution that a loan of $1,000 be negotiated for and charged to the fire account. It was so ordered. Mr. Smith offered a resolution that the crosswalk at Washington and Mercer avenues be laid. The resolution prevailed.

The ordinance regarding auctioneers was then taken from the table, and on Mr. Valiant's motion it was passed to a third reading and then passed as a whole, to take effect Nov. 15th.

After Mr. Howell made a motion that when Council adjourn it be to meet Friday evening, Nov. 8th, Council adjourned.

Plainfield Cyclist Transferred.

In the official bulletin of the racing board of the L. A. W., George Taggart is transferred to Class B.

Henry Wilson, the postmaster at Welshton, Florida, says he cured a case of diarrhœa of long standing in six hours, with one small bottle of Chambertain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. What a pleasant surprise that must have been to the sufferer. Such cures are not unusual with this remedy. In many instances only one or two doses are required to give permanent relief. It can always be depended upon. When reduced with water it is pleasant to take. For sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. R. Armstrong, Manager.

DURRANT FOUND GUILTY

One Ballot Settled the Murderer's Fate.

The Verdict Received with Wild Cheers—His Mother Overcome, But He Was Defiant—All San Francisco Rejoicing—Must Stand Trial for the Williams Murder.

San Francisco, Nov. 2.—Theodore Durrant murdered Blanche Lamont. That was the verdict of the jury in the case last evening. The jury was out only twenty-eight minutes and took but one ballot. The verdict was received with a shout of applause from the audidors in the packed court room.

Closing Scene Dramatic.

The closing scene of the great trial was full of dramatic interest, pathos and excitement. The district attorney's peroration was an able effort. The charge of Judge Murphy occupied a little over an hour in delivery. It was a cold statement of the law unrelieved by any side dissertation. It was very fair and covered the ground of alibi, circumstantial evidence and motive completely. The jury was then given in charge of two deputy sheriffs and conducted to the jury room.

Only One Ballot Taken.

The jury, upon reaching the room, selected Warren Dutton for foreman, and then balloted. The first ballot was for murder in the first degree. Word was immediately sent to the court room, and Judge Murphy sent for the jury. While this was going on Durrant sat beside his counsel, conversing with his mother and several of her lady friends.

Women Uttered Yells.

As soon as Mrs. Durrant learned that the jury was coming in, her demeanor changed from one of gaiety and a look of dread came over her face, which was not reflected in that of her son, who stoically watched the jury as they took their seats, as if to get from their features the import of the verdict which their early return portended. As Foreman Dutton pronounced the verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree, the large audience, which had listened in perfect silence for the words which he was to utter, rose and emitted a yell which echoed far out in the corridors.

Mrs. Durrant Overcome.

Most of those in the audience were women. The cries which went up from them fell upon the ears of the convicted murderer's mother like a blow, and it seemed to bring to her the first realization of the force of the words of the jury's foreman. Her face was averted, as though she had nerved herself for the ordeal, but, though possessed of marvelous courage, a cry burst from her lips, followed by a burst of hysterical sobs.

Marvellous Display of Nerve.

As he listened intently to the words which sealed his fate Durrant partially rose from his seat. The look on his face was one of defiance, and it was apparent that he had it in mind to address the jury. The first cry from his mother changed his mind, if he had such intention. He sat down, turned to his mother and took her fondly in his arms. She rested her head on his shoulder, and, with his left arm about her slender form, he held her in a tender embrace, patting her with his left hand and with his right stroking her hair. He seemed oblivious to the fact that a verdict which meant death to him had been returned; oblivious to everything except the weeping woman who had sat patiently by his side through the long trial, cheering him with words of hope. If his display was of nerve it was marvellous, and if of callousness to any but filial sensations, it was equally marvellous.

A Sad Picture.

As the jurymen marched by Durrant and his mother they all looked sympathetically upon the sad picture of the weeping woman upon the shoulder of her condemned son. Then Judge Murphy announced that next Friday he would pass sentence upon Durrant and at the same time would fix the time for beginning the trial of Durrant for the murder of Minnie Williams.

Says He Is Still Hopeful.

The verdict of the jury meets with general approbation. The town is wild over it and it resembled the aftermath of an election. Durrant himself takes it coolly and says he has not yet lost hope. His attorneys will take an appeal to the supreme court on a bill of exceptions, the material for which accumulated during the trial.

Minnie Williams Trial.

The material for the Minnie Williams trial has all been gathered and the prosecution is prepared to go right ahead with it. It is certain that Judge Murphy will set an early day for the hearing. The general impression is that the result in that case will be the same as the one just concluded. So far as known, Durrant's defense in the case yet to be tried will be as weak as in the one just closed.

History of the Crime.

On the third of April last Blanche Lamont left her home at 8:30 a. m. and went to the boys' high school for her morning exercise. In the afternoon she attended the normal school in Powell street near Clay for the cooking class, which she left about 3. As she walked from the school in company with Miss Minnie Edwards, a young man stepped up to her, raised his hat and escorted her to the car at Clay and Powell streets. The two sat on the east side of the dummy and rode in that position to Market street. En route to Market street Miss Edwards sat inside of the car and paid close attention to Miss Lamont and her escort. She saw them last at Market and Powell, where she left the car and proceeded down Market to Fourth street. As the car on which Miss Lamont and Miss Edwards rode passed the corner of Powell and California, Misses May Lanigan and Alice Pleasant, who attended the normal school and saw Lamont there on that day, noticed the young lady and her escort sitting on the outside of the car.

Never Again Seen Alive.

Blanche Lamont was never seen alive again by any one who knew her. She failed to return home and her disappearance was reported to the police. They not only failed to find her, but were unable to get a clew which would show whether she had been murdered or had eloped. The latter was the most accepted theory. It became known that a young man had escorted the missing girl from the school, but his identity was not established at the time. On the 13th of April the mangled body of Minnie Williams, who had been murdered on the night of Friday the 12th, was found in the library of the Emmanuel church. This discovery led to an investigation and the finding of the remains of Blanche Lamont on the top floor of the tower of the church. She had been strangled to death and the mark of the murderer's fingers could be plainly seen on the neck.

Like a Medical Student's Work.

It was evident that the murder had not occurred where the body was found, but that the body had been carried, or rather dragged, to that spot by the murderer from some point outside of the tower. There was a large blood stain at the second floor of the tower and other blood stains below, which showed that there the murderer had rested and permitted the body of his victim to lie. The body had then been taken to the top floor, denuded and laid out with blocks of wood at the head and under the feet, something after the method in vogue in a dissecting room. The clothing had been torn to pieces and stuffed into interstices in the walls of the tower. The school books which the murdered girl had carried had been disposed of by being thrown into dark recesses above the ceiling of the church on a level with the lower floor of the tower.

Durrant Arrested.

When the murder of Minnie Williams became known suspicion was directed toward Theodore Durrant, and when detectives went to his house they found enough evidence in his clothing to request his arrest. It was on Sunday morning, April 14, that the arrest was made, and Durrant was then at Mount Diable. He was brought back to this city, and an effort was made to fix the murder of Blanche Lamont on him. The two school girls positively identified him as the man they had seen leave the normal school with Miss Lamont on the afternoon of April 3.

HOLMES' BOLD PLAY.

He Throws Himself on the Mercy of the Jury.

Philadelphia, Nov. 2.—Holmes will probably know by to-night what his fate will be in this state. Holmes' bold move, in throwing himself upon the mercy of the jury and deciding not to put in any evidence in his own defense, is said to have been made upon the advice of a well known lawyer and may have one of these two interpretations—either he did it in desperation at having no witnesses, or that, being conscious of his innocence and having no time to prepare his case, he trusts to the sympathies of the jury.

THE MIKADO'S THANKS.

His Minister Presents an Autograph Letter to the President.

Washington, Nov. 2.—Accompanied by Secretary Olney, Mr. Kurino, the Japanese minister, and his secretary of legation, called upon President Cleveland yesterday and presented to him an autograph letter from the emperor of Japan. It expressed in graceful and sincere terms his appreciation of the good offices exercised by the United States government to bring about a restoration of peace between Japan and China and for the protection accorded to Japanese residents in China.

THE NICARAGUA CANAL.

Report of the Commission Filed at the State Department.

Washington, Nov. 2.—The Nicaragua canal commission has submitted to the president, through Secretary Olney, its report upon the examination of the route of the canal directed by congress. The report was required to be made on or before Nov. 1. Although the report itself will probably be withheld from the public until congress meets, there is good reason for the belief that it finds the canal project entirely feasible and worthy of execution.

KING CARLOS AT POTSDAM.

Received with Great Ceremony by Emperor William.

Berlin, Nov. 2.—King Carlos of Portugal arrived at Potsdam last night. He was received with great ceremony by Emperor William. The railway station was handsomely decorated, and a body of troops was present to act as a guard of honor.

PROVIDENCE'S CENSUS.

Population Much Smaller Than Was Supposed.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 2.—The superintendent of the census has made his returns for this city, and the figures are disappointing. The population is placed at 145,472, instead of 160,000, as it was supposed to be.

Receiver of Stolen Goods.

Boston, Nov. 2.—Charles H. Andrews, manager of a novelty store in Lynn, was sentenced to the house of correction for one year on his plea of guilty to the complaint charging him with receiving stolen goods belonging to a local publishing company.

Fined for Selling Liquor.

Biddeford, Me., Nov. 2.—Wm. A. Roberts, proprietor of the Thacher hotel, the only hotel in town, closed the house yesterday on account of what he calls "liquor persecution." Later he was fined for selling liquor.

Confesses to Incendiarism.

Boston, Nov. 2.—Rodney Rollins, 17 years old, of Bridgewater, has confessed to the state fire marshal that he had set several recent fires in that town. He said he wanted to see a blaze and have some excitement.

Appeals to the State Department.

Gloucester, Mass., Nov. 2.—Loring B. Haskell, owner of the schooner John L. Nicholson, under seizure by the Canadian government, has appealed to the department of state to take hold of the case at once.

German Warships Concentrate.

Berlin, Nov. 2.—The ministry of marine has ordered the German Asiatic fleet of six vessels to concentrate at Swatow and Amoy.

Reichstag To Reconvene Dec. 3.

Berlin, Nov. 2.—The reichstag will reconvene on December 3.

PEOPLE ARE IN TERROR

More Earthquake Shocks Feared in Rome.

Yesterday's Shivers Worse Than at First Reported—Several Buildings Unsafe for Occupancy—People Still Camped in the Open Squares. The Pope Awakened by the Shock.

Rome, Nov. 2.—The earthquake shocks of yesterday have caused the greatest terror, as a recurrence is feared. More damage was done by the shocks of yesterday morning than was first reported. The convent of Santa Maria Maggiore was badly damaged and two of the inmates were injured. The shocks caused a panic among the inmates of the prison, and mutiny was attempted. Troops were quickly called to the assistance of the keepers and order was restored.

The Pope Awakened.

The pope was awakened by the shocks. He was perfectly calm, and, after arising, made haste to inquire the news from the city. Four palaces and the bank of Italy were so shaken that they are rendered unsafe for occupancy. The palazzo Odescalchi and five other structures of that character are seriously damaged. The building of the ministry of finance was slightly damaged. The shocks rang all the bells in the city and doors were shaken and windows smashed everywhere. The shock was also felt at Anzio, Velletri, Tivoli, Civita Vecchia and Fiumicino. Many people are still crowding in the open squares.

SMITH AGAIN ACQUITTED.

More Indictments Against the Former Columbia Banker.

Lancaster, Pa., Nov. 2.—The third trial this week of E. K. Smith, the former Columbia, Pa., banker, on a charge of embezzlement took place yesterday. Judge Livingston ordered a verdict of not guilty. There are twenty-five other indictments pending against the accused. Smith was convicted on one indictment and acquitted on one prior to his acquittal yesterday.

PRINCETON IN PRACTICE.

Trainer McMasters Well Satisfied with the Team's Work.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 2.—The Princeton team was on the field early this morning and had the benefit of a little signal practice. Young Poe was at the quarter-back position, and did his usual amount of fumbling. "Jack" McMasters, the team trainer, said: "The men are in good condition, and Riggs and Suter will surely play in to-day's game."

SHOT SIX TIMES.

An Engineer Kills the Man Who Dishonored His Home.

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 2.—William Brown, an engineer, emptied two revolvers into Dr. John I. Hancock, whose infatuation for Brown's young wife had led him to visit the Brown's house. Six bullets passed through Hancock's body, and he died at noon. He was a prominent physician. Brown surrendered to the authorities.

A WOMAN CRUCIFIED.

Nailed to a Tree by Two United States of Colombia Policemen.

Panama, Nov. 2.—A paper here has a dispatch stating that a woman was recently crucified by being nailed to a tree at Tausa, a town in the interior of the United States of Colombia, by two policemen, during the alcalde's absence.

WORK FOR 500 MEN.

Cambria Iron Furnaces Resume After Five Years.

Hollidaysburg, Pa., Nov. 2.—After an idleness of five years the Cambria Iron furnace at this place has been put in full blast. It will give employment to about 500 men.

Hay Market.

Canajoharie, N. Y., Nov. 2.—Reports received during the week by the Hay Trade Journal show that the markets of the country are well supplied with hay, those of the seaboard receiving their supply from western New York and Canada, the latter having furnished the larger portion for several weeks past.

Black Flags in the Last Ditch.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 2.—The Vladivostock correspondent of the Novoe Vremya telegraphs that the Japanese have captured the inland town of Katchi, Formosa. The position of the Black Flags is said to be desperate. The Japanese demand their unconditional surrender.

Postal Order Revoked.

Washington, Nov. 2.—The postmaster general has revoked the order denying the privileges of the mails to the Brown Chemical company of Chicago upon the assurance of the company that it would make its matter conform to the postal rules and regulations.

Cannot Meet on Sunday.

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 2.—The city solicitor has decided that the proposed meeting of single tax people annouced for Sunday night in the opera house here at which Henry George is to speak will be contrary to law.

Schools Closed by Diphtheria.

the weakest stomach retains it. It's a concentration into the least possible bulk of the vital elements of lean beef, it nourishes and starts every organ of the body on its normal duty with no apparent effort; this done, bad feelings vanish. Mr. J. A. Blackman, 123 E. 88th St., N. Y., writes: "Sailing from here last August for Europe, tried every antidote for sea-sickness, and I found yours the only successful one. On my return also used it when I suffered no ill effects at all."

HEADS CHOPPED OFF

Eight Albanian Guards Executed in Constantinople.

They Were Accused of Connection with a Plot To Assassinate the Sultan — Attempt To Destroy an American College—Very Startling Events Looked For.

Constantinople, Nov. 2.—Eight Albanian guards connected with the Yildiz Kiosk have been executed and twenty-four others imprisoned as the result of the discovery of a plot against the palace in which the guards were concerned. Three Mussulmans have been arrested and several houses searched in which a quantity of arms were found and seized. A plot against the sultan's palace has been discovered. The Albanian guards at the Yildiz Kiosk refused to perform their duties on Monday night. They were disarmed and eight of them sent to Anatolia, where they were imprisoned.

Startling Events Expected.

Discontent with the present regime has become so marked that events of startling importance may be expected at any time. A fusion of the Mussulman and Armenian committees against the sultan is immanent, and it is expected that a joint manifesto will shortly be issued declaring that henceforth their united efforts will be directed against the existing system of government. Advices from Marsovan, Asia Minor, say that the trouble which was anticipated by Ambassador Terrell in a dispatch to Washington in August last has culminated in an attempt to burn the American college there. The ambassador notified the authorities at Washington that Garabed, a naturalized American citizen, had been assassinated as he was going to attend a religious service, and that the revolutionists had marked the professors at Marsovan for slaughter long before the Sassoun atrocities were committed.

M'LAUGHLIN CANNOT LIVE.

He Tells How He Shot His Mother and Himself.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 2.—Thomas McLaughlin, who shot and killed his mother, Mrs. Mary McDole, at Olneyville Thursday night, is still alive, but his death is only a question of a short time. In telling the story of the shooting he said his only intention was to commit suicide. When he reached Mrs. McDole's house he went to his mother's room, intending to tell her that he would no longer bother her. He put the pistol to his head and fired, the shot taking effect. His mother grabbed his arm and the second shot went wide. As he recocked the pistol his mother pulled his hand and the ball went into her head. He again placed the revolver at his own head and fired. He then jumped over the dead body of his mother, plunged through the window, ran to the swamp and crouched down in the bushes, remaining there in the pouring rain until found by the police. That is all he can tell of the affair. McLaughlin has been subject to fits when he was considered hardly accountable for his actions.

CAPT. BASSETT'S ILLNESS.

The Veteran Doorkeeper of the Senate Is Old and Feeble.

Washington, Nov. 2.—The report that Capt. Bassett, the veteran doorkeeper of the senate, was dying, is not confirmed. He is suffering from stomach trouble, but his physician states he is not dangerously ill. Capt. Bassett is 76 years old, however, and quite feeble, and his physician does not think he will be able to perform his duty much longer.

CRONK'S BODY FOUND.

Suspected of Assault, He Killed Himself.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Nov. 2.—The body of William H. Cronk, who was wanted by the police for committing an assault on I. M. Sherman on Southeast avenue Thursday, was found in a vacant lot owned by Judge Barnard with his throat cut from ear to ear yesterday and a razor clutched in his hand with which he had ended his life.

Youthful Burglars Arrested.

Batavia, N. Y., Nov. 2.—William Goodenbury, aged 18, and P. B. B. Loomis, aged 15, arrested here for the burglarly of Louis Dascombe's house on Wednesnay night, confess their guilt and admit that they committed various other robberies in Genesee county during the past six months.

Sanguilly Will Be Tried.

Havana, Nov. 2.—Julio Sanguilly, an American citizen, who was arrested in February last charged with rebellion against Spain, and in whose case the attorney general asked that a sentence of imprisonment for life be imposed, will be publicly tried on November 28.

Author Hall Caine in New York.

New York, Nov. 2.—Hall Caine has returned from Canada and will go back to Ottawa in a few days to promote a change in the copyright law. He has already proposed certain concessions and modifications from the law of 1889, but will not yet specify what they are.

California Pears in England.

London, Nov. 2. — Eleven hundred cases of California pears, brought by the American line steamer New York, were sold yesterday at Monument yard, this city, at prices varying from 1s. to 13s. 6d. per case.

Robbers in New Rochelle.

New Rochelle, N. Y., Nov. 2.—The residence of J. B. Foote was entered by thieves at night while the family were at dinner. Silverware, clothing and money to the value of $600 were stolen.

For a Public Building Roof.

Washington, Nov. 2.—Bids were opened yesterday for constructing the roof of Milwaukee, Wis., public building. John G. Wagner of Milwaukee was the lowest bidder at $34,400.

Insurgents Derail a Train.

Madrid, Nov. 2.—A dispatch to the Imparcial from Havana says that the insurgents derailed and wrecked a goods train near Saldo on Wednesday.

DEATH OF JACK DEMPSEY.

Consumption Claimed the Former Middleweight in Oregon.

Portland, Ore., Nov. 2.—Jack Dempsey, the well-known former middleweight champion pugilist, died at his residence in this city yesterday of consumption. Jack Dempsey was born at the Currach of Kildare, Ireland, Dec. 15, 1862. His sporting record is interesting. Dempsey was once matched with Patsy Cardiff, on whom Sullivan broke his arm, and drove Charley Mitchell home with his offers to battle with him for any amount of money. He was in his day considered the greatest fighter on account of his science and staying powers. One of his notable fights was with Johny Reagan, whom he fought twenty-eight hard rounds with skin-tight gloves. Dempsey had won nearly thirty fights when he went to San Francisco, where he met his first defeat at the hands of George La Blanche, the marine, whom he fought twenty-seven rounds. The "Nonpareil" was having everything his own way until the last round, when La Blanche landed the final blow. Dempsey tried to get a return match with the marine, but he refused. Soon afterwards Dempsey was matched to fight Bob Fitzsimmons for the middleweight championship of the world. The fight was decided in the Olympic club of New Orleans, and although Dempsey was in excellent condition he was never in the mill from the start. He was knocked out in the thirteenth round. This defeat was the beginning of the end of the "Nonpareil" for he began to drink. He went with his wife and children to Portland, where he remained for two years. His last fight was with Tommy Ryan in the Seaside Athletic club at Coney Island. On the night of the fight he was intoxicated and was easily knocked out.

ROBBERS ON A TROLLEY CAR.

Another Attempt To Hold Up Passengers in Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—Robbers boarded an electric car in front of the power house on Washington boulevard late at night. The trolley wheel was jerked from the overhead wire and the car was plunged into darkness. Conductor Butterworth was inside, but ran to the rear platform thinking the pole had accidentally slipped the current. He was met by a young fellow in a slouch hat who grappled with him. At the same time a passenger was attacked by one of the two in the car. The occupants began crowding towards the rear door in a panic. Butterworth's antagonist made a spring over the rear dashboard. After an exciting pursuit of the robber the party returned to the car. No trace of the two who attempted the job.

CAPT. THORNE WON'T PLAY.

Yale Men Look for a Hard Game at West Point To-day.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 2.—The Yale football eleven were much depressed yesterday by the announcement that Capt. Thorne would be unable to play in the game with West Point. He hasn't played for two weeks, owing to a weak knee, but hoped to be able to enter the game to-day. The fine showing made by the West Pointers in previous games makes it possible that Yale will be beaten to-day. The Yale team left for New York last night and will go to West Point to-day. It is probable that Jerrems will take Capt. Thorne's place.

TO BE EXTRADITED.

Mrs. Besson Must Stand Trial in London for Robbing Her Husband.

Seville, Nov. 2.—The court here has granted the extradition to London of Mrs. Martha Besson, wife of Fontane Besson, a noted musical instrument maker of that city, New York, Paris and St. Petersburg, who is charged by her husband with having stolen $35,000 from him.

Both Engines Demolished.

Putnam, Conn., Nov. 2.—Two freight trains on the Norwich & Worcester division of the New England road collided a mile south of this station last evening. Both engines were completely demolished, the wheels only being intact, and seven cars were destroyed. No one was hurt.

Bids Rejected.

Washington, Nov. 5.—Secretary Carlisle has rejected all bids for the iron and steel work of the New York warehouse, as the lowest bid made was regarded as excessively high. New bids will be asked.

Famous Stallion Dead.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Nov. 2.—The famous stallion Ambassador, the property of the Kalamazoo Farm company, died here yesterday. Three years ago $60,000 was refused for him.

November 9—Football. Plainfield against Prudential Life Insurance Company of Newark, at the Crescent Oval, 3:30 p. m.

The State Board of Assessors has finished the work of assessing the value of railroad property for the purpose of taxation. There is an increase in the aggregate assessed valuation of $1,805,000, making an increase of tax due the State this year amounting to about $21,000.

A woman has been convicted in Elizabeth of being a common scold. It is a pity that this old offence is confined, so far as the law is concerned, to persons of the feminine gender. We know some male politicians who could be convicted under it, says the Evening Sun.

There was a rousing Democratic meeting at Rahway on Tuesday evening. The Democrats in Union county appear to be thoroughly in earnest and will give a good account of themselves at the polls. Mr. Lindabury was the principal speaker, and in the course of his remarks declared that the present Democratic ticket was the best ever put in the political field in this State.—True American.

Any man who goes into a religious organization and asks the votes of those opposed to him in politics, on the ground that he has contributed or will contribute money to that organization, seeks to bring religion into politics, and into the very gutter of politics at that. He degrades himself, he villifies and insults the people to whom he applies. There are not many men who would stoop low enough to do this; there are few men who would yield to the corrupting influence.—True American.

PUNTS AND KICKS.

The Spartan eleven of North Plainfield goes to Dunellen on Tuesday morning to play the football term of that place. The game will begin at 10:15.

The Y. M. C. A. team met for practice at the gymnasium last evening for Tuesday's game. George Schoonmaker resigned his position as captain, as he has left the football field for the rest of the season, and Fred H. Freeman was elected his successor.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION.

The Civil Service Commission at Washington has ordered that an examination be held in this city on December 7, 1895, commencing at 9 o'clock, a. m., for the grades of clerk and carrier in the city postoffice. Only citizens of the United States can be examined. The age limitations are as follows: For carrier, not under 21 nor over 40; for all other positions, not under 18 years. No application will be accepted for this examination unless filed with the undersigned in complete form, on the proper blank, before the hour of closing business on November 18, 1895.

The Civil Service Commission takes this opportunity of stating that the examinations are open to all reputable citizens who may desire to enter the postal service, without regard to their political affiliation. All such citizens, whether Democrats or Republicans, or neither, are invited to apply. They shall be examined, graded and certified with entire impartiality, and wholly without regard to their political views, or to any consideration save their efficiency, as shown by the grades they obtain in the examination.

For application blanks, full instructions, and information relative to the duties and salaries of the different positions, apply to the postoffice to

G. C. GODOWN,
Secretary Board of Examiners.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces, such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

THEATRICAL.

The long standing contract for the appearance of America's greatest comedian Joseph Jefferson, at the Garden Theatre, in New York, is now being filled. Mr. Jefferson will be seen at the Garden Theatre for four weeks in a round of his most famous roles. This engagement promises to be the most notable that Jefferson has ever played in New York. It will be marked by the presentation to the great comedian of a beautiful loving cup, the token of affection, respect and admiration of the members of the dramatic profession at large. The presentation is to take place at the Garden Theatre, November 8th, with appropriate exercises and will be a memorable occasion.

Many of the popular songs now being sung on the stage are from the pen of James Thornton, whose elite vaudeville company appears in Music Hall on this evening, and there is nothing so pleasing as to see the original, so that no doubt a large crowd will attend the performance and hear Mr. Thornton sing himself. He not only sings, but also gives a monologue talk that is real funny. And then Bonnie Thornton, America's mascot, is a dainty bit of humanity who wins her way into the good graces of the audience the moment she steps on the stage. The Thorntons have surrounded themselves with nothing but the best of talent so that a performance of the highest standard may be expected.

When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

The market is full of cough mixtures but one trouble with most of them is that when they do a little good the patient has to take so much that he gets to loathe the taste. The Pineola Balsam is superior to other cough remedies because it is agreeable to the palate and its good effects are immediate. In a few days an ordinary cough is gone altogether. Bronchitis and asthma are more stubborn, but they too are cured by Ely's Pineola Balsam. A remedy worth trying. 25 cents is all it costs.

ALL THE FIGHTS OFF

Arkansas Judiciary Knocks Them Completely Out.

All Interested Enjoined from Further Proceedings—Pugilists Now Anxious To Escape from the Meshes of the Law—The Rivals Meet and Smile on Each Other.

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 2.—Corbett and Fitzsimmons will not fight in Arkansas. This proposition is settled as nearly as anything can be settled that is not an accomplished fact, and when it is added that the pugilists themselves admit that the game is up it may be concluded that the courts and the governor have won. It is altogether safe to say that both Corbett and his rival would be glad to be anywhere out of this state under a promise never to revisit it. This conclusion was not reached without a great deal of noisy talk on the side of the pugilists and a display of renewed vigor on the part of the authorities. Much old straw was threshed over verbally by the pugilists and their backers in their rooms at the hotel yesterday. Propositions and counter-propositions flew fast and thick. Offers of fabulous purses were heard of from various points of the compass and discussed with unabated heat by the prize-ring followers who had drifted up from Hot Springs in the wake of Corbett and his party.

The Rivals Meet.

Corbett and his party, consisting of Manager Brady, Billy Delaney, Jim McVey and John Donaldson, arrived at 10 o'clock from Hot Springs. They were nominally in the custody of Sheriff Houpt of Garland county, who had served the warrants issued by Chancellor Martin at Little Rock. The party registered at the Capital hotel, where Fitzsimmons and party are stopping. The rivals did not encounter each other until dinner time. The meeting was rather in the nature of a disappointment to those who imagined that the men would fly at each other's throats like bulldogs. Nothing, on the contrary, could have been more amicable, not to say frolicsome, than their actions.

Smiled on Each Other.

Corbett, who had entered the dining room some time before Fitzsimmons made his appearance, finished his dinner, and in leaving the room passed close to the table at which the Australian was seated. There was a glance of mutual recognition. Then Corbett stopped for a minute, gazed benevolently at his rival and performed the dancing movement known as "Chassez all"—a rapid side step in quick time. Having executed this feat, he stopped, smiled again, and wafted a kiss from the tips of his fingers to Fitzsimmons, who grinned amiably in return. The champion then passed out of the room without any blood having been spilled.

Conferences Every Minute.

There was a conference of one kind and another going on every minute of the day except while the prize fighters and their attorneys were in court wrangling over the peace warrants. Not only the sporting contingent but the natives of the town had caught the fever and one would have thought instead of being engaged in a grapple with the courts and the governor of Arkansas for their liberty the two pugilists had only to agree on terms and pull off the long advertised match in the suburbs of the city at once. The result of all this parley was a striking contrast to the various stories that flew through the air all day. Fitzsimmons, Corbett, Brady and Julian were resting quietly in their respective hotels this morning guarded by a deputy sheriff.

Further in the Tangle.

The judiciary has not only maintained its hold upon the pugilistic contingent, but has added fresh meshes to the web in which they are entangled, and Governor Clarke, looking more like Henry Clay than ever, is in his office and in a smiling way declares that he has only begun his campaign and that his strongest cards are still in reserve.

Destroyed Their Last Hope.

The chief events of the day were the arrival of Corbett and his party from Hot Springs, the peace warrant proceedings in the circuit and chancery courts and last and most important of all, the issuance by Chancellor Martin of a sweeping omnibus injunction restraining pretty nearly everybody in Arkansas from having any part in a fight at Hot Springs or elsewhere in the state of Arkansas. It is this legal document which has completely destroyed the last hope of the fight promoters and caused the principals and their backers to throw up their hands and admit themselves bested. Their struggle now is to make their peace with the state authorities and get permission to leave the state. There was talk this morning of bring off the fight before a select party for $10,000 a side at some secret spot outside Arkansas after the men are released from custody.

FITZ'S MONEY ATTACHED.

He Will Receive Only About $1,000 Out of the $7,500 Side Bet.

New York, Nov. 2.—Phil Dwyer yesterday turned over to "Manny" Friend $5,000, the share of Fitzsimmons' side bet for his fight with Corbett, which the Florida Athletic club failed to pull off on schedule time. As soon as the money was turned over Messrs. Ide & Waters, representing the Syracuse law firms of Ide & Ryan and McLennan, Waters & McLennan, immediately served an attachment against it for $2,000 for legal services rendered Fitzsimmons in his trouble in Syracuse. Another attachment of $2,500 has also been served against the money turned over by Dwyer by the Metropolitan Job Printing company. As Friend holds an attachment of $2,000 against Fitzsimmons' share of the $5,000 forfeit of the Florida Athletic club, Fitzsimmons will be able to hold only about $1,000 out of the $7,000. Application will be made to have the $5,000 in Friend's hands turned over to the sheriff pending the trial of the action.

Requisition for a Train Robber.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 2.—Governor Rich yesterday honored the requisition of Governor Matthews of Indiana for James W. Brown, the alleged Kendallville, Ind., train robber, who is under arrest at Allegan.

WILD FLOWERS OF THE MOUNTAINS.

Their Mysterious Growth In Scant Earth Among the Cliffs.

Those who toil up the slopes of the Blue Ridge are often surprised at the wealth of floral luxuriance to be found in bare and desolate places. The upland pastures and high cliff sides are starred with golden elecampane and wild rhododendrons, with great, showy blossoms of violet purple, making gorgeous patches among the gray rocks. Red and white asters crowd in narrow crevices and border broad bands of gay ribbons close upon the snow line. Everywhere are brilliancy and beauty.

In these lonely haunts nature paints her richest colors, and the only things needful to give a touch of life and movement are the mountain butterflies. Limitless in hue and species, the gaudy foragers sip their dainty meals from a hundred upturned cups. The blossoms feed the butterflies and give honey to the frugal wild bee, but what feeds the flowers is a mystery, or would be if we did not know that there is sustenance in the rarefied air as well as in the earth. The tiniest fissure in the craggy rocks will hold a seed vessel and hide the flower root while the sun and rain and air mature the plant to full perfection. Nor are the children of Flora freshened by the dew, for in our high altitude, owing to continuous night winds and peculiar climatic influences, dew never falls—if indeed it "falls" anywhere.

There is another mystery of flowers. No one has yet been able to analyze or demonstrate the essential action of perfume. Gas can be weighed, but not scent. The smallest known insect that lives in the heart of a rose can be caught by a microscope lens and made to give up the secret of its organization, but what it is that the warm summer brings us from the wild flowers of the hillside or wafts to us from the choice exotics of the hothouse no man has been able to determine. So fine, so subtle, so imponderable, it eludes weights and measures.

Are flowers sensitive, and does it chill them to lie near unto the heart that has no love for them? It is a peculiar fact that some women kill flowers within 20 minutes after they are pinned to the corsage. Others will wear them for hours, and they will look as fresh as when first gathered.—Afton (Va.) Letter to Richmond Dispatch.

A HORRIBLE BURIAL CUSTOM.

The Most Repulsive Method Known of Disposing of the Dead.

In Ching-che-Li, one of the most northern districts of Tibet, a burial custom exists which writers on such subjects say is the most repulsive manner of disposing of the dead that is known to be practiced by any civilized or savage tribe in existence.

The dying person is never permitted to pass away naturally, but is dispatched with a "sacred" club kept for that purpose as soon as he or she is announced as being beyond all hope of recovery. The corpse is immediately stripped and painted—red in the case of males, yellow if a female—and the head drawn down between the knees and firmly bound in that position. Next the corpse is carried to a corner of the room, where it is allowed to remain until the first night of the new moon, no odds if that date should be a full four weeks from the day of death. As soon as the new moon is seen in the west the corpse is removed from the corner with much ceremony and suspended in a rawhide bag from one of the rafters, or from a "corpse hook" in the ceiling. After hanging thus suspended for seven days and nights the remains are taken down and sent to the "corpse cutter," a sort of governmental "undertaker." This important individual ties the body to a post and removes the decaying flesh, which is fed to the countless swarms of wolves and wild dogs which infest that portion of the orient.

After the flesh has all been carefully removed the bones are macerated in lime-water and then pounded into a jelly in a mortar specially kept for that purpose. This horrid mass is then mixed with bits of refuse meat, grain, flour and vegetables and fed to the dogs, hogs and vultures. In case the subject has lived past a certain limit—this standard varies among different tribes—the skull is not consigned to the bone mortar, but is carefully dried and worked up into sacred buttons and "charm disks." Finger and wrist bones, as well as teeth and nails, may also be reserved in special cases, in which event they are invariably made into necklaces, armlets and anklets and worn by sorrowing friends or relatives.—St. Louis Republic.

Bachelor Man Whitcher.

In the earlier days of the fame of the poet Whittier, when already his name was widely known and honored, but did not yet command the almost universal recognition it had won in his old age, a visitor to Amesbury occasionally had difficulty in finding where he lived. His house was in an out of the way part of the town, and his name—pronounced by the country folk in two syllables instead of three—was not uncommon in the neighborhood.

It is related that one admirer, after much search and many failures, made inquiries of a rural gentleman of venerable appearance, who seemed to take a kindly interest in satisfying the querist, but suggested successively the dwellings of several Whittiers, who proved on further description not to be the one.

At length the old fellow remembered with sudden enlightenment that there was one Whittier more, and slapping his thigh he drawled with deliberate triumph:

"Now I've got him, sure. You mean that old bachelor man that lives with an old maid sister daown by the mills—he's a Whitcher too."

And this "Whitcher," a despised bachelor and an afterthought, was indeed the right one.—Youth's Companion.

Tricked the Professor.

Labouchere, while undergoing his little-go examination at Cambridge, noticed a number of dons prowling about, in the hope of catching some one cheating. So he hastily scribbled a few words upon a sheet of paper, hid it away under his blotter and ostentatiously referred to it from time to time, with a great parade of looking furtively round to see that nobody was looking. The trap was not long in taking effect. Argus thunderingly inquired what he had got there. "Oh, nothing—at least, only a piece of paper," stammered the ingenuous youth provokingly. But the examiner was inexorable. He insisted on looking under the blotter and was rewarded by reading, in a large, round hand, the words, "You may be very clever, but you can't eat coke."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Proof.

"Do you really think there's any such thing as second sight?"

"Of course. Just ask Stingely for the loan of a quarter, and you may safely bet that he'll look at it twice before giving it to you!"—Detroit Free Press.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. is on every wrapper.

Marsh, Ayers & Co.

THE HOSTESS OF "THE GRIFFIN."

BY FLORENCE WARDEN,
Author of "The House On The Marsh," Etc., Etc.

(Copyright, 1895, by Irving Bacheller.)

"Murderer! Murderer!" she repeated hoarsely. And then, advancing, with staggering feet, further into the room, she caught sight of the recumbent figure of the dead woman. "Harriet! Harriet! Oh, my dear, my darling! Why didn't I come in time?"

In a sobbing whisper she uttered these words; and then she fell on her knees beside the body. The sergeant stretched out his hand and patted her shoulder gently.

"Don't cry, my girl, don't cry!" said he gently.

Robert France, who was moving restlessly about, always shadowed by Ned Fothergill, who was bent on preventing further mischief, turned sharply.

"Don't let him touch you, Minnie," said he. "He killed her."

A shiver passed over the sergeant; he looked up in a bewildered manner.

"I killed her! Who says so?" he asked with sudden vigor, as he sprang up and took a stride in the direction of Robert France.

He seemed to understand for the first time of what he was accused.

But Minnie flung herself between them, and hung on Eben's arm.

"It doesn't matter what anybody says, Eben," said she quietly and earnestly, while the tears streamed down her face.

IT DOESN'T MATTER WHAT ANYBODY SAYS."

"These things have to be proved. And they'll never prove it against you."

There was another silence. Then Robert France darted to the door.

"We'll see about that," said he shortly. "I'm going to the police station now. And mind," he turned to Ned Fothergill, "I shall hold you responsible if you let him get away before we get back."

He ran out of the room, and down the stairs, nearly knocking down the barman, who had been awakened by the shouts and the noise, but who had not dared to get nearer the scene of action than the corridor outside.

In the club-room, after the departure of the landlord, there was a long silence, during which Minnie knelt by her dead sister, pressing the lifeless hands in her own, and shedding piteous tears.

The sergeant, who had sunk again into the chair from which he had risen to menace Robert France, put his hands up to his head, and was evidently pondering deeply. Ned Fothergill was anxious to question him, but hardly knew how to begin. It was Minnie who came to the rescue. Quite suddenly she dried her eyes, and creeping, still on her knees, towards Eben, she asked, in a low voice:

"How did it happen, Eben? Tell me what you know about it!"

"What—do I—know—about it?" he repeated sombrely. "Nothing. I know nothing. I woke up, and I saw her lying on the floor there, close by the cupboard where we heard the noise last night."

"What noise?"

The sergeant looked at Ned.

"It was a sort of scratching, like some one—or something—slipping down. And we all looked in the cupboard, and there was no one there."

Another silence. The affair was most mysterious, as well as grewsome. Eben wiped his wet forehead again, and stared at the cupboard door.

"A doctor ought to be sent for," said Ned.

"What good can he do—now?" moaned Minnie with a sob.

"He can tell us how she died, perhaps, and when."

Eben stared at him.

"Was I drunk last night?" asked he.

"Well, I had no idea you were, until you went to sleep with your head on the table."

"Then I suppose I must have been," muttered the sergeant. "And yet—"

He stopped short. Noise of footsteps and voices in the street outside attracted their attention, and Ned looked out of the window.

It was by this time past four o'clock, and in the grey of the morning, through a light, steady rain, a growing crowd of people was hurrying along the village street towards the "Griffin." In the heart of the crowd, talking and gesticulating furiously, was Robert France. He was hatless, and his matted black hair gave him a wild appearance, so that he looked like a madman in charge of keepers, rather than the leader of the throng.

On one side of him walked the village constable, listening to his narration in a stolid manner proper to his profession. On the other was the local doctor, a thin, worn-looking man of thirty-eight or so, who had apparently found no jewel of great price when he lighted upon this quiet country practice. He asked France a few questions as he walked along under his alpaca umbrella, and elicited from the excited man the whole story of his misfortune, and of the suspicions which it had aroused in his mind, all told in such a loud voice that the crowd accompanying them could gather it as they ran.

"Hush!" said the doctor, warningly; "you don't want all the parish to know what you think, till you're sure yourself, do you, man?"

But Robert France stopped short, and passed his broad brown hand through the tangles of his hair.

"What do I care? What do I care who hears, who knows?" cried he wildly. "What does it matter? Haven't I lost my wife, in the most horrible way, too? And why should I spare the feelings of the brute who killed her?"

"Hush, man. He's got to be tried before you hang him, and arrested before he's tried. You must let us, who are less prejudiced than you, have a look-round before you can say who did it."

"I don't suspect," shouted Robert. "I tell you I know. Why, any one can tell you this fellow was her sweetheart years ago, and how she threw him over for me, and how he went for a soldier, ah, for that, and how he threatened her then."

"Aye, aye, so he did. I've heard him say things myself, in them old days," remarked an old man in corduroys, who was one of the crowd.

"But young chaps say things when they've just been jilted they forget long before the month's out," observed Eben's friend, the saddler, who had come out of his house to find out what the commotion was about. "He was with me pretty nigh all day yesterday, was young Miles, and he never said a harsh word of the woman."

"He was too artful for that," said Robert France. "Listen, I don't care who knows!" And, having reached the space before the door of "The Griffin," he swung violently round, and under the old sign, which creaked on its post in the morning wind, he raised one arm aloft and harangued the crowd with passion in his eyes, his voice, his fierce gestures, his swarthy face. "Listen! I've lost my wife, the only creature I cared about in the world, and I don't care for my life now. And I tell you that if this man, this fellow who tried to steal her from me, who laid his vile hands upon her and strangled her, if he, I say, doesn't swing for this, why, I'll swing for him! I swear it, I swear it! Before Heaven I swear!"

His wild words, and looks, and tones, his melodramatic speech, above all—the whirlwind of passion in which he was speaking and acting, impressed the crowd, sent a shiver through the coldest.

They had most of them known this man for years, and had looked upon him, for the most part, with little liking, as a morose and sullen fellow, whose jealousy made both him and his wife wretched, and whose ill-temper was a proverb. Now for the first time they recognized that the man was moved by passions deeper than their own; they sympathized with him, were sorry for him. Hushed and attentive they stood, huddled together in the rain, listening to the story he poured forth with passion-white lips, with clenched and shaking hands.

"She and I had a quarrel yesterday morning. God forgive me! Nothing but a tiff such as husband and wife have sometimes; and perhaps I was to blame."

"Aye, that I'll stake my life you were," put in the saddler inopportunely.

But the crowd silenced him. There was an honesty about this admission on Robert France's part, which brought them round to his side still more.

"Yes, yes, I was to blame," he repeated. "But when this fellow turned up, this Miles, as he did during the morning, I was ready enough to make it up with her, but she wouldn't. It was his influence that. He was coming between husband and wife already."

"Shame!" cried an indignant voice.

And there were murmurs of sympathy. Robert went on.

"And when I ordered him out of the house, as I'd right enough to do, as I thought—though perhaps I was wrong—"

"No, no, you were right, Bob," cried a sympathizer.

"Then she hid herself away from me—told me she was going to her father's farm—and—and" Robert's voice faltered—"I never saw her again, alive."

There was a silence, followed by murmurs. The man might have been to blame in his treatment of his wife, but after all, there was human feeling enough and to spare under his rough ways and his surly tongue. Robert went on, speaking now very rapidly and in a lower voice:

"But she never went to the farm; she never left the house at all. I know it; I am sure of it. She just shut herself up, and managed to let this Miles have word where she was. And I asked the fellow to supper, wishing to be friends if I could with an old acquaintance, and thinking I had perhaps done him wrong. And he shammed drunk; you can ask the gentleman who was with us, and he'll tell you so; he shammed it, I say, so that he should stay in the house. And then in the middle of the night I heard a cry; it was her voice crying out. And I rushed along the corridor, calling, and then I heard his voice, and I ran to the room where I had left him. And there I saw my poor wife, lying on the floor; and the wretch strangling her with his hands. And she gave her last cry as I got in."

He stopped, his voice dying away on the last words. He seemed exhausted, dazed, with the force of the emotions he had gone through. A murmur of pity, of indignation passed through the crowd. They pressed round the desolate, haggard man, as he leaned against the tall pole on which the sign of "The Griffin" hung. They uttered threats against the man who had injured him so vilely.

"Where is he? Where is the wretch? Lynch him! Let's lynch him!" cried excited voices in the crowd.

The crowd pressed up towards the door of the inn, and the foremost of them began to swarm up the stairs. It was the saddler, Eben's friend, whose dry, hard voice again croaked out a protest.

"Why didn't you do for him yourself, man, if you were so sure he was the man as did it?" said he.

But a woman pulled him roughly by the arm, as he thrust his little withered, inquisitive face under Robert's bent head:

"Leave him alone, man," said she shortly. "Do you think everybody can take the loss of a wife as calm as you? The poor chap's off his head like, and doesn't know what he did, or what he didn't do."

Only a few persons were now standing near Robert; the majority having poured into the house, and filled the staircase and passages. The doctor and the constable had passed in long beforehand, and the latter now elbowed his way out through the crowd, and came up to Robert France.

"You're wanted inside, Mr. France," said he. "The doctor wants you to tell him all you can."

"And the soldier? The murderer? Have you got him safe?"

"Yes. We've got the door locked."

"That's all right."

Robert France followed the constable, and the crowd made way for them. In the club room the doctor was standing at the head of the table, on which the body of Harriet France lay, covered with a sheet. The sergeant and Minnie were no longer there.

"Where is he? Where is the murderer?" asked France, casting an anxious and angry glance round the room.

"Oh, never mind him now, Mr. France," said the doctor. "I want you to give me a little information now."

"Anything in the world that I can, sir, to bring the man who killed my poor wife to justice."

"And you can help us to that, I know," said the doctor quietly. "In the first place, where was the body lying when you came in? And what was the exact cause of your

Robert France answered at once:

"I heard a noise, a woman's shriek. I rushed out, came in here, and saw Sergeant Miles with his hand on my wife's mouth. They were on the floor. She gave another shriek when I came in, and I pulled him away. But my wife was dead."

"You say she was not dead when you entered?"

"She was all but dead. She must have been in that cupboard all night. In fact, we heard a noise when we were having supper, and we looked in. But she must have been hiding under the things that were in there."

The constable opened the door of the cupboard, and lifted a pile of curtains which were on top of the heap. The linen underneath was much disarranged, and the whole pile sloped down towards the floor of the room.

"You have made a mistake, Mr. France," remarked the doctor rather drily. "For I have examined the body of your wife, and I can prove that she has been dead twelve hours at least. The body is stiff in every part."

A sudden change came over Robert France. It almost seemed that his jaw dropped. After a short pause he said surlily:

"That is only your opinion."

"It's more than that," said the doctor quietly. "Even Mr. Brown here," and he indicated the constable, "could tell that this woman had been dead many hours. That she was murdered, suffocated, in fact, before you came up here to supper."

Robert looked up. Then he turned round sharply, and made for the door.

"The sergeant! Where is he?" said he between his set teeth.

"You will see him all in good time, Mr. France," said the constable, laying a strong hand on the landlord's shoulder. "In the meantime I'm sorry to say I've got to take you into custody on suspicion of murdering your wife."

Robert France uttered a low sound, like a growl, but he did not speak again. Like a whipped hound he passed out of his house, in the custody of the constable, between long rows of wondering, horror-struck spectators. People wondered what it meant, this sudden, sullen submission, without protest, without struggle.

The fact was that he had seen, at one stroke, his carefully thought out story scattered like chaff in the wind. Like most criminals, he had forgotten something; and that thing was the tell-tale rigor mortis, which, having had time to become complete, proved it to have been absolutely impossible for the woman to have been killed during the three hours which Sergeant Miles had passed alone in the club room.

And this suggestion once disposed of, there were innumerable other circumstances to prove that, Sergeant Miles not being the murderer, that person was Robert France.

In the first place there was the fact that he had sent all the servants about the place on different errands on the preceding afternoon. There was therefore the knowledge that he and his wife had been left in the inn together. He was known not to have left the house himself; while she had never been seen alive again.

Bit by bit, before the trial came on, the story got known in all its horrors. How Robert France, in a culminating fit of jealous, morbid rage, had strangled his wife as she was getting some linen out of the cupboard, stifling her cries under the curtains and cloths among which he held her down. How he had left the body in the cupboard, covered over, and had concocted the plot by which he hoped to throw suspicion upon the man he hated. How the gradual slipping of the body had made the noise which had made him obliged to open the cupboard door, without, however, betraying the fact that the dead woman was concealed there. How, after he had drugged the sergeant's wine, and left him alone in the room, the body had slipped right down, bursting open the door, which France had taken care not to fasten again. How he had been on the watch for the least noise from the club-room, and had rushed to the room on hearing the cry the sergeant uttered when he made the ghastly discovery that he was in the room with the dead body of Harriet France.

At the trial itself came Minnie's evidence that it was her scream which had echoed through the house when she heard Eben's cry.

Robert France was tried, condemned and executed, within three months of the committal of his crime.

And it was not until two years later, when the horror and the scandal had died down, that Sergeant Miles came down again to the village of Little Drillingham, to carry away from the scene which kept alive such terrible memories, the little sister Minnie, who had believed in his innocence even in the first heat and excitement of the false charge.

And Ned Fothergill was the only witness, besides the clergyman and the clerk, of the marriage.

TRAVELS OF YOUR BLOOD

Your Blood Travels Through Your Body in Two Continuous Streams.

It Starts From Your Heart and Passes Through Your Kidneys—What is the Kidney's Part, and How They Perform It—What These Two Streams Have To Do With Health and Sickness.

Blood is made by your digestive organs.

Your heart pumps it all over your body.

It contains food, heat, and nourishment, which it gives out as it goes along.

This is the first stream.

It is rich, red, bright, and runs through blood vessels called "arteries."

When it has given out all its food and life, it takes up in return all the waste matter it can collect, and starts back to where it came from.

This is the second stream.

It is dark colored, unhealthy, poisonous. It runs through blood vessels called "veins."

It takes the shortest cut to your kidneys, for your kidneys are waiting to filter it.

When it reaches them, they filter out all poisonous matter and expel the poison from the body.

Then the blood goes on to the liver and lungs, to get fresh food and heat, after which it begins its journey all over again.

BUT:

When the kidneys don't filter the blood, it passes on just the same, and then, instead of leaving food and life wherever it passes, it leaves behind it poison and disease.

This is what makes us sick: Impure blood.

This is what makes impure blood: Sick kidneys.

So long as the kidneys are well, they will filter the blood.

When they are sick, they can't, and that is the long and short of it.

So that, when your kidneys are sick or when you have rheumatism, gout, anaemia, chlorosis, neuralgia, nervousness, loss of ambition, tiredness, depression, sleeplessness, backache, etc., you may easily get well by curing your kidneys.

For all those symptoms are symptoms of blood diseases. All of them are caused by the kidneys not properly filtering your blood. All of them can be cured by taking Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.

If you have eaten asparagus, and of course you have, you must know the action it had on your kidneys.

Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills are made principally from asparagus, but the active principle of the root has been obtained by a special process, which makes one dose of the pills equal to ten or more dishes of the vegetable.

Dr. Hobb's Kidney Pills cure all kidney diseases and all injuries to the kidneys.

They also cure all blood diseases, and this when "blood purifiers" have no effect.

They renew the kidneys, and the kidneys give you pure clean blood.

You feel the effect at once, in a sensation of new life and strength, fresh energy, cleared complexion and freedom from pains and aches.

Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills are for sale by all druggists, or will be sent by mail prepaid on receipt of price, 50c per box.

THE CHIPMUNK.

Some Facts About This Frisky Little Denizen of the Woods.

Have you ever watched the antics of the ground squirrels in summer? The name the learned people give them in the books is almost as hard as the nuts the frisky little fellows gather up for their winter food. Imagine yourself saying every time you see one of these little fellows darting along the fence or the limb of a tree, "There goes a Tamias striatus of the order sciuridæ."

The last name comes from the Greek skia, a shade, and oura, a tail, which describes pretty well the way in which a squirrel carries his tail shading his head. But the Indian name, chipmunk, seems to suit him much better.

His front teeth are well adapted to the hard work before them in the winter—that is, to get the contents of the nut out in good shape. These two teeth seem to be movable and to work as if on a pivot. They go around the inside of a walnut or a hickory nut and serve the purpose of a nut picker as well as a nut cracker.

If you examine a walnut that a squirrel has dropped, you will find that both the flat sides have been pierced as if bored through with a gimlet and that every particle of the kernel has been removed from the shell by these flexible little teeth.

They come by twos and threes, these comical little providers, from their home in a great old oak just across the road from the end of your lawn, and you may trace their route from one tree to another by the rebounding of the branches when relieved of the light weight as the squirrels jump and frolic along.

If you do not put your walnuts and hickory nuts carefully away in the fall, these little thieves will find them out and soon reduce your store. They carry them off while drying in the sun, and even before they are hulled.

A young girl in southern Maryland had the power of taming these little fellows with a few crumbs of bread or grains of corn and wheat. She could draw them around her and catch any two or three of them that she fancied, carry them in her pockets or her apron for half a day, and when set free they would scamper off as wild as ever.

Visitors in the park at Richmond remember the tame squirrels that, if treated to a few peanuts or cake crumbs, will follow you for hours around the grounds and seem to know you if you go back again in the course of a day or two. They are the gray and black squirrels, with thicker tails than the chipmunks, but are just as knowing and as cunning as those that wear striped coats and smaller brushes.—Philadelphia Times.

Whittier and the Ox.

When Whittier was a child, his father had a pair of oxen named Buck and Old Butler. They were treated almost as family pets, and as they lay on the hillside chewing their cuds, the two boys, Greenleaf and Matthew, used them as armchairs, sitting upon their foreheads and leaning against their horns.

Old Butler once saved the future poet's life in a way that entitles him to everlasting remembrance. The story is told in Mr. Pickard's biography. The boy went to the pasture with a bag of salt for the cattle. Old Butler, from the hilltop, saw him coming, and hurried down to meet him. It happened that the slope was pretty steep, and the heavy ox acquired such momentum that he found himself unable to stop.

A moment more and the boy would have been crushed. But the ox pulled himself together, leaped straight out into the air, cleared the boy's head, and came to the ground far below with tremendous force, but happily without harm.

In after life Whittier told another story of Old Butler. Quaker meetings were sometimes held in the large Whittier kitchen. On one such occasion, in summer, Old Butler put his head in at the open window, as if curious to see what could be going on. A sweet voiced woman happened to be speaking, and the ox to all appearance paid strict attention. At all events he stood motionless and silent till she sat down.

Then one of the brethren arose. His loud voice had hardly begun to be heard, however, before the ox withdrew his head, lifted his tail in air, and went off bellowing. The children, and perhaps some of the grown people, were greatly amused by this bit of bovine criticism.—Youth's Companion.

His First Wife Was Petrified.

A late copy of the Madras (India) Sun, an Indian paper published in the English language, contains the following:

At Runja in the Punjab a native who had recently married for a second time was importuned by his new wife to have the remains of wife No. 1 removed from their resting place near a mineral spring and deposited in the village cemetery.

Preparations were made to that effect, laborers opening the grave in the usual manner. When the wickerwork basket in which the woman had been interred was reached, and efforts made to raise it, the weight of the receptacle and its contents was found to be too heavy for the four men engaged in the work and the appliance at hand. When the basket coffin was finally hoisted to the surface one of the laborers removed the lid to ascertain the cause of the unusual weight. To the surprise of all it was found the coffin contained a solid stone figure, the corpse having become perfectly petrified. The husband removed the remains to his home, where they now are, and it is said that thousands are daily viewing the wonder.—St. Louis Republic.

NEVER SUCH TESTIMONIALS!

What the Mail Brings to the Paine's Celery Compound People.

What excuse is there for not getting strong and well? Paine's celery compound, the world's great remedy for nervous weakness, can be obtained at any druggist's in any city or in any country town. One can get a heartier, healthier appetite, purify the blood and increase its power of feeding the nerves and tissues by taking Paine's celery compound.

It is the greatest invigorator in existence. Covince yourself of the fact. Try it.

Testimonials for publication are taken quite at random by the present proprietors of this great remedy.

The letters are never "doctored."

Titles are never placed before the names of untitled people. Honest but obscure men are never said to be "honorables." Every day kind of men who have been made well by Paine's celery compound are never paraded before the public as "The Great Mr. So-and-So," "The Wonderfully Successful Mr. This and-That." Cases of ordinary sickness are never elaborated into hideous, impossible diseases.

When it happens that the mail brings a heartfelt letter from such a man as State Treasurer Colvin of New York, or Mr. Carlisle's, private secretary, or Edmund Russell, or Mayor McShane of Montreal, or Rev. Father Ouellet, or Commodore Howell, or Mr. Gillam of Judge, or Ida Lewis, or ex-Minister to Austria John M. Francis, or any other widely known man or woman who expressly wishes others to be benefited by his or her experience, the proprietors of Paine's celery compound gladly give such unsolicited testimonials to the public press.

But one person's health is as valuable as another's, and in publishing the testimonials of people whom this great remedy has made well and strong, no particular emphasis is put upon such persons' official standing.

The world is made up of what Abraham Lincoln called "the plain people." It is they whom Paine's celery compound has most benefited.

Here is a letter (verbatim) just received from Louisa Pierce of Melette, South Dakota:

"I used Paine's celery compound first for rheumatism, and found that it helped me very much. I have since used it for nervousness and kidney trouble, and have received very much benefit from its use, and consider it one of the best of remedies. Mr. A. Cady's people use it and think they can hardly get along without it in the house. I know of several others that have used it that I am not acquainted with, but one other lady, Mrs. Ondell, used it for nervousness, and it made her well."

There is the testimony of thousands. Paine's celery compound makes people well!

are doing all the business. Our stock is the largest, prices are the lowest and terms the easiest in the city. Just give it a passing thought that you can get an antique oak bedroom suit, 8 pieces, for $15, $20, $25 and $30, including a woven wire bed spring and a mixed mattress. No house in the city offers such inducements.

And then to think again that you can get tapestry Brussels carpet for 50, 60, and 70 cents a yard, made and laid with paper, which is a saving of 15c per yard. Where is there a house in the city that will offer such bargains?

And then imagine and wonder how we can afford to give away a moquette rug or parlor table with a parlor suit for $20, $30, $40 or $50.

Some of our competitors say that our ads are too much sameness and that this ad. is old. Well, we will admit it, but as long as it does the business and saves the people money we will continue to run it.

ENGLISH FOR VOCAL ARTISTS.

ENGLISH REVEALS THE BEAUTIES OF SONG BEST OF ALL LANGUAGES.

Miss Annie J. Bronson Says that We Should Be American in Song as Much as American in Any Other Phase of Life.

A novel but very interesting kind of entertainment was given at the Y. M. C. A. hall on Saturday afternoon before an audience which was exceptionally large, considering the weather. It was a "Ballad Lecture Recital" and consisted of a lecture on "The English Language in Song" by Miss Annie J. Bronson and selections by two of her pupils, Miss Gertrude D. Irwin, soprano, and Miss Grace H. Irwin, mezzo-soprano, and Mrs. Anna Taylor Jones, contralto, and Miss Helen A. Hasbrouck. The programme passed off very successfully and was greatly enjoyed by all, each number receiving hearty applause.

Owing to a severe cold, Miss Grace Irwin was obliged to substitute "Two Hearts" by Coverly in the place of her first song on the programme, and resign her solo part in the duet "The Nightless Land" by Pensuti, to Miss Gertrude Irwin.

Mrs. Jones is the second artist trained by the vocal scientist, Edmund J. Myer, whose themes Miss Bronson teaches, who has received such a cordial welcome in Plainfield, the other being Mrs. Terzah Hamlin Keiland.

Mrs. Jones possesses a fine voice and is naturally dramatic in style, but beside this she showed the skill of an artist in the effects she made in the varied tone colors she produced in the song "Sands of Dee," and her control of soft tone on high notes.

Miss Helen Hasbrouck is to be congratulated upon the artistic manner in which she accompanied Miss Gertrude Irwin's voice, it was as noticeable as her fine technique in her solo playing.

The feature of the entertainment was the lecture. Miss Bronson's words were listened to with much attention by all her hearers. She took for the keynote of her lecture that "English is the language of languages for an American vocal artist."

"She said in part: "It belongs to us and we belong to it. We must not listen to French or Italian operas; American opera demands our loyalty as much as any thing else America. Italians and French sing their mother-tongue, we must sing ours. There is a peculiar ring or accent to an unfamiliar tongue which cannot be overcome. English takes more concentration to get the true musical meaning than any other language. Singers in America do not study enough to get the pure pronunciation and so are severely criticised. Yet English operas and English composers will come. English reveals the hidden beauties of song as no other language will do. Music is the language of emotions, but the intellect must work with the emotions.

Why don't we mumble our prayers in a foreign tongue? It is better to sing five words which are understood and will teach others than ten thousand words not understood at all. Sacred music is a power for God, chants should not be sung in the unintelligable way they are. People will be inspired by a clear sweet tone, correct pronunciation, and a singer who is filled with the spirit of what she is singing. Singers must study all vocal sounds, accented syllables and must be more spiritual and intelligent.

Italy was the cradle of song. Have we not out grown that? Students must expect to spend as much time in studying the English language in song as in studying anything else. The mind and soul must be cultivated. We must not strive for celebraty but for excellence. It would be as sensible for poets to write in Latin or Greek as for singers to sing in German and Italian.

The time is coming when we will have a national opera. Students must study the methods of our best masters and those of Italy, Germany and France before choosing their teacher. Few return from abroad with well trained voices, showing there are many poor teachers and few good ones. The time will come when students will come to America to get their voices trained. Let us raise the standard of music. Italian was the language of past for song, English will be in the future.

RAIN AGAINST THE SUNSHINE'S.

The Mission Band Have to Contend With Bad Weather at Their Sale.

The rain of Saturday prevented any large attendance at the cake and candy sale of the Sunshine Mission Band of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church held in the parlors of the church in the afternoon, but most of the members were present and a very pleasant time was spent, despite the storm. The tables, one covered with a tasteful assortment of home-made cakes and the others with candies of home manufacture, were under the supervision of all of the members. The president of the Band, Miss Mabel Bonnell, took general charge of the sale. The orange tree was especially successful, finding great favor with the younger people who attended.

DEATH OF AMOS GIDDIS.

Taken Suddenly Ill Last Friday—Well Known and Respected.

In the death of Amos Giddis, which occurred Saturday afternoon abont 3:15 o'clock, Mt. Horeb loses a most estimable and highly respected citizen.

He was taken suddenly ill Friday night and was unable to rally from the attack. Mr. Giddis was in the seventy-eighth year of his age and was a well-known and influential citizen in that locality, having held many offices of prominence during his younger years.

A wife, four sons and three daughters survive him.

The funeral was held from the Mt. Horeb M. E. church this afternoon at three o'clock and was largely attended.

The Coming Festival.

The entertainment and festival to be given November 13th and 14th in the Gesang and Turner Hall on Somerset street by the Children of Mary of the St. Joseph's R. C. church will be an elaborate one. A rehearsal was held yesterday by those who are to take part in it.

Seventh Day Social.

The coming social of the season at the Seventh Day Baptist church will be held in the parlors of the church on Wednesday evening.

SCRAP ACROSS THE BROOK.

DUCK WILSON SAID NO MAN COULD PUT HIM IN THE STREET.

But Proprietor Hipp Essayed the Act and Mike Seader and Marshal Wilson Got Mixed-up, and Arrests Followed.

While patrolling his beat on Somerset street late Saturday night Marshal William Wilson was attracted to Hipp's saloon by what seemed to be a fight. It appeared that Theodore Wilson, better known as "Duck" Wilson, and who has served a term in State Prison, was under the influence of liquor and visited the saloon. When the proprietor noticed his presence he ordered him to leave, but Wilson refused to go and said there wasn't a man in the crowd that could put him out. The proprietor then attempted the task and while accomplishing the feat Wilson grabbed Michael Seader by the coat and the three all went down on the floor. A lively time was in progress when Marshal Wilson appeared. It is said that several blows were struck previous to the latter's arrival.

However, Wilson was arrested by the marshal and taken to the lockup. On the way down Marshal Doud was met and on the request of Marshal Wilson the former went back and arrested Seader, whom he found in Rene Allen's house, upstairs. At first Seader refused to go, but on the advice of his freinds he consented, and he was also locked up.

This morning Theodore Wilson and Mike Seader were given a hearing before Justice Crosley, on the charge of fighting as stated above, and they were each fined $10, which they paid.

TO ARRANGE THE PROGRAMME.

Committee Appointed by President French of the State Christian Endeavorers.

The following have been appointed by Rev. Dr. French, President of the State Christian Endeavor Society, to arrange the 1896 programme for the convention to be held in the Crescent Cycle Academy in this city: Rev. Cornelius N. Brett, D. D., of Jersey City, chairman; Rev. F. B. Everett, of Trenton; Miss Alice Spangenberg, of Netherwood; Rev. C. E. Herring and E. E. Anthony, of Plainfield. Such a committee of earnest workers as this gives evidence that it is the intention to make this convention the best ever held in the history of the society.

PREPARING FOR PLAINFIELD '96.

The Delegates To Atlantic City to Hold a Big Rally.

The Christian Endeavor delegates from Plainfield who attended the State Convention at Atlantic City last month will hold a big rally on November 21st. An address is to be made by Rev. Dr. J. Clement French, the State President, and the plans for the State Convention to be held in this city next fall are to be perfected. It has not yet been decided where the rally is to be held but it will probably be in either the First or the Park Avenue Baptist churches. It promises to be a big event.

Rehearsing For Turkey Night.

The Epworth League members of the Grace M. E. church are rehearsing daily for an elaborate entertainment to be given in the church Thanksgiving evening. It will include a tennis drill, tableaux, magic mirror and pantomime. The committee who are planning the event consists of Mrs. Most, Miss Grace Carroll, Miss Margaret Schuck, and Mrs. Herbert Randolph.

New Sea Food Market.

E. P. Thorn will open next Friday in the store formerly occupied by him on Park avenue a sea food market, where he will deal in fresh fish, clams and oysters. He asks the public for a share of their patronage and deserves it.

A Political Sermon.

Rev. Dr. Yerkes of the First Baptist church preached a political sermon yesterday morning and urged all to vote for the best interests of the State.

W. A. McGuire, a well known citizen of McKay, Ohio, is of the opinion that there is nothing as good for children troubled with colds or croup as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He has used it in his family for several years with the best results and always keeps a bottle of it in the house. After having la grippe he was himself troubled with a severe cough. He used other remedies without benefit and then concluded to try the children's medicine and to his delight it soon effected a permanent cure. 25 and 50c bottles for sale at Reynolds's pharmacy, Park and North aves. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

GOLDSTEIN GOES UNDER.

PLAINFIELD BARGAIN HOUSE SOLD ON A CHATTLE MORTGAGE.

A Number of Creditors Left Out in the Cold, With Not Good Prospects of Getting Their Pay—The Creditors.

It is usually understood that when you buy goods you have to pay for them, and as Jacob J. Goldstein, the proprietor of the Plainfield Bargain House, seemed in no way likely to pay for the goods that he had purchased on credit from firms in New York, and as his goods were about to be sold under a chattle mortgage, the New York firms decided it was about time to take some action.

The creditors were all New York firms and were Weinberg & Company, Freudenthal, Shey, and Rosendorf & Company. They learned of the chattel mortgage sale through the Mercantile Agency, and Weinberg & Company were the first to take any action. They secured a writ of replevin, giving bonds for $3,500, and selected their goods.

Out of nearly $600 worth of merchandise that Goldstein had bought, about $250 worth was found and that was packed up.

They brought with them two detectives in case any trouble should occur. At about ten o'clock Goldstein was seen about his store, but he suddenly disappeared and neither the police nor the detectives could find him.

A representative of Charles Jacobs, of New York, the brother-in-law of Goldstein, who held the mortgage was present and protested against the packing up of the goods. At two o'clock the sale began and Auctioneer Carey sold all the goods that were left. The other creditors appear to be left out and are not likely to get back any of their goods.

MECHANICS TALK.

Enthusiastic Meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Yesterday Afternoon.

The men's meeting at the Y.M.C.A. yesterday afternoon at 4:15 was conducted by F. H. Martin and the following men from Scott's Press Works spoke: Jacob T. Sperling, W. F. Oliver, Samuel Harper, Hugh Boyd, Alexander Grant and Webster Grant. A male quintette, Frank S. Runyon, Nelson Runyon, A. J. Moore, L. A. Hummer and Charles Hummer, rendered several pleasing selections. David E. Titsworth, of the firm of Chas. Potter & Co., also sang a solo. The attendance was large.

At the boys' meeting there was a very large attendance. The boys were addressed by Sumner F. Dudley, of Orange.

Private Boxes.

The management of the Kirmess, to be held from November 11th to the 16th, for the benefit of the building fund of Muhlenberg Hospital, have arranged to have private boxes in the gallery to hold six persons. The price of these boxes will be fifteen dollars per night. Several of the boxes have already been secured by prominent citizens, and others can be obtained by application to H. P. Reynolds at the Plainfield pharmacy.

Lunch-Box Social.

A dramatic entertainment, followed by a lunch box social, will be given Thursday evening, November 7th, at eight o'clock, in the parish house of the Church of the Heavenly Rest on Clinton avenue. There will be no admission fee at the door. For those who do not wish to purchase boxes, coffee and ice cream will be provided.

Installation of Officers.

Yesterday morning at Trinity Reformed church the pastor, Rev. Cornelius Schenck, installed as elders of the church D. VanWinkle, Robert Clark and F. E. Smith, and as deacons E. E. Anthony, F. C. Adams, R. A. Meeker and F. S. Cutter.

A Hallowe'en Affair.

Raymond McGee, of Willow avenue, entertained a few of his friends at his home on Hallowe'en. The party was given in honor of Jesse L. Hurlbut, Jr., of New York. The evening was spent very enjoyably in playing Hallowe'en games and tricks.

Been Hustling Every Minute.

James E. Martine spoke at St. Patrick's Lyceum Hall in Elizabethport last Saturday night. He has spoken every night for the past two weeks and on several occasions has addressed two meetings the same night.

Work in Chinatown.

Frank W. Morse, of this city, addressed a union meeting of the churches at Bound Brook last evening. He told of the mission work which is being done in Chinatown.

GOLF COURSE OPENING.

Hillside Members Will Formerly Inaugurate Play Tomorrow.

The formal opening of the golf course recently completed by the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club will take place tomorrow afternoon at half past two o'clock. Mrs. John Doul Miller will receive and she will be assisted by a number of the other ladies. The receiving tent will be placed on that part of the club's grounds to the south of Sherman avenue between Plainfield and Grant avenues. Tea will be served in the tent for members and their friends from half past two until five. Carriages are requested to stop on the side road to the east of the course and not on Sherman avenue in the line of play.

The golf committee has provided two sets of clubs which will be rented to members by the hour or the day and which may be obtained from the man in charge of the course. Balls may be purchased on the grounds.

The recent rains have improved the condition of the course greatly and everything has been done to make the course attractive for the opening day. A large number of guests are expected although no formal invitations have been issued owing to lack of time. Members who intend playing are requested to engage caddies as early as may be, from Berry, who will have charge of all caddies and of the clubs and balls.

Any information as to rules of play may be obtained from members of the golf committee, Messrs Howard Beebe, T. S. Anthony, T. F. Sykes, G. P. Mellick, Fred W. Walz and Carl Pheiffer.

A NEW CHOIR.

New Departure Inaugurated in the Congregational Church Yesterday.

A new departure was made in the Congregational church yesterday morning when the music was led by a choir instead of a precentor. The choir will be continued for some time, when the question of making it a permanent thing will be considered.

The choir yesterday consisted of Miss Eda Beekman and Miss Elfleda Whiting, sopranos; Miss Julia Belknap, alto; Horace J. Martin, tenor; John C. Whiting and H. Tomlinson. A number will be added for next Sunday. They will meet for practice next Saturday evening.

The Park Whist Players.

The Park Club is going to make a strong effort next Saturday to capture the National whist trophy from the Hamilton Club, of Philadelphia. The team which will go from this city is the same one which won the trophy for the Park Club. It consists of S. St. John McCutchen, Samuel Townsend, George T. Rogers and J. H. Howell.

To Become a Salvationist.

Nicholas Conover, of High Bridge, who has been visiting his brother, Charles Conover, of Elmwood place, has gone to New York to enter the training garrison of the Salvation Army, where he will prepare himself for the position of an officer in the army.

Entertained His Sunday-School Scholars.

Thomas E. Hazell, of Westervelt avenue, entertained his Sunday-school class of Trinity Reformed church at his home on Friday evening. A musical programme made the evening pass very pleasantly while dainty refreshments brought it to an end.

For the State Trophy.

The whist team from Montclair will come to Plainfield a week from tomorrow to play the Park Club for the State whist trophy.

Another Postponement.

The Plainfield Camera Club has deciced to postpone its slide exhibition until Tuesday of next week instead of next Wednesday.

Rally at Dunellen.

There will be a grand Democratic rally at Dunellen this evening. Excellent speakers will address the meeting.

Croup is a terror to young mothers. To post them concerning the first symptoms, and treatment is the object of this item. The first indication of croup is hoarseness. In a child who is subject to croup it may be taken as a sure sign of the approach of an attack. Following this hoarseness is a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's Cough remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the rough cough has appeared it will prevent the attack. It has never been known to fail. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

JUST HALF A DOZEN DRUNKS.

THAT IS THE SUM TOTAL OF SATURDAY'S POLICE DRAG-IN.

Oratorical Jim Emmons Before His Honor—Two Brothers Try to Clean Out Buck Day's Place—Other Offenders.

Drunk and disorderly was the charge against all of the half-dozen victims who appeared before Judge Coddington in the city court yesterday morning.

The first culprit was Jim Emmons. He had been found on West Third street by Officer Flanagan Saturday afternoon in a disorderly state and spent the night in the lockup. Emmons pleaded guilty and the Judge gave the choice between paying $15 or spending thirty days in jail.

James Smith called Officer Hartpence some unpleasant names on South Second street Saturday evening and was just drunk enough to be ugly. "Five dollars or twenty days," said the Judge when he heard the story, and Smith handed over the cash.

Officer Frederickson brought in Howard Bush Saturday evening for trying to paint North avenue a reddish tinge and he was given the same punishment as Smith, and paid his $5 also.

John Hodkins was beastly drunk on Park avenue Saturday evening and disgusted all who saw him, until Officer Frederickson dragged him to the lockup. As his financial standing was not the best he preferred twenty days in jail to putting up $5.

Day's saloon on West Third street was the scene of a lively little fracas on Saturday evening and the two men who started it, Joe and Patrick Donnelly, were arraigned before the Judge on complaint of Officer Flanagan.

"When I appeared on the scene" said that officer, "Donnelly was trying to clean house for Day."

The two men had been drinking heavily and went into the saloon where they tried to pick a quarrel with any and everybody. The Judge decided that forty days in jail or a fine of $10 was not a bit too good for them. The brothers were not deadbroke and paid the fines.

There was only one lone man to appear before Judge Coddington this morning and he was up on complaint of Borough Marshal Doud. His name was Edward Bergen. Last evening he was wandering about on Somerset street, slightly under the influence of liquor, when Marshal Doud came along. Bergen, who was almost on the city line, applied some not very complimentary names to the Marshal and then skipped over the line where he became more abusive. Doud rapped for Cooney and Bergen was unpleasantly surprised to find himself in the grasp of a city policeman. The Judge gave him his choice between paying a fine of $5 or going to jail for twenty days. Bergen thought the commitment cheaper than the fine and went down to Elizabeth.

Stole From Church Attendants.

While the services in the First Presbyterian church were in progress last night sneak thieves entered the carriage sheds in the rear of the church, and stole two robes from the rig of John Borroughs, of Clinton avenue, and one robe from the wagon of William H. Shotwell. There is no clue to who committed the depredations. The matter was reported to Chief Grant this morning.

Surprised Saturday Night.

Miss Bessie Martin and Miss Emma Line arranged a pleasant surprise on Willard Martin, of Fairview avenue, Saturday evening. Games, singing and dancing were enjoyed and the evening passed too quickly for the young folks. Refreshments added much to the evening's pleasure. There were about forty young people present.

Ten Days in Somerville Jail.

James Dunavan for being drunk, disorderly and abusive to Marshal Doud on Somerset street last night appeared before Justice Crosley and was fined $5 this morning, and in default of payment was committed to Somerville jail for 10 days.

Henry Wilson, the postmaster at Welshton, Florida, says he cured a case of diarrhœa of long standing in six hours, with one small bottle of Chambertain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. What a pleasant surprise that must have been to the sufferer. Such cures are not unusual with this remedy. In many instances only one or two doses are required to give permanent relief. It can always be depended upon. When reduced with water it is pleasant to take. For sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. R. Armstrong, Manager.

IN IMMINENT DANGER

American Missionaries Appeal to Mr. Terrell.

Armenians of Anatolia Want Russia To Temporarily Occupy Armenia—Mussulmans Are Attacked While at Prayer—Turkish Officer and Family Killed by Armenians.

Constantinople, Nov. 4.—The American missionaries at Bitlis have complained that they are in imminent danger, and the Hon. A. W. Terrell, the American minister, and the Hon. M. H. Herbert, the British charge d'affaires, will again demand that the porte protect them from attack by the Moslems. Disturbances are reported at Bylanik, Kharput, Urfa, Sivas and Diarbekir. The members of the commission appointed to control the reforms in Armenia have announced that Chefik Effendi will be the president of the commission.

Russian Protection Requested.

The Armenians of Anatolia are preparing to send delegates to M. Nelidoff, the Russian ambassador to Turkey, to implore him to request the czar to protect them and temporarily occupy Armenia. Kiamil Pasha, the grand vizier, has telegraphed to the valis of the different provinces instructing them to use their utmost endeavors to calm the excitement and agitation among the Mussulmans. The Armenian patriarch of Constantinople has sent a circular letter to the bishops in Asia Minor requesting them to exhort the Armenians to await the execution of the reforms that the porte has promised. It is feared that the excitement is too great for either side to pay any heed to the appeals for the preservation of order.

Attacked While at Prayer.

According to official reports, the Armenians at Diarbekir attacked the Mussulmans while they were at prayer in the mosque. A fight ensued, in which several on both sides were killed and a number wounded. Armenians have murdered a Turkish lieutenant, his wife and children while they were journeying to the town of Marash.

The News in Washington.

Washington, Nov. 4.—The Turkish legation here has received the following telegram from the sublime porte under yesterday's date: "The vali of Diarbekir telegraphs that the Armenians attacked the mosques of the chief town of the province during the prayer hours of the Mussulmans. The Armenians having fired a few shots an affray took place and a certain number of men on both sides were killed or wounded. At that very moment a suspicious fire broke out at the bazar, but the authorities prevented it spreading. The governor-general of Marash telegraphs that Lieut. Hassan, at a point between Kenksoun and Marash, was robbed and murdered in an atrocious manner, together with his wife and young children, by Armenians of Zeitoun. Three hundred of the latter attacked the Mussulman village of Goncherke and took away considerable cattle and provisions. The vali of Erzeroum telegraphs that some Kurdish chiefs near Kighi were on the point of molesting some Armenians, but that Turkish soldiers who had been sent to the spot prevented possible disorder."

ELECTIONS TO-MORROW.

Seven States Elect Governors—Where the Interest Centres.

New York, Nov. 4.—Governors are to elected to-morrow in the states of Massachusetts, New Jersey, Maryland, Ohio, Kentucky, Iowa and Mississippi. The territory of Utah will be admitted to statehood next year, and governor and legislature that are to control the affairs of the new state at the outset will also be elected to-morrow. Much general interest attaches to the elections in New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Illinois, Kansas and Nebraska. In several of these states new legislatures are to be elected, and noteworthy political changes my result. No special importance attaches to the elections in other states. In fact, state elections of consequence are much fewer than usual this years. The usual claims are being made by all the different parties and several close contests are assured.

A. R. UNION WILL ADMIT THEM.

Commercial Telegraph Operators May Join Debs' Organization.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 4.—President Debs of the American Railway union will issue a circular to all local unions to-day announcing that the directors have decided to admit commercial as well as railway telegraphers to the order. In regard to his plans for the future, President Debs says that after the expiration of his sentence in the Woodstock jail and the meeting in Chicago on November 22 he will come to this city, where he will be engaged with his official duties for thirty days. Then he will make a tour of the country, beginning in Texas. He says the union has gained a strong foothold in the New England states, where it was supposed to have little chance.

ELECTRIC RAILWAY DEAL.

A $500,000 Line To Be Built at Oshkosh, Wis.

Toledo, O., Nov. 4.—J. K. Tillotson of this city has just closed a big electric railway deal at Oshkosh, Wis. Charles F. W. Smith, representative of G. F. Melton & Co. of New York has been here for several days closing up the deal for his house. The contract is for the entire construction of fifteen miles of electric railway in Oshkosh and twenty-six miles of suburban line, connecting with the towns of Neenah, Chute, Combined Locks and Kaukanna. The construction contracts are for $350,000 and other contracts call for $155,000.

Pail Makers Again Active.

Keene, N. H., Nov. 4.—The pail manufacturers of New England, who several years ago organized under the name of the New England Wooden Ware association, but who have not been very active, have reorganized and will aggressively push their work.

Another Man Lynched.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 4.—A special from Little Rock says that a man named Albert England was lynched at Vilonia, Ark., Saturday night, but no particulars are given.

BASEBALL CHANGES.

Transferring Players from Minor Leagues to the National League.

Washington, Nov. 4.—Nick E. Young, president and secretary of the National Baseball league, is engaged in negotiating the transfer of a number of minor league players to the clubs of the National league, under the rules permitting this to be done upon the payment of $500 to the minor club as soon as the player has signed a league contract. The list of men thus far drafted for the season of 1896 includes the following: Halen of Minneapolis, with Philadelphia; Yorrick of the Western league, with Boston; McCormick of New Orleans with Chicago; Harper of Rochester, with Brooklyn; Delehanty of Atlanta and Sheron of Buffalo, with Cleveland; Monnahan, Morrison and MacFarland with Louisville, and Jot Goor of Toledo with Pittsburg. Cincinnati bought Irwin from St. Paul before the season closed rather than take the chances of losing him. Boston did likewise with Bergen and New York made a similar deal for the services of Connaughton. For the first time on record a member of a western league, which is a class A organization, has drafted players from an Eastern association club, which is in class B. The Kansas City team, of which Jimmy Manning is manager, wanted two of the Eastern league players, for each of whom it will pay $500, and the players must receive an increase in salary. That is one of the benefits derived from the drafting system.

WANT RELIEF FROM CONGRESS

Fox Valley Manufacturers Prepare a Memorial to Washington.

Green Bay, Wis., Nov. 4.—The subcommittee of the special committee of Fox River Valley manufacturers has prepared a memorial to congress for the relief of manufacturing and navigating interests, which are suffering from the low stage of water. The committee recommends that the Wisconsin river be tapped at Portage and its water turned into the Fox. At Portage the Wisconsin river is ten or twelve feet higher than the Fox. A system of slash boards at Menasha are recommended. Urgent need for the improvement recommended is shown, as interests amounting to $30,000,000 or $40,000,000 and employing 10,000 men are involved. The memorial will be considered at a meeting of Fox Valley business men to be held in Oshkosh on Thursday next.

DUKE LEAVES WASHINGTON.

He Saw the Sights and Left His Card at the White House.

Washington, Nov. 4.—The Duke of Marlborough after spending two days quietly in Washington as the guest of the British ambassador, Sir Julian Pauncefote, returned to New York at midnight accompanied by his cousin, Hon. Ivor Guest. In company with Sir Julian and Mr. Bax-Ironsides, the duke drove about the city yesterday afternoon visiting, among other places, the National cemetery at Arlington. Sir Julian purposed presenting Marlborough to President Cleveland, and this would have been done to-day had the duke not been called back to New York. As it was the duke's cards were left at the executive mansion but they will not be received by the president until to-day as the latter is still living at his country home at Woodley.

ROAD RECORD LOWERED.

Shabel Covered 200 Miles on a Bicycle in 11:46:58.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 4.—Charles Shabel of this city yesterday lowered the world's road record for 200 miles from 11:58:36 to 11:46:58 4-5, or 11 minutes, 31 1-5 seconds. Shabel left Rochester yesterday morning at 6:27:10 and returned at 6:15:48 4-5 last evening. From Rochester he rode direct to Buffalo and after riding from Buffalo to Crittenden and Bowmansville and return, pedaled back to Rochester. Shabel found the roads in poor condition and received a number of bad falls. His time was accurately checked at the start and finish and at several places along the route.

SWITCHMEN ON STRIKE.

Prospects of a General Tie-up of the W. N. Y. & P. Railroad.

Oil City, Pa., Nov. 4.—The switchmen of the Western New York & Pennsylvania railroad went on strike Saturday night owing to the failure of the men to secure the restoration of a cut of 10 per cent. made some time ago. The road at this place is practically blocked. At a meeting of the trainmen here last night it was decided to send delegates to Buffalo to confer with trainmen, and if they cannot reach some satisfactory arrangement with the officials of the roads it is understood they would go out at Buffalo, Olean and Rochester, and tie up the whole system of 900 miles.

JARED M. BRUSH DEAD.

Pittsburg's Oldest Ex-Mayor Passed Away Yesterday.

Pittsburg, Nov. 4.—Jared M. Brush, the oldest ex-mayor of Pittsburg, and a native of this city, died yesterday in his 83d year. He held many municipal offices and had also been prominent in manufacturing and banking circles. The service of which he was proudest as mayor was his activity as chairman of the relief committee for the Chicago fire sufferers.

FIRE IN CHICAGO.

One Man Seriously Hurt and Three Overcome by Smoke.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—Fire in the dry goods store of Max Lurie & Co. did damage to the amount of $20,000. Julius Bauer, a pipeman, was run over and seriously hurt, and three other men were overcome by the smoke.

Storm on Newfoundland Coast.

St. Johns, N. F., Nov. 4.—A severe storm swept over the northern coast Saturday night, and it is feared that considerable damage was done to the fishing fleet returning to Labrador.

Commissioner Wilson Ill.

Washington, Nov. 4.—Assistant Commissioner Wilson of the internal revenue bureau is confined to his room with an attack of gastric fever. His condition is not regarded as serious.

Stricken with Paralysis.

Springfield, O., Nov. 4.—Dr. E. A. Gotwald, professor at Wittenburg college, was stricken with paralysis while working in his study after supper. It is believed he will recover.

NOT SO SWIFT IN USE

Builders' Tests of Cruisers Are Misleading.

Interesting Figures on the Ordinary Performance of Warships Prepared by Admiral Ramsay—New York Rated as a 21-Knot Boat Makes 18 Knots in Service.

Washington, Nov. 4.—Admiral Ramsay has collected some exceedingly interesting figures on the ordinary cruising performances of the new warships which will be sent to congress by Secretary Herbert in his annual report and which may lead to some discussion when appropriations are asked for new vessels of high speed. During the past year the admiral has required all commanding officers to report to him the rate of speed and the coal consumed on every voyage made, and the results demonstrate that the wonderful bursts of speed which are productive of large premiums when skilled jockeying is employed by builders on trial trips to establish great records are altogether meaningless as indicating the value of such vessels for every-day naval uses.

All Right in Emergencies.

The new figures do not in any manner detract from the capabilities of the racing cruisers to develop high rates of speed for short distances when emergencies occur that warrant the risk of forcing and straining the machinery and hulls, as, for instance, when $25,000 a quarter-knot is at stake or an enemy is to be intercepted or avoided. But the statistics collected show that the figures customarily attached to such ships, even in official publications, are entirely misleading.

Average Speed in Service.

The cruiser New York, for instance, is rated in all official publications as a 21-knot ship. From August, 1895, to October, 1895, the best run she made was at the rate of 15 knots per hour, which was from Kiel to Gravesend, a distance of 685 knots, at the close of the canal celebration, burning 137 tons of coal. From Gravesend to New York she made 14 knots, burning 882 tons of coal for 3,089 knots, but her average for the year was 10 knots. The Columbia, rated officially at 22.8 knots from New York to Southampton, made 15.5 knots and burned 1,320 tons of coal for 3,315 knots. While returning under orders to make a record she accomplished 18 knots, burning 1,553 tons of coal for 3,112 knots.

Minneapolis' Average 14.3.

The Minneapolis is generally, and no doubt correctly, believed to be the fastest warship afloat, if pushed. She is rated at 23.073 knots, having averaged that for four hours between Cape Ann and Cape Porpoise. Her best speed the past year was 14.3 knots make on a run from Norfolk to New York. The Baltimore, rated at 20.096 knots, flagship of the China station, presumably had some hurried orders during the recent Oriental excitement, yet her highest recorded speed was 12.7 knots when she burned 111 tons of coal going 212 knots. In the opinion of naval experts she was doing almost her best yet she developed less than 13 knots. The Chicago was not in good condition last year and has now been laid up for two years' repairs. Her record is 15.10 knots and the best she did was 9.7 knots.

Distances Covered.

The year's record for distance run was held by the New York with 17,618 knots to her credit, the Columbia being next with 15,449 knots, followed by the Detroit, 14,491; Machias, 14,450; Marblehead, 13,770; Castine, 13,701, and the Concord, 13,191. One cruiser in commission bears the distinction of not having moved during the year, the Monocacy having been tied up to the Bund in Tien Tsin since Sept. 9, 1894.

MISS VANDERBILT'S DOWRY.

She Will Have the Income for Life of $5,000,000.

New York, Nov. 4.—It came out to-day that the reports of the dowry of Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt have been much exaggerated. Instead of being $10,000,000, her marriage portion will be much nearer $5,000,000. The marriage settlements are all arranged, and they will be signed to-morrow, probably in William K. Vanderbilt's office in the Grand Central station. The future Duchess of Marlborough will have only the income of the money during her life. Upon her death the principal goes to the children of the marriage.

ASKS BRITISH PROTECTION.

Reported That the Sultan of Turkey Is Alarmed.

London, Nov. 4.—A dispatch to the Central News from Athens says that news has reached that city from Smyrna and Mitylene, Asia Minor, to the effect that rumors are current there that the sultan of Turkey has requested the protection of the British fleet owing to the threatening condition of affairs in Constantinople. No confirmation of the above dispatch can be had.

Gen. Harrison in Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—Ex-President Harrison will appear before the United States court of appeals here to-day to argue a case which has been taken from the Indiana district. It is one in which the "Cloverleaf" railway is interested, and Gen. Harrison will appear as counsel for that road.

An Overdue Ship Arrives.

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 4.—The British ship Yola arrived, 171 days out from London with 13,000 barrels of cement consigned to the Northern Pacific railroad and local dealers. Some fear had been entertained for her, as she had been spoken but once during the passage.

May Reside in Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—Gen. and Mrs. Schofield will leave Keokuk, Ia., to-night for this city, which, probably, will be their future home. No arrangements have yet been made for a permanent residence.

Lord Mayor of Liverpool.

London, Nov. 4.—The Earl of Derby has accepted the lord mayorship of Liverpool.

BOTH SIDES ARE ACTIVE

Hostilities Resumed with Energy in Cuba.

Numerous Engagements But Nothing of a Serious Nature So Far—Insurgents Preparing To March on the Capital—They Declare Campos' Plans Will Fail.

Madrid, Nov. 4.—A dispatch from Havana to the Imparcial says that both the government forces and the insurgents are displaying increased energy. The rebels have wrecked another train with dynamite, the scene of the attack being between Sancti Spiritu and Las Tunas. They have also burned the buildings on many haciendas. Communication with several places has been cut off, and there have been many slight encounters between the government forces and the rebels, the fighting, however, being generally too unimportant to call for the going into details. The Spanish troops in the vicinity of Remedios have constant skirmishes with the rebels. Col. Menendez with 200 troops had an engagement with 500 insurgents near Santa Clara. Eight of the rebels were killed and many wounded. The Spanish loss was two wounded.

Ready To Meet the Spaniards.

New York, Nov. 4.—Dr. Gomez y Castro of this city has received a letter from his brother, now with the Cuban army, in which he says: "Gen. Gomez is actively preparing to meet the campaign threatened by the Spaniards during this winter. They say they intend to force us to centralize our troops, and then force us back. Martinez Campos cannot put his plans into successful operation. We can break through any line the Spaniards may present, no matter how strong it may be.

Nearing the Capital.

"Gen. Gomez has sent word to Maceo to come and meet him in Carraguey. It is now the intention of the commander-in-chief to march with Maceo at the head of the Cuban army toward Havana while Campos is endeavoring to concentrate his forces in Puerto Principe. By the time you receive this we will not be far from the capital. We insurgents can stand this fight for another ten years, as we did during the last war, if it is necessary to do so. Our men are well fed and well dressed. They have in their camps factories for producing uniforms, shoes and caps. They have also lots of cattle and game, need nothing, and are gaining ground every day."

WORK OF DISCHARGED MEN.

Efforts for a General Strike on the Great Northern.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 4.—The strike situation on the Great Northern seems to have resolved itself into a fight among about twenty discharged men for reinstatement, which they find impossible except by drawing the whole American Railway union into the trouble. Rumors that a strike would be inaugurated on the Montana Central, a leading branch of the Great Northern system, proved untrue. Sylvester Keliker, secretary of the A. R. U., who has been prominent in the attempt to get an interview with President Hill, has been in communication with President Debs the past few days, but the latter has refused so far to advise a strike. The fact is that the members of the order on the Great Northern have it in their power to say whether or not they shall strike. Keliher said this morning that they would certainly strike, but the employes have made no move in that direction.

WIPED OUT BY FIRE.

Arcadia, Ia., Nov. 4.—The most disastrous fire that has visited this town in its history occurred last night. There is now only one general store left in the town. The flames burned over an area of four acres, taking with them six residences, the hotel, opera house, one livery barn, harness shop, two grain elevators, one lumber and coal yard, a barber shop, the postoffice, two drug stores, two saloons, three general merchandise and one furniture store, one hardware store, a butcher shop, boot and shoe store, four barns and a vacant store building.

CLINGING TO THE RIGGING.

Crew of a Waterlogged Schooner Rescued at Sea.

Charleston, S. C., Nov. 4.—Returning from Edisto island yesterday, the Charleston tug John Harlan sighted the schooner William H. Shubert badly waterlogged off the Carolina coast. The crew were standing on top of the deck house or clinging to the rigging, the deck of the vessel being submerged. The crew of the unfortunate schooner were transferred to the Harlan and the vessel was towed into this port.

DONE WITH FITZSIMMONS.

Corbett Will Not Consider Any Further Offers.

Hot Springs, Ark., Nov. 4.—A dispatch from Little Rock this morning stated that Stuart was sending out a batch of dispatches, but would not talk. This shown to Brady who said: "We will positively pay no more attention to Fitzsimmons. We are through with him forever. It is useless to make Corbett any offers in connection with him."

Mgr. Farley Elevated.

New York, Nov. 4.—Right Rev. Mgr. John M. Farley, vicar general of the diocese of New York and rector of St. Gabriel's church, has received word from Archbishop Corrigan that the request of the archbishop in his letter to the pope asking for the elevation of Mgr. Farley to the episcopate as auxilliary bishop of New York has been acceded to.

Death of an Inventor.

Bloomfield, N. J., Nov. 4.—William E. Collins, the inventor of the Lappan brake for railroad cars, which is in use on the elevated railroads in New York, dropped dead yesterday afternoon in C. R. Voorhees' cigar store on Glenwood avenue. Heart disease caused death.

Killed His Child Wife.

Columbus, O., Nov. 4.—Elmer E. Brannigan, a colored teamster, shot and killed his 17-year-old wife, Mary, yesterday. They had separated.

HOLMES' CONVICTION.

The Doomed Man Apparently Unconcerned at His Fate.

Philadelphia, Nov. 4.—Every one actively identified with the Holmes trial, which ended Saturday evening in the conviction of Holmes for the murder of Pietzel, were glad that yesterday was Sunday and took advantage to rest and recuperate from the great nervous tension under which they had labored for a week. District Attorney Graham said this morning as to the granting of a new trial, he did not think the court, after having heard the argument, would do so as there was nothing upon the records of the trial that would show an error sufficient to warrant such a proceeding.

Holmes Apparently Unconcerned.

After the ordeal of the trial the quiet monotony of a prison cell was welcome to Holmes, and he spent Sunday apparently unconcerned by the death sentence which hangs over him. He is still in the untried department, but will be moved over with the convicts to-day. The condemned man's appetite takes but little of his attention. He still maintains his air of injured innocence, and reads and writes when not absorbed in thought. No visitors were allowed to see him yesterday, and Holmes himself strengthened the prison rules by stating that he did not wish to see anybody. Bessie Pietzel is still in Philadelphia, in charge of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Mrs. Pietzel has left the city, and nearly all of the commonwealth witnesses have taken their departure.

FOUR BURNED TO DEATH.

Bodies Found in the Ruins of a Fire in New York.

New York, Nov. 4.—When the smoking ruins of the sweat shops in Pelham street, which were burned early yesterday morning, were searched, it was discovered that four lives had been lost in the blinding smoke and flames. Three buildings were totally destroyed, and a conservative estimate of the loss places it at $100,000. The names of the dead were: Jacob Shapiro, watchman, burned to death on third floor; Isaac Pensen, tailor, body recovered in doorway of No. 7 Pelham street; Morris Deuschi, tailor, jumped from third-story window of No. 7 Pelham street and fractured his skull; died in hospital; unknown person, sex undistinguishable, body recovered in basement. The position of the bodies taken from the ruins and the horrible condition in which they were found show how terrible had been the struggle of the unfortunates for life and how hopeless their fight before the swift advance of the flames. The three buildings took fire from floor to floor as though their walls had been soaked with kerosene, and all avenues of escape were quickly cut off. No one knows how many persons were in the darkened sweat shops when the fire started, and even now, beneath the mass of charred debris, there may be lying the bodies of homeless and friendless tailors who had sought shelter for the night within the walls of the doomed buildings.

NO DAMAGES AWARDED.

Mrs. Hilligoss Loses Her Suit Against W. R. Covert.

Anderson, Ind., Nov. 4.—The $10,000 damage suit brought by Mrs. Dr. Hilligoss against W. R. Covert, the anti-spiritualist, came to an abrupt end late Saturday night, and the jury, after being out twenty minutes, found for Covert, denying even a cent of damages. The suit involved the question of spiritualism and for that reason and the prominence of the principals it attracted a great deal of attention. Mr. Covert has in his tirades against spiritualism repeatedly published that spiritualist mediums were liars, frauds, thieves or ignoramuses. Mrs. Hilligoss, who leads the Indiana spiritualists, took the assertion as personal and brought the suit.

CONDUCTOR BARNETT SHOT.

Wounded by Train Robbers While Approaching Erie, Pa.

Erie, Pa., Nov. 4.—Conductor Richard Barnett of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad was very dangerously shot by a gang of train robbers last night. Barnett was approaching Erie from Buffalo with his train and had his head out of the window watching for signals. Three men rushed upon the train and fired. Barnett was the only man shot. The ball tore through his skull, but came out. His home is in Collingwood, O. Barnett has been a conductor a great many years, and it is thought the shot was intended to square up an old score by one of the gang which has recently been discharged from custody for train robbery.

DECLARED A NUISANCE.

Salvation Army Soldiers Sentenced for Playing Instruments on Sunday.

Easton, Pa., Nov. 4.—In defiance of a recent order of Mayor Field, commanding the Salvation Army to cease playing horns and drums on Sunday in their open-air services at Centre square, Elmer West of Philipsburg, cornetist, and Edward Parsons of Bangor, Pa., trombonist, were arrested yesterday afternoon and committed to prison for ten days in default of a fine of $10. The arrests and imprisonment have caused considerable comment. The army of late has been complained of as being a nuisance on Sunday.

SOLD TO THE FRICK COMPANY.

McClure Company Dispose of Their Coke Plants.

Pittsburg, Nov. 4.—The H. C. Frick Coke company has secured the property of the McClure company and almost complete control of the great Connellsville coke industry. For about $4,000,000 the McClure company has disposed of its entire interest in the Connellsville region, consisting of 2,500 coke ovens and its large coal properties in Fayette and Westmoreland counties. The entire new board of directors of the McClure Coke company has been elected from among the new stockholders.

Superintendent Willard Hospital.

Albany, Nov. 4.—The board of managers of the Willard State hospital has appointed William Mahon, who has been assistant superintendent of the Utica State hospital, as superintendent of the Willard State hospital, to fill a vacancy.

Garibaldi Monument Dedicated.

Milan, Nov. 4.—The Garibaldi monument in this city was dedicated yesterday with imposing popular ceremonies. King Humbert sent a bronze crown to be placed on the monument.

DEFAMED THE EMPEROR

Three Berlin Editors Receive Heavy Sentences.

A German Paper Opposed to the Scheme of Importing American Horses for Meat—Thanksgiving Day Celebration—Capt. Evans Inspects a Remount Depot.

Berlin, Nov. 4.—No prosecutions for the offense of lese majestie which have taken place in recent years have so attracted public interest as the trial and conviction last week of Herren Dierl and Pfund, respectively editor and associate editor of the Vorwarts, the leading socialist organ, and Herr Randmann, editor of the Volksblatt, resulting in the sentence of Dierl to six months, Pfund to nine months and Randmann to twelve months in prison. These gentlemen are now at liberty on bail in the sum of 8,400 marks each, pending an appeal from the judgment of the court, and the case is exciting general discussion. Herr Dierl, especially, drew upon himself the wrath of the authoritative powers by ridiculing the Sedan day celebration and the Kaiser William I. memorial church, the latter of which he referred to as the "Aegir church," and alluded to the emperor's having devoted the proceeds of his recent musical effort, the "Song of the Aegir," to the expenses of erecting the memorial windows of the church, which were lately consecrated with great ceremony.

Against Importing Horses.

The Post devotes four columns to the reports of various United States consuls conveying the suggestion that American breeders exported horses into Germany for the purpose of slaughtering them. The Post contends that live animals could not be exported profitably and declares that if the flesh of slaughtered animals should be sent here Germany would impose restrictions similar to those now in force against live cattle and dressed beef. The proposal to import horses into Germany for slaughtering has met with a storm of adverse comment.

Americans To Celebrate.

Lieut. C. E. Vreeland, naval attache to the United States embassy, has returned to Berlin from his holidays. He spent his leave of absence in studying the dockyards in Holland. A committee of the American colony held a meeting at the United States embassy and decided to celebrate Thanksgiving by holding a banquet at the Kaiserhof hotel on Nov. 28. Ambassador Runyon presided.

Prussian Remount Depot.

Capt. R. K. Evans, military attache of the United States embassy, has returned here from a tour of inspection, under instructions from Washington, of the remount depot at Oranienburg, where 600 horses are trained at one time. The depot has very extensive grounds and its appointments are complete. The administration of the depot is endeavoring to make it self-supporting by raising grain, oats, potatoes, etc.

B. & O. CRASH.

Two Lives Lost and a Number of People Injured.

Pittsburg, Nov. 4.—Two persons were killed outright and twenty-five or thirty passengers were injured by the wrecking of the Cincinnati express at Elm Grove, near Wheeling, on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad yesterday. The dead are Mrs. Hare, not yet fully identified; child named Barkely, parents live in Wheeling. The seriously injured are Michael J. Mahoney, McKeeport, nose mashed and face bruised; G. W. Gilbert, Sharpsburg, Pa., head bruised and thigh broken; C. J. Garvey, oil operator, Marietta, O., head bruised and spine injured, will probably die; Charles Harkness, Altoona, Pa., head bruised; George Hagerlocker, Pittsburg, head cut and back injured; Mrs. Mary Malone, Allegheny, head cut and face bruised; Prof. James Frazier, Wheeling, badly bruised. The accident was caused by the breaking of a flange on the combination car, which caused the derailment of that car together with two coaches and a parlor car. The cars derailed turned completely over and were badly demolished. That no more fatalities occurred seemed to be due to a kind Providence, as the wreck was one of the worst of its kind that has occurred in this vicinity for many years.

NO ARRESTS MADE.

Henry George Spoke at Wilmington, Del., Last Night.

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 4.—Henry George delivered a singlt tax speech in the opera house here last night to fully 1,500 people. Chief of Police Dolan was present with two officers, but the speaker was in no way interrupted. He spoke less than an hour, and the speech was disappointing to the audience. The police commissioner is not inclined to enforce the order given early last week to arrest single tax orators as being violators of the law.

UNION NOT RECOGNIZED.

St. Louis Tobacco Workers Vote To Boycott a Company.

St. Louis, Nov. 4.—The Tobacco Workers' union of this city, 3,000 strong, has passed a resolution to boycott the American Tobacco company. This action was brought about by the sale of the J. G. Butler tobacco factory of this city to the trust. The men claim the new owners refuse to recognize the union and follow the same course in eastern cities.

Sole Factory Burned.

Randolph, Mass., Nov. 4.—The cut sole factory of Edmond Cottle & Co., situated on North Main street, was burned yesterday afternoon. The fire was caused by a defective chimney. Loss on contents $25,000; on building $4,000.

Wales Will Not Challenge.

London, Nov. 4.—It is learned that there is no truth in the report which originated at Patrick, near Glasgow, that the Prince of Wales was contemplating building a challenger for the America's Cup.

Howard Gould Coming Home.

Southampton, Nov. 4.—The American line steamship New York will have among her passengers Howard Gould.

The official ballot of New York State is an insult to the intelligent man.

The Tammany tiger will, for the 'eenth time, undergo the process of being killed tomorrow. The tiger ought to be used to the execution by this time.

The President has denied the appeal of Don M. Dickinson from the decision of Secretary Herbert, refusing to override our treaty with England and build warships on the Great Lakes.

Between the Goo Goos, Garoos, Gazoos, Fusion, Tammany and various other factional tickets, the New York voter who can vote and know positively who he is voting for, will be a wonder.

Plainfield congratulates New Brunswick on the opening of the trolley road. Plainfield thinks that it is such a good thing that they are pushing it along, though not as fast as the progressive people would like to see.

Charles V. Codding, chairman of the Republican county committee, predicts that Griggs will get 700 plurality in Union county. E. M. Wood, member of the Republican State committee, makes an estimate of 500 plurality.

After reading the servant girl story in The News last Saturday, Charles A. Reed, the Republican candidate for Member of Assembly, might have well said: "O, Lord, deliver me from my friends." The News story had the ear marks of a lie, because Mr. Bergen never said anything of Mr. Reed that "might better have been left unsaid," and which was sufficient for the servant girl to ejaculate "you're not telling the truth." The slur cast by The News on Mr. Bergen's friendly sentiments will cost Mr. Reed several votes tomorrow.

Tonight ends the campaign in New Jersey. On the side of both parties the fight for votes has been carried on with unusual vigor, but despite the fact that the candidates for Governor are men of high character the arguments have at times descended into a virulence that was to be regretted by every fair minded citizen. But the issues involved in the election have doubtless been wisely considered by the average voter, and he will go to the polls tomorrow and intelligently exercise the right of suffrage. The Daily Press is not a political paper and has no reason, therefore, for the purpose of inspiring confidence in either one party or another, to say that this or that candidate will or should be elected. Outside of their acts that might have a direct political bearing, The Press believes that as near as is possible the official conduct of those elected will be satisfactory to the people whom they serve.

An Aged White Ribboner.

Mrs. Ann Dickinson will be seventy-nine years old tomorrow and intends to celebrate her birthday with a prayer meeting, which will be held tomorrow at her residence, 114 East Fifth street, at three p.m. All welcome. Mrs. Dickinson belongs to the white ribbon army.

THEATRICAL.

The comic opera "Wang," which last season gained golden opinions everywhere, comes to Music Hall on Wednesday, Nov. 6th. "Wang" is now on its final tour and this will be the last chance to see this famous opera. The theatre-going public is always in search of novelties, but in this day of so many stage novelties which disappoint, the coming of an old and tried friend like "Wang" is indeed a welcome anticipation. Novelty will, to a certain extent, but most pleasingly, also enter into next week's production of the merry opera, for there will be many new and pretty faces, many new, fresh and youthful voices, new scenery and costumes more costly than were lavished upon it in the days when it was an experiment. These new features will, however, be but the settings for the same merry opera.

High School Notes.

It is expected that the new uniforms will come on Thursday of next week. The High School boys are all anxiously waiting for Thursday to come.

The young ladies have felt rather left out in the cold by the uniforming of the boys' company, therefore they have been talking of the best ways in which a ladies military company can be uniformed.

The regular meeting of the Kappa Delta Phi was held in the High School building Friday afternoon. After the business session the programme was taken up. The programme was one of the society's own, entitled: "Ships that Pass in the Night." Short speeches were made by the members. Wilbur F. Cornwell gave an interesting talk on Torpedoes; J. Hazlewood Craig spoke about the different kinds of Armor; Henry Eggerding spoke of the American Navy. Paul Kimball added some remarks to Craig's speech, but Charles Noble wandered from the scientific course which the other members had taken and told an exaggerated snake story.

Able to Walk After Years.

Fred Townsend, son of J. E. Townsend, of Coddington avenue, has been an almost helpless invalid for fourteen years. Recently Drs. Long and Zeglio performed an operation on one of the young man's legs and it was a complete success. In a short time he will be able to walk with the aid of a cane. The physicians are assured of his recovery and the young man's parents are very much pleased with the operation.

—The Daughters of Liberty will hold their second reception in Central Hall on Thursday evening, November 21st.

Went at His Wife.

Charles Perrine, residing near Greenbrook road, visited Hipp's saloon Saturday night and indulged too freely at the flowing bowl. He was present when the trouble between the proprietor and Theodore Wilson was in progress and narrowly escaped getting into the racket himself. He went home rather late and commenced to beat his wife. Marshal Hansen happened to be going by the house on his beat, and on hearing the noise he went to the door and found that Perrine was treating his wife badly. On the appearance of the officer the trouble ceased and no arrest was made

Barber Shop Sold.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION.

The Civil Service Commission at Washington has ordered that an examination be held in this city on December 7, 1895, commencing at 9 o'clock, a. m., for the grades of clerk and carrier in the city postoffice. Only citizens of the United States can be examined. The age limitations are as follows: For carrier, not under 21 nor over 40; for all other positions, not under 18 years. No application will be accepted for this examination unless filed with the undersigned in complete form, on the proper blank, before the hour of closing business on November 18, 1895.

The Civil Service Commission takes this opportunity of stating that the examinations are open to all reputable citizens who may desire to enter the postal service, without regard to their political affiliation. All such citizens, whether Democrats or Republicans, or neither, are invited to apply. They shall be examined, graded and certified with entire impartiality, and wholly without regard to their political views, or to any consideration save their efficiency, as shown by the grades they obtain in the examination.

For application blanks, full instructions, and information relative to the duties and salaries of the different positions, apply to the postoffice to

G. C. GODOWN,
Secretary Board of Examiners.

Yet She Went.

Mrs. Flyabout—You don't look as if your trip east had done you any good.

Mrs. Gofrequent—It didn't do me any good. I knew it wouldn't, but the doctor said I needed change and rest. That's why I went. I was carsick all the way from here to New York and seasick all the way from New York to Boston.

"Then how about your change and rest?"

"Why, the railroads got the change and the ocean got the rest."—Chicago Tribune.

How Far a Farmer Walks.

Some one has found out how far a farmer has to walk to put in and attend 40 acres of corn. To plow the ground with a 16 inch plow he walks 350 miles, to harrow it thoroughly before planting he walks 50 miles, and to cultivate it afterward he will have to travel 350 miles, making a grand total of 750 miles, besides gathering.—Atchison Globe.

The Terrible Cockatrice.

The explanation of the origin of that remarkable organism, the cockatrice, leaves nothing to be desired as regards accuracy of detail. We are told that "when the cock is past 7 years old an egg grows within him, whereat he greatly wonders." We can well imagine the dismay of any well conducted masculine bird of that age on finding himself in such a compromising predicament, but how did he communicate his feelings to the historian? That the embryonic cockatrice had some mysterious power of self advertisement is evident, for we hear further that "a toad privily watches him and examines the nest every day to see if the egg be yet laid. When the toad finds the egg, he rejoices much, and at length hatches it, bringing forth an animal with the head, neck and breast of a cock, and from thence downward the body of a serpent."—Westminster Review.

Queer Case.

"The durndest case of snake bite I ever knowed of," said the man with the ginger beard, "was a feller out in Ioway that got bit by one of them prairie rattlers. Well, you know that ef a man drinks enough whisky he thinks he sees snakes, but this here feller, bein bit by a snake, imagines he was full of whisky and bilin drunk Next day they run him out of town"

"What fer?" asked the grocer.

"'Cause he kilt the snake, of course. The durn fool could of made a mint of money out'n that snake in Ioway ef he only knowed it."—Indianapolis Journal.

Making It Equal.

Mamma—You should always take the smaller piece of anything offered. You just took the larger piece of cake and left the smaller piece for your elder brother.

Tommy—But, mamma, as Willie is my elder, I think the plate should have been passed to him first.—Philadelphia Times.

Some ingenious rogues in Calcutta and Bombay purchase favorite brands of liquor in the original packages. They remove the good liquor without touching the cork or the capsule, and substitute vile stuff. This is done by drilling a hole in the bottom of the bottle.

PRESENCE OF MIND.

A Story of a Man Who Stood High In the Financial World.

Charles Fair, the only male heir of the late James G. Fair, sat in the billiard room of the Palace hotel talking to some pioneer friends of his father.

"Do you know, Charlie, that a book of reminiscences of your father would sell like hot cakes? You ought to put the data in the hands of some publisher and let him issue the volume. What do you think about it?"

The son smiled and looked up at the talker as he replied:

"Why don't you do it?"

"Me do it!" exclaimed the man with the publishing ideas. "I didn't know him."

"Neither did I," answered Charles. "Nobody knew him. I don't think a man ever lived who enjoyed his confidence. I can assure you that he was the same strange man to me that he was to others, and his iron rule to keep his own counsel was never broken.

"Whenever he did fall into a confidential and chatty mood, it was to jest about something or to theorize. I recall a story he once told Alfred E. Davis, his old partner. The story I have in mind was woven into a serious conversation, and he never cracked a smile over it. Before proceeding, however, I must tell you that in the Comstock mines a ladder goes down the side of each shaft, and every twelfth rung is iron, so as to give the whole additional strength. Well, father said to him:

"'Davis, do you know I was almost killed once in the Crown Point mine?'

"'How was that, Jim?'

"'This way. I was looking down the shaft to see if everything was all right and lost my balance. Being unable to recover myself, I toppled over and fell. Yes, Davis, fell. I must have gone about 100 feet when it suddenly struck me that if I didn't begin doing something pretty quick I would go clear through to hades, so I reached out and grabbed a rung of the ladder. It broke, and I grabbed the next. That broke, too, but I reached for the third, which also gave way, and the next, and the next, and so on, but it broke my fall, and in about five minutes I reached the bottom a little jarred up, but perfectly sound.'

"Davis looked at him out of the corners of his eyes a few seconds and said:

"'What did you do, Jim, when you came to the twelfth rung? Did you grasp at that too?'

"'Why, I missed it. Do you think I wanted to smash everything that was in the mine?'"

When Charles finished his story, he was laughing more heartily than any one else in the crowd and could not be prevailed upon to recall anything more that had come from the lips of his famous financial father.—San Francisco Call.

The Spirit of Criticism.

"This is a dreadful age!" exclaimed Mrs. Bragdon, dropping into her chair on her return from church and fanning herself with the cover of the book she held. "People criticise each other continually, and nobody passes unscathed." Her husband laid down his paper and inquired what particular circumstance had aroused her attention to the fact.

"Why, just go to meeting! There's a set that sit and look around over the church, spying out things to talk over Monday. They notice every garment that comes down the aisle and every movement that's made.

"Then there's the set of those who pay attention. They look at the minister, but what for? They are just weighing his words in order to trip him up. Some think he uses one hand to gesture with more than the other, and some think his feet are braced back too far. I heard one woman say she couldn't enjoy his preaching because that lock of hair on his crown stood up so brashy. Every word he lets fall is passed judgment on."

Mrs. Bragdon stopped talking because she was breathless.

"Seems to me you noticed considerable more than the sermon t' think this all up," said Mr. Bragdon slyly.

"Oh, it isn't confined to the church, not even to the choir, though every note they have sung for years has been tuned with a sort of mental tuning fork and pronounced off the key—it's the whole world generally. If you talk and take any part in things, you are judged by your words, and if you keep still, they say 'it looks rather suspicious their keeping so still,' and so it goes. I am tired to death of criticism!"

"Well," said her companion, getting to the safe distance of the door before he finished, "for a woman that dislikes criticism, your little passing tribute to the town generally is a very praiseworthy attempt."—Youth's Companion.

She Was Smart.

The new clerk was decidedly pretty—at least so said the employees of a well known Market street firm, and they immediately began to speculate as to her age, at the same time marveling at the new departure of the boss, who usually engaged the plainest young women he could find. It was a fad at this establishment to speculate on a newcomer's age, the more so as there was a quiet way of finding it out. Every clerk was required to join the Employees' Beneficial association, and on the membership blank was a space for "age," which must be filled out. Accordingly when the new clerk had prepared her blank the older hands sought an opportunity to confer with the secretary, to whom the membership slip was intrusted, in order to confirm their various estimates, ranging from 22 to 28 years. The secretary was loath to part with the important document in his possession when interviewed at dinner hour, but after being bribed with cigars he finally handed the slip to the spectators. What they read was, "Age, 15 plus." And now they are wondering if plus is the largest portion of the number.—Philadelphia Record.

A New Peril.

"Yes," said little Jim to his juvenile friend, "I'm gointer run away from home."

"And fight Indians?"

"I don't know about that. But I'm gointer get away from whut's comin. I've had paw's trousers cut down to fit me, an never found fault. But since maw got a wheel an is wearin bloomers, I'm takin no more chances."—Washington Star.

Rough on the Doctor.

A correspondent of The Muenchener Neueste Nachrichten affirms that the office of physician to the sultan of Zanzibar is far from being a sinecure. Probably, to guard against poisoning, the unhappy doctor is compelled to swallow one-half of the medicine prescribed by him for the sick person.

In parts of Austria and Italy there is a superstition that the human saliva is a cure for blindness. The idea probably originated in the miraculous healing of a blind man recorded in one of the gospels.

I THANK THEE.

For the earth and all its beauty,
The sky and all its light,
For the dim and soothing shadows
That rest the dazzled sight,
For unfading fields and prairies,
Where sense in vain has trod,
For the world's exhaustless beauty,
I thank thee, O my God!

For an eye of inward seeing,
A soul to know and love,
For these common aspirations,
That our high heirships prove,
For the hearts that bless each other
Beneath thy smile, thy rod,
For the amaranth saved from Eden,
I thank thee, O my God!

* * * * * * *

For thine own great gift of being,
I thank thee, O my God!

HOW THEY DIFFER.

Man a Creature of Habits; Woman Utilizes Anything That Is Handy.

Man is a creature of cast iron habits; woman adapts herself to circumstances. This is the foundation of the moral difference between them.

A man does not attempt to drive a nail unless he has a hammer; a woman does not hesitate to utilize anything, from the heel of a boot to the back of a brush.

A man considers a corkscrew absolutely necessary to open a bottle; a woman attempts to extract the cork with the scissors. If she does not succeed readily, she pushes the cork in the bottle, since the essential thing is to get at the fluid.

Shaving is the only use to which a man puts a razor; a woman employs it for a chiropodist's purposes.

When a man writes, everything must be in apple pie order—pen, paper and ink must be just so, a profound silence must reign while he accomplishes this important function. A woman gets any sheet of paper, tears it perhaps from a book or port folio, sharpens a pencil with the scissors, puts the paper on an old atlas, crosses her feet, balances herself on her chair and confides her thoughts to paper, changing from pencil to pen and vice versa from time to time, nor does she care if the children romp or the cook comes to speak to her.

A man storms if the blotting paper is not conveniently near; a woman dries the ink by blowing on it, waving the paper in the air or holding it near a lamp or fire.

A man drops a letter unhesitatingly in the box; a woman rereads the address, assures herself that the envelope is sealed, the stamp secure and then throws it violently into the box.

A man can cut a book only with a paper cutter; a woman deftly inserts a hairpin, and the book is cut.

For a man "goodby" signifies the end of a conversation and the moment of his departure; for a woman it is the beginning of a new chapter, for it is just when they are taking leave of each other that women think of the most important topics of conversation.

A woman ransacks her brain trying to mend a broken object; a man puts it aside and forgets that for which there is no remedy. Which is the superior?—Lippincott's Magazine.

America Through English Eyes.

They like giving big names to things in America. A pond is a lake, and a hill is a mountain. They never speak of the sea; it must be called the ocean; a meeting is a convention, a dictionary is a "speller and a definer," a town is a city, a chairman is a president, and so on. The only exception I know of is that the wealthy people who own those charming country residences at Tuxedo and Lenox call them cottages. But these are not average Americans, and in that country the manners and customs, as seen by the ordinary traveler, are governed by the average man, who is not a good specimen. He is apt to be a most awful "bounder," has no taste and does not know the meaning of the word "repose," but you need never meet this type except in railway trains and hotels.

His ideal, as one of them told me, is to spend his nights "on the cars" and his days in getting the better of his fellow men. But the refined American is quite different. These are mostly met in Washington and the south, and, of course, Boston is a thing apart, and as you approach this town you are told that the humming you hear is the noise of people reading Browning. Tuxedo also is a great exception, where you can have congenial society. It is a large estate with woods and lakes and 40 miles of well laid roads. Country houses or cottages have been built all over it, and there is an excellent residential club—into which, however, the female element has progressed so far as to have introduced even babies into the bedrooms!—George Forbes in Blackwood's Magazine.

Not Such a Rich Find.

"I had a funny experience the other day," said Lawyer J. E. Delman of the Equitable building to a reporter.

"It didn't seem funny at the time, but I can laugh at it now. I found about $2 in silver and picked it up from the floor."

"That's pleasant," said a friend who was present, "but I wouldn't call it funny."

"Ah, but I went into a saloon with some friends and found half a dollar near the door, which I 'blew in' for drinks. I heard something drop and picked up two more quarters. Blew them in too.

"Then I felt coin dropping down against my leg. Suddenly the truth flashed on me. I found a big hole in my pocket, out of which about $2 in change had dropped. All the money I had picked up was my own, and $1 was lost altogether besides."—New York Journal.

An Irish Compliment.

An Irish gentleman visiting here said to an English officer, "Do you know Mr. X. of —?" The officer disclaimed having that pleasure. "Ah, he is a very nice fellow and a good friend of mine. But he has been dead these six years. An, shure, you're very like him!" The officer said he had been compared to a good many things in the course of his lifetime, but never before to a 6 year-old corpse.—London Spectator.

THE CHINESE LANGUAGE.

There Are Six Classes of Characters, but No Alphabet In Use.

The peculiarity of the Chinese language consists of the fact that they have a written and printed language and no alphabet, every word in their vocabulary having a separate character of its own. These characters are divided into six classes, the total number being about 24,235. The first class, according to eminent Chinese philologists, includes "imitative symbols." These are 608 in number and are believed to be the very first Chinese symbolic signs invented. The second class includes the "symbols indicating thought" and are 107 in number. These characters are formed in such a way as to indicate by their form or position some idea referring to the relative circumstances pointing to them. The third class includes 740 characters known as "combined ideas." This class bears some relation to our compound words and comprises characters made up of two or more symbols to form a single idea. The fourth class is listed as "inverted significations" and includes 372 characters, which, by some inversion, contraction or alteration of parts, are made to acquire different meanings. The fifth is the great class of "united sound symbols," containing 21,810 characters. The sixth class, which has no fixed number of characters, is listed under the head of "borrowed uses." This class includes metaphoric symbols and combinations in which the meaning is induced by some fanciful imagination. But a few hundred of these have been figured in characters by the type founders, but imaginative writers have been known to use thousands that are not regularly recognized as belonging in the language and which are not included in the sum total of 24,235 characters mentioned in the opening.

Certain fanciful writers, so Dr. Williams says, have been known to use as high as 260,000 such symbols. The authority referred to in the foregoing sentence, while he admits that romantic writers have been known to employ upward of 260,000 characters in their writings, closes his article on that subject by saying, "While an enormous number of characters are occasionally employed, running in some instances far above 200,000, it may be safely said that a knowledge of 10,000 characters will enable one to read any work published in the Chinese language and to write intelligently on any subject."—St. Louis Republic.

RATHER EMBARRASSING.

The Predicament In Which a Hasty Marriage Placed a Clergyman.

"One of the funniest and yet the most embarrassing things that ever happened during my ministry," said a clergyman to a reporter, "happened while I had charge of a church in a small town. One Sunday I had for a guest a clergyman who had removed from our town to a distant city about ten months previous. As he was a very popular man with his townsmen I asked him to occupy my pulpit that Sunday morning. It happened that just at the time this clergyman left town a young man, who had only been married a short time, lost his bride and was completely crushed by the blow. Fears were entertained for his reason, and every one in the town, including my friend, the clergyman, felt the deepest sympathy for him. Well, it happened that while he was escorting his wife's remains to her former home he met a most charming young lady, and in less than six months they were married. But the clergyman knew nothing of this, and when on that fateful Sunday morning he stood in the pulpit and saw before him this young widower, as he supposed, he naturally thought of his bereavement. So it was that during his prayer the congregation was amazed to hear him begin to pray for this young man. He said:

"'There is before you, Lord, a young man who has suffered a recent and terrible affliction and for whom we ask your special blessing. Be near and comfort him in his last affliction, keep him safe in life and be near him when death shall remove him from his great sorrow.'

"Just think what that poor man and his new wife must have felt sitting through such a prayer as that. The whole congregation gasped."—Indianapolis Sentinel.

The Acadians.

The story of Evangeline is in mind, and we read from the poem as we ride along, and our hearts are touched with pity for the poor Acadians turned out of house and home, taken away from their beautiful land and driven into exile. There are places from which one might be exiled with equanimity. Acadia is not one of them.

The offense of the Acadians was their nationality. They were loyally and aggressively French. Forty years before their exile France had made a treaty with England and had delivered up this peninsula of Nova Scotia into English possession. It belonged to England. But the people who were thus disposed of did not concur. They refused to be Anglicized. They declined to take an oath of allegiance. They imbittered and endangered the lives of the English garrison at Annapolis Royal. Whatever they could do against their governors they did. And the situation became intolerable. France and England were fighting at Fort Duquesne and elsewhere, and the Acadian farmers were sending their sons to join the armies of the French. It seemed essential to the success of the English arms on this continent that there should be a peaceful possession of Acadia. And when milder measures failed the English adopted that expedient which the story of Evangeline has made one of the best known incidents of history.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Readers.

I wonder why it is that it is no longer good form to speak of "reciting" anything. The folks who used to be "elocutionists" are all "readers" or "entertainers" now, and they never "recite," they "read." I was at a house a fortnight ago, and among the guests was a young man who can make shivers run along your spine by the way he repeats "Old Love Letters." The hostess asked him to sing. He said that he wouldn't sing, but he would read to us.

"Thank you so much," said the hostess. "What book shall I get you?"

"Oh," said the man, and all his ability didn't help him to see the absurdity of it. "I will read from memory."—Washington Post.

The Wrong Name.

In applying for a marriage license a Chicago man signed the name of his employer to the affidavit and was compelled, when he discovered his mistake an hour later, to have the clerk make out another document. The man explained that for many years he had been accustomed to sign his chief's name to business papers, and it had become a sort of second nature.

JEFFERSON DAVIS.

HIS ANGUISH ON BEING IRONED AT FORT MONROE.

A Strong Appeal Which Failed to Shake a Captain's Respect For Orders—A Leaf From the Diary of the Resident Surgeon of the Fort In 1865.

Among the multitudinous documents in the library at Fort Monroe there is not one of more absorbing interest than the diary of Brevet Lieutenant John J. Craven, surgeon United States volunteers, who was the physician in charge of the fort when Jefferson Davis was a prisoner within its walls. The diary gives a graphic account of the prison life of Mr. Davis and contains many incidents that reflect his devotion to the lost cause. Its pages are not colored by sectional feeling, but, on the contrary, they bear the unprejudiced testimony of a medical adviser who was not blind to the character and attainments of his patient. It covers a period of about six months, during which time Dr. Craven attended the president of the Confederacy almost daily.

On the morning of the 23d of May, 1865, the proud spirit of Jefferson Davis underwent a severe trial—a trial which was probably severer than has ever in modern times been inflicted upon a man of such eminence. On that morning he was shackled. Lieutenant Craven's story of the circumstance is as follows:

Captain Jerome E. Titlow of the Third Pennsylvania artillery entered the prisoner's cell, followed by the blacksmith of the fort and his assistant, the latter carrying in his hands some heavy and harshly rattling shackles. Mr. Davis, feverish after a sleepless night, was reclining on his couch when they entered. His food of the day before was still lying untouched on a tin plate near him.

"Well," said Mr. Davis as they entered.

"I have an unpleasant duty to perform, sir," said Captain Titlow, and as he spoke the blacksmith took the shackles from his assistant.

The prisoner leaped from his bed with flushed face, and his countenance grew livid and rigid as death. He gasped for breath and clutched his throat with the thin fingers of his right hand. Then, recovering himself slowly, while his wasted figure towered up to its full height, appearing first to swell with indignation and then to shrink with terror as he glanced from the captain's face to the shackles, he said slowly and with deep emotion:

"My God, you could not have been sent to iron me?"

"Such are my orders, sir," replied the officer, beckoning to the blacksmith to approach.

"This is too monstrous!" groaned the prisoner, glaring around the room as if for some weapon or means of self destruction. "I demand, captain, that you let me see the commanding officer. Can he pretend that such shackles are required to secure the safe custody of a weak old man in such a fort as this?"

"It could serve no purpose," replied Captain Titlow. "His orders are from Washington, as mine are from him."

"But he can telegraph," insisted Mr. Davis eagerly. "There must be some mistake. No such outrage as you threaten me with is on record in the history of nations. Beg him to telegraph and delay until he receives an answer."

"My orders are peremptory," said the officer, "and admit of no delay. For your own sake let me advise you to submit with patience. As a soldier, Mr. Davis, you know that I must execute orders."

"These are not orders for a soldier," shouted the prisoner, losing all control of himself. "They are orders for a jailer, for a hangman, which no soldier wearing a sword should accept. I tell you the world will ring with this disgrace. The war is over, the south is conquered. I have no longer any country but America, and it is for the honor of America, as for my own honor in life, that I plead against this degradation. Kill me! kill me!" he cried passionately, throwing his arms wide open and exposing his breast, "rather than inflict on me and on my people this insult worse than death."

"Do your duty, blacksmith," said the officer, walking toward the embrasure, as if not caring to witness the performance. "It only gives increased pain on all sides to protract this interview."

At these words the blacksmith advanced with the shackles, and seeing that the prisoner had one foot upon the chair near his bedside and his right hand resting upon the back of the chair the brawny mechanic attempted to slip one of the shackles over the foot so raised; but, as if with the vehemence and strength of frenzy, Mr. Davis suddenly seized the iron worker and hurled him half way across the room.

Captain Titlow turned, and, seeing that the prisoner had backed against the wall for further resistance, began to remonstrate with him.

"I am a prisoner of war," fiercely retorted Mr. Davis. "I have been a soldier in the armies of America and know how to die. Only kill me, and my last breath shall be a blessing on your head, but while I have life and strength to resist for myself and my people, this thing shall not be done."

Captain Titlow now fully recognized that the character of the man with whom he had to deal was such as could not be turned from what he regarded as cardinal principles of honor by a few soft words, as the wind moves the leaves on the trees, and, determined to end the interview and put the orders which had been given him into effect as soon as possible, he called in a sergeant and file of soldiers from the next room. The sergeant advanced to seize the prisoner. Immediately Mr. Davis flew at him, seized his musket and attempted to wrench it from his grasp. Of course, such a scene could have but one issue. There was a short, determined struggle. In a moment Mr. Davis was thrown on his bed, and before the soldiers removed their hands the blacksmith had done his work.

This done, Mr. Davis lay for a moment as if in a stupor. Then slowly raising himself and turning around, he dropped his shackled feet to the floor. The clank of the chains seemed to recall him to his situation, and, hiding his face in his hands, he sobbed passionately and cried: "Oh, the shame! The shame!"

With his feet bound by the heavy and rudely constructed shackles, Mr. Davis lay on his couch for several days. The tray bearing food similar to that which was furnished to the hearty soldiers of the fort, a tin plate and a spoon were placed beside him at regular intervals each day and taken away untouched.

Dr. Craven saw that if Mr. Davis remained in shackles his death would soon follow. His constitution was broken down, his nerves shattered and his mind burdened. Accordingly, at the earnest solicitation of the doctor, the shackles were removed on the 28th of May.—Washington Post.

A CAMPAIGN TRICK.

Getting the Best of an Abusive Adversary In Kentucky.

The following story is told by Edward J. McDermott in an article entitled "Fun on the Stump," in The Century:

A few years ago a plain country doctor and a Mr. May, who was fond of jewelry and wore a valuable diamond stud in his shirt bosom, were running for the legislature in one of our counties. The race was close and hot. At one speaking the doctor made the following fierce and dangerous thrust at his opponent: "Fellow citizens, don't you want an honest man in the legislature? Of course you do. Now what sort of man is my opponent? Why, gentlemen, look at that magnificent diamond he wears! It is almost as big and bright as the headlight on a locomotive. Your eyes can hardly stand its glare. It is worth hundreds—maybe thousands—of dollars. At what valuation do you suppose he has put it for taxation in his return to the state assessor? Why, at the pitiful sum of $20!" The crowd yelled for the doctor. Three days later the two met again in joint debate. Again the doctor took up his telling theme and held forth eloquently and passionately in denunciation of dishonesty and diamonds and false assessments, and then he again told of May's false return to the assessor. "Look at that gorgeous pin, gentlemen! My eyes can hardly endure its dazzling rays. Solomon in all his glory"—

"Hold on there, doctor!" said May. "Do you mean to say this pin is worth more than $20?"

"Yes, I do—20 times or 50 times $20!"

"Would you give $20 for it, doctor?"

"Of course I would."

"Well, you can have it for that."

"All right!" said the doctor, and he hurriedly counted out the money and took the pin. Then May rose to speak, and the crowd cheered him. He was undoubtedly "game" and honest. He was willing to take what he said the pin was worth. He was elected. A week after the election he called on the doctor and said: "Doctor, I don't want to rob you of your money. Here's your $20. That pin you bought was paste. I got it in Louisville after your first speech. Here is my real diamond. If I can ever serve you, let me know."

ENTERTAINING ROYALTY.

Some of the Curious Rules That Are Observed at the Dinner Table.

Many people are not aware what a business entertaining royalty is, how they are hedged off by a hundred little observances from ordinary mortals and treated as if they were a different order of beings entirely. If any one, for instance, is honored by being allowed to entertain a prince and princess at dinner, all the other guests invited to meet their royal highnesses are asked for a quarter of an hour before the time, so that there may be no chance of the illustrious guests waiting.

One very curious rule is that at dessert none but the royal guests must have finger glasses put before them. The origin of this rather uncomfortable restriction is interesting. At a time when Jacobites were more common than they are now, and when the chances of rising in favor of the Stuart pretenders to the throne were not altogether remote, certain highborn rebels were accustomed to drink to the king, holding their glasses over the water in the finger glasses. And so, while apparently drinking a loyal toast, they were really drinking to "the king over the water."

When the ladies have left the dining room, a cigarette at the dinner table is the invariable custom. The prince, whoever he may be, must not be asked to light his cigarette with an ordinary match, but has a little spirit lighter handed him for his sole use.

Upon one occasion, when the Prince of Wales was dining in the hall of Trinity college, Cambridge, in which it is considered by the dons a sort of sacrilege to smoke, he was not offered the customary cigarette. The prince had been an undergraduate at the college and may have felt some hesitation in defying the well known custom.

But nature prevailed, and his royal highness pulled out his cigar case and lit up, an example which was gratefully followed by many of the other guests.—New York Journal.

Green Hair.

According to The Medical Press, greenish hair in men occupied in copper works and in copper mines is not unknown, for as far back as 1654 Bartholin drew attention to its occurrence. Since then several other observers have recorded instances of the same. The most recent case is that of Dr. Oppenheimer's, who, at a meeting of the Johns Hopkins Hospital Medical society, showed a specimen of green hair obtained from a patient who had been under his treatment. The hair was a pale but distinct green, this color being more marked on the head and the mustache. But, curiously enough, in the hair all over the body the same coloration was displayed. Copper was easily demonstrated chemically. Microscopically the hair was uniformly colored, no crystals being seen anywhere. The patient did not return after his first visit, and it was ascertained that he died two years later with a severe cough. The fact, however, is certain that workers in copper works need not necessarily become affected with the poisonous metal, provided that scrupulous cleanliness is observed. The hair must be washed daily in a solution of soda, ordinary water being useless for the purpose. Experience shows that the part first to become affected is the mustache, and next the head, but if the latter be protected by a thick cap no coloration is produced.

A Fine Skin.

A fine skin is one of the most wonderful and lovely things in nature. It really consists of six layers of networklike lace of the most exquisite texture, the filaments various in size and irregular in arrangement, lustrous as gossamers. The uppermost layer is a series of tiny facets forming a grain, which, when in perfection, shines not only with the reflected brilliancy of the under layers, but with a light of its own, producing that exquisite whiteness which would be destroyed by anything like rough friction. And people are so idiotic as to lay on creams and unguents, ointments and other mysterious preparations of whose ingredients they know nothing. In a case that cropped up not long since it was proved in court that some stuff sold in a bottle at half a guinea cost exactly 3 farthings to make. Or was it 1 farthing? Some fraction of a penny.—London Truth.

Her Mistake.

"It was very plucky of you, ma'am, to have set upon the burglar and so ably captured him," said the police inspector, "but need you have injured him so badly?"

"How did I know it was a burglar?" asked the woman. "I'd been up three hours waiting for my husband. I thought it was him."—Liverpool Mercury.

THE JAPANESE BABY.

A Kind of Infant That Would Delight Some American Mothers.

Every woman in Japan above the age of 15 years seems to own a baby and usually carries it around on her back. Japanese babies never cry. They never get impatient or discontented, but they stay where they are put and enjoy it. You can see hundreds of women at work in the tea firing houses, where the temperature is always very high, and the work is very hard, going through their 12 hours of labor with babies 3 or 4 weeks old strapped upon their backs, and the babies never whimper, no matter how much the mothers shake them up when they are stirring the hot tea leaves up to their shoulders in the pans. Then, after three hours, when the regular resting time comes and everybody stops for refreshments, baby gets his. He is unstrapped and nursed while the mother is dipping into her little rice can with a couple of chop sticks, and then, when the whistle blows, he is strapped on again for another three hours without opening his lips except to yawn or say "goo" or make some other remark as the incident and peculiarities of this wonderful world excite his attention.

When he gets a little older, his mother puts him in a tea box with some little plaything, and he will stay there all day, safe from harm, and grow and enjoy himself. He can exercise his arms by pulling himself by the sides of the box, and his legs by treading around in that limited space, and can assist in the development of his dental apparatus by chewing the edges of the boards, but he never seems to get tired or hungry or dissatisfied, although any live American baby that ever existed would be howling like a drove of blue devils in five minutes after his mother had gone to her work.

Toward noonday, when the sun gets hot and the little ones feel sleepy, they lie down on the floor like a cat or a dog. It may be a pavement of brick or stone. It may be a board floor, but they need no cradle or blanket or pillow, only a sheltered corner out of the sun where they won't be stepped upon, and they do not have to be rocked or sung to sleep. They take care of themselves. Their mothers are busy earning 8, 10 or 15 cents a day by 12 or 13 hours of hard labor in a warehouse where the temperature is often up to 100 degrees all day long, and the odor of tea is so strong that it almost strangles you. So they do not wish to bother them or add to their cares and have the good sense and self control to find their own amusement and look after their own comfort, just like a puppy or a kitten.

That is the kind of baby they raise in Japan.—Yokohama Letter in Chicago Record.

England's Fear of Invasion.

The second preparation for war was the well known yet curious and much discussed equipment of an expedition to invade England. It is a commonplace of history that British empire has ever been bound up with the separation of the kingdom from the continent of Europe by a narrow but stormy estuary. There had, of course, been repeated and successful invasions of her soil from the days of the Anglo-Saxons themselves down to the expedition of William of Orange, but growing wealth had furnished ever increasing means of resistance in the superb armaments which under England's flag made access to her shores so much more difficult with every year that finally, after the Seven Years' war, it came to be regarded by her enemies as impossible. On the other hand, the people themselves are to this day skeptical and fall into periodic panics on the question.

Some clever fiction, like the "Battle of Dorking," or a revival of the project for a tunnel under the channel, can awaken such visions of invasion as to insure the passage of any grant for strengthening the navy. This singular distrust was well known to the French. For many years the project of a descent on England had been the standard pretext of the convention and of the directory to extort money from officeholders and patriots. Consequently the feasibility of the scheme had been a standard subject of debate. This revolutionary, or rather traditional and national, inheritance was exploited by the first consul to its full value. In general his preparation was doubtless a feint, but keeping, as ever, two strings to his bow, there were probably times when the scheme commended itself to him as an alternative. —"Life of Napoleon," by Professor William M. Sloane, in Century.

The Queer Surinam Toad.

The dime museum freak of the order of batrachians is the ugly little four footed oddity known to scientists as the Surinam toad. His place among the reptilla is in the genus urodela, subgenus pipa. There is but one locality in the world in which this rare little animal has been found, and that is in the northern part of South America, in the little country known as Surinam, or Dutch Guiana. It is a peculiarly hideous creature, with a long pointed nose, wide mouth and no tongue. Like several other varieties of the toad family, its five fingered hind feet are webbed, while the four digits of its front feet are perfectly free. The real oddity about this ugly specimen of animal life is its queer mode of hatching its young. Naturally the female's back is as free from indentations as is that of the male, but as the breeding season comes on a queer change may be observed. As soon as she commences to lay eggs a series of pits or depressions come in her back, and into these holes the male puts the eggs his partner lays, pressing them well down with his feet. In due course of time a natural membrane forms over these pits, and after a proper season of incubation has elapsed they hatch and a young brood of little Surinam toads appear.

Despite the repulsive looks of this curious little reptile, it is regarded as being a choice article of food.—St. Louis Republic.

Arnold and Reade.

The Presbyterian says that Matthew Arnold, though not an orthodox believer in Christianity, was a great admirer of the Bible and was the means of converting Charles Reade, the novelist, to Christianity. On one occasion he urged Mr. Reade to read the Bible through in an unprejudiced and candid spirit. The novelist did so and was thereby led to accept the gospel.

FOX AND NAPOLEON.

The English Statesman Was Fascinated by the First Consul.

During the summer of 1802 Fox journeyed to Paris, where he was presented to Bonaparte early in September. The English statesman was fascinated, and, although the first consul said nothing definite or precise, his visitor departed convinced that his host desired nothing but peace with a liberal policy both domestic and foreign as far as was consistent with safety. But the attacks of the English press became none the less virulent in consequence of Fox's favorable report or of his brilliant defense of France from his place in parliament. Toward the close of January Talleyrand remonstrated with Whitworth, this time giving point to his remonstrance by a plump demand as to what England intended to do about Malta. Whitworth replied that he was without instructions and made an evasive answer, hinting that the king's opinion of the changes which had taken place in Europe since the treaty might be of importance in determining him as to the disposal of the island. This was the first official intimation that England did not intend to keep her promise.

A few days later Sebastiani returned from the east, and on Jan. 30, 1803, The Moniteur published his thorough and careful report. It was a long document, fully explaining every source of English weakness in the orient and setting forth the possibilities of re-establishing French colonies in Egypt and the Levant. There was only one menacing phrase, but it expressed an unpalatable truth that "6,000 French troops could now conquer Egypt." The publication in England of this paper raised a tremendous popular storm, and it has pleased many historians to regard Bonaparte's course as a virtual declaration of war. In reality it was merely a French Roland for the English Oliver. If England intended to keep Malta, let her beware of her prestige in the east. Had Bonaparte intended to act on Sebastiani's report he certainly would not have published it. Of course the English populace utterly failed to grasp so nice a point, and the incident so strained the relations of France and England that all Europe saw the impending crisis—one or the other or both must consent to a modification of the treaty in respect to Malta, or there would be war.—"Life of Napoleon," by Professor William M. Sloane, in Century.

THE FIRST BICYCLE RIDER.

He Hails From Chicago and Boldly Makes This Claim.

"I rode the first bicycle in America. If any other man claims to have done so, I would like to hear from him, but I don't believe there is such a man."

So says Mr. John William Tyler of 31 East Monroe street. The pioneer of the millions who now flit on wheels all over this broad continent is a middle aged man, well built, with dark hair and eyes. In early life Mr. Tyler was a gymnast. He is now a jeweler. During his apprenticeship as a jeweler he was a reader of a magazine, in which he one day came across a paragraph which interested him very much. It dealt with the improvements made to the bicycle, or velocipede, as it was then called, by the brothers Hanlon, who were surprising Paris by their exploits on the new machine.

At this time the riding of a bicycle was considered rather as a gymnastic exercise, to be undertaken only by the very skillful. Thus it appeared to Mr. Tyler, and he at once ordered a velocipede from the advertised manufacturer in New York, who had purchased the patent from the Hanlons. Said Mr. Tyler:

"After having waited about three months the velocipede came at last. It came c. o. d., with a bill for $60 and a letter from the manufacturers stating that I had given them their first order, and the cause of the long delay was their not being ready to manufacture. From the illustration of the machine I thought it would cost only $10 or $15, and I was not ready to pay $60. A friend, however, came to my relief and paid the bill, telling me that I could give exhibitions on the machine and in that way soon be able to pay him back, which I did, there being plenty of people then in America willing to pay for the privilege of seeing a man ride a velocipede. I hired an inclosed arena, and people paid to come in and see me ride, and that fall I established a velocipede school in Wilkesbarre. My wheel attracted much interest—became so popular, in fact, that articles in reference to it appeared in a great many newspapers."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Dan Hiveley's Conversion.

Daniel Hiveley is remembered as having been about as hard a specimen as the saving power of grace ever overcame in the Ozark country. He was a man of great strength and of wicked temper. The way in which he became a resident of the Ozark country illustrated his inclination to be a law unto himself. It is told that in his young manhood Hiveley was engaged in boating salt down the Ohio river and up the Cumberland to Nashville. The man for whom he was working got behind with the pay. Daniel thought he was going to break. He went back for another load of salt, but instead of delivering it kept on down the Ohio and the Mississippi until he reached the White, which he ascended to the Ozark country. He never went back, but turned his mechanical genius to account in building mills.

A powerful revival of religion overcame Daniel Hiveley, and he "professed." Some time afterward the preacher who helped convert Daniel was out in the woods, when he heard a great noise. He listened and discovered that Brother Hiveley was having trouble with a cow that wouldn't drive. The preacher hid behind a bush. Hiveley came along and jumped upon a log to look for the cow, but could not see her.

"D—n you to ——!" he shouted. Then, after a few moments of silence, he added:

"There, old devil, you have got one more oath out of me. Take it and go to ——!" —St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Indignant.

"He's not what you would call strictly handsome," said the major, beaming through his glasses on a baby as he lay howling in his mother's arms; "but it's the kind of a face that grows on you."

"It's not the kind of a face that grew on you," was the indignant and unexpected reply of the fond mother. "You'd be better looking if it had."—Sacred Heart Review.

Ancient Animal Tracks.

Amherst college, at Amherst, Mass., has a collection of 20,000 tracks made ages ago by birds and reptiles. These impressions left on the red sandstone are of all sizes, from those that might have been made by mice up to those of elephantine magnitude. The largest are by what was significantly named the Brontozoum giganteum, literally the great thunder beast.

are doing all the business. Our stock is the largest, prices are the lowest and terms the easiest in the city. Just give it a passing thought that you can get an antique oak bedroom snit, 8 pieces, for $15, $20, $25 and $30, including a woven wire bed spring and a mixed mattress. No house in the city offers such inducements.

And then to think again that you can get tapestry Brussels carpet for 50, 60, and 70 cents a yard, made and laid with paper, which is a saving of 15c per yard. Where is there a house in the city that will offer such bargains?

And then imagine and wonder how we can afford to give away a moquette rug or parlor table with a parlor suit for $20, $30, $40 or $50.

Some of our competitors say that our ads are too much sameness, and that this ad. is old. Well, we will admit it, but as long as it does the business and saves the people money we will continue to run it.

THE TROLLEY PUSHED ALONG.

THE COUNCIL PASS THE EXTENSION ORDINANCE ON FINAL READING.

After Months of Dilly Dallying the Street Railway is Put Through and Work Will Soon be Commenced—Other Matters.

There was a considerable amount of preliminary work to be looked after before the regular November meeting of the City Council could be called to order last night, and the fact that it was election eve did not help matters very much. As a result it was 8:45 o'clock when President See rapped his gavel for order.

In response to the roll call Councilmen Fisk, Erickson, Dumont, Frost, Ginna, Moore, Frazee and Bird answered to their names.

On Mr. Fisk's motion the regular order of business was suspended for the purpose of treating with the property owners on Watchung avenue along the proposed extension. President W. D. Murray, of the Y. M. C. A., was present in the interests of the latter and stated that the association would lose forty-nine feet, and averaging $117 per foot, which they paid originally, would amount to $5,733. Providing the city would not assess benefits the association was willing to sell the city what was needed for $5,000, which would be $733 less than the original cost. Messrs. Derlach, representing Hannah Derlach, said that providing the city would move the houses, which are located near the brook, back five feet, put them on new foundations and make improvements, they would let the city have the necessary property and call it even.

Mr. Fisk moved that Townsend Rushmore, Wm. T. Kirk, and J. C. Manning be appointed commissioners to access damages and benefits on the property and report Tuesday evening, November 26th, and that the same be advertised. It was so ordered.

The regular order of business was then returned to and on motion of Mr. Fisk the reading of the minutes was suspended.

S. S. Sharkey asked for permission to erect an awning, corner of Richmond and Third street. The matter was referred to the Street Committee.

W. D. Manning and others asked for a light on West Second street between New and Liberty streets. This was referred to the Committee on Police and Public Lights.

The reports of the collector, treasurer, and city physician were received and filed. The report of the latter showed that twenty-five cases had been treated during August, September and October.

A long list of persons who had failed to lay stone walks as required by law were read and on motion of Mr. Fisk they were ordered laid, and steps were ordered taken to effect a lien on the property for the payment thereof.

A communication was read from the Y. M. C. A., which stated that a concrete walk had been placed in front of the building and they asked that a fire alarm box be located there. On Mr. Erickson's motion one was ordered placed at that point.

Mr. Frost stated that the sewer bills were all correct except Washburn & Washburn's, which had not been sworn to. He offered a resolution, which was carried, that they be paid also, the latter when sworn to.

Mr. Dumont moved that notes on $500, $2,000 and $1,000 on Poor, General and Fire funds which are now due, be renewed for sixty days. It was so ordered. He also made a motion which was carried that one week before the city election a statement of receipts and expenditures on sewer work for the past year be advertised in the city papers.

Another resolution by Mr. Dumont provided that the notes for $15,500, $7,000, $8,500 and $20,000, on Harvey Fisk & Sons be renewed to that firm to conform to the new contract, at the four per cent interest. Mr. Dumont presented a specified blank form to be used specially for the money transaction between the city, Harvey Fisk & Sons and the Dime Savings Institution, and offered a resolution that the same be adopted and that the City Clerk be authorized to have the same printed. It was so ordered. He also moved that $3,000, $15,000 and $27,000 be drawn to pay notes of Harvey Fisk & Sons for money borrowed, with $1,000 added interest. It was so ordered.

Another resolution was offered by the same Councilman that $21,000 be borrowed for sewer work. It was adopted. Mr. Dumont stated that he had received a communication from the Corporation Counsel in regard to the possibility of the new law affecting the office of the City Collector and on his advice thought it best to have the City Clerk insert in the election notice that a City Collector would be nominated to serve three years. He offered a resolution to that effect and it was so adopted.

Mr. Frost then asked the City Clerk if the property owners consents for the trolley had been filed and examined. The latter replied in the affirmative, and the Street Commissioner then stated in writing that 50 per cent of the property owners' consents had been secured and filed November 2, 1895.

Mr. Fisk then called up the street railway ordinance and moved it be placed on the third reading. The City Clerk read it, and on Mr. Ginna's motion was adopted, all voting aye.

It will now be advertised for ten days, go to the Mayor for his signature, and if he signs it, the ordinance at once goes into effect and the street railway company are obliged to complete the extension within nine months.

There being no further business the Council then adjourned.

CHARITY WORKERS.

Delegates Elected to the State Convention To be Held at Newark.

The Union County branch of the State Charities Aid held a meeting in All Souls' church last night, which was very well attended. President Newhall was in the chair. The secretary, Rev. Hobart Clark, read his report which showed that the various institutions in the county are in good condition.

President Newhall, of Plainfield Vice-President, Dr. McAllister, of Elizabeth, and Rev. Hobart Clark, of Plainfield, were selected as delegates to attend the State Convention to be held at Trenton, November 13th, at which time David P. Hall, of this city, will read an important paper on "The Necessity of Caring for Incurable Paupers Outside of the State Almshouses." At the same time important action will be taken regarding the reform of the penal laws of the State, for which purpose Governor Werts appointed a commissioner sometime ago.

Standard Bowling League.

The Standard Bowling League, of Union county, was organized Tuesday evening at the clubhouse. The following teams have entered the league; Westfield Club, Cranford Athletic, Park Club, of Plainfield and the Roselle Casino. P. B. Matthews, of this city, was elected president, and G. C. Worth, of this city, secretary and treasurer. The league will be composed of five men teams and will bowl for a trophy given by The Westfield Standard.

Entitled to Only $3 Out of $200.

The appeal case of Dr. Henry H. Lowrie against Charles McGinley, which has been tried in Justice Newcorn's court by two juries, was brought up in county court at Elizabeth yesterday, and Judge McCormick decided that the plaintiff was only entitled to $3, out of the $200 verdict awarded him by the second jury. Harry C. Runyon represented the plaintiff and S. S. Swackhamer the defendant.

Dolls For The Fair.

All who have promised to contribute dolls to the fair for Muhlenberg Hospital are kindly requested to send them in not later than Friday, November 8th. They may be sent to either of the following places, Mrs. Samuel Huntington, 324 Franklin place; Miss Schipper, 705 West Seventh street; Miss Cock, 235 East Fifth street; Mrs. George Chapman, 123 West Seventh street.

Contributions For the Kirmess.

All those having any contributions for the fancy table in the Kirmess are requested to send them on or before Friday to Mrs. Albert H. Atterbury, of 214 East Ninth street. Mrs. S. A. Cruikshank asks that any donations of candy be sent to the Columbia Cycle Academy any afternoon next week at 3 o'clock.

Return From Their Honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. VanBuren will return tomorrow from their honeymoon through the South, and will take up their residence at the home of the groom's mother on Central avenue. The presents have been watched constantly during their absence, but will be removed to the latter place tomorrow.

Funny Chicken Head.

Walter Lane, the West Front street butcher, has very peculiar chicken head which is attracting the attention of many. The head is exactly the shape of a rats head, and has the same expression. The teeth are unusually large and altogether is a great curiosity. Mr. Lane is going to preserve it in alcohol.

—Election returns will be read at the dance in T. A. B. hall this evening.

IS THIS THE BANK ROBBER.

A PINKERTON DETECTIVE LOOKING AFTER THE BANK THEFT.

He Was in Town Yesterday and Had a Photograph Which Miss Marion Johnston Identified as the Man in the Bank.

At least one of the men who participated in the robbing of the First National Bank some time ago is in a fair way to come before the bar of justice. Yesterday, Detective Murphy, of the Pinkerton Detective Bureau, came to Plainfield with the likeness of a man who it was supposed might have aided in the robbery. He showed the photograph to the employes at the bank but they did not recognize the features. Murphy then went to the home of H. C. N. Johnston, of Carleton avenue, to see his daughter, Miss Marion Johnston, who happened to be in the bank at the noon hour when the robbery is supposed to have taken place.

"Did you ever see that man before?" asked the detective.

"Yes," affirmed Miss Johnston, "I saw him in the bank the day it was robbed."

Miss Johnson has been shown numerous other photographs and has recognized none of them. This one, however, she was sure she had seen.

The detective was not inclined to talk so no information was obtained as to who and where the man was, but more light will probably be thrown on the subject, as soon as the supposed robber has been secured.

GOLDSTEIN ARRESTED.

The Park Avenue Clothier Charged With Embezzlement.

The excitement over the supposed disappearance of Jacob J. Goldstein, the Park avenue clothing merchant, yesterday, was brought to a climax last evening when Sergeant Kiely arrested Goldstein after the out-of-town detectives had been looking for him all day. He was arrested on the charge of embezzlement, which was preferred by Hugo Trendenthal, a New York wholesale clothing dealer. Goldstein claims that he bought the goods with the best of intentions and expected to pay for them. The New York man thought differently. He says that Goldstein tried to secure the goods by fraud. Goldstein purchased $440 worth of clothing from Trendenthal some time ago. He did not pay cash for them but allowed the debt to run on. His brother-in-law, Charles Jacobs, held a chattel mortgage on Goldstein's property and yesterday he foreclosed it. The New York merchont claims that it was merely a devise to get possession of his goods without paying for them. He made the charge and Sergeant Kiely brought Goldstein last evening before Justice Newcorn to answer to the charge. Judge W. A. Coddington appeared for Goldstein and Justice Newcorn allowed the prisoner to go in the custody of his lawyer. The trial will be held in a few days.

A Joy for Commuters.

Ever catering to the needs and conveniences of their patrons the New Jersey Central will commence tomorrow morning having the passenger coaches, which make up the 7:53 express, stationed at the North avenue station from 7:30 to the time the train leaves, in order that the commuters may wait in the coaches instead of loitering around the depot platform and waiting room. This move will doubtless be greeted with joy by several hundred commuters.

A Junior Card Club.

A euchre club has been formed among the young people of this city. The club was organized last week and will hold its first regular meeting a week from Thursday. The members are the Misses Eva Noe, Elsie Smith, Lucile Bogardus and Margaret Cave, and Lindley Hillman, Arthur Murphy, Roy Phillips and Donald Stewart.

Summit Enthusiasm.

In all his visits to Summit for the past twenty years James E. Martine says that the meeting held by the Democrats last night was the most enthusiastic that he had ever witnessed.

W. A. McGuire, a well known citizen of McKay, Ohio, is of the opinion that there is nothing as good for children troubled with colds or croup as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He has used it in his family for several years with the best results and always keeps a bottle of it in the house. After having la grippe he was himself troubled with a severe cough. He used other remedies without benefit and then concluded to try the children's medicine and to his delight it soon effected a permanent cure. 25 and 50c bottles for sale at Reynolds's pharmacy, Park and North aves. TO QUELCH THE CIGARETTE.

W. C. T. U. WOMEN IMPORTUNE THE BOARD OF EDUCATION FOR HELP.

Want to Form an Anti-Cigarette League Among the School Boys and Enforce the Law against Selling the Vile Thing.

The Board of Education held its regular monthly meeting at the High School building last evening. Messrs. Probasco, Lounsbury and Jenkins were present when the meeting was called to order, and Mr. Finch arrived soon after. Dr. Jenkins was appointed secretary until the arrival of Mr. Finch.

The minutes of the last meeting were temporarily dispensed with and a large batch of bills read, approved and ordered paid. The report of Tax Collector Johnson was next read which showed that school monies to the amount of $2,344.23 had been collected, which, with interest of $30.09, made a total of $3,274.35 which had been deposited in the City National Bank. The report was then accepted and placed on file. Clerk Clark read the minutes of the last meeting which were approved.

Superintendent Maxson announced that there were two women who would like to appear before the Board and then introduced Mrs. J. J. Coard and Mrs. S. R. Krom. Mrs. Coard addressed the Board and stated that their object in coming was to secure the co operation of the Board in forming an anti-cigarette league among the boys of the public schools. She exhibited a number of letters signed by the Mayor and all the prominent clergymen in which they all thoroughly endorsed the plan. Principal Travell, of the High School, had, she said, signified his willingless to be at the head of such a movement. She asked that the law, which forbids the sale of cigarettes to minors, be enforced, and said that the Chief of Police acknowledged that the law was being broken all over the city. She next read the pledge and the letters written by Rev. Dr. Richards and Mayor Gilbert.

"In asking for co-operation" she said "we are not asking for funds. They are so slight, principally for literature, that the W. C. T. U. can easily furnish them. All we ask is to have at least one of your number present when it is formed, and at the meetings if possible." Mrs. Coard and Mrs. Krom both explained something of the workings of the league, that monthly meetings were to be held and reports made of the work that had been done, papers read and debates held. All the Board expressed themselves as in sympathy with the move ment and willing to do all in their power to help, but were afraid they would be unable to attend the meetings. Superintendent Maxson said he thought it a very good thing but did not have time to push it along. The Board agreed to consider the matter and the women departed.

Superintendent Maxson reported that he had written to the publishers of Appleton's Cyclopædia regarding a revision and they replied that they did not intend making one at present. It was decided to let the matter drop.

Mr. Lounsbury, as chairman of the building committee, made his report. He reported that C. W. Hummer, the carpenter who made the repairs in the High School, asked for the $5,000 bond given when he took the contract. His request was granted. Mr. Lounsbury next reported regarding a safe in which to preserve the papers of the Board. He stated that the old safe was not fire-proof and entirely too small. Estimates had been received from Herring and Marvin for safes, Herring being the lowest, $220 to Marvin's $245. A vault, he said, would cost over $300. Dr. Jenkins seemed to be in favor of the vault while the rest preferred the safe. After some discussion it was decided to lay the question on the table, Lounsbury alone voting no to the motion.

The question of the purchase of a letter file was next discussed and Mr. Loundsbury reported prices, with and without a base. Dr. Jenkins and Mr. Finch favored one without a base while Dr. Probasco and Mr. Lounsbury thought that a base should be purchased.

On motion of Mr. Finch, the report of the building committee was laid on the table.

Superintendent Maxson stated that Captain Edwards said he could obtain guns from the State by giving a bond and Supertendent Maxson suggested that racks be put down cellar for the guns as Captain Edwards wished. Dr. Probasco thought that the guns would rust. No action was taken.

$526 was reported by Supertendent Maxson as having been received as tution from non-resident pupils.

The question of the anti-cigarette league was next brought up and Mr. Loundsbury introduced the following resolution which was unanamously carried.

Resolved, That the Board of Education, recognizing the growing evil of cigarette smoking, hereby expresesses its sympathy with all movements to suppress its growth, and approves of the formation of an anti-cigarette league among the public school pupils, and offers the use of the necessary room for the meeting of said league.

The annual financial statement of the Board was then read, and on motion was received, placed on file and ordered published. The statement showed a a balance on hand, August 31st, 1894, of $7,702 30. The receipts amounted to $84,035.66 and the disbursements to $56,488.84. By taking out several other items, the balance left on August 31st, 1895, was $7,546.82. An Auditing Committee composed of Lovell and Lounsbury, was appointed, and as soon as they audit the statement it will be published in full. The members of the Board were all well satisfied with the statement, as for the great amount of work done, the expenditures were very small, showing that it had been done in an economical way. The meeting then adjourned.

TRIED THE WINDOWS.

Policeman Cooney's Eagle Eye Observed Strange Proceedings.

Policeman Cooney in passing through West Second street near Madison avenue late last night, noticed a strange looking man standing by the office of the Electric Light Company.

He watched the stranger as he passed through the driveway next to Mrs. Krymer's boarding house, where he made several attempts to open the windows. From there he went back to the power building and was lost to view. The officer followed, and after securing a light from the engineer, he discovered the man hiding between two large boilers. He was brought out and questioned by the officer. He said that he could not get in his boarding house, but did not know where he boarded. He then stated that he had come from Scranton and was on his way to Brooklyn. The man's story was so disconnected that Policeman Cooney thought it best to lock him up which he did.

As Judge Coddington is away today on a hunting tour a hearing is deferred in the case until his return.

A SURPRISE DANCE.

Miss Cuming is Given a Surprise Party in Honor of Her Birthday.

A very pleasant surprise was given Miss Henrietta Cuming, of Putnam avenue, last evening in honor of her birthday. She expected a few friends to spend the evening, but was quite astonished and delighted when a merry party of about twenty-five came trooping in.

The house was very prettily decorated with roses and chrysanthemums. The evening was mostly spent in dancing, for which Carpenter furnished the music. At about twelve o'clock refreshments were served.

Those present, beside the family of the hostess, were the Misses Mary Giles, Jennie Giles, Bessie Giles, Luella Mills, Mabel Moore, Evelyn Jenkins, Cora Richardson, Mabel Darling, May Coyn, of Jersey City, and Nellie Rockfellow, Robert Carpenter, Bert Fletcher, Mr. Randolph, Fred Haynes and George Richardson, of Dunellen, Edgar Finch, of Westfield, Will Moore, Fred Deitz, Albert Steiner, John Steiner, Will Abbott, Judson Giles and John Clark.

Monday Afternoon Club.

The regular meeting of the Monday Afternoon Club was held at the Casino yesterday afternoon. There was a large attendance at the meeting. The paper on "Current Events" was read by Mrs. Augustus D. Shepard. A paper on Dante's lesser literary works, contemporaries, and influence, was next read by Miss Jessie Munger. The next meeting will be on November 18th, when Prof. G. R. Carpenter, of Columbia College, will lecture on Dante.

—Street Commissioner R. A. Meeker, taking advantage of this being a holiday, is working the steam roller on Front street.

Croup is a terror to young mothers. To post them concerning the first symptoms, and treatment is the object of this item. The first indication of croup is hoarseness. In a child who is subject to croup it may be taken as a sure sign of the approach of an attack. Following this hoarseness is a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's Cough remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the rough cough has appeared it will prevent the attack. It has never been known to fail. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

MASQUERADE SOCIAL.

Those Who Arranged the Affair Were Unable to be Present.

An enjoyable masquerade social was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shultise, at 106 Manning avenue, last evening. The affair was arranged by New Brunswick friends, but from some cause they did not arrive. They also had planned to have it Hollow E'en, but the rain prevented. The evening was pleasantly passed in dancing, after which an excellent supper was served. Those present included the Misses Goodman, John Goodman, Mr. and Mrs. Green, Mr. and Mrs. John Green, Arthur Ford, Geo. Bolsterli, Allen Squires, Miss Maggie Sheppard, Walter Frey, Miss Frey, Mr. and Mrs. John Goodwin, Fred Goodwin, Miss Harriet Hoagland.

Mrs. Bottome to Speak.

Mrs. Bottome will address a union meeting of the King's Daughters, in the chapel of the Crescent avenue church, on Thursday afternoon.

Henry Wilson, the postmaster at Welshton, Florida, says he cured a case of diarrhœa of long standing in six hours, with one small bottle of Chambertain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. What a pleasant surprise that must have been to the sufferer. Such cures are not unusual with this remedy. In many instances only one or two doses are required to give permanent relief. It can always be depended upon. When reduced with water it is pleasant to take. For sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. R. Armstrong, Manager.

ASTONISHED THE COURT

Thomas May's Domestic Affairs Were Peculiar.

Had Twenty-one Children and Six Wives and Now His Will Is Being Contested—Wife No. 6 and Children Left Out Entirely—Eloped with His First Spouse.

Providence, Nov. 5.—Thomas May of East Greenwich had twenty-one children and six wives, all of whom lived at different times in one house which he owned. He is dead now and his sixth wife wants his estate to support herself and the four youngest children. Isaac Wadleigh, the executor and son-in-law of May, objects to this, as the will made by May gives the property to the children of the favorite wife, who died some years ago. When the last Mrs. May and her four children contested the will in Kent county, the probate judge set aside the will. Then the case went to the common pleas and a jury, and the verdict was again rendered for the sixth wife. The case was transferred to this county and yesterday it was before the supreme court on appeal. The domestic affairs of May were revealed in detail to the astonished judges and there were strange reasons presented in making the request to have the will set aside. It was shown that May was about 65 when he died, that he married young, on an elopement. Then his wife dying he married a woman from whom he was afterward divorced. Another wife died and another was divorced. Then one other died and the sixth, according to letters which were introduced into court yesterday, was distrusted. One letter concerning the widow and his will contained this explanation for disinheriting her: "If she had been faithful and true, she would have been better off. When she reads this I will be before my Maker." The court listened to several letters of this character, showing a rather disordered intellect. The court withheld its decision.

BARNES-MAGOWAN TROUBLE.

An Indictment for Grand Larceny Against the Former.

Trenton, Nov. 5.—The grand jury of this county has found an indictment for grand larceny against John A. Barnes, until recently general manager of the Eastern Rubber company, Frank A. Magowan, principal owner of the works, accusing him of having broken open his desk and abstracted therefrom $7,000 worth of the company's stock. Barnes is in Cleveland, Ohio, and will come to Trenton on Thursday to plead to the indictment. The suit of Barnes against Magowan to recover $100,000 damages for alienating the affections of his wife is likely to be dismissed. Magowan is under $25,000 bail in this case, but his counsel next Wednesday will move to quash the capias under which he was arrested on the ground that in such cases the husband is incompetent to testify against the wife. Barnes avers that the $7,000 worth of stock which he is accused of having stolen belongs to him.

WHALERS IN DANGER.

The Entire Arctic Fleet Likely To Be Caught in the Ice.

San Francisco, Nov. 5.—The schooner Rosario has arrived from the Arctic ocean, bringing 3,000 pounds of bone, the residue of a catch of five whales. She is the first of the whaling fleet to reach port from the north. When she left the ocean the ice was forming fast, and it was heavier than it has been for years. The catch in the Arctic has been poor. The Rosario reports that the entire fleet is likely to be caught in the ice. The steam whalers are amply provided with stores with which to spend another winter in the ice, but the sailing vessels are under much less favorable conditions.

HALSEY-GRUBB NUPTIALS.

Invitations Issued for the Event Set for Nov. 20.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 5.—Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Charles D. Halsey, son of Silas C. Halsey of this city, former consul to Sonneberg, Germany, and Miss Effie Van Rensselaer Grubb of Edgewater Park, daughter of the former United States minister to Spain. The wedding will take place at St. Mary's church, Burlington, N. J., on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 20, at 3:30 o'clock. On account of the death a few months ago of Gen. Grubb's mother there will be no reception.

MESSENGER RUNS AMUCK.

Mohammed Kahn, British Agent at Cabul, Killed and Two Wounded.

Simla, India, Nov. 5.—Advices have reached here to the effect that a messenger attached to the British agency at Cabul, the capital of Afghanistan, ran amuck and killed Mohammed Akram Khan, the agent of the British government, who was a colonel in the British Indian army. He also wounded the agent's son and another person. Bystanders finally killed the messenger.

COLLIERIES AGAIN WORKING.

Result of the Breaking of the Severe Drought in Pennsylvania.

Hazleton, Pa., Nov. 5.—Every colliery and coal shipper in the Lehigh region which was forced to shut down owing to the drought resumed work yesterday. Nearly 5,000 men are again given employment. The rains of last week have swelled the mountain streams, and there is now plenty of water.

Sovereign Wants No More Offices.

Massillon, O., Nov. 5.—J. R. Sovereign, grand master workman of the Knights of Labor, is here and announces that he will not accept another term in office.

Denied Use of the Mails.

Washington, Nov. 5.—The postoffice department has denied the privileges of the United States mails to the Safe Deposit Watch company of 9 Murray street, New York.

Mrs. Mary Anne Everett Dead.

London, Nov. 5.—The death is announced of Mrs. Mary Anne Everett, nee Wood, a well known author, in this city. She was born in 1818.

THANKSGIVING DAY NAMED.

President Cleveland Designates Nov. 28 in a Proclamation.

Washington, Nov. 5. — President Cleveland yesterday issued a proclamation designating Thursday, November 28, as Thanksgiving day, as follows:

The constant goodness and forbearance of Almighty God which have been vouchsafed to the American people during the year which is just past, call for their sincere acknowledgement and devout gratitude. To the end, therefore, that we may with thankful hearts unite in extolling the loving care of our Heavenly Father, I, Grover Cleveland, President of the United States, do hereby appoint and set apart Thursday, the twenty-eighth day of the present month of November, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, to be kept and observed by all our people. On that day let us forego our usual occupations, and in our accustomed places of worship join in rendering thanks to the giver of every good and perfect gift, for the bounteous returns that have rewarded our labors in the fields and in the busy marts of trade, for the peace and order that have prevailed throughout the land, for our protection from pestilence and dire calamity and for the other blessings that have been showered upon us from an open hand. And, with our thanksgiving, let us humbly beseech the Lord to so incline the hearts of our people unto him that He will not leave us nor forsake us as a nation, but will continue to use His mercy and protecting care, guiding us in the path of national prosperity and happiness, endueing us with rectitude and virtue and keeping alive within us a patriotic love for the free institutions which have been given to us as our national heritage. And, let us also on the day of our thanksgiving especially remember the poor and needy, and by deeds of charity let us show the sincerity of our gratitude.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

MRS. CROWE DEAD.

Succumbed to the Injuries Received at the Hands of Miss Wright.

Jamestown, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Mrs. John Crowe, who was assaulted by Miss Sarah Wright Monday of last week, died from her injuries last evening. Miss Wright, who was out on bail pending a hearing for the assault on November 12, was immediately taken into custody. Mrs. Crowe's body is a horrible spectacle. She has an ugly gash made with a hatchet behind her right ear and her body and arms are black and blue from being struck by a bed slat after she was felled by the blow from the hatchet in the hands of Miss Wright. Miss Wright is about 40 years old. She is a professional nurse by occupation and lived alone. Mrs. Crowe was 46 years of age and leaves a husband, three grown-up daughters and two sons. The assault was made during a controversy over a month's rent owed by Miss Wright to the Crowe woman. Miss Wright says she acted in self defense; that Mrs. Crowe attempted by force to remove her household goods.

MEN NOT IN CONDITION.

U. of P. Team Cancel the Game Set for To-day in New York.

Philadelphia, Nov. 5.—The University of Pennsylvania last evening cancelled its football game set for to-day in New York with the Boston A. A. team. The game was cancelled by captain Carl Williams under instructions from the secretary of the university athletic committee, because of the following report from Dr. J. William White: "In accordance with your wishes I have carefully examined into the physical condition of the football team. I beg to report that, while no grave or permanently disabling injury has been sustained by any of them, the large majority of the team are in unfit condition to undergo a severe physical strain at present."

JOHANNESBURG EXHIBITION.

President Cleveland Receives an Invitation for Americans.

Washington, Nov. 5.—President Cleveland has received a letter from Charles F. DeGarno, director-general of the International Industrial exposition at Johannesburg, South Africa, inviting Americans to make exhibits, and stating that the occasion offers an opportunity to introduce and advance American products. The exhibition is to be held at Johannesburg during the months of May and June, 1896.

JACK DEMPSEY'S FUNERAL.

The Late Pugilist's Remains Interred at Portland, Ore.

Portland, Ore., Nov. 5.—The funeral services over the remains of Jack Dempsey were held yesterday at the residence and were followed by public services at St. Francis church, when requiem mass was sung. Fully 2,000 people attended the services. The interment took place at Calvary cemetery.

STRUGGLE IS ON TO-DAY

Early Reports from the Various States.

How the Elections Are Progressing in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Ohio and Other States—Both Sides Making Claims, But Little Known as Yet.

New York, Nov. 5.—To-day in a number of states the people are voting for various officers, and, although nothing can be told as to the result at this hour, reports from many points indicate more lively contests than were generally expected. The election in this state is for state officers, with the exception of governor. The battle in this city is between the "forces of good government," represented by the union ticket, and the followers of Tammany hall. The union, or fusion, county ticket, contains the names of republicans and leaders of the New York State democracy, which is being bitterly opposed by Tammany hall. The democratic state ticket has been endorsed by the State democracy, and it is receiving some of the support of the different factions. Tammany hall leaders claim that the county ticket will be elected by from 40,000 to 60,000 majority, while the fusion ticket managers are just as loud in their boast that Tammany will not return to power. Both sides declare that they will elect the state ticket by comfortable majorities.

In Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, Nov. 5.—Reports from all parts of the state indicate that the vote is being conducted with little excitement, and nearly an average vote will likely be polled. The balloting is for a state treasurer and seven judges for the newly created superior court. The candidates for state treasurer are: Republican, Benjamin Haywood; democratic, Benjamin F. Meyers; prohibition, Wm. H. Berry; peoples, Geo. W. Dawson; socialist-labor, George Anton. This is the first opportunity the people have had to vote for judges of the superior court.

New Jersey.

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 5.—In this state to-day the people are voting for a governor, seven senators and the whole sixty assemblymen. There are five candidates for governor, but those of the prohibitionists, people's party and socialists will probably not receive over 10,000 votes combined. Republican leaders this morning are claiming the election of John H. Griggs by pluralities ranging from 5,000 to 20,000 and they make statements by counties. The democratic leaders claim that Chancellor McGill will be elected by the normal pluarlity of 7,000 to 8,000. The complexion of the assembly will depend on the governorship, the republicans now claiming from thirty-four to thirty-seven members. Early reports really indicate the election of the republican ticket.

The Vote in Massachusetts.

Boston, Nov. 5.—At the headquarters of both parties news from different parts of the state have been received, but of course nothing can be told now as to the outcome of to-day's battle. Republicans claim that they are casting a large vote and that Gov. Greenhalge will be returned by not less than 75,000 plurality. The republican state committee expects to see at least thirty-four republican state senators elected out of forty and estimate that of the 240 representatives the democrats will not elect over sixty.

The Contest in Ohio.

Columbus, O., Nov. 5.—The electors of Ohio to-day are choosing a governor, treasurer, auditor, judge, and clerk of the supreme court, lieutenant governor, attorney general, member of the state board of public works and full general assembly. The election of the latter is of special importance, as it will select a successor to Calvin S. Brice. The campaign has been a hot one and fought with unusual vigor on both sides. Reports this morning indicate a fairly large vote and in the larger cities the contests are quite animated. A full vote is expected and probably 800,000 ballots will be cast. The republicans concede that their plurality will drop back to the normal figure from 15,000 to 30,000. At democratic headquarters this morning it was claimed that the republican majority would be wiped out, and that ex-Gov. Campbell will be elected by 10,000 majority. The committee chairman will make no estimate, however. Both parties are claiming the legislature. There seems to be little ground upon which to base an intelligent prediction as to this at this hour.

Light Vote in Iowa.

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 5.—Indications this morning are that the vote in this state will be light. The republican state central committee claims the election of the entire ticket by pluralities from 40,000 to 50,000 votes. The members acknowledge that the vigorous attack made on Drake's railroad building record has had an effect. It is estimated that he will run from 7,000 to 8,000 behind the rest of the ticket. The democrats are conceding the election of the republican state ticket, except the head. The majorities of last year may be reduced nearly half, and they claim there is show for the election of Babb because of defections from Drake's following. It is claimed by the prohibitionists that their ticket will receive 20,000 votes in the state this year against less than 8,000 last year.

Child Killed by Runaway Horses.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Nov. 5.—A team of horses became frightened yesterday afternoon on Tulip steet near Church and ran upon the sidewalk where four children were standing. All escaped except 4-year-old Emma Janke, who was knocked down and trampled to death by the frenzied animals.

Portuguese Defeat Rebels.

Bombay, Nov. 5.—Advices received here from Goa, Portuguese India, show that the Portuguese expedition sent against the rebels has defeated them at Cudnem, killing twenty-five and wounding thirty. The Portuguese loss was trifling. It is likely that this defeat will put an end to the rebellion.

Spain To Order Gunboats.

Madrid, Nov. 5.—Government officials will start forthwith for England to arrange for the immediate building of two torpedo catchers of 400 tons each. They will have a speed of twenty-eight mile per hour.

THE BIG STRIKE BEGUN

First Hostile Move on the Great Northern.

American Railway Union Men Ordered Out on the Montana Branch. Locomotives Ditched and Killed—Leaders and Police Clash and Arrests Are Made.

Kalispell, Mont., Nov. 5.—After a session until 2 a. m. the local branch of the American Railway union passed a resolution to call out the men on the mountain division of the Great Northern railway. Under the leadership of Roy Goodwin, director of the union, six or eight members took possession of the round house and ditched and killed several engines and ran several cars into the turntable. Goodwin and his men soon got into collision with the police and six of them, including the leader, were placed under arrrest and will be given a hearing to-day. A gang of men was at once set to work at the turntable and succeeded in getting trains going late in the afternoon. The engineers and firemen who are not members of the A. R. U. remained at their posts and took out trains both ways last night. It is now believed that the trouble on the Great Northern has started in earnest and a general strike under the American Railway union seems certain.

Railroad Strike Threatened.

West Superior, Wis., Nov. 5.—From the outlook in this city among the members of the A. R. U. the prospect of a strike on the Eastern Minnesota road which is the Lake Superior outlet of the Great Northern is very good.

WERE WRONGFULLY TREATED.

Complaints of British Subjects Called to Mr. Olney's Notice.

Washington, Nov. 5. — Ambassador Pauncefote was at the state department yesterday going over with Assistant Secretary Adee in detail voluminous papers in regard to certain British subjects in Nebraska and elsewhere who claimed to have been wrongfully treated in the United States. Sir Julian when asked about rumors of joint intervention by Great Britain and the United States in the Armenian affairs stated that no proposition of that kind had been made through him and that in point of fact he had never mentioned Turkish matters to Secretary Olney except in the most casual manner and that was several weeks ago.

MUST TRY AGAIN TO HANG HIM.

Mississippi's Supreme Court Decides Against Will Purvis.

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 5.—In the supreme court yesterday the decision in the case of Purvis vs. the State was affirmed, which means that Purvis is to suffer the death penalty. Purvis was convicted in Marion county of being a white cap and of murdering a companion who "squealed" on the gang. He was sentenced to hang, but through the carelessness of the sheriff he fell through the trap of the scaffold to the ground, the rope having slipped over his head. He was picked up unconscious and terribly bruised. The sheriff refused to rehang the man and put him in jail, where he has been two years. Strong efforts for a pardon will now be made.

SECOND IN A MONTH.

Another Member of Atlantic City's Health Board Dead.

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 5.—Health inspector Alfred T. Gleen died very suddenly yesterday at his home on Arctic avenue. He had complained of illness but went to his office as usual. Here he rapidly became worse and in consequence started to return home. He went on foot and greeted friends on the way. Just as he entered the door of his home, however, he gasped and fell outstretched on the floor. His wife, who heard him fall, hurried to the door to find him dead. Mr. Glenn is the second member of the board of health to die within a month.

STILL FURTHER REDUCED.

Official Report on Trial of Katahdin Credits Her with 16:11 Knots.

Washington, Nov. 5.—The final official report of the Katahdin's trial shows that the calculations made still further reduce her speed, bringing the figures down to 16:11 knots instead of 17 as imperatively required by the contract. The Katahdin did wonderfully, however, in horsepower development, making 200 more than was estimated.

THE CONFLICT IN FORMOSA.

Escape of the Black Flag Leader Reported.

London, Nov. 5.—A dispatch from Shanghai says that Liu-Yung-Fu, the Black Flag leader in the island of Formosa, is reported to have escaped on a German warship from Ampung to Amoy.

Grand Welcome to Paderewskie.

New York, Nov. 5.—A brilliant audience filled Carnegie hall last evening on the occasion of Paderewski's public reappearance in the United States. The celebrated pianist was greeted with great enthusiasm. He was assisted by the Symphony orchestra, with Walter Damrosch as conductor, and was repeatedly recalled after each recital.

Test of Canal Trolley.

Tonawanda, N. Y., Nov. 5.—Richard Lamb, the inventor of the canal trolley, has departed for New York. He will return again Thursday. The private test of the cable system for the benefit of Gov. Morton will probably take place the latter part of next week. The lines are in readiness for the test at any time.

Mine Flooded.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Nov. 5.—A miner who worked at the Ravine shaft at Pittston fired a blast on Saturday last and cut a water feeder in the mine which is located about forty yards from the Susquehanna. Since the accident happened water has been rushing into the mine in a steady stream.

Diphtheria at Trenton.

Trenton, Nov. 5.—The local board of health has had reported to it within the past four days twenty one cases of diphtheria, four of which proved fatal.

SILVER THIEVES CAUGHT.

Part of a Big Loss Recovered in London.

London, Nov. 5.—The police of Mile End last evening seized a van laden with carpets and cushions, among which were thirteen complete ingots of silver and parts of two others, being a portion of thirty-one ingots, valued at $24,000, the propery of the Midland Railway company, that were stolen from a van in Ossulston street, St. Pancras, on Sept. 25 last. The occupants of the van seized yesterday, two men named Barratt and Gray, were arrested. The latter is apparently of good social position. The driver of the van was allowed to escape. It is presumed that he was in league with the police in their efforts to recover the silver. Only seven of the ingots are now missing. The silver was in transit from the railway station when a man and boy in charge of the van in which the transfer was being made left the vehicle and went into a restaurant to get breakfast. While they were inside the van was driven off. An hour later the van was found by the police a mile from the restaurant, but the silver as gone.

DEFENDS OUR CRUISERS' SPEED

Rear-Admiral Belknap Says Chief Ramsay's Report Is Misleading.

Boston, Nov. 5.—Rear-Admiral Belknap, United States navy (retired), when questioned as to the report from Washington attributed to rear-admiral F. M. Ramsay, chief of the bureau of navigation, relative to the actual cruising speed of our new warships and comparing them unfavorably with trial speeds, spoke strongly in explanation of apparently startling statements. "That report as printed in yesterday's papers," said he, "is very misleading and needs comment. Those speeds given are not maximum speeds by any means, but average cruising speeds for the year under half power—under half power only, mind you. As the report appeared it is entirely deceptive and creates a very wrong impression. The speeds of the official trials were under full power, instead of half, which is customarily used in cruising."

PROMOTIONS IN THE NAVY.

Commodore Selfridge Made Rear-Admiral.

Washington, Nov. 5.—The following promotions in the navy have been made by the president: Commodore Thomas O. Selfridge to be rear-admiral, commander Francis A. Cook to be captain, lieutenant Frederic Singer to be lieutenant-commander, ensigns H. P. Jones and W. O. Hulme to be lieutenants, surgeon Dwight Dixon to be medical inspector, and assistant engineers A. S. Halstead and W. B. Day to be past assistant engineers. The promotion of Commodore Selfridge, who is a son of Rear-admiral Selfridge, brings about a remarkable circumstance in our naval annals, the holding of the rank of rear-admiral at the same time by father and son. The new rear-admiral was born in Boston and was graduated from the naval academy in 1853 at the head of his class.

TO DECIDE THE CHAMPIONSHIP.

Yale Making Great Preparation for the Game with Princeton.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 5.—Yale is making strong preparations for the coming game with Princeton, which will virtually decide the American football championship. Yesterday the following veteran players had charge of the eleven: Greenway, '95; Redington, '94; Hartwell, '89; Hinkey, '95, and Rhodes, '91. Hartwell, Rhodes and Hinkey are here to remain permanently with the team till after the great Princeton match. Captain Thorne is working his candidates hard. It is a source of relief to Yale that there is no game with Harvard, now that Harvard has been routed by Princeton. Yale would have nothing to gain by meeting Harvard under the present circumstances and everything to lose.

JAPANESE TROOPS IN KOREA.

An Occupation Like That of the British in Egypt.

London, Nov. 5.—Regarding the official statement from the Japanese government as to the position of Japan towards Korea, it is authoritatively explained that after the evacuation of the Liao-Tung penisula some Japanese troops will be left in Korea in order to protect the Japanese and maintain order. From this it is inferred that Japan may pursue the same course in Korea as Great Britain is pursuing in Egypt.

KEEP THE FLEETS APART.

Paris Figaro Says Our Hatred of Great Britain Is Appalling.

Paris, Nov. 5.—The Figaro, referring to the Venezuelan affair, says: "The dispute between England and Venezuela is worth watching on account of the proximity of the British and American fleets. Prudence recommends that they should not be left too long together, for the intense hatred of the Americans towards the old country is appalling."

CAMPOS SUGGESTS REFORM.

He Doesn't Want Cuba To Be Independent, However.

Madrid, Nov. 5.—The Heraldo publishes an interview with Campos. The latter declares he is not disposed to agree to the independence of Cuba, but thinks that reforms should be applied in a more liberal manner. He says that no proposal for peace has been made by the insurgents.

British Steamer Wrecked.

London, Nov. 5.—A dispatch from Concepcion received here says the British steamer Inchulva, from Cardiff, Sept. 17, via Les Palmas for Acapulco, has been wrecked at Santa Maria. The vessel and cargo are a total loss.

Wreckage Washed Ashore.

London, Nov. 5. — Two pieces of wreckage, undoubtedly parts of ships, boats, have been washed ashore on Gun island. One of the pieces bears the word "Loudon," and the other the word "Elbe."

Bribery Indictment To Stand.

Rome, N. Y., Nov. 5.—The demurrer to the indictment against James A. O'Connor, an attorney of Utica, charged with bribery, was overruled by Justice Wright.

Minneapolis Printers on Strike.

Minneapolis, Nov. 5.—The union job printers of Minneapolis, 200 in number, struck yesterday for 30 cents an hour and a nine hour day.

DEATH OF EUGENE FIELD

It Was Sudden and Almost Without Warning.

Life Had Departed Before His Family Reached His Bedside—His Son Heard Him Groaning During the Night—Expected To Lecture Last Evening.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—The death of Eugene Field, poet, journalist and story writer, which occurred at his home at Buena park yesterday, was the result of heart failure. For some days Mr. Field had been ailing, but it was supposed he was suffering from his usual stomach troubles and no serious turn was anticipated. Dr. Frank Reilly, who was summoned, pronounced the death to have been caused by the formation of a clot of blood in the heart.

Feeling Ill on Sunday.

Although Sunday Mr. Field was feeling so ill that he telegraphed to Kansas City cancelling an engagement which he had there for last night, he sat up until a late hour chatting with Mr. Yenowine of the Milwaukee Illustrated News. Mr. Yenowine was to have accompanied Mr. Field to Kansas City and had come from Milwaukee for that purpose. The deceased was very cheerful and the two sat up until a late hour discussing future plans. Shortly before midnight Mr. Field had a telegram sent to Kansas City saying that he would be able to come later in the week.

Found Him Dead in Bed.

Upon going to bed Mr. Field did not complain, but during the night Fred Field, the 14-year-old son of the deceased, heard his father groaning in his sleep. The lad thought nothing of this until next morning when the sleeping man groaned more heavily than before and then became perfectly still and quiet. Roused by an intuitive dread that something was amiss Fred, or "Daisy" as the family calls, him crept out of bed and awakened his mother and aunts. He then went to the room of Mr. Yenowine, who was sleeping in the house, and aroused him. When the family reached the bedside they found that Eugene Field was no more.

Efforts To Arouse Him Failed.

The body was lying in an easy, natural position. The heat of life had not yet died out and a tranquil, peaceful expression on his face gave him the appearance of having dropped into a gentle slumber. All efforts to arouse him failed and Dr. Hedges, who was immediately summoned, attributed the death to heart failure Mr. Field first took to his bed Thursday. Up to Sunday he had expected to keep his engagement at Kansas City last evening. Mr. Field leaves a widow and five children—two daughters and three sons—the eldest child is Miss Mary French Field, 19 years of age, and the youngest is scarcely 12 months old.

Sketch of His Career.

Eugene Field, son of Roswell Martin Field and Frances (Reed) Field, was born in St. Louis, Sept. 2, 1850. He spent his early life in Vermont and Massachusetts, where he obtained his knowledge of New England people and customs, which appears in some of his verse. Then he returned to Missouri and studied in the state university until 1871, and a year later obtained employment with the St. Louis Journal. In 1875 he was on the St. Joseph Gazette, and later worked on the St. Louis Times-Journal and the Kansas City Tribune, which paper he left in 1881 to become managing editor of the Denver Tribune. He left Denver two years later, joining the Chicago News staff on Aug. 13, 1883, and his connection with that paper (now the Record) continued without interruption until his death.

His Works.

While Mr. Field had written occasional verse and stories before reaching the age of manhood, his works were brought out in the following order: "Denver Tribune Primer" (1882), "Culture's Garden" (1887), "A Little Book of Western Verse" (1889), "A Little Book of Profitable Tales" (1889), "With Trumpet and Drum" (1892), "Second Book of Verse" (1893), "Echoes from the Sabine Farm" (1895). Perhaps the most widely known of Mr. Field's verse is "Little Boy Blue."

SEVERAL REBELS KILLED.

Spaniards Successful in Two Tame Engagements.

Puerto Principe, Cuba, Nov. 5.—While taking a convoy to the Guaimaro and Cascorro garrisons a Spanish column commanded by General Serrano Altamira was attacked by about 200 rebels at Loma del Salado, between Guaimaro and Cascorro. The rebels fired two volleys at the troops, who at once responded. The rebels retreated, leaving on the field five killed and eleven wounded. The government loss was three wounded, including an officer, whose injuries are serious.

Left Behind Their Dead.

Santiago de Cuba, Nov. 5.—Colonel Tejedo's column on Thursday last surprised a rebel camp on the Sileno and Ysabelita farms, in the Longo district. The rebels fled, leaving behind them three dead. The troops captured a quantity of effects belonging to the insurgents, and destroyed the camp.

Candidate for Clerk Only.

Washington, Nov. 5.—In order to contradict the report being circulated here that he is a candidate for either the clerkship or sergeant-at-arms of the next house, Hon. Thomas J. Henderson, who has been a representative from Illinios for the last twenty years, has telegraphed a friend in this city that he is a candidate for the office of clerk only.

Dived 50 Feet into Port Point.

Boston, Nov. 5.—About 2,000 persons yesterday saw Kearney Speedy, otherwise known as the "Dauntless Death Defier," dive fifty feet from a coal elevator into Port Point channel. The dive was well executed and Speedy was taken from the water none the worse for his dive and bath.

Cambridge Postmaster Removed.

Boston, Nov. 5.—The postoffice department at Washington has removed postmaster Ring of Cambridge and appointed Frank M. Small, assistant superintendent of mails of the Boston office, to succeed him.

The death of Eugene Field removes from the literary and newspaper field a wonderfully versatile man.

President Cleveland yesterday issued a proclamation, designating Thursday, November 28th, as Thanksgiving day.

The members of the Common Council whose terms expire with this year are as follows: At-large, Messrs. Erickson, Westphal and Dumont. First ward, Elias Bird; second ward, George H. Frost; third ward, Harry Stockton; fourth ward, V. L. Frazee.

It is a source of congratulation to the citizens of Plainfield to know that the ordinance authorizing the extension of the electric street railway passed the Common Council on its final reading last night, and now only awaits the necessary ten days advertising and the signature of the Mayor, which is but a formality. The facilities of pleasant and rapid communication with the suburbs, which the completion of the extensions will afford, will have the effect of instituting a building boom that cannot help but prove advantageous to all classes of citizens. To the already many admirable public acquisitions which Plainfield possesses as an attractive resident place the trolley extension comes as a climax that is most welcome.

Every One Counts.

Those in charge of the Kirmiss wish it stated that it is very important that all dancers should attend every rehearsal, as every time counts. On Thursday evening, so many were absent that several of the rehearsals had to be omittted.

One Rode the Goat.

Queen City Lodge, No. 226, I. O. of O. F., met last evening and worked one candidate in the initiatory degree. The election was then held for a representative to the Grand Lodge which meets at Trenton on November 20th. Charles W. DeGraw was chosen.

Special Election Returns.

The members of the Union County Country Club and their friends will receive the election returns at the clubhouse this evening by a special wire which will be operated by Charles Schermerhorn, of the Western Union.

New Jersey Forestry Association.

The autumn meeting of the New Jersey Forestry Association will be held at Lakewood, November 8th and 9th. Interesting lectures will be delivered, and officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

Released From Jail.

Edward Bergen, whom Chief of Police Grant took down to the county jail at Elizabeth yesterday, was released this morning as his fine was paid.

Big Vote Being Polled.

Old Sol smiles in an indulgent way on the politician today and a big vote is being polled all over the city. About the polling places things are very quiet.

—The special meetings being held every night this week at Monroe avenue chapel are growing in interest. Dr. Barnes will preach tonight.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Annie Murphy, of Washington avenue, is visiting friends at West Point.

Miss Jeanette Simpson, of Craig place, is spending a week with friends in Newark.

Walter Williams, of East Front street, is spending a few days at White House.

COMMUNICABILITY OF CANCER.

Its Possibility Not Proved—Conclusion Reached by a Medical Writer.

An interesting article on the alleged communicability of cancer of malignant growth appears in The Medical Record. It says, in part:

From the time that the malignancy of cancer was recognized, the question of communicability has borne the brunt of the most earnest investigation, and the hope of its solution has stimulated the most ingenious experimentation of earnest investigators. The results of all such studies have been entirely negative. There are no proofs of which we have any knowledge that cancer has ever been directly or indirectly propagated from one human being to another. It is true that there is published an occasional case in which there would appear on superficial examination to be a direct relation between cause and effect, but when such are critically examined the theory of propagation vanishes in face of a conscientiously critical analysis. At best they are coincidental circumstances following the general law of accidents. Experiments in the lower animals have thus far amounted to nothing, and practically we are as much in the dark regarding the true etiology of cancer and its real methods of dissemination as ever.

The investigations in these directions have been exceedingly interesting, although mostly instructive from a negative view.

A person predisposed to any disease is always an easy victim when any definite, exciting cause presents itself, while one without such tendencies escapes every time.

The writer concludes by saying that the death of a physician of this city from supposed inoculation of cancer "was undoubtedly one of predisposition to malignant disease that developed in due time, the supposd inoculation from a cancerous patient having no more causative relation to it than any other purely coincidental circumstance."—New York Tribune.

Dried Fruits.

It is said that the reason why dried fruits, and especially California dried fruits, fail to give the satisfaction that they should to the economical housewife is because they are not soaked in water long enough before cooking to restore the water extracted from them by the drying process. As it requires considerable time to dry fruits properly, it cannot be expected that four or five hours will be sufficient for cooking them as well as for the preliminary process of soaking. The rules for cooking such fruits sent out by the San Jose board of trade say that the fruits must be soaked in as much cold water as they will absorb from 24 to 36 hours. A pound of fruit is then swelled to three or four times that quantity, and is to be simmered in the water in which it was soaked until tender. It should be kept closely covered while cooking, and also after removing from the fire until cold. The sugar should be added a few minutes before the fruit is taken from the fire and allowed to boil up once. Though a certain quantity of sugar is given for each fruit, it should, we think, depend on the taste of the family where it is cooked, as some persons like tart and others very sweet fruit.—New York Post

Quite a Difference.

"What's the matter, William?" said the wealthy housekeeper. "Anything gone wrong?"

"Not exactly gone wrong, sir; but I want a new understanding."

"What about?"

"My pay, sir."

"Why, you get very good wages for a cook."

"Yes, sir. They does very well for a cook, sir. But I overheard you when you were talking to your friends, sir. You called me your chef."

"Well, you ought to be complimented."

"Yes, sir. I'm complimented. But business is business. I can't be a chef for less than $3,000 a year. Wages is all right for a cook, but a chef has to have a salary."—Washington Star.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

The market is full of cough mixtures but one trouble with most of them is that when they do a little good the patient has to take so much that he gets to loathe the taste. The Pineola Balsam is superior to other cough remedies because it is agreeable to the palate and its good effects are immediate. In a few days an ordinary cough is gone altogether. Bronchitis and asthma are more stubborn, but they too are cured by Ely's Pineola Balsam. A remedy worth trying. 25 cents is all it costs.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION.

The Civil Service Commission at Washington has ordered that an examination be held in this city on December 7, 1895, commencing at 9 o'clock, a. m., for the grades of clerk and carrier in the city postoffice. Only citizens of the United States can be examined. The age limitations are as follows: For carrier, not under 21 nor over 40; for all other positions, not under 18 years. No application will be accepted for this examination unless filed with the undersigned in complete form, on the proper blank, before the hour of closing business on November 18, 1895.

The Civil Service Commission takes this opportunity of stating that the examinations are open to all reputable citizens who may desire to enter the postal service, without regard to their political affiliation. All such citizens, whether Democrats or Republicans, or neither, are invited to apply. They shall be examined, graded and certified with entire impartiality, and wholly without regard to their political views, or to any consideration save their efficiency, as shown by the grades they obtain in the examination.

For application blanks, full instructions, and information relative to the duties and salaries of the different positions, apply to the postoffice to

G. C. GODOWN,
Secretary Board of Examiners.

HOW NAPOLEON LOST

The True and Real Secret of His Downfall.

Lack of Reinforcement Changed Destinies of Nations.

Battles Lost in Our Own War in Same Way.

Reinforcement of Both Power and Strength.

The Great and Vital Need Always Present.

Napoleon looked in vain for his general to appear when the tide of Waterloo was at its height. He did not come and that great Conqueror lost the field; France was checked; the fate of Europe was changed and the tide of human history found a new direction.

So in the long, fierce war of the Rebellion, many a field was lost or won as needed reinforcements came, or failed to come.

So it is in the natural world:—the shower grateful to the parched earth, the sunshine wooing the green shoot, the wind that cools or warms at the right time, all help keep nature fresh and beautiful. In the realm of health the same law prevails. There are parching drouths and destructive floods to be provided and guarded against; and when they come, they they have to be robbed, as far as possible, of their effects.

Prevention in all these cases is better than cure.

Save the battle in advance.

Provide the relief before it is needed.

It is less expensive and far more beneficial from every view.

Reinforce nature. Help her to keep normal and healthy.

Take care of the blood and nerves, and we shall have no fear of disease.

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy has stood the test of many years for this purpose. It has no rival as a wonderful restorative. It has no equal in the purification of the blood, the strengthening of the nerves and for preventing all the ills which threaten at this season of the year.

Try it and be assured. It is the great reinforcement for strength, power and vigor of nerve, brain and body. It will make you well and strong.

Why waste time in trying uncertain and untried remedies, when here is a physician's prescription, a discovery made by the greatest living specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th st., New York city. If you take this medicine you can consider yourself under Dr. Greene's direct professional care, and you can consult him or write to him about your case freely and without charge. This is a guarantee that this medicine will cure, possessed by no other medicine in the world.

Dancing at VanDoren.

A dance is to be held at VanDoren, near Bound Brook, tomorrow evening. The committee in charge consists of Howard Snowden, of New Market, Frank Fulks, of South Plainfield, and Emick VanDoren, of Bound Brook. Quite a number from this city will attend.

Suing for an Ice Bill.

The contract case of John Morton against A. E. Faber was tried before Justice Crosley yesterday afternoon. Lawyer Murphy represented Mr. Morton, while Mr. Faber was represented by Lawyer George W. DeMeza.

The case was for the payment of a $48 ice bill.

Free Pills.

Send your address to H. E. Bucklen & Co., Chicago, and get a free sample box of Dr. King's New Life Pills. A trial will convince you of their merits. These pills are easy in action and are particularly effective in the cure of constipation and sick headache. For malaria and liver troubles they have been proved invaluable. They are guaranteed to be perfectly free from every deleterious substance and to be purely vegetable. They do not weaken by there action, but by giving tone to the stomach and bowels greatly invigorate the system. Regular size 25c. per box. Sold by L. W. Randolph, druggist

ABSOLUTELY PURE

THEATRICAL.

The coming opera "Wang," which the last five seasons has gained golden opinions everywhere, comes to the Music Hall, Wednesday, Nov. 6th. The theatre going public is always in search of novelties, but in this day of so many stage novelties which disappoint, the coming of an old and tried friend like "Wang" is indeed a welcome anticipation. Novelty will, to a certain extent, but most pleasingly, also enter into next week's production of the merry opera, for there will be many new and pretty faces, many new, fresh and youthful voices, new scenery and costumes more costly than were lavished upon it in the days when it was an experiment. These new features will, however, be but the settings for the same merry opera. The opera's mirth-provoking story, with its complications involving an Oriental prince regent and a Europeanized heir to the throne, French widows and maidens, Parisian dancing girls, Cambodian and Burmese envoys, has never laid claim to depth, but it has given many a person as delightful an evening as he could ask for. Mr. A. Hart is still playing the leading role and doubling his great success in that part.

After undergoing a thorough overhauling and re-brightening, Canary & Lederer's N. Y. Casino, one of the most popular amusement resorts—if not the most popular in the country—re-opened last evening, as a thoroughly fire-proof structure, with the first Metropolitan presentation of Henry B. Smith and Victor Herbert's new comic opera, "The Wizard of the Nile," with Mr. Frank Daniels in the title role, supported by a company of eighty people. This attraction brings into the steller field of comic opera a comedian who is genuinely funny—a comedian who has by original and natural methods conjured laughter spontaneously from the amusement public all over the country.

A Way That Snobs Have.

The premier of Canada, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, is a self made man and snobs can never forgive one who is not indebted to his ancestors for all he possesses. Sir Mackenzie, it seems, was, when a boy, a "printer's devil," and at a banquet given in his honor a guest took the opportunity to insult him by repeating the following verse, a bad imitation of the celebrated lines in "Pinafore:"

When I was a lad I served my term
As junior imp in a printing firm.
I washed the windows, swept the floor
And daubed the ink on the office door.
I did it all so thoroughly
That now I am premier and K. C. M. G.

The premier answered quietly that in one particular the versifier was in error, "for," said he, "I never daubed ink on the door of the office."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Sultan and Turkey's Balance.

The sultan is not quite such a fool as people sometimes take him to be. I remember Fuad Pasha, the last of Turkish statesmen, observing to me many years ago: "Turkey is a chariot to which the great European powers are harnessed. When one tries to pull one way, I flick up the others, who at once pull the other way. Thus the equilibrium of the chariot is secured."—London Truth.

A Valuable Library.

Lieutenant Commander T. B. M. Mason, U. S. N., retired, has in his home in Washington, one of the most valuable private libraries in the city, not only in regard to the books it contains, but in the collection of medals and moneys of all nations. From every part of the world Mr. Mason has for years added to the collection, which was originally made by his father. Among the medals in his possession is one of the original 13 struck off by the United States government to commemorate the formation of the Union.

Accomplished.

Over the shop of a barber in the Isle of Man who supplies his customers with all kinds of fishing tackle may be read: "Piscatorial Repository, Tonsorial Artist, Physiognomical Hairdresser, Cranium Manipulator, Capillary Abridger, Shaving and Hair Cutting with Ambidextrous Facility. Shampooing on Philological Principles."

Zenobia, the queen of Palmyra, spoke seven languages. After being captured by the Romans she learned Latin and Greek also, married a Roman senator and lived the rest of her life as a Roman matron.

Back Again!

Dr. E. B. Lighthill

—OF—

New York City,

whose practice in Plainfield has proved such a wonderful success has opened an office at

134 Crescent Avenue

(next door to his former residence) where he can be consulted from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., on

Tuesday and Friday

of each week.

DR. LIGHTHILL makes the treatment of deafness, catarrh and diseases of the throat, lungs and heart a specialty.

Piles radically and permanently cured in a few weeks without the use of the knife, ligature or cautery and without pain or detention from business. The most desperate cases yield unfailingly to Dr Lighthill's unique method of treatment, with guaranteed success. Fistula, fissure and ulcers of the rectum are also completely and permanently cured without the knife or other surgical operation.

Diseases of the bowels, bladder and stomach, mental and nervous derangements, diseases of the skin and blood and all chronic and obstinate complaints affecting the human system, of whatever name or nature, are successfully treated.

DR. LIGHTHILL refers with pardonable pride to the remarkable cures of his former practice in Plainfield and to the reputation which he established throughout the State. He has in his possession hundreds of testimonials from well-known residents of Plainfield and vicinity, which can be seen at his office.

BENEATH FINGER NAILS.

The Dark Crescents Are Not Only Untidy, but Breed Many Microbes.

There is something more than beauty and attractiveness to be considered in caring for the finger nails. Beneath them is a space which forms a resting place for bacteria. Bacteriologists have found a score or more of different kinds of organisms under the nails, many of them harmless, it is true, but some of them exceedingly dangerous to health and life. Since they are microscopic in size, no one can tell whether they are innocent or harmful, or indeed whether they are present or absent.

Since a pin prick suffices to convey into the human system enough of the most poisonous germs of disease to cause death, it is easy to understand what evil results may follow a scratch with a germ laden finger nail. An idea has gone abroad that the danger lies in being scratched by another person, but since the trouble is due to bacteria and not to any poison residing in the nail itself, it is easy to see that a self inflicted scratch may be as bad as any other.

Many instances are recorded where a slight wound, like the prick of a needle under the nail, has been the means of introducing the germs which cause that painful trouble known as whitlow or felon.

He that bites his finger nails takes the risk of getting into his mouth and swallowing the germs of some infectious disease; for bacteria may be anywhere, and the nails have a peculiar aptitude for scraping up particles of dust and dirt, which may be swarming with germs. The surgeon who goes to the performance of any cutting operation, realizing the danger which lurks beneath the nails, cleanses them in the most thorough manner.

Disease germs, once introduced into the human organism, become travelers. They do not stop at the point of infection, but once in the circulation, may go anywhere and live, even for years, waiting and live, even for years, waiting their opportunity for growth when the normal tone of the system is lowered by chill, by fatigue, or by some other disturbing cause.

There is no better method of cleansing the nails than with a good brush and plenty of soap and water and without the use of a brush it is impossible to have clean, wholesome nails. Not alone will the result obtained be pleasing to the eye, but the danger of becoming the bearer of disease to oneself will be lessened.—Philadelphia Press.

THE FALLEN NAPOLEON.

All Had Turned Against Him When He Finally Left Paris.

It was a stubborn fight with fate that went on in the gilded Elysian palace in the street of St. Honore in those bright days of a Paris June. An emperor was trying the hard task of ruling his own spirit; a conqueror was set to the bitter struggle of conquering himself. Than this there is no harder task in all the world, whether for boy or emperor.

And in this fight allies were not to be depended upon; foes really were friends. For the first would have tempted the overpowered monarch to stand at bay against victorious Europe and distrusting France. The others were determined to drive him from France at all hazards. And in his case to go was his only safety, though had he died fighting for his lost crown history would have given him even greater glory.

Then came the end, when his ministers set themselves up to be his masters; when those he had most richly rewarded became his keenest foes; when France refused to acknowledge as its ruler a man twice overthrown; when from those to whom he looked for counsel came only lukewarm loyalty, false protestations or unwelcome truth; when from anger at the unreliable chamber of deputies, whom he, like Cromwell, threatened to turn out "neck and heels," he would change to indecision, silence, even timidity, it was plain there was but one thing to do.

He did it. On the 22d of June, 1815, Napoleon signed a second abdication, proclaimed his little son, whom Austria had kidnapped, emperor of the French and three days later left Paris forever.

He drove to Malmaison, 12 miles from Paris, that beautiful estate, half palace, half villa, which had been the home of the Empress Josephine. Here Napoleon had spent many happy hours in his days of power and prosperity; here Josephine had died while he was at Elba; here the emperor had planned out his greatest campaigns, his most glorious victories.—From "A Boy of the First Empire," by Elbridge S. Brooks, in St. Nicholas.

Oxalic Acid.

The useful chemical known as oxalic acid, employed in dyeing and some other arts, is now mentioned as one of the commercially valuable products derived from sawdust. A familiar process is that in which nitric acid and sugar are boiled for some time, then evaporated to dryness, the oxalic acid thus formed being purified by crystallization from water. A much cheaper material than sugar in this case, as alleged, is sawdust, an alkali being employed instead of an acid, as well as at a higher temperature. The operation is conducted in an iron vessel of proper size and shape, and either caustic soda or potash is employed, the yield being greater with the latter. In regard to this point, however, experiment is said to prove that a mixture of 40 parts of caustic potash to 60 parts of caustic soda will produce as large a yield as when potash alone is used, provided the operation is performed in shallow vessels with thin layers of the material, avoiding, as far as possible, the fusion of the mass. Soft woods, like pine and fir, produce larger quantities of oxalic acid than hard wood, like oak, and the rule is a proportion of wood to alkali not exceeding 75 to 100 and a temperature of about 480 degrees F.—New York Sun.

Electrical Possibilities.

One of the latest electrical inventions is a figure of a man worked by the current. Tonawanda has one which drags a cart about the streets, and a Brooklyn clothing dealer has two which are used as models. When it rains, they are pointed for the store door and set going, with the result that the suits have no time to shrink. The firm which manufactures them uses the power generated by Niagara falls and expects to make one which will run by storage batteries and carry a phonograph stored away in its internal economy. The advantages of a figure of this sort will be readily seen. The only thing needed to make the new man perfect is the attachment of a penny in the slot arrangement and a phonograph loaded with good stories or tips on the races or weather predictions.—New York Tribune.

THINK BEFORE YOU SPEAK.

For Sound, Some Philosophers Argue, Will Endure For All Eternity.

The real thinking philosophers of all times have entertained some of the oddest notions imaginable. Those of Sir John Herschel, Babbage, Newton and Sir William Hamilton in regard to the permanence of sound and light waves are worthy of thoughtful consideration. Babbage's "Ninth Bridgewater Treatise," for example, seriously insists on the theory of the permanence of all spoken words. He argues that the pulsations of the air set in motion by human voices cease not to exist with the sounds to which they give rise, but that the waves once started must of a necessity go on forever. He says, "Waves so raised perambulate the surfaces of land and sea, and soon every atom of the atmosphere takes up the altered movement due to the infinitesimal portion of the primitive motion which has been conveyed to it through countless channels and which must continue to influence its paths throughout its future existence." In another portion of his works he says: "Every atom impressed with good and with ill retains at once the motions which have been imparted to it, and these are mixed and combined in tens of thousands of ways. The very atmosphere we breathe is the ever living witness of the sentiments we have uttered. And in another state of being the offender may still hear revibrating in his ears the very words uttered perhaps thousands of centuries before, which at once caused and registered his own condemnation."

Henry Reed, the English lecturer and philosopher, once made a similar declaration in regard to the perpetuity of sound and was afterward informed by some of the more intelligent persons who had been in the audience that for many days afterward they had almost feared to speak, dreading the possibility of the return of the words in the life to come.

A similar idea with regard to the permanence of light waves was promulgated by the great Sir William Hamilton. Walking with Sir John Herschel one day, he remarked, "Would you not like to see one of the great battles of ancient times—say Marathon or Actium?" "Yes," answered Herschel, "but how is the thing to be done?" "Well," replied Hamilton, "if one could travel away from the earth with a velocity exceeding that of light, he would at last arrive at a place where it would be possible to look back on the waves of light set in motion by that battle and thus get a good view of it."—St. Louis Republic.

CONVERTED UP A TREE.

The Rev. Dr. Eddy Preached to an Audience of One and Convinced It.

The Rev. Dr. Eddy was at one time a theological student at the Northwestern university. Accompanied by some of his classmates, he went to the camp meeting, where he was down on the programme to preach his first sermon. Here they found a young man named Fred Houghton, who was much under conviction because of his sins. Soon all the theological students had surrounded the penitent and were exhorting him to accept Christ as his Saviour. Every influence known to the future divines was brought to bear on Houghton, until it became evident that it was becoming somewhat wearisome to him, and he went to the woods. Along toward evening, like Zaccheus of old, who climbed up into a sycamore tree, he ascended into a basswood tree whose limbs nearly touched the ground, and there pursued his meditations.

Dr. Eddy was to preach that night and felt nervous and apprehensive. As the shades of night were approaching he also hied himself to the woods and rehearsed his sermon beneath the tree in which Houghton was ensconced. Thinking himself alone, and that none but the eye of God was upon him, he warmed up and in eloquent tones exhorted his imaginary hearers to accept the faith. When he had finished great was his surprise when Houghton descended from the tree and said he was willing to come to Christ and declared that Dr. Eddy's sermon had saved him.

In after years Dr. Eddy declared that had Houghton shouted while he was in the midst of his funeral sermon over Houghton's remains he would not have been more surprised than he was when Houghton came down the tree.—New York Dispatch.

Booming an Actress.

A press agent of my acquaintance told me once that it was his habit to make contracts with managers and actors for wholesale lots of entirely imaginary stories, which he composed during the intolerable heat of the summer months and which were afterward scattered broadcast throughout the country as true histories. He made a specialty of fairy tales for actresses, whom he was wont to endow with all the virtues, graces and talents calculated to endear them to an art loving community like ours.

In fact, he informed me that he used to write about their "dainty flats filled with rare engravings and choice bric-a-brac, denoting the refined tastes of the occupant," their early religious training, their clothes, their ancestors, their social connections and their numerous offers of marriage—chiefly from millionaires—in short, about everything except their acting, which he explained was something that the public took very little interest in.—Bachelor of Arts.

Earth Curvature and Vision.

One of the "seven wonders of the ancient world" was the Pharos, or light tower at Alexandria. If you have a popular account of that great structure handy, read it carefully and note that you are informed that the tower could be seen at a distance of from 100 to 150 miles. Let us see if this could possibly be true. The curvature of the globe is 6.99 inches to the mile. This being true, we find that an object 100 feet high can only be seen at a fraction over 13 miles. Figuring on the basis of an earth curvature of even seven inches to the mile, we find that the light tower in question must have been over a mile in height if visible even at a distance of 100 miles.—St. Louis Republic.

The Clever Korean Woman.

Out of a few simple ingredients—which her western sister would scorn—and with a few simple implements—that that sister would not understand—often almost without implements and with little fire—fire that must be coaxed and humored, and humored and coaxed—the poorest Korean woman will prepare a meal which no hungry European, prince or peasant, need scorn to eat. It will be savory, wholesome, clean to daintiness and pleasantly served.—Mrs. L. J. Miln's "Quaint Korea."

Millinery Department.

Don't miss to visit this department. Our line of birds, wings, plumes, velvets, crepes and ribbons is complete in all details and as to hats trimmed or untrimmed, caps, toques and sailors, why, we are right in it and way ahead of all others in style and price.

Cloaks, Capes, Suits and Jackets.

Facts count—The great fact that crowds this department is here in a nutshell.

Money buys more at Boehm's than anywhere in Plainfield and the people know it, therefore look at our styles and get our prices before buying elsewhere.

THE MANATEE.

It Is One of the Strangest of Animals Native to America.

Of all the large animals of the American continent, none is more remarkable in form than the manatee.

Although this strange creature is of goodly size, often reaching a weight of several hundred pounds and sometimes attaining a length of 13 feet, yet I venture to say that not more than one person out of every 4,000 in the United States could now arise and correctly answer the question, "What is a manatee?" Whenever you mention the name of the creature to any one save a student of quadrupeds, of a surety you will have that question to answer forthwith.

The manatee is an animal that lives exclusively in the water, and while it is shaped somewhat like a seal it is very far from being one. I mention the seal by way of comparison solely because it is the only quadruped which can be used. The heavy, baglike body, short neck, blunt nose and round head of our harbor seal do indeed suggest the form of the manatee, but there the resemblance stops short.

Instead of having hind flippers like a seal, the body of the manatee terminates in a very broad and very flat tail, which forms an admirable propeller. Its front limbs are simply big, flat paddles, by no means so shapely and useful as the front flippers of a sea lion. It has no hair—or, at least, none to speak of—a smooth, but very thick and tough skin, small, weak eyes and a blunt nose. Instead of having teeth like a seal and feeding on fish, it has only a set of rather weak molars and lives solely on aquatic plants.

It lives in the mouths and lower reaches of rivers that flow into the sea in tropical latitudes, and while it does not object to salt water it is most at home in water that is either brackish or else quite fresh, and the latter is preferred because of its aquatic vegetation. Unlike the seal, it is quite unable to come out on land.

I am glad to be able to say that even today this remarkable animal is an inhabitant of one portion of our strangely diversified United States.

For some particular reason, probably the abundance of good food combined with a good depth of water, a number of manatees have chosen to inhabit the St. Lucie river, Brevard county, Fla., which flows into Indian river, 18 miles above Jupiter inlet. Their presence there has been well known for 20 years or so; but, fortunately for them, they possess neither the checkered leather hide of the sad eyed alligator, the spun glass plumes of the unhappy aigret or the delicious flesh of the wild turkey, and so as yet they have not been entirely exterminated.—W. T. Hornaday in St. Nicholas.

Jewish Monotheism.

As Leopold von Ranke truly said, the exodus of the Jews from Egypt and their breaking with the Egyptian theology of nature worship marked the foundation of the civilization of mankind. Monotheism in its very inception placed man upon the highest pedestal of moral purity, spiritual elevation and ideal aspiration. Only for a nationality erected upon the basis of monotheism was it possible to proclaim in the hoary past the equality of all men in the community and before the law, which tolerated neither the prerogative of caste nor the privilege of aristocratic station. There was no aristocratic, privileged class in Israel; the tribe charged with attending the divine service in the tabernacle and the temple were not to own any property and were dependent altogether upon the people's free and voluntary support.

Under monotheism, there was no disinherited portion, all, as children of the same Father in heaven, were entitled to equal consideration, and as the poor "were to be always with us," the provisions made for their support were adequate and did not degrade them, and could not have that demoralizing influence which today is the heaviest burden which the pauper class has to bear. The sublimest attribute of the one and only God, "beside whom there is none," is that of holiness, and to be a follower of God meant to practice holiness, purity in thought and action. All the laws ordained, as we find them in the written and the oral laws of the Jews, had no other purpose and were distinctly enjoined for the purpose of training man to a life of moral purity and correct conduct, especially to look upon every man as a brother, the son of his Father in heaven, to whom he is bound in ties of love and brotherly affection.—Minorah.

Might Have Given Them Away.

A traveler just returning from Mexico tells an amusing tale of the attempts of a peddler to sell precious stones at an exorbitant price, who in the end consented to dispose of his wares for a mere song. It was at Queretaro, an important city on the line of the Mexican Central railroad.

"When the train pulled in at the depot," said he, "it was immediately surrounded by a score or more of peons trying to sell opals to the passengers. One tall, rather fine looking Indian extended toward me his hand containing ten or a dozen glittering stones.

"How much?" I asked.

"Twelve dollars," replied he. "Cheap, very cheap, only $12."

"No, no!" I replied in an emphatic way. "Muy caro" (very dear).

"Five dollars!" then quoted the vender, turning the stones over in his hand that I might see that they were all there."

"No, $1," said I.

"Yes, yes!" cried the vender eagerly. "One dollar; yes, yes, you can have them for $1. Take them."—New York Herald.

The Electric Ray.

Among the fishes which are capable of giving severe electrical shocks the torpedo or electric ray, a member of the skate tribe, stands out prominently. This fish has a couple of complex batteries lodged in the sides of its head parts, and the discharge of these organs is fraught with dire effects to the animals which may chance to come into the way of this living magazine. The electricity is generated by the nervous system—that is to say, so much nerve force when passed through or into the electrical organ is converted into electricity. Professor d'Arsonval of the College of France tells us that in the case of a torpedo measuring in diameter 30 centimeters, the shock given by this animal amounted to 20 volts. He lit up several small electrical lamps by the discharge from the fish, and this discharge was powerful enough in some cases to carbonize the lamps. It is said that a powerful torpedo may give a discharge measuring 120 volts. This, of course, is more than sufficient to kill prey of ordinary size.—London Illustrated News.

UNDER THE THUMB.

THE STRONGEST AND MOST USEFUL OF THE HUMAN HAND'S DIGITS.

It Is a Sign of Superiority Over Other Creatures—Sacred and Profane History Give It a Place of Prominence—Thumb of the Monkey.

The thumb dominates the hand much as the sturdy "Little Corporal" did France, with the same compelling, tenacious grip. So strong is this supremacy that the phrase "under the thumb" is contemptuously significant of the complete subjection of the weaker will to the stronger. The potency of the thumb has been recognized from the earliest recorded history.

In the Bible we find the earliest record of the thumb and a meager account of it as a factor in religious ceremonies and in punishments. When Aaron and his sons were consecrated to be priests over the Israelites, during the ceremony the blood of a newly killed ram was put on the right ear, the thumb of the right hand and the great toe of the right foot. These priests in cleansing lepers observed similar rites, substituting the blood of a lamb as a "trespass offering" for that of a ram, and followed up the application of blood to the right ear, right thumb and great toe of the right foot by anointing the same members with oil "upon the place of the blood of the trespass offering."

In the fourteenth century, when constant warfare was raging between Scotch and English, "Black" James Douglas contented himself with cutting off the thumbs of the English archers he captured and turning them loose instead of killing them outright, a doom infinitely preferable to the savage border men when they could no longer grip the bow and let fly the deadly arrow.

When the gladiators were led into the arena to furnish amusement for the fashionable Roman world—too often with their lives—how eagerly they must have watched for the sign from the omnipotent thumb. If it was turned down, they were doomed. If up, they were saved. And its verdict could not be appealed from. This practice was not overthrown until A. D. 404, when Telemachus, a Christian monk, threw himself between the contestants at the sacrifice of his life. Then the Emperor Honorious, by a decree, put an end to the gladiatorial games. It is doubtless from this source the nursery game, "Thumbs up!" had its origin. Happily the innocents addicted to it have no idea of its original terrible significance.

If we may trust Shakespeare, biting the thumb under certain circumstances was illegal in the fourteenth century in Verona, and it was regarded as a prologue to a quarrel or a challenge to a fight. In the play of "Romeo and Juliet" we find this curious dialogue between the servants of the rival houses of Montague and Capulet:

Abraham—Do you bite your thumb at us, sir?

Sampson—I do bite my thumb, sir.

Abraham—Do you bite your thumb at us, sir?

Sampson (aside to Gregory)—Is the law on our side if I say aye?

Gregory—No.

Sampson—No, sir. I do not bite my thumb at you, sir, but I bite my thumb, sir.

Gregory—Do you quarrel, sir?

Abraham—Quarrel, sir! No, sir.

Sampson—If you do, sir, I am for you.

And this bickering, which commenced by a simple nibbling of the thumb, ended in a fight with drawn swords.

Recently Mark Twain has made the thumb play a prominent part in fiction. He uses an old theory, credited to the Chinese, that at birth every human being bears on his thumb lines that will forever establish his identity from the fact that no other person has or will have identical ones. This is extremely chimerical and fanciful and would not be accepted as "revelant" by most of the hard headed, unimaginative occupants of the bench in this country. However, from the depths of his own fertile imagination Mark succeeded in luring a judge and jury that gave a verdict in accord with Pudd'n-Head Wilson's photographic argument.

But there are thumbs and thumbs. For one, the "miller's thumb," which is flattened at the tip to a peculiar shape and acquires great delicacy of touch from the sifting of flour through it. So sensitive does it become that a miller can readily determine the grade of flour by the touch. It frequently descends as a birthmark to his children. The "potter's thumb" is similar, and in handmade pottery plays an active part in shaping the ware, insensibly assuming a flattened shape, which distinguishes it.

A certain class of philosophers assert that character may be determined by the thumb's shape. A vain person is said to fold the thumb under if it is too long for beauty. A grasping person has a long thumb that turns backward like a hook. A good natured person has a short thumb.

There is an old superstition concerning a woman's thumb. If in closing the hand the thumb folds out of the fingers she will rule her husband. If under, she will be ruled by him. It is hinted that a majority of them fold out.

In the anatomy of the hand that of man and monkey are almost identical, the radical difference being in the length of the thumb. The monkey's thumb is the same length as his other fingers. The muscular development, however, is different. The monkey's thumb has no "opposing power," merely the grasping power in common with the other fingers.

In the human hand only, on the contrary, the thumb has "opposing power"—that is, the thumb can touch the tips of each or any of the other fingers. But none of the other fingers can touch the tip of any other finger but the thumb. This opposing power constitutes the fundamental difference between the hand of man and monkey and may possibly be the "missing link" which the monkeys have lost.

In grasping the thumb is opposed to four fingers and exerts just four times as much strength. If you doubt it try to hang to a turning pole without using the thumb. An examination of its muscles will show that they are the largest and strongest in the hand.—Chicago Tribune.

Kerosene.

Though kerosene is frequently used in laundry work and in scrubbing the kitchen sink, it is not generally known that it can be successfully used to remove grease from china silk of even delicate shades. A dress, a part of which was covered with axle grease, was washed in kerosene, which took out all the black grease. The cleansing was finished by putting the breadths through a suds made from soap and hot water and rinsing thoroughly. Kerosene is useful also in cleaning wrought iron and in removing rust from steel.

Chicago has a bird hospital, the only one of its kind, it is said, in this country. Here sick and wounded birds are received and cared for.

THE BANK WON THE BETS.

Yet When the Game Was Closed the Banker Was Broke.

"Old Duke Dodge was a fairly sudden man; kept pretty well up with the processions," said an old timer. "He turned faro bank or whatever was the handiest way at the time to make a living, so it wasn't manual labor. One day I met Old Duke at Rock Island as I was coming back from Iowa.

"'Got any money, son?' said Duke. He always called me son.

"'About $150,' I replied.

"'Lend it to me, and I'll open a game for 'em here,' said Duke. 'This town is a sucker in the lump, and it's crazy to play faro bank.'

"So old Duke made up a bank roll of $300. He had cards and a deal box and easily improvised a layout and was ready for action. For chips he went over to a dry goods store and bought a box of those wooden button molds that they make overcoat buttons with.

"Then old Duke Dodge turned loose. The natives came a-running, and the way they set in against the game reminded you of a lot of turkeys around a peck of corn.

"The bank won from the jump, and Duke was chuckling. As nearly as you could guess the game was $400 ahead at the end of an hour.

"All at once Duke noticed an awful thing. He called my attention to it. This was the horrible phenomenon: While the bank had won every big bet—for Duke was a mighty careful dealer—and two-thirds of the others, and while he had, as he found on counting up, full twice as many button molds as Duke ever did buy to begin with, there was still over $500 worth of button molds in the hands of the Rock Island populace clamoring for action. It was worse than a miracle; it was a robbery.

"And Duke had to make 'em good; had to cash every button mold of 'em. It broke him flat, but the town would have killed him if he'd renigged. There the game had won for an hour, and yet he was a bankrupt when he got through settling.

"Those thieves had simply gone over to the same store Duke did and bought out the balance of the stock of button molds and stood 'em against the game. They even tried to play a stack of pants buttons on the ace open—one man did—but Duke saw it in time and barred pants buttons.

"'If I'd gone on and won another hour, son,' said Duke to me as we walked down the railroad track after the game, 'I'd owed $2,000. It's fortunate my luck wasn't any better.'"—Washington Post

THE EVILS OF OVEREATING.

Unless Neutralized by Exercise High Feeding Is Extremely Harmful.

I assert that it is the duty of the good housewife to keep down the appetite of her husband, writes the Rev. F. S. Root in The Ladies' Home Journal. Particularly is this necessary in the cases of well to do professional and business men. In the families of mechanics earning low wages such a warning is almost wholly unnecessary, but it may be said of most men in good circumstances that they eat too freely of rich food. If men would begin careful and systematic physical culture in early youth and continue the practice through life, good health would be the result.

Beyond the age of 40—at a period when so many are physically lazy—the superior value of exercise is apparent, but ordinarily this is just the time when the hygiene of athletics is neglected. There is no reason why a punching bag, rowing machine, pulley weights and other apparatus should be relegated to college boys and clerks. But, having done a good deal of work in his time, it is almost impossible to persuade a business or professional man turning 40 to give any sort of attention to physical culture if such training has been previously neglected.

Hence I say it is the duty of a woman to keep from her husband all rich compounds that will ultimately ruin his digestion. High feeding is occasionally neutralized by hard exercise, but in the absence of the latter it is mischievous in the extreme. If your husband will stand the treatment, begin by switching off from the heavy breakfast of steak, hot rolls, potatoes, etc., and set before him eggs on toast, oatmeal and coffee.

Ancestors.

The search after ancestors inaugurated by the Daughters of the Revolution and Colonial Dames has developed strange relationships. A very high and mighty personage, in tracing out the various descendants of a famous Revolutionary general, whose collateral descendant she was proud to declare herself, found that the direct descent ended in a poor charwoman whom she had been in the habit of employing by the day. It was a lucky find for the latter, for her large hearted and generous connection, exemplifying the old adage that blood is thicker than water, proved a veritable Lady Bountiful to the family. She educated the children, found a promising opening for the son and pensioned off her poor relation, whom the many reverses of health and fortune had quite broken down. It was a great good to arise from what many deem a useless fad.

Mrs. A.'s experience was still less satisfactory. Formerly a believer in the direct transmission of character, she has changed her ideas, since she found in her pedigree a declared criminal, proving that in America it is not safe to place too much reliance on one's ancestors.—New York Tribune.

"Shooting Stars" or Meteors.

When we get down to talking "shooting stars," we begin to brush around in the realm of something which all know something about—at least, a great deal more than we do about supposed fiery lakes in such gigantic worlds as Jupiter. While we may think that we known all about shooting stars, the following will show that there are bypaths in every branch of knowledge which even the wisest among the common herd know but very little about.

For an instance, Flammarion has announced that the visible number of shooting stars which go sizzling through the upper strata of our atmosphere every 24 hours is not less than 7,500,000, and that the telescopic meteors increase this number to 400,000,000! Professor Harkness, making calculations on the same subject, estimates the average weight of these so called "burning stars" to be only one grain. Herschel says that their average height above the earth is something like 73 miles and that they disappear as soon as they strike the dense portions of our atmosphere.—St. Louis Republic.

Keep From the Grate.

During a thunderstorm, it is pointed out, the inhabitants of houses should not remain in the kitchen or other room where a fire is burning in a grate, as the heated gases from the chimney top provide a line of least resistance, and this is so whether the house be provided with lightning rods or not

LOWELL'S MARRIAGE.

His Wife First Got Him Interested In the Slavery Question.

After Lowell's graduation he thought of entering the Divinity school, but he decided at last to study law. Although he was on the very verge of giving it up 20 times, he persevered and received his degree of bachelor of laws in 1840. He opened an office in Boston, but it is doubtful whether he ever had even that "first client" whom he was afterward to describe in a humorous sketch. Not liking the law as a means of livelihood, he finally abandoned it, as Holmes had done only a few years earlier.

Lowell had become engaged to Miss Maria White, who greatly influenced his life. In 1841 came the publication of a volume of poems, some of which had been printed already in the magazines, while others were hasty and crude rhymes which he kept out of later editions of his poems—just as Whittier rejected his own early verses. Lowell was barely 22 when his book appeared, but there was more than one poem in it which gave high promise of his future. In addition to his ability, he had a deep love for letters, and this it was which led him, a year later, to start a monthly magazine. But the magazine soon came to an end, leaving its proprietors in debt.

Until he met Miss White, Lowell's interests and his ambitions were almost wholly literary. Under her influence he came to have a strong sympathy for the slaves. He swiftly saw that in real life there were causes to be fought for better worth the struggle than any mere craving for personal fame. His love for letters never lessened, but it was linked thereafter to the love for human freedom He was married at last in 1844, in which year he brought out a revised edition of his poems. A few months later he gathered from the magazines certain prose criticisms, chiefly about the older English poets—criticisms which he thought so lightly of in later years that he did not allow them to be included in his collected works. And about this time he was a frequent contributor to the Philadelphia Freeman, the antislavery journal formerly edited by Whittier.—"James Russell Lowell," by Brander Matthews, in St. Nicholas.

A MAN OF CAUTION.

He Refused to Sign His Name Except In Lead Pencil.

It is an unwritten but rigidly enforced law that no man be allowed to write his name on a hotel register with a lead pencil. Those who patronize the hotels are well acquainted with the rule and always observe it, but there are some whose familiarity with hotel life is not in an advanced stage, and they are the ones who cause trouble to the clerks by invariably producing their ever ready pencil when they essay to write their name upon the annals of hotelology. A Cincinnati traveling man amused a select coterie of fellow travelers with a narrative in which a pencil and an unsophisticated would be guest at a Louisville hotel played a prominent part. The man with the pencil struck the office of the hotel during a rush, and he had written his name on the register before the clerk noticed the implement he used. The clerk was very polite about it, but he erased the pencil signature and handed the prospective guest a pen freshly dipped in ink.

"I wrote my name once," said the guest. "If that don't suit you, write it yourself." The clerk explained that it was necessary to preserve the register, and for that reason they wished signatures in ink. The explanation didn't suit the guest. He seemed to think the clerk had designs upon him, and he positively refused to write again on the register.

"I'm from the country," he said, "but I'm not as green as I look. I've had some experience in signin things. Signed a contract last fall to pay $2 for some fruit trees, and three months later I had to pay a note for $200 that the feller had switched my name on to. You don't get me to sign nothin more 'ceptin I do it with a pencil, and then I write very light."

The fellow carried his point, too, and the clerk was forced to write his name for him.—Nashville American.

The Donkeys of Bonifacio.

One of the features of Bonifacio, in Corsica, is the extraordinary number of donkeys congregated within its narrow limits. At first I am somewhat puzzled on the subject of stabling, but the mystery is soon explained when I observe several of the pretty little animals to disappear within the dark doorways of dwelling houses in the lower quarters. Like the Irish pig, the Bonifacian donkey is "one of the family."

It may interest the reader to know that a donkey can be purchased here for 17 francs, a mule for 100 francs and a good pony for 200 francs.

It is said of some dogs, also of many persons, that "their bark is worse than their bite." Of the Bonifacian donkey it may be remarked with perfect veracity that his bray is worse than all his other faults combined. I have a painful experience of this on the evening of my arrival. Feeling a little fatigued, I retired to rest at a comparatively early hour, but I no sooner lay my head on the pillow than I am startled by a most unearthly sound in the street below. It is a weird, mournful note something between a Scotch bagpipe and a double bass. By and by a chorus of similar sounds awakens the echoes, and sleep being now banished I spring up and proceed to investigate matters. Immediately below my window an asinine orchestra has taken up its stand, discoursing sweet music to the twinkling stars. The gray dawn creeps over the top of the lofty houses opposite—my horizon is somewhat circumscribed—and still the ear splitting performance continues. At length, with the advent of daylight, I drop into a troubled slumber.

My advice to a stranger in Bonifacio desiring a good night's rest is, take a sleeping draft.—Gentleman's Magazine.

Ghastly Trophies.

Hanging beneath the mantel in the private office in Magistrate Jermon's court are ten pistols which have been the weapons used in various murders for years back. The pistols are of all makes, and range from a single barrel woman's pistol to a British bulldog. The most prominent among them is a big funnel shaped weapon, containing seven barrels, which has a history of killing five men. This was carried by a old city watchman before consolidation. Magistrate Jermon is proud of his collection, which is a present from the district attorney.—Philadelphia Call.

Among every 1,000 inhabitants in the United States there is an average of 381 who are under 16; in France there are only 270 such to the 1,000.

Among the country people of England there is an idea that to touch food which has been nibbled by a mouse will result in a sore throat.

VIRTUE IN ASPARAGUS.

The Effect and Healing Properties of Asparagus.

Asparagus the Great Healer of and Tonic for the Kidneys—Used in France by the Most Eminent Physicians With Great Success.

Symptoms and Effects of Sick Kidneys—Dangerous Not to Cure Them—Sparagus Kidney Pills Cure Kidney Troubles.

Asparagus is one of the common plants which are valuable for medicine, although people don't generally know it.

Did you ever eat asparagus?

Of course?

Well, what were the effects on your kidneys?

Asparagus has the best healing and tonic effects on the kidneys of any drug known.

French physicians discovered this years ago, and have used it ever since.

But the best properties of the plant are to be got in Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.

There is a reason for this, and that is, that the extract of asparagus used in Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills is prepared from the roots, and not the stalks.

Also, that it is prepared by a special process, which extracts all the virtues of the plant without waste.

So that, one Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pill is as good as perhaps ten dishes of asparagus.

There are medicines for this and drugs for that, one for rheumatism, another for gout, another for Bright's disease, or rather, a dozen or more for each sickness.

When, all the time, Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills would cure any one of them.

And the cure made would mean a perfect cure, and not merely a short relief.

For the truth is that the kidneys are the real, sure-enough cause of a large number of our principal diseases.

They are supposed to filter the blood and when they don't, we fall sick.

The only reason they don't, is because they are sick themselves, and the only thing that will cure them is Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.

The blood needs continual purifying or filtering.

Impure blood is poisonous. Poison in the blood is disease.

The diseases caused by bad blood are sometimes called "blood diseases" A few of them are rheumatism, gout, anaemia, pale and sallow complexion, chlorosis or green sickness, nervousness, neuralgia, etc.

All these, and all other blood diseases can be cured by curing the kidneys.

This is the true meaning of "aiding nature." Aid her to throw off sickness by helping the sick kidneys.

Kidney diseases of all kinds are cured by Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.

They will cure Bright's disease, nephritis, congestion, diabetes, pain in the back, sleeplessness, etc.

Don't overwork your kidneys. Take care of them. Don't work too much, worry too much, eat too much, drink too much.

If you do, your kidneys will suffer, and you will suffer from the effects of their sickness.

Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills will cure sick kidneys. They will also prevent your kidneys from getting sick if taken in time when the first symptoms of the sickness appear.

They will cure diseases which doctors and drugs are often unable to relieve.

A few boxes will relieve. A few boxes will cure.

For sale by all druggists, or by mail prepaid for 50c a box.

BELLOWS HOLD THEIR OWN.

Blacksmiths Stick to Them Notwithstanding the Newer Power Blowers.

The blacksmith's bellows has three boards. When the bellows is set up in position, the middle board is fixed; the upper and lower boards are movable. There is a valve in the middle board and one in the lower board. When the bellows is not in use, the lower board falls as far as the leather will permit it, and that compartment is then filled with air. With the working of the lever and the raising of the lower board the air in the lower compartment is forced through the valve in the middle board into the upper compartment, which is the reservoir, whence it flows through the nozzle of the bellows into the fire. When the pressure from below ceases, the valve in the middle board closes, and the air is then forced out from the upper compartment or reservoir of the bellows by the weight of the upper board. Sometimes this board is weighted to make it expel the air more rapidly and forcibly. The continuance of the blast without the working of the lever, caused by the gradually sinking upper board of the bellows, may last for a quarter of a minute. It is a highly prized characteristic of the bellows. The blacksmith who is alone is thus enabled, if he should so desire, to use both hands at the fire, or he might go across the shop and be back swaying the lever once more before the blast had ceased.

A good bellows will last for many years without repairs. Blacksmiths' bellows are made in various sizes from 24 inch to 60 inch. The 36 inch is the size most commonly sold. The size is the width at the widest point. Bellows are longer than they are wide, and they are made of different lengths in the same width, ordinary, and long. There are about 15 bellows manufacturers in the country, including three in New York and one in Brooklyn.

Manufacturing and other establishments supplied with power forges are nowadays equipped with power blowers, and there are also various hand blowers, some operated with a crank and some with a lever, and there are now used many portable forges and blowers combined. The sale of modern appliances for blowing forge fires has increased greatly in recent years, while the sale of bellows has not. But there are shipsmiths and boiler makers, wheelwrights, carriage and wagon makers and others who still use bellows, and almost every horseshoer uses a bellows and prefers it to any other means of blowing his fire, so that there are still sold thousands of bellows annually.—New York Sun.

HOW LONDONERS SPEND MONEY.

They Impoverish Themselves In Useless, Health Destroying Pleasures.

Londoners impoverish themselves and make themselves absurdly miserable by their own devices. Most of the things on which they expend their money are vanities or frauds. Their houses and their dress, as we have seen, are pitiful, their special literature often worse than none, their art the pictures on the hoardings, their amusements sensual. Their very holidays are miserable labor, dull excitements, almost wholly without physical or mental good or intellectual gain. A time of quiet relaxation or of natural enjoyment is indeed the lot of but few. Crowded excursion trains and the rude company at seaside towns are the infliction of the lower, middle and the working classes, and bank holidays are perhaps as much an injury as a blessing. Railways and steamboats and the means of entertainment are so overcrowded that all healthy, civilized enjoyment is impossible, and so the manners of the people become coarser from the very means that should promote improvement.

On the continent each parish has its isolated fete, well managed and within the means at hand, and thus these fetes are graceful, civilizing entertainments. We in London need such limitedly local relaxations, so that each part of the metropolis being, as occasion may require, assisted by the others, district holidays might be a means of good alternately to all the population. Probably from mere conceit or mental laziness the people are so fond of bigness and monotony that they entirely overlook the ways of providence, in which the multitudinously small and varied is the rule. Monotony and uniformity, the radical idea, are alike apart from providence and healthy human nature.—Quarterly Review.

Oldest House In New York.

One of the few relics left of the early colonial days is still standing at Southampton, N. Y. This town claims the preeminence of being the oldest English town in the state of New York, and the ancient house referred to was built by Thomas Sayre, one of the first settlers. It was erected in 1648 and has been handed down from father to son in an unbroken line for ten generations, the present owner being the direct descendant of the builder.

At a time of threatened Indian outbreak in 1666 it was one of the rallying places of the inhabitants in case of a night attack. The descendants of Thomas Sayre are very numerous, both in this state and in New Jersey. The ancient mansion, which stands on the main street of the village, is an object of curious interest to the multitude of city residents who find in that quiet village by the sea a summer resting place.

The massive timbers and covering of thick cedar shingles are sufficient to insure its remaining for years to come as a curious and interesting relic of a long past age. Of no other house in the state can it be said that ten generations have been born and died within its walls.—New York Herald.

Bookshelves.

A pretty room seen lately had stationary bookshelves for its student owner running in single rows about its walls. One row began at each end of the chimney piece, on a line with the mantel board and ran across to the windows at one side and on the other to a closet door. Each row turned the corner without a break. The shelves were narrow slabs of wood, matching the rest of the woodwork in the room. On the lower shelf the books were placed, the upper shelf holding bits of china and bric-a-brac. Across the wide space between the windows the row swelled to the dimensions of two shelves, dropping back again to one shelf to finish its course. The effect was very attractive, and as the room was the workroom of its owner, the limited shelves held all that was needed in the way of reference books.

New Orleans Women.

"The ornaments of a home are the friends who frequent it," says Emerson. The ornaments of a city are the men and women who work for its progress and who represent its advancing ideals. Enrolled in the list of those New Orleans can point to with greatest pride are the wise, energetic, modest women who quietly, persistently work for the best local development.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A PEOPLE OF FEW WORDS.

"Let your speech be yea yea, and nay, nay," says the Good Book, "for whatsoever is more than these cometh of evil." The Shakers abide by the spirit of this rule. Their words are few, simple, sincere and direct. They waste no energy in idle talk they use it in thinking and doing. And whatever they do they do with their might. They are content with nothing short of the essence and principles of the things they investigate. They take pains and are patient. And thus the doors of many strange truths open to them. In this way they discovered what may almost be called the unity of disease. A venerable Shaker says of it: "It is said that one man's meat is another man's poison. That is but half the truth. Any man's meat is any man's poison, under certain conditions. If the grain never got further than the hopper we should never have bread; and if bread never got further than the stomach we should never have strength. When the stomach is torpid, helpless and inflamed the food lies in it and rots. This fermentation produces poisons which may, and often do, disorder every other organ and function of the body. This is indigestion or dyspepsia, with many symptons and disguises. Cure it and you cure nine-tenths of our complaints." These words were uttered many years ago. Since then they have found a remedy, now known as the Shaker Digestive Cordial. It is made from medicinal plants cultivated by them. It is a food and digests other foods. Taken while eating it rests the stomach and nourishes the system. The pains and distresses of dyspepsia disappear before it. It prevents fermentation and soon restores full power to the digestion. It succeeds in the worst cases. It is worthy the name of that people whose name it bears. Any druggist will sell you a trial bottle for ten cents.

ROBBERS AIDED BY A HORSE.

A Trained Animal That Carried the Victim to the Camp of the Rascals.

"When I was in Nebraska, near the Snake river, north of the Great Sand hill, in 1859," said a Lewiston citizen, "we had four camps, situated about 18 miles apart, and to go from Thorne's camp to Dunham camp it was necessary to go through a long piece of pine woods. For a number of months every one who had gone through the woods alone never came back. One day it was necessary that I should go through with a lot of money and no escort, and I set out on a horse that I got from a stable keeper near Thorne's camp.

"When I had nearly reached the woods, five miles out, my horse was taken ill and refused to go on. Clearly to my medical eye it had been poisoned slightly by some one. Soon what looked like a hunter came along on a horse and offered to swap, taking mine back to the stable if I would leave his near Dunham camp with a trapper. I ought to have seen through this, but did not. I got on to the powerful horse of the stranger and started through the five miles of woods. Half way through, without any apparent reason, the horse broke into a trot, a gallop, and finally a run, and dashing off the trail through the woods picked his way among trees as nicely as if he had gone that way 100 times. Pull as I would at the bridle, he paid no attention, but ran the faster. When he had leaped a brook and landed on the sand beyond, the marks of footprints alarmed me and I slipped off at the risk of my life. He ran on up a ravine and I hid, fearing that it was a trap, as it afterward proved. In a little while three men armed with rifles came back on the trail, one riding the horse, now as calm as a lamb. I picked my way to the road and got out to the camp.

"Two weeks later 19 of us followed a man who hired a horse at the same place I did. It was taken ill, and the same trapper came along on the same horse. When the horse dashed into the woods, as he had been trained to do, 19 of us dashed after him and finally arrived at a mountain camp of the robbers. We took every man—seven of them—and, well, law was not well supported out there then, and no court sat nearer than 200 miles. We didn't carry the rascals away from their own campfire. The trained horse met the fate of its owners."—Lewiston Journal.

TALK OF THE TOWN!

AND EXPLANATION WHY

Amos H. VanHorn

LIMITED,

73 Market st., Near Plane Street,

are doing all the business. Our stock is the largest, prices are the lowest and terms the easiest in the city. Just give it a passing thought that you can get an antique oak bedroom suit, 8 pieces, for $15, $20, $25 and $30, including a woven wire bedspring and a mixed mattress. No house in the city offers such inducements.

And then to think again that you can get tapestry Brussels carpet for 50, 60, and 70 cents a yard, made and laid with paper, which is a saving of 15c per yard. Where is there a house in the city that will offer such bargains?

And then imagine and wonder how we can afford to give away a moquette rug or parlor table with a parlor suit for $20, $30, $40 or $50.

Some of our competitors say that our ads are too much sameness, and that this ad. is old. Well, we will admit it, but as long as it does the business and saves the people money we will continue to run it.

PORTLAND RANGE

Well, there is no use saying anything about them. The eating of the pudding is always the proof of it. 75 of them sold last week.

STORING FURNITURE.

THE SON FOLLOWS FATHER.

DEATH OF ANDREW D. MELLICK, JR., THIS MORNING.

Though an Invalid for Years His Mind Was Bright and Keen and He Gained a Wide Reputation in Literature.

Andrew D. Mellick, Jr., author of "The Story of an Old Farm" and of many brief historical brochures and newspaper articles, died at his residence on La Grande avenue about 11:30 o'clock this morning, aged fifty-one years. His illness ran over a period of about fifteen years, during twelve of which he was confined to an invalid's couch, and for about three months past he had not left his bed. It was during this period of invalidism that he prepared, wholly by dictation, the "Story" by which he is known in other lands than in America.

Mr. Mellick was born in New York city on October 23d, 1844, and was the second son and child of Andrew D. Mellick, Sr., of this place, who died in August last, aged eighty-four years. Of his eight children, Andrew D., Jr, was the second.

Early in life, the firm of A. D. Mellick, Jr., & Brother, was formed and became the best known real-estate partnership operating in New Jersey. Their main office was in New York, but their development of real-estate was chiefly along the line of the Central Railroad.

After the panic of 1872, when business in land came to a sudden standstill, the firm dissolved and subsequently Andrew D. turned his attention to the law. He was admitted to the bar of New York, and became the manager of the real-estate and trust business of Coudert Brothers, lawyers, of 68 William street. This position he was filling at the time of an untoward accident, which made of him an invalid and compelled his withdrawal from active business life.

During the period from 1870 to 1880 he was an active member of the Third Brigade, First Division of the National Guard of the State of New York, and served as captain and major on the staff of Gen. J. M. Varian from 1872 to 1880.

He was in New Mexico in 1880 on business for the firm, inspecting a large tract of land near Las Vegas. While on a Comanche pony, the animal was violently thrown, by a misstep, and Mr. Mellick sustained injuries and a severe shock. Subsequently he was informed by his physician that he had the incurable spinal affection known as locomoter ataxia. And so it proved.

He went to Europe just previous to the accident and he made a second visit there in 1882. He returned at the latter date a confirmed invalid, unable to leave the house except as he was occasionally driven about in a carriage, without hope of final recovery.

Mr. Mellick contributed a large number of sketches of travel and historical notes to various newspapers, chiefly to The Evening Post, both previous and subsequent to his enforced retirement from business activities. About the year 1887 he turned his attention to some genealogical researches with a view to prepare a sketch of his German ancestor on his father's side, for private distribution. There was then no thought of any extensive literary work in connection therewith. But he found new materials abundant for a history of events in New Jersey preceding and during the Revolution, and there soon developed from his active and well-equipped mind a large volume which, when published in 1889, became at once recognized as the most facile, graceful and readable narrative of the events of which it treats ever published in his native State, and which secured high enconiums from British critics.

His treatment of the Hessians in the Revolutionary struggle was as creditable to his head and heart as to his family name, and the insight it gives into men and things, events and customs, of the pre-Revolutionary period in America led the Saturday Review of London to say: "We have had more than one good volume lately on life and manners in the last century in what are now the United States, but Mr. Mellick's 'Story of an Old Farm' is perhaps the most entertaining and instructive of all, as it is unquestionably the most exhaustive."

Every review, at home and abroad, paid tribute to the marvellous felicity of style and the great historical accuracy of the tale. It was a tale, because the foundation was a sketch, somewhat fanciful, of the emigration from Bendorf, on the Rhone, to New Jersey, of a few plain German folk in the middle of the Eighteenth Century, and of their homelife and surroundings in Bedminster, Somerset county, but thereby hung what was infinitely richer than the tale, a description of Colonial days, as faithful to fact as they are delightful to whoever loves to read a charming book.

Mr. Mellick's reading was extensive, his historical judgment true, and he was unremitting in ferreting out what other people would have given up in despair. Unable to write with his own hand a single word, after reading works by proxy, and trusting much to friends and relatives to pen down what his alert mind would dictate, it is astonishing how wide became his range of learning and how happy was his language.

At the time of his death, he had in preparation a history of Plainfield from the earliest times, and the first part of it relating to the Indian settlement was practically completed The next part would have carried it to the close of the Revolution, and the third and last to the close of the Civil War.

Mr. Mellick was the Secretary of the Sons of the American Revolution in New Jersey, an energetic organization of which the Hon. John Whitehead, of Newark, is prerident. Of this society he was a most painstaking and efficient officer, although never able to attend a meeting.

The notice of date of his funeral will be announced hereafter.

PROF. RIGGS' LECTURE.

He Will Give an Interesting Talk on Constantinople.

One cannot always visit places of historic interest, but some people can, and among them are a few who have a knack of reproducing in words their travels and what they have seen. Such a person is Rev. James F. Riggs, professor of Greek and Latin at Rutgers College. Mr. Riggs was born in Constantinople and is thoroughly well versed and conversant with the place. Friday evening, November 8th, in Trinity Reformed church, Mr. Riggs will relate in his entertaining way all that's of interest about Constantinople. The lecture is under the auspices of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of the church, and those who attend will not be disappointed.

Took the County Lumber.

The old lumber which was taken off the Farragut avenue bridge some time ago when the repairs were made by the Union and Somerset county Freeholders, and laid at the side of the road near the structure, has been taken by some unknown parties and evidently appropriated to their own use. Any information as to who the guilty parties are would be received by Freeholder L. E. Barkalew of the borough.

A West End Residence.

Henry Leifke has just started a new $6,000 residence in West End Park and J. P. Emmons is doing the mason work. The house, as planned by Clum & Lancaster, is a very handsome one with octagonal tower and large reception hall in front. The staircase is a handsome one of hard wood. The house is equipped with all the modern improvements. Pierson & Gayle will do the carpenter work.

A Chair With a History.

Ex-Marshal William Pangborn, who was one of the judges of election at the first district in the borough occupied a chair that has a history. It was one of several made by the late William Squier many years ago, for the old railroad station on North avenue, and later was presented to Mr. Pangborn by Mrs. Squier. It is exceeding comfortable and the owner is very proud ot it.

Building on Netherwood Heights.

Two fine residences are now in the process of construction on Netherwood Heights. One is for J. C. Manning and the other for E. P. Rider. They are each valued at about $6,000, and contain all the modern improvements. The inside fittings are all of hardwood and both are built on the colonial style. Clum & Lancaster were the architects.

The Plaster Fell.

A large piece of the ceiling in the law office of Lawyer C. L. Moffett, over Reynolds drug store, fell yesterday afternoon during Mr. Moffett's temporary absence. As it was directly over his head when he was at his desk he considers he had a very providential escape from serious injury.

For a pain in the side or chest there is nothing so good as a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of pain. It affords prompt and permanent relief and if used in time will often prevent a cold from resulting in pneumonia. This same treatment is a sure cure for lame back. WINNERS ON THE GRIDIRON.

PLAINFIELD Y. M. C. A. FOOTBALL TEAM WIN A GAME.

The Prudentials, of Newark, Are Unable to Prevent the Rushing Athletes from Scoring—Points of the Game.

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. eleven played their first game of football on the home grounds yesterday before a crowd of several hundred people. The home team played against an eleven from the Prudential Life Insurance Company, of Newark, and had no trouble in defeating them by the score of 16 to 0. The Y. M. C. A. boys outweighed their opponents and put up a better game behind the line, but despite that fact, the game was a very exciting one and was hotly contested throughout. The visitors were weakened by the loss of several of their best and heaviest players, but tried hard to prevent their antagonists from rolling up a high score.

The Plainfield boys all did remarkably well and deserve great credit. Brown, Rand, and McGee made a centre that carried all before it. The backs and ends did very good work. Captain Freeman showed that he was the right man for the place. His signals were given distinctly and with judgement. He circled the ends in a way which delighted the crowd. Smith played the game of his life and was constantly passing Newark's line and downing the runner far in the rear. Of the new players Dupee put up an especially fine game.

The Prudential men had the ball when the game began, but a weak kick was caught and rushed almost to the twenty-five yard line. Quick and snappy playing brought it close to the line and then Freeman, covered by the good interference of the other backs, rounded the left end and made a touch down. Smith easily kicked the goal. Newark kicked off again but the ball gradually worked its way down to their goal and then Green made the prettiest run of the day, running thirty yards with the two teams at his heels and making a touchdown. He was aided in his run by the interference. Smith kicked the goal. The first half of twenty-five minutes came to an end with the ball twenty yards from the visitor's goal.

In the second half the fight was fiercer than before and at last Cathcart was sent over the line in an irresistible rush of the Plainfield players. No goal was kicked. The second half ended with the ball near the middle of the field. Plainfield's goal was never in danger and Newark worked mostly on the defensive. The game was remarkable for the number of kicks, the Y. M. C. A. using them to great advantage.

The line-up of the two teams was as follows:

PLAINFELD Y. M. C. A.		PRUDENTIAL A. C.
Clarence Peck	left end	Schmidt
E. I. Serrell	left tackle	Evans
R. A. McGee	left guard	Dennis
Harry Rand	centre	Bray
Edward Brown	right guard	McOver
Charles P. Dupee	right tackle	Pope
V. F. Green	right end	Biker
Roger Erickson	quarter back	Schuff
T. U. Smith	left half back	Pennington
F. H. Freeman	right half back	Gould
George Catheart	full back	Fairlamb

Appointed Auditor.

P. J. Ryan, ex-president of the City Council, has been appointed auditor by the Union County Court in the $300,000 attachment suit brought against Lecnard Forbes Beckwith by Allan W. Evarts, receiver for the estate of Arthur Beckwith, deranged. Mr. Ryan will sell the five and one-half acres of land in Linden Township which party belongs to Leonard Beckwith, the absconding debtor, and will settle with the creditors, so far as the receipts from this sale will permit.

Trying to Get His Child.

Mr. VanNest, of the borough, who has a child in the Children's Home, placed there because the father was unable to take care of it, has been attempting to get the child away from the home, but his efforts were in vain.

Riddle to Appear.

George Riddle, the greatest reader in the country, will entertain at the Y. M. C. A. hall on December 6th.

W. A. McGuire, a well known citizen of McKay, Ohio, is of the opinion that there is nothing as good for children troubled with colds or croup as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He has used it in his family for several years with the best results and always keeps a bottle of it in the house. After having la grippe he was himself troubled with a severe cough. He used other remedies without benefit and then concluded to try the children's medicine and to his delight it soon effected a permanent cure. 25 and 50c bottles for sale at Reynolds's pharmacy, Park and North aves. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

A DAY OF REPUBLICANISM.

NEW JERSEY AND EVERYWHERE ELSE GOES AGAINST DEMOCRACY.

Griggs Carries the State by an Immense Plurality—Codington and Reed Both Get There—The Vote in the City.

Yesterday was a day of Republicanism, not only in Plainfield where an uncommonly large majority was rolled up, but all over the State and country. The Democrats seemed to get out their vote in the city in pretty fair shape, but they were snowed under with the avalanche of adverse ballots.

The estimated comparative vote of this year and the election of three years ago is as follows:

DELIGHTFUL SOCIAL EVENT.

Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Carman Celebrate Their Wedding Anniversary.

The beautiful home of Dr. and Mrs. John H. Carman on Somerset street was the scene yesterday afternoon of a charming social event.

The occasion was the tenth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Carman. The parlor was exquisitly arranged with a choice profusion of roses, yellow chrysanthemums and smilax. In the dining room the table was prettily decorated. Suspended from the chandelier to the corners of the table were streamers of yellow silk ribbon, while the sides were edged with smilax. Across the table were broad bands of yellow satin ribbon. The whole scene was one of rare beauty.

Mrs. Carman wore her wedding gown of white Ottoman silk, trimmed with Duchess lace, and was a charming hostess. She was assisted in receiving by Mrs. H. A. Garthwait, of Brooklyn, and Mrs. C. R. Thiers, of North Plainfield.

Those who poured chocolate and coffee were Mrs. Frank Rowley, of North Plainfield, and Mrs. Franklin Sackett, of Westfield. They were assisted by Miss Anna Smith, Miss Agnes Smith, Miss Edith Lane, Miss Marion Dryden, of Plainfield; Miss Margaret Purdue, of East Orange; Miss Lillian Hart of Brooklyn; and Merriam Carman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Carman, who served the dainty refreshments. The reception was from four to seven o'clock, and at eight o'clock the hostess gave a progressive euchre party to those who assisted her. Miss Marion Dryden and Dr. C. R. Thiers won first prizes, while Franklin Sackett and Miss Anna Smith captured second prizes. The playing was excellent and thoroughly enjoyed.

Rung With a False Key.

About 11:30 last night an alarm was sent in from fire-alarm box 132, corner of Manning and Westervelt avenues. Andrew Kenney happened to be passing in that vicinity and saw a strange man attempting to open the box. Just at that moment the alarm sounded and the man started to run. Mr. Kenney called to him to stop, but he kept on running, the latter after him. The former finally stopped and Mr. Kenney had almost caught up to him when he started again. This time he disappeared.

Mr. Kenney went back and found a false key in the box. He was unable to catch the stranger and did not even know who he was. The key was then turned over to Chief Fairchild.

Democrats, Our Cause Was Just.

Democrats:—The fight has been fought and we have lost. We were worthy of a better result, never did our party present a better candidate, or were we prompted by loftier aims, than in this controversy.

Though defeated we are not crushed, let us hold together, and in next year's contest will redeem the fair name and fame of our State.

James E. Martine,
President of Plainfield Democratic Association.

Lincoln Avenue Sounds Nice.

Freeholder L. E. Barkalew is circulating a petition among the residents of Emily street asking the Borough Council to change the name of that thoroughfare to Lincoln avenue, and is meeting with ready signers. The name will probably be changed by the Council.

In Vaults in New York.

The wedding presents given to Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Van Buren have been taken to New York and placed in safety deposit vaults. They have not been taken to the residence of Mr. Van Buren on Central avenue as was stated yesterday.

Death of Mrs. Townley.

Mrs. Alonzo Townley died this morning at her home on New street, after a long illness. The funeral services will be held Saturday morning, at nine o'clock from St. Mary's R. C. church.

—The registry board in the first district of the Fourth ward desire to express their appreciation of Councilman Frazee's generosity in providing them with coffee and sandwiches.

Croup is a terror to young mothers. To post them concerning the first symptoms, and treatment is the object of this item. The first indication of croup is hoarseness. In a child who is subject to croup it may be taken as a sure sign of the approach of an attack. Following this hoarseness is a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's Cough remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the rough cough has appeared it will prevent the attack. It has never been known to fail. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

THE GOLF COURSE OPENED.

MANY PLAINFIELDERS BECOME ENTHUSED WITH THIS NEW SPORT.

Wind and Weather Was Very Favorable, and Many Took Occasion to Visit the Grounds—Ladies Receiving.

The new golf course of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club was formally opened yesterday afternoon under the most favorable conditions of wind and weather. The affair had been much talked of and the enviable reputation that the Hillside Club has achieved for giving delightfully informal receptions, as well as the novelty of the affair in Plainfield, served to bring many people to the club's newly-acquired grounds. An attractive tent, decorated in oriental style, had been pitched south of Sherman avenue, between Plainfield and Grant avenues, and in it the ladies who represented the club received its guests. The tea table and chocolate table were tastefully set out with the club's china and tea services, and each was graced by a huge bunch of yellow chrysanthemums. Mrs. John Doull Miller received for the club, assisted by Mrs. Evarts Tracy, Miss Howard Tracy, Miss Talmadge, Miss Daisy Shepard, Miss Edith Smalley, Miss Gertrude Baker and Miss Stewart.

Lines of carriages filled the adjoining roadways and the course from one end to the other was dotted with players and interested spectators. The hedges near the tent were decorated by a number of the club flags, blue with diagonal white stripes, and one floated from the top of the tent-pole, while the bright red marking flags on the course lent plenty of color to the scene. The entrance for carriages was marked by the club's flags, and the traps were so well managed and so successfully kept out of the line of play that there was no inconvenience either to players or coachmen. One man was kept busily employed all day in sanding, pounding and raking the tees so that they were always in good condition and the greens were in remarkably good shape considering their newness.

Play commenced early in the morning and continued almost without intermission until darkness intervened. Among those noticed playing during the day were: Josiah Browne, treasurer of the club; William Palmer Smith, A. D. Shepard, Jr., Burritt Shepard, J. S. Anthony, Evarts Tracy, Fred Walz, Howard Beebe, T. F. Sykes, J. D. Miller, C. Miller, Wm. Baker, Henry West, George Schoonmaker, Parker Mason and many others, including several ladies.

The reception was from half-past two until five in the afternoon and nearly everyone stayed until the last as the Indian summer afternoon was more pleasant out of doors than in.

An amusing incident of the day proved conclusively the advantage of colored caddies over their little white brothers. A fall in play from the first tie was driven into the evergreens on the little hill that rises beyond the first hedge. The caddie, having placed the ball was sent ahead, while the voice of the player was heard admonishing him to "watch out" as he was going to drive the ball through the trees instead of going around them. Soon the clear "clip" of the stroke came from the trees, followed almost immediately by a sound as if the ball had struck a pine board and the black caddie was seen rubbing his head and thoughtfully looking at the ball which lay at his feet. Then the following conversation ensued:

Player: "Did that ball strike your head?"

Caddie: "Yaas, sir."

Player: "Goodness! didn't it hurt you?"

Caddie: "Naw sir; didn't feel noffin."

The player was silent but unconvinced, but when he asked the boy again shortly afterwards if he was sure he was not hurt the small clubbearer insisted that he "didn't feel noffin." A white caddie would have been laid up for the rest of the day by such an accident.

Space forbids the enumerating of the guests of the club. Suffice it to say that as usual the pick of Plainfield society was there and everyone seemed enthusiastic about the game and anxious to try it. Golf has undoubtedly obtained a firm foothold in Plainfield and means to stay.

Accident Will Be Investigated.

County Physician O'Reilly has ordered an inquest for next Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock on the killing of Harry Vogel and Gustave Haefner, of Linden, who were run down by a train on the Pennsylvania railroad crossing last Thursday night. Dr. O'Reilly has investigated the accident and reached the conclusion that some one is to blame for the double fatality.

IT WAS REPUBLICAN DAY

Democrats Suffer Defeat in Many States.

New York, New Jersey and Maryland in Line—Tammany Carries New York City But Brooklyn Elects a Republican Mayor—Campbell Defeated in Ohio and Greenhalge Re-elected in Massachusetts—Republicans' Big Plurality in Pennsylvania.

New York, Nov. 6.—Republicans carried New York state by 60,000 plurality, New Jersey by over 15,000, Maryland by 10,000, and claim to have captured Kentucky. Besides swinging these states over into the republican column they increased their usual majorities in Massachusetts, Ohio, Iowa and all other states where elections were held. It was a democratic Waterloo. Tammany elected her local ticket by about 30,000, and New York city went democratic for secretary of state by 41,000, but the republicans came down to the Bronx with over 100,000 votes to spare. In the 10th congressional district in this city Amos J. Cummings (dem.) was selected, but his success was plainly due to his personal popularity. Of the 50 senetors in the state the democrats elected 16, and of the 150 assemblymen 46. The republican gains were general all over the state. In this city and Brooklyn republican senators and assemblymen were elected where democrats have been returned for a number of years. In Brooklyn the republicans have probably elected their canditate for mayor. The vote is very close. In Albany, Buffalo and other cities republican gains were made.

New Jersey Republican.

In New Jersey where democrats have won gubernatorial elections for many years, John W. Griggs, rep., has been elected governor. Of the seven senators elected six are republican and of the sixty assemblymen forty belong to the same party. In Maryland every county has been carried by the republicans, and even the city of Baltimore capitulated. Returns from Kentucky leave that state in doubt with both sides claiming the state. Massachusetts has been carried by Frederick T. Greenhalge, rep., for governor, by 70,000. In Ohio the republican plurality is constantly growing and will not stop far short of 100,000. Asa S. Bushnell, rep., will be the next governor. Utah has adopted her state constitution and has elected a republican legislature and Charles E. Allen, rep., for representative in congress. The contest on governor is close, but Hubert M. Wells, rep., is probably elected. The latest returns from Virginia indicate that the next legislature will be composed of 110 democrats and 30 antis. Republicans claim to have carried Iowa by 75,000.

TAMMANY'S VICTORY.

The Tiger Defeats the Entire County Fusion Ticket.

New York, Nov. 6.—Tammany won a substantial victory yesterday, piling up for the democratic state ticket and the entire democratic county ticket, with the help of her German allies, pluralities greater than democratic prophets had foreseen after the slaughter of last year. The plurality in this city for Horatio C. King, dem., for secretary of state, over John Palmer, rep., is 43,000. For county clerk, Henry D. Purroy, Tammany, has 17,000 plurality over Thomas L. Hamilton, fusion. For register, Wm Sohmer, Tammany, defeats Thomas F. Keating, rep., by about 25,000. Frederick Smyth, Charles H. Truax and Charles F. MacLean are elected justices of the supreme court; Martin T. McMahon and Joseph E. Newburger, judges of the general sessions, and Robert A. Van Wyck, John P. Schuchman, and Edward F. O'Dwyer, justice of the city court, by pluralities running from 17,000 to 23,000. Steckler got about 8,000 votes. Amos J. Cummings, Tammany, i elected congressman in the Tenth district by 3,000 plurality over Robert A. Greacen. Of the twelve candidates for senator elected in this city Tammany elected nine, losing the Fifteenth, Seventeenth, and Nineteenth districts. Of the 35 assemblymen Tammay elected 26, being defeated in nine districts.

Parkhurst Not Surprised.

New York, Nov. 6.—Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst expressed no surprise at the result of yesterday's eleceion in this city. He said: "All I can say is that, if we have been defeated, my belief and experience are that we should learn a lesson from our defeat, such as it will be necessary that the citizens of this town shall be thoroughly conversant with, in order that they may be able, avoiding the mistakes of the past, to go forward to better things."

The Result in Erie County.

Buffalo, Nov. 6.—The republican plurality in Erie county, eighteen districts missing, is 10,104. The missing districts will increase the plurality about 1,000. These senators are surely elected from Erie county: Forty-seventh district, Charles Lang, rep.; Forty-eighth district, Simon Seibert, rep.; Forty-ninth district, Georg A. Davis, rep. These members of assembly are elected from Erie county: First district, Cornelius Caughlin, dem., 91 plurality; Second district, Henry W. Hill, rep.; Fourth district, Philip Springweiler, rep.; Fifth district, Charles Braun, rep.; Sixth district, Christopher Smith, rep.; Seventh district, Henry L. Steiner, rep.; Eighth district, Herman Blaisdell, rep.

Coggshall Re-elected.

Rome, N. Y., Nov. 6.—Henry J. Coggshall for senator gets 700 majority in Rome and is re-elected by a large majority.

Krum Elected Senator.

Amsterdam, N. Y., Nov. 6.—Judge Borst concedes the election of Hobart Krum, republican, for senator of the 27th senatorial district.

Close Vote in Albany County.

Albany, Nov. 6.—The vote is very close on the state and county tickets in Albany county, and it is estimated that the county will not go 300 either way.

Lexow Re-elected.

Nyack, N. Y., Nov. 6.—Senator Lexow and Assemblyman Cuttler are elected by safe majorities.

OHIO.

Republicans Claim the State by Nearly 100,000 Plurality.

Columbus, O., Nov. 6.—As later and more reliable returns come in from Ohio the plurality given the state republican ticket seems to increase. This morning Governor McKinley said the plurality for General Bushnell, republican, for governor, will reach 100,000. He has sent a telegram to General Bushnell congratulating him upon his magnificent election as governor of Ohio. General Anderson, chairman of the democratic state executive committee, at this hour admits that the face of the returns so far received indicate a plurality of at least 40,000 for Bushnell. He hopes, however, that later returns will be more favorable and does not yet concede the state. It is almost certain that the republicans will have a large majority on joint ballot in the general assembly.

Latest Claim of Republicans.

Columbus, O., Nov. 6.—The chairman of the republican state committee of Ohio claims a republican plurality for governor of 80,000, and that both branches of the legislature are republican by decided majorities.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Republicans Carry the State and Democrats Make a Few Gains.

Boston, Nov. 6.—Massachusetts yesterday re-elected Gov. F. T. Greenhalge for a third term by some 65,000 plurality over George Fred Williams, democrat, in a total vote some 10,000 less than last year. Lieut.-Gov. Walcott, rep., is re-elected by a plurality nearly as large. The balance of the republican state ticket is re elected by slightly smaller pluralities. Wm. H. Moody is elected to congress in the 6th district by some 10,000 majority over Harvey B. Suepard, dem. The executive council stands seven republicans to one democrat. The democrats have gained one senator in Boston and a few representatives throughout the state. The question "Is it expedient to grant municipal suffrage to women?" is decided in the negative by a majority rising 55,000, or very nearly two to one.

KENTUCKY.

Democrats Still Claim the State by a Small Majority.

Louisville, Nov. 6.—The exciting campaign in Kentucky was followed by a quiet election. The democrats this morning claim the election of Hardin as governor by a small plurality. The republicans claim the election of Bradley by a small plurality. Chairman Hunter of the republican state committee sent ont this bulletin this morning. "Republicans have carried Kentucky by 13,000, city of Louisville by 3,000 and every legislative precinct in Louisville. Legislature very close but chances in favor of republicans." Latest returns from Louisville indicate that the republicans have carried the city by over 3,000 plurality. At democratic headquarters the election of Hardin was claimed by between 1,000 and 1,500 majority.

Illinois.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—Nine trustees of the sanitary districts of Chicago and two judges of the superior court of Cooke county were chosen in yesterday's election, the republicans being victorious. The democrats nominated five trustees for the sanitary board as did the republicans, and as there are nine offices to fill only one man could be defeated. Joseph J. Duffy, who received the smallest number of votes, was the defeated man. The election passed off quietly, the vote polled being about 125,000 below that of last year.

Kansas Republican.

Topeka, Kas., Nov. 6.—There was a very light vote polled in Kansas yesterday, probably not to exceed 240,000, or 50,000 less than last year. Little interest was taken in the contest for chief justice. David Martin (rep.) was considered a sure winner, but the returns from a few precincts heard from indicate that the vote for Charles K. Holliday, independent free silver candidate, will be much larger than was anticipated, the populists generally voting for him. Martin's majority will be reduced 20,000.

Light Vote in Colorado.

Denver, Nov. 6.—The elections in Colorado were for county officers. A light vote was cast in many counties, due to a snow storm lasting most of the day. In the three larger counties, Arapano, El Paso and Pueblo, the republican party seems to be defeated. In Denver the interest in the election was intense and the fusion ticket is probably elected. Armstrong for sheriff is certainly elected over Webb, the republican candidate. The women voted about as generally as the men.

Probably a Sound-Money Victory.

St. Louis, Nov. 6.—Returns from the 18th Illinois congress district indicate the election of ex-State Senator Hadley, rep., to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Edward Remann last autumn. Mr. Hadley's opponent, ex-Congressman Lane, failed to carry any of the six counties in the district. A great deal of attention was attracted by this contest, as free silver, represented by Mr. Lane, was pitted against sound money, as represented by Mr. Hadley.

Pingree's Big Victory.

Detroit, Nov. 6.—Complete has been the victory which Mayor Pingree won over his opponents at the polls yesterday. Two years ago he defeated the most popular democrat in Detroit by almost 6,000 majority, but yesterday he defeated the socialist labor candidate by more than 10,000 majority, and he carries with him twelve, and possibly thirteen, of the aldermanic candidates of the sixteen wards of the city.

Iowa Legislature.

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 6.—From latest returns it is estimated that Drake, rep., for governor, is elected by about 50,000 to 60,000 plurality. The republican state committee claims the senate will be 42 republicans, 7 democrats. The house will be 75 republicans, 26 democrats. On joint ballot, republicans, 117, democrats, 33. Republican majority, 84.

Assemblymen Elected.

Olean, N. Y., Nov. 6.—Matteson, republican, and Miller, republican, in the 1st and 2d districts of Cattaragus county, are elected to the assembly by large majorities. Higgins is re-elected to the senate in the 50th district.

Republicans Carry Watertown.

Watertown, N. Y., Nov. 6.—The entire republican city ticket is elected by majorities ranging from 700 to 30. James E. Wise is re-elected mayor by 553 majority.

GRIGGS IS ELECTED

First Republican Governor of New Jersey Since '65.

Republicans Will Also Have Six of the Seven Senators and Forty of the Sixty Assemblymen—Democrats Lose Newark and Essex County—Won in Hudson.

Trenton, Nov. 6.—The republicans yesterday elected John W. Griggs governor by a plurality of about 20,000, the first republican governor elected in the state state since 1865. The republicans have, at latest returns, six of the seven senators elected yesterday and forty of the sixty assemblymen. There, are twelve republican and two democratic "holdovers" in the present senate, and these will make the new body republican by eighteen to three. The new assembly will be republican by forty to twenty.

At Griggs' Home.

Paterson, N. J., Nov. 6.—Speaking of the result of the election in New Jersey, John W. Griggs, the successful candidate for governor, said this morning that the indications were that the republicans had carried every county in the state except Hudson. The central part of the city was thronged with enthusiastic people last night. Mr. Griggs summed up the returns himself, telling his friends that he placed more reliance on figures than estimates.

Newark.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 6.—The election in this city and Essex county was quietly conducted. There was a falling off of ten per cent. in the total vote on a registry of 60,000. Griggs (rep.) carries the county, which was formerly democratic, by 7,000 majority over McGill. The prohibition vote is light, and few votes were cast for the people's and socialist-labor candidates. Every republican candidate for the assembly was elected by majorities ranging from 3,500 to 6,200.

Hudson County.

Jersey City, Nov. 6.—Hudson county gives McGill for governor a plurality of about 6,000. William D. Daly (dem.) for the senate and all the democratic candidates for the assembly are elected.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Haywood, Rep., Elected Treasurer by About 175,000 Majority.

Philadelphia, Nov. 6.—Pennsylvania has elected Haywood, republican, for state treasurer, by a majority approximating 175,000, against 135,146 majority in 1893 for Jackson, republican, state treasurer. The six republican superior judges are elected by majorities slightly below that for Haywood. The choice of the minority party's representation on the superior court bench is, from indications at this writing, either Hermian Yerkes of Bucks county, or Peter P. Smith of Lackawanna county. Philadelphia gives Haywood 70,000 majority, with Yerkes leading the democratic candidates for superior judge. Westmoreland county, Haywood, 3,500 majority; republican gain, 514. Delaware county, Haywood, 3,500 majority; democratic gain, 192.

Allegheny County.

Pittsburg, Nov. 6.—Allegheny county gives J. Heywood, rep., for state treasurer, about 20,000 majority. Orlady and Wickham, reps., for judge, seem to have run behind the ticket, and Magee, dem., for judge, ahead of his ticket.

Erie County.

Erie, Pa., Nov. 6.—The election in Erie city and county polled about 50 per cent. of the registered vote. The Haywood republican superior court ticket will have an estimated plurality of 4,400 in Erie city. The democratic ticket lost heavily. Noyes of the democratic superior court ticket ran ahead of his ticket in Erie county 500. C. J. Brown of Erie is elected county treasurer on the republican ticket.

Total Vote in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Nov. 6.—The following is the total vote cast in Philadelphia for the offices named: State treasurer, Haywood, rep., 116,654; Meyers, dem., 41,985; Berry, prohibition, 1,106; Dawson, people's, 385; Anton, socialist, 371. Judges of superior court: Beaver, rep., 115,659; Willard, rep., 116,031; Wickham, rep., 116,189; Rice, rep., 115,765; Reeder, rep., 115,902; Orlady, rep., 114,287; Yorkes, dem., 46,307; Moorhead, dem., 39,482; Noyes, dem., 39,432; Smith, dem., 43,116; Bechtel, dem., 39,473; Magee, dem., 39,203; Campbell, pro., 1,085; Stevenson, people's, 506.

Virginia.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 6.—Latest returns show the election by the democrats of 11 of the 20 senators and 57 of the 100 delegates. Several counties still to be heard from will almost certainly return democrats. Both houses of the general assembly will be beyond question fully in control of democrats.

Utah.

Salt Lake, Utah, Nov. 6.—Yesterday's election resulted in the selection of Charles E. Allen, rep., for representative in congress, adopted the state constitution and probably elected a republican governor, although the vote on the latter is very close.

Movements of Our Warships.

Washington, Nov. 6.—Movements of naval vessels have been reported to the navy department by telegraph as follows: The Monocacy sailed from Shanghai yesterday for Chefoo; the Detroit arrived at Hong Kong Saturday; yesterday the Lancaster sailed from Newport for the south Atlantic station; the Dolphin arrived at Newport.

Marquis de Nayve Acquitted.

Bourges, France, Nov. 6.—The trial of the Marquis de Nayve on the charge of murdering the illegitimate son of his wife, which began here on October 28, ended last night. The marquis was acquitted of the charge.

Major Sam Losch Critically Ill.

Schuylkill Haven, Pa., Nov. 6.—Major "Sam" Losch, the veteran Schuylkill county politician, is lying critically ill at his home here from congestion of the brain.

SIX O'CLOCK.

WEARY WOMEN WATCH FOR THAT BLESSED HOUR.

Help for our Working-Girls and Women Near at Hand.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

N the stroke of six ends the day's work at stores, offices, factories, mills, where women are employed. But their necessary work at home, sewing, mending, etc., must be done after that time, and "their work is never done."

All women work; some for ambition, some for economy in the household, but the great mass of women work for their daily bread. All are subject to the same physical laws; all suffer alike from the same physical disturbances, and the nature of their duties often quickly drifts them into the horrors of all kinds of female complaints, ovarian troubles, inflammation, ulceration, falling and displacement of the womb, leucorrhœa, and perhaps irregular or suppressed "monthly periods," causing severe backache, loss of appetite, nervousness, irritability and weakness.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the unfailing cure for all these troubles. It strengthens the proper muscles, and cures displacement.

Backache, dizziness, fainting, bearing-down, disordered stomach, moodiness, dislike of friends and society—all symptoms of the one cause—will be quickly dispelled. Write Mrs. Pinkham about your trouble.

You can tell the story of your pain to a woman, and get the help that only woman can give. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass.

SHE IS A DUCHESS NOW

Marlborough — Vanderbilt Nuptials Celebrated.

The Most Elaborate Affair of the Kind Ever Witnessed in New York. Extravagant Wedding Costumes and Magnificent Church Decorations—The Duke's Many Titles.

New York, Nov. 6.—At high noon today the wealthiest heiress in America, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, became the Duchess of Marlborough and thus was installed a member of the British nobility. The marriage was celebrated in St. Thomas church in the presence of 1,500 invited guests and undoubtedly surpassed in elaborate details any previous wedding ever solemnized in this city. The high rank in England of the young bridegroom and the vast wealth of the bride's family caused their nuptials to attract a vast deal of attention on both sides of the Atlantic. Bishop Littlejohn, who christened Miss Vanderbilt, performed the marriage ceremony. He was assisted by Bishop Potter and the Rev. Dr. J. Wesley Brown. The bridesmaids were: Miss Marie Winthrop, Miss Morton, the eldest daughter of Gov. Morton; Miss Elsa Bronson, Miss Daisy Post, Miss Katharine Duer, Miss May Goelet and Miss Laura Jay. The duke's best man was his cousin the Hon. Ivor C. Guest. The ushers were F. Brockholst Cutting, Richard T. Wilson, jr.; Reginald Ronalds, Herbert D. Robbins and Hamilton Wilkes Cary. Miss Vanderbilt was given away by he father, William K. Vanderbilt, who met her at the church door.

Church Decorations.

The church decorations were elaborate and probably the finest and most expensive ever seen at a wedding in this country. The vestibule was a bower of rare plants. At the ends of the pews at intervals were placed huge floral pillars, surmounted by palms and embellished by pink and white roses. From the dome were hung massive strands of foliage and flowers—lilies, roses and chrysanthemums. The columns supporting the dome were wound round with broad sashes of pink and white chrysanthemums and ferns. The fronts of the galleries were beautifully decorated with garlands, festoons of flowers and orchids. There were three lofty gothic arches across the chancel. Asparagus ferns were used as the framework for the thousands of bride roses and lilies which formed the arch. The chancel was concealed by a trellis of lilies of the valley. Splendid palms and trailing vines filled the window ledges of the chancel.

Musical Programme.

The musical programme arranged by George William Warren was rendered. When the doors were opened at 10 o'clock a concert of vocal and instrumental music began. Last chord and fugue, "Mount of Olives," Beethoven, was rendered first and then these selections followed in the order given as the guests assembled: Offertory in C, Batiste; "Ave Maria," Aroselt-Liszt; Fanfare, Lemmens; "The Magic Flute," Mozart; Wedding music, extemporaneous; "March du Sacre," Meyerber. It was 11:30 when this was concluded and then the Symphony orchestra, under Mr. Damrosch, played: Overture, "Leonore," N. III., Beethoven; "Ave Maria," Gounod; Introduction third act "Lohengrin," Wagner; Preisleid, "Die Meistersinger," Wagner; Adagio, from "Sympathy," Tschaikowsky. The nuptial music from "Lohengrin" was played during the ceremony.

Crowds Block the Streets.

Long before the hour set for opening the doors of the church a great crowd of curious persons filled the avenue for several blocks in both directions and it required the efforts of a large force of police to keep a passage clear for the carriages which brought the guests and bridal party. As the occupants of each carriage crossed the sidewalk to the church necks were craned in the hope of catching a glimpse of the bridal party. Shortly before noon a carriage drove up to the transcept door of the church and the duke and his cousin and best man, Hon. Ivor Churchill Guest, alighted and entered the church. The bridesmaids and the guests were all assembled at this time.

The Bridal Gown.

Inside the church as the duke entered the big organ began the nuptial music from Lohengrin. In a few minutes the bride, leaning on her father's arm, came down the centre aisle. Her gown was a marvel of the most extravagant creation of the modiste's art. Heavy cream satin of exquisite texture was employed in its composition. Rare old lace which did service on the gown worn by Mrs. Vanderbilt's mother on her wedding day and some which did duty in a similar capacity for Miss Alva Smith when she became Mrs. William Kissam Vanderbilt, was combined with other lace expressly made for this most celebrated occasion. Two different widths of lace were used to bedeck the gown. The narrower one was five inches deep and decorated the corsage. The flouncing measured twelve inches in depth, and was arranged in four ruffles across the front and side breadths of the skirt. The court train, measuring five yards in length, was marvellous. It was fastened at the shoulder seams and fell gracefully in two double box plaits. It was detached from the short, round underneath skirt, depending upon its own weight to be kept in place. A broidery of pearls and silver constructed into a two-inch wide passementerie, outlined the gorgeous train. The unique design of this excess of ornament represented rose leaves of pearls and silver tied together at intervals by a true lover's knot. The train of the robe was the chief distinguishing characteristic, and conformed to the regulations in dress prescribed for presentation at the Court of St. James. Miss Vanderbilt wore no jewels.

Bridal Veil and Slippers.

The bridal veil, the crowning touch of the tout ensemble, was of Brussels net of cobweb fineness, the edge being beautified by a tiny vine of point applique lace. The veil was fastened to the high coiffeur by a cornet of orange blossoms, and fell in a billowy mass to the end of the colossal court train. The pompadour silk petticoat of the outfit was cut in circular form and was trimmed in plaitings of chiffon, alternating with frills of lace caught up here and there by bows of satin ribbon. The corset was of white satin embroidered in carnations and handsomely trimmed in Vandyke and Valenciennes lace. Tucked in and fastened with gold pins with pearl heads were several of the choicest blooms plucked from the bridal bouquet sent from the Blenheim conservatoires. The white satin slippers were made from a scrap of the bridal robe and diamond buckles held in place the rosettes on the insteps.

At the Altar.

Instructions were given to the ushers and then the bridesmaids formed in line just at the entrance to the middle aisle, by which time Dr. George William Warren had seated himself at the organ and began to play the nuptial chorus from "Lohengrin." The bridesmaids formed in line as follows: Miss Katherine Duer and Miss Elsa Bronson, Miss Laura Jay and Miss May Goelet, Miss Daisy Post and Miss Marie Winthrop, Miss Edith Morton and Evelyn Burden. After them came Miss Vanderbilt, escorted by her father, William K. Vanderbilt. The ushers did not form part of the procession, but took their positions at the foot of the chancel steps, on either side of the middle aisle, arriving from the side aisles. The bride was met at the altar by the groom, his best man and Rev. Dr. Littlejohn. The Episcopal ceremony was followed to the letter and at its close one of the new English features was introduced. This was the distribution of flowers by the bridesmaids. The duke and duchess retired to the vestryroom immediately after the bishop concluded the service, the bridesmaids were then each provided with a basket of flowers, and as the procession moved down the middle aisle distributed the flowers on either side as they passed down. When they had emptied their baskets they returned to the chancel where they met the bridal couple, who then took their place at the head of the line and marched down to the entrance, where carriages were in waiting to take the entire party to Mrs. Vanderbilt's house, where the wedding breakfast will be served this afternoon. The groom wore a dark Prince Albert coat, low-cut vest and duck trousers.

Railed in with White Ribbon.

White satin ribbons were placed across the two side aisles and centre aisle, extending ten or twelve pews down each aisle where the most intimate friends of the Vanderbils were seated. The only pews reserved were: One on the right-hand side of the middle aisle, for Mrs. Vanderbilt and her sons; that on the opposite side of Sir Julian Pauncefote; the pew directly behind Mrs. Vanderbilt's for her sister, Miss Armide Smith; several for the bridesmaids' parties; two of the front pews right and left of the middle aisle for the governesses and tutors of the Vanderbilt children, and for the household servants.

The Duke's Titles.

Here is a list of the duke's titles: Duke of Marlborough, Marquis of Blandford, Earl of Marlborough, Earl of Sunderland, Baron Churchill, Sir Charles John Richard Spencer-Churchill, Bart; Prince of Mindelheim. As long as his father was alive the young man was known as the Earl of Sunderland. His family always called him Sunderland and his intimates call him "Sunny."

BRIDE'S DOWERY $5,000,000.

Deed of Blenheim Produced at the Settlement.

New York, Nov. 6.—William K. Vanderbilt, his daughter, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, and the Duke of Marlborough met at the home of Mrs. Vanderbilt at 24 East Seventy-second street yesterday and signed papers affecting the marriage settlements. Mrs. Vanderbilt was not present. Mr. Vanderbilt drove to the house with his lawyer, H. H. Anderson. A few minutes later the duke arrived with his solicitor, Milward Harding. An hour was spent in going over the terms and finally the papers were signed by Miss Vanderbilt, her father and the duke. It was subsequently learned on good authority that by the terms of the settlement Miss Vanderbilt gets a dowery of $5,000,000. The deed of the Blenheim estate, which was brought over by Mr. Milward, was produced at the settlement. It is a formidable document, consisting of a volume four feet square, in which schedules of the different properties included in the estate are engrossed upon heavy parchment. There is the deed itself showing how the property was originally conveyed to the first Duke of Marlborough by Queen Anne, and in addition to this maps of the lands and schedules of the paintings and works of art, of the plate and of the heirlooms belonging to the ducal estate. The Blenheim plate, it is said, exceeds two tons in weight. The catalogue of the paintings and china contains one hundred pages. The late duke sold over half these art treasures and realized about $2,000,000 for the china alone. Yesterday's visit was Mr. Vanderbilt's first appearance at his divorced wife's new home.

Confesses To Embezzlement.

Bellows Falls, Vt., Nov. 6.—Roadmaster A. G. Comer of the Bennington & Rutland railroad has confessed to misappropriating the funds of the company to an amount exceeding $20,000. Comer has been in the employ of the company over twenty-five years and is 65 years old. He has turned over property valued at over $17,000 to the company. It is estimated that he is worth over $100,000.

Died on Board a Steamer.

New York, Nov. 6.—News has reached this city that William F. Elliott, who for many years has served the New York Times in positions of great responsibility and with unvarying faithfulness and high ability, died with consumption last Sunday on the steamer on which he was returning from Jamaica, and which arrived at Boston yesterday.

Killed While Hunting.

Peekskill, N. Y., Nov. 6.—Malcolm Lent, a 17-year-old son of William H. Lent, a prominent merchant of this place, celebrated election day by going gunning with Benjamin Williams, 24 years old. While in the woods near here, Williams was accidentally shot dead by young Lent.

Died in Jail.

Boston, Nov. 6.—Rebecca Llewellyn, the young woman who was arrested recently charged with the larceny of much valuable property from stores in this city, died yesterday in the Charles street jail. She was a morphine eater.

Amnesty for Political Prisoners.

Vienna, Nov. 6.—Emperor Francis Joseph has granted amnesty to all political prisoners in Bohemia.

MARYLAND REPUBLICAN

Lowndes and the Entire State Ticket Elected.

Republicans Will Also Control the Legislature and Elect a Successor to United States Senator Gibson—Baltimore Elects a Republican Mayor and a Majority of Council.

Baltimore, Nov. 6.—Senator Gorman has met his Waterloo. Latest returns indicate a complete republican victory in Maryland. Lloyd Lowndes is undoubtedly elected governor and the balance of the republican state ticket has an apparent majority of over 10,000. The legislature will be republican on joint ballot, thereby ensuring a republican successor to United States Senator Gibson. In Baltimore city the returns indicate a complete overthrow for the Gorman-Rasin faction. Hooper, for mayor, has a majority of over 3,000. The republicans have elected a majority of the city council and clerks of the courts.

Violence and Disorders.

Violence and disorder were the features throughout the day in this city. Notwithstanding the stringent orders of Marshal Frey most of the saloons of the city were wide open and a great deal of drunkenness characterized the day. Several arrests were made, an occasional shot was fired, ballot boxes were smashed and registration books torn to bits. The day closed, however, without a political death record.

$3,000,000 LOSS.

One of the Worst Fires New York Has Known in Years.

New York, Nov. 6.—No fire in this city for years has caused so much excitement as the one which broke out last night at the corner of Crosby and Bleecker streets. For several hours it looked as though the firemen would be unable to control the flames until incalculable damage had been done, but by almost superhuman efforts they finally succeeded in extinguishing the blaze. Several buildings were entirely destroyed, among them the Manhattan Savings bank and the Empire State bank buildings. The most intense excitement prevailed among the tenants of several dwelling houses in the vicinity, who were ordered out by the firemen. Several firemen were injured by the fall of a wall, two of them so seriously that they had to be taken to hospitals. The damage is estimated to be not less than $3,000,000.

DEATH DUE TO ERYSIPELAS.

Autopsy Shows That Mrs. Chrowe Did Not Die of Her Wounds.

Jamaica, N. Y., Nov. 6.—The autopsy yesterday on the body of Mrs. John Chrowe, who died in this city Monday night as a result, it was claimed, of injuries received at the hands of Miss Sarah Wright, revealed the fact that the wounds on her head were only scalp deep; that they did not injure the skull and the brain showed no evidence of concussion. Also that death resulted directly from erysipelas. The question therefore for the coroner's jury to determine will be whether or not the injuries were the cause of the development of that disease.

CONSCIENCE CONTRIBUTION.

The First Ever Received by the Internal Revenue Department.

Washington, Nov. 6.—Internal revenue commissioner Miller has received a draft for $750. The draft was signed by a banking firm and it was forwarded through a New York bank. The fact that it came to Commissioner Miller is regarded as indicating that some person had defrauded the internal revenue of the amount stated. The oldest clerks in the internal revenue bureau say this is the first conscience contribution received at that bureau within their recollection.

PHENOMENAL POTATO CROP.

Over 280,000,000 Bushels Against 185,000,000 Last Year.

New York, Nov. 6.—This week's American Agriculturist has a valuable article on the potato crop of the country for 1895. It seems that this year's yield is something phenomenal, no other year approaching its magnificent total. The crop measures up over 282,000,000 bushels, against only 185,000,000 last year. The Pacific coast is the only region where the crop shows a falling off.

ST. PETER'S DOME DAMAGED.

Earthquake of Last Friday Made the Old Church's Steeple Unsafe.

Rome, Nov. 6.—The earthquake in this city on Friday last damaged the dome of St. Peter's church. Ascents into the dome have been prohibited pending the making of repairs.

Towed a Wrecked Schooner to Port.

Halifax, Nov. 6.—Captain Oakes of the steamer Bridgewater, just arrived from Bridgewater, reports that last Saturday night he came across a three-masted schooner, bottom up, off La Have river, and towed the derelect into Moshers harbor. The schooner appeared to be about 200 tons and does not seem to have been long in the condition in which she was found.

Robbed by Highwaymen.

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 6.—Highwaymen entered the city ticket office of the Texas & Pacific railroad Monday night with drawn pistols and robbed the ticket agent of the day's sales of tickets, amounting to from $500 to $1,500.

Tanneries Closed.

New York, Nov. 6.—Nearly all the tanneries owned by the United States Leather company have been closed to prevent the accumulation of sole leather stocks.

Hyams Brothers' Second Trial.

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 6.—The second trial of the Hyams brothers, charged with the murder of W. C. Wells, began yesterday afternoon before Justice Ferguson.

Marquis de la Habana Dead.

Madrid, Nov. 6.—The Marquis de la Habana, at one time captain general of Cuba, is dead.

To Assemblyman-elect Codington, of Union county, and Assemblyman-elect Reed, of Somerset county, the Daily Press extends congratulations over their election to the Legislative branch of State government. They are both gentlemen who deserved well at the hands of their party, and the large pluralities received by each among their neighbors speaks volumes for their popularity and the confidence which their friends possess that they are capable of representing the districts with intelligence and ability. The interests of the city and borough will have direct and careful attention in the lower branch of the Legislature by men personally acquainted with their needs and conditions.

In years past the Democracy of New Jersey has been considered almost invincible, but their defeat yesterday was so overwhelming that there can be no question but that the people are earnestly in favor of a change of administration in the State government. The unusually large plurality rolled up for Griggs would give credence to the statement that it was not so much of a Republican victory by Republican votes as a Republican victory by Democratic votes. Notwithstanding that the Democrats never had a more ideal candidate than Chancellor McGill, whose private and official life stood unimpugned by the most partisan and bitter opponent, there is no denying the fact that there is an element in the party whom the members of the party themselves are unalterably opposed to, and rather than elevate Mr. McGill to the Gubernatorial chair, they preferred to see him defeated in the attempt to rid the party of the men against whom this prejudice and opposition prevails. What has been termed as the "silent vote" in the political parlance of the nineteenth century, the Republicans can congratulate themselves on as having contributed to their success. Taken as a whole, there seemed to be a wonderful unanimity among the Democrats, even more so than among the Republicans, but the prospects of one party or another winning on the lack of open dissension in their ranks, are jeporadized and nullified by the good citizen, who, though classed as a Democrat and Republican, goes to the polls and casts a ballot that is not dictated by party affiliation. Mr. Griggs will be the first Republican Governor in thirty years, and as The Daily Press expressed the opinion on Monday in reference to whoever might be elected, his official acts, outside of those having a direct political bearing, will prove generally acceptable to the people.

Lawyer H. O. Hance went to Trenton today on business.

Harold B. Hart, of New York, spent yesterday with his friend, Charles Bull, of East Ninth street.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Knight, of Netherwood, are receiving the congratulations of their friends and neighbors. It's a little girl and it came to bless them this morning.

Henry Wilson, the postmaster at Welshton, Florida, says he cured a case of diarrhœa of long standing in six hours, with one small bottle of Chambertain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. What a pleasant surprise that must have been to the sufferer. Such cures are not unusual with this remedy. In many instances only one or two doses are required to give permanent relief. It can always be depended upon. When reduced with water it is pleasant to take. For sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. R. Armstrong, Manager.

The New York Tribune this morning had the following brief summaries of the result from each county in the State:

Newark, Nov. 5.—Essex county gives Griggs 8,000 plurality and elects all eleven of the Republican Assemblymen.

Red Bank, Nov. 5.—Monmouth county gives Griggs about 200 plurality, and re-elects Assemblymen Denise, Francis and Snyder.

Cape May, Nov. 5.—Cape May county gives Griggs 500 plurality and re-elects Assemblyman Furman Ludlum, Republican.

New Brunswick, Nov. 5.—Middlesex connty gives Griggs 800 plurality and elects three Republican Assemblymen.

Jersey City, Nov. 5.—Hudson county gives McGill 5,000 plurality, and elects eleven Democratic Assemblymen and re-elects Senator William D. Daly, Democrat.

Belvidere, Nov. 5.—Warren county gives McGill 800 plurality and elects two Democratic Assemblymen. Last year the county elected two Republicans.

Trenton, Nov. 5.—Mercer county gives Griggs 2,200 plurality and elects a Republican Senator and three Assemblymen. A strong combination of various elements was made to beat Senator Skirm for re election, but won by a reduced majority.

Flemington, Nov. 5.—Hunterdon county is true to the Democracy. It gives McGill 500 and elects two Democratic Assemblymen, a gain of one.

Camden, Nov. 5.—Camden county gives Griggs 5,200 plurality and elects three Republican Assemblymen.

Mount Holly, Nov. 5.—Burlington county comes up with 1,000 plurality for Griggs and elects two Republican Assemblymen.

Somerville, Nov. 5.—Griggs has carried Somerset county by 300. Charles A. Reed, Republican, is elected to the Assembly.

Newton, Nov. 5.—Even old Sussex county has gone for Griggs to the tune of 150 plurality. Assemblyman Coursen, Republican, is re-elected.

Paterson, Nov. 5.—Passaic county gives Griggs 3,500 plurality and elects four Republican Assemblymen.

Atlantic City, Nov. 5.—The plurality for Griggs in Atlantic county is 400. Senator Hoffman and M. L. Jackson, for the Assembly, both Republicans are elected. Hoffman had 150 and Jackson 250 plurality.

Hackensack, Nov. 5.—Griggs has a plurality of 300 in old Democratic Bergen county. The Republicans elect a Senator and two Assemblymen. This is a gain of a Senator.

Morristown, Nov. 5.—Griggs carries Morris county by 800 plurality, and elects a Republican Senator and two Assemblymen. This is a gain of a Senator.

Salem, Nov. 5.—Griggs has carried Salem county by 200, and Assemblyman Powers (Rep.) is re-elected.

Millville, Nov. 5.—Cumberland county gives Griggs 2,000 plurality, and re-elects Senator Stokes and Assemblymen Austin and Minch, all Republicans.

Lakewood, Nov. 5.—Ocean county gives Griggs 1,200, elects Robert Engle Senator, and re-elects Assemblyman Lower, both Republicans.

"Uncle Billy's" Political Record.

In every county of Kentucky you will find a lot of old men who take great pride in telling you that for 40 or maybe 50 years they have never voted anything but the Democratic ticket. They began perhaps with Jackson and have come on down the line. An old man of this sort, who was called Uncle Billy [illegible], who was very close fisted, one day saw a group of voters about Governor Proctor Knott. Uncle Billy, leaning on his tall staff, edged his way in and asked to be introduced. He was formally presented "as the oldest voter in the county." "Yes, gov'nor," said Uncle Billy, with evident pride, "I certainly am the oldest voter in the county. Ef airy man will tetch a man as has throwed more Democrat votes than I hev, I'll furnish the liquor." Hereupon several of the crowd, knowing Uncle Billy's stinginess, but eager for any chance to come into a treat, pricked up their ears, and Uncle Billy, noticing this and becoming alarmed at the probable outlay if he should be proved wrong, hemmed and hawed and added, "That is, I'll furnish the liquor to airy man as fetches the man."—"Fun on the Stump," by Edward J. McDermott, in Century.

She Mourned.

To those who can tell an Irish story well, with all its rich brogue and rolling r's, this is suggested as a good one:

Mrs. S. was much interested at one time in a poor widow whom she had employed, who found great difficulty in getting a living. After a while, however, the widow married a man with some money and in a fair business, and Mrs. S. rejoiced over her fortunate prospects. A few weeks later, however, she met the former widow dressed in the deepest of mourning. Shocked and sympathetic, Mrs. S. said, "Why, Mary, I hope you have not met with any loss."

"Sure, Mrs. S.," replied Mary, "when my poor Tim died, I was that poor that I couldn't put on the bit of mourning for him, and I said that when I could I would, and so I am."

The new husband must have been a cur mudgeon if he had objected to this.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Just Waiting.

An old lady, far advanced in years, was walking one day through a churchyard, when she stopped before three mounds that formed, as it were, three sides of a square. The graves were those of the late doctor and parson of the parish and of an old East Indian, noted whist players in their day. "There they are," she remarked placidly after a pause; "the auld rubber, just waiting for me to cut in."—San Francisco Argonaut.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION.

The Civil Service Commission at Washington has ordered that an examination be held in this city on December 7, 1895, commencing at 9 o'clock, a. m., for the grades of clerk and carrier in the city postoffice. Only citizens of the United States can be examined. The age limitations are as follows: For carrier, not under 21 nor over 40; for all other positions, not under 18 years. No application will be accepted for this examination unless filed with the undersigned in complete form, on the proper blank, before the hour of closing business on November 18, 1895.

The Civil Service Commission takes this opportunity of stating that the examinations are open to all reputable citizens who may desire to enter the postal service, without regard to their political affiliation. All such citizens, whether Democrats or Republicans, or neither, are invited to apply. They shall be examined, graded and certified with entire impartiality, and wholly without regard to their political views, or to any consideration save their efficiency, as shown by the grades they obtain in the examination.

THEATRICAL.

"Wang," with a large company of sixty people and two carloads of scenery, drops and properties, comes to Music Hall Wednesday, November 6th. Among the novel features of the much talked about comic opera "Wang" are a banjo chorus rendered by ten of the cleverest and prettiest girls in the company; a quaint and taking chorus of nursery rhymes, given by several charming little tots, none of whom is over seven years old; a Siamese wedding ceremony reproduced accurately in every detail; a real steam launch and a royal barge floating among French men of war at anchor in the harbor of Bangkok; and a really wonderful elephant whose method of getting rid of a four-gallon glass of beer is a mystery to the audience. "Wang" is now on its final tour.

John Kernell this season has produced a new play which is called "The Irish Alderman" and is a broad burlesque on American politics. In it Mr. Kernell's drollery is given full sweep and he has the opportunity of exercising those peculiar powers of amusement which are exclusively his own. The newspapers in the cities in which the play has been presented this season, and it was new in October, all unite in saying that Kernell never had a better play than "The Irish Alderman." His managers, Messrs. Davis & Keogh, have surrounded him with a company of clever specialty people and as in all farce comedies, for "The Irish Alderman" is nothing else, the specialty people form a big feature of the entertainment. Among the names given are George Marion, Phil and Nettie Peters, the Urline sisters, Emily Vivian, Beatrice Tait, Ed. Heffernan and Sam and Dave Marion. Crowded houses everywhere have been the rule this year. At Music Hall Saturday night.

August Z. Huntington spent yesterday at his home on Franklin place.

Miss Margaret Purdue, of Orange, for many years Principal Boss' assistant in the North Plainfield public school, was a welcome guest in Plainfield yesterday, at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Carman.

—At Swain's, on East Front street, our readers will find a choice selection of quartered oak mouldings which, in combination with gold, make beautiful picture framing.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces, such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

PUNTS AND KICKS.

The members and officers of the Y. M. C. A. Football Association met at the Plainfield Camera Club rooms yesterday afternoon and were photographed by J. Hervey Doane.

The crack junior football eleven of Plainfield, the Alis team, went to Dunellen yesterday morning and had no trouble in running up a score of ten points, while the home team made nothing. The Plainfield boys put up a splendid game, their interference being especially commendable. Cuming did the star work for them, making two touchdowns and running thirty and then forty yards. His good running was only made possible, however, by the interference of the other backs. Finch kicked one of the goals. The two teams lined up as follows:

ALIS.		DUNELLES.
O. T Waring	left end	Ernest Peters
Lindley Hillman	left tackle	Fred Giddis
D. Stuart	left guard	Sidney Craig
Walter Long	centre	Fred Hardingham
Morris Dumont	right guard	Irving Martine
E. N. Erickson	right tackle	Will Cooper
Albert Finch	right end	Robert Maltby
W. Wadsworth	quarter back	L. Churchill
H. Cumming	left half back	D. Carpenter
J. Rittenhouse	right half back	Hallock and Richardson
Roy Phillips, capt.	full back	T. Thomas, capt

As soon as this game was finished, the eleven of the Spartan Literary and Athletic Society tried conclusions with the first Dunellen team. The Dunellen boys far outweighed them but it was only by the hardest work that the home team could make a single touchdown. In kicking the goal, the ball was dropped on the ground and one of the Dunellen team kicked it over the cross bar. As the kick was a punt, it did not count. The game ended with the score 4 to 0 in favor of Dunellen.

Dunellen.

Miss Jennie Bolton, of Front street, has gone to Junction to visit friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis, of Dunellen avenue, spent Tuesday with relatives at High Bridge.

T. C. Morse, of Jersey City, spent Monday with William VanMiddlesworth and family, of Front street.

Mrs. John Kitchen, of Somerset street, North Plainfield, was the guest Tuesday of Mrs. VanMiddlesworth, of Front street.

Charles VanMiddlesworth, of Brooklyn, was the guest Monday of William VanMiddlesworth and family, of Front street.

Some creditable bags of game have been made in the vicinity of Dunellen since the season opened. A. W. Warden shot over twenty-two rabbits in two days, and Joel Giddis, John Huff and Charles Giles, twenty-four rabbits and two grouse.

The Dunellen Gun Club expect to hold an all day shoot at live birds within a few weeks. A feature of this shoot will be a lot of hard fast birds at the regular price. This will be quite an improvement on the poor half dead duffers, generally furnished for the same price.

The only party to visit Virginia this fall from this place were Messrs. Dealaman, VanHise and Dr. Nelson. They say they didn't see a quail in Virginia. There are but a few sportsmen who have the nerve to own up to such poor luck.

William Carman, of the Dunellen Gun Club, and Ed Teel, of the Independent Gun Club, of Dunellen, started Sunday for a week's sojourn among the rocks and pines of Pike county, Pennsylvania. They are now ready for deer and grouse. They may be loaded down with game before returning.

—R. J. Hunter, who will speak at the Y. M. C. A. men's meeting Sunday, is a man of power, whose personal history is very interesting. It will pay to hear him.

—A portion of the crosswalk in front of Edward White's dry goods house was demolished by the steam roller yesterday afternoon, through an improper use of the spikes in the rollers.

Free Pills.

Send your address to H. E. Bucklen & Co., Chicago, and get a free sample box of Dr. King's New Life Pills. A trial will convince you of their merits. These pills are easy in action and are particularly effective in the cure of constipation and sick headache. For malaria and liver troubles they have been proved invaluable. They are guaranteed to be perfectly free from every deleterious substance and to be purely vegetable. They do not weaken by there action, but by giving tone to the stomach and bowels greatly invigorate the system. Regular size 25c. per box. Sold by L. W. Randolph, druggist

—A dramatic entertainment and lunchbox sociable will be held in the Parish house of the church of the Heavenly Rest, Thursday evening, November 7th.

—Young men who wish to enter the commercial course of the Y. M. C. A. should apply this evening. A five dollar member membership, payable in four installments, entitles to the privileges of this and other classes. A one dollar deposit is required from students for each class entered.

—George Leland, of Central avenue, has entirely recovered from the accident to his leg which happened recently, and yesterday W. V. Munday, agent for the Travelers Insurance Company, paid Mr. Leland $35. The latter had been a member of the company only a few days when he was injured.

Back Again!

Dr. E. B. Lighthill

—OF—

New York City,

whose practice in Plainfield has proved such a wonderful success has opened an office at

134 Crescent Avenue

(next door to his former residence) where he can be consulted from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., on

Tuesday and Friday

of each week.

DR. LIGHTHILL makes the treatment of deafness, catarrh and diseases of the throat, lungs and heart a specialty.

Piles radically and permanently cured in a few weeks without the use of the knife, ligature or cautery and without pain or detention from business. The most desperate cases yield unfailingly to Dr. Lighthill's unique method of treatment, with guaranteed success. Fistula, fissure and ulcers of the rectum are also completely and permanently cured without the knife or other surgical operation.

Diseases of the bowels, bladder and stomach, mental and nervous derangements, diseases of the skin and blood and all chronic and obstinate complaints affecting the human system, of whatever name or nature, are successfully treated.

DR. LIGHTHILL refers with pardonable pride to the remarkable cures of his former practice in Plainfield and to the reputation which he established throughout the State. He has in his possession hundreds of testimonials from well-known residents of Plainfield and vicinity, which can be seen at his office.

A DAKOTA PRAIRIE IN JUNE.

The Landscape Is Fairly Ablaze With Brilliant Floral Colors.

In due time we were driving over the prairies, which are always magnificent, but which on this day were magnificently beautiful, literally covered as they were with the prairie roses. Think of it! Acres upon acres thickly dotted with red, pink and white roses, and the air laden with an aroma of the fresh blown blossoms. Other flowers of no mean appearance helped to make those wide prairies one vast flower garden. There were the spiderwort of brightest blue, the waxy anemone of purest white, the evening primrose, with its larger but less beautiful blossoms, and the purple wild peas or vetches, with an occasional richly colored yellow flower whose botanical name I have forgotten. Nothing, however, could compare with the roses in beauty or quantity.

Some one has said that the flowers out of reach of man are dedicated to God. Nowhere in this wide world, if this be true, can there be such a supreme floral dedication as on these North Dakota prairies. They touch everybody's heart. On the train the conductor or the brakeman would jump off at each station and in a moment gather a beautiful bouquet and bring it into the car for the women and children.

I was on a train a week or two before this trip, when suddenly the train stopped between stations. "What's the matter?" cried several voices. "Nothing," was the reply. "The boys want some roses." And when a moment later the express messenger, with whom I was acquainted, brought me a dainty bouquet of buds and blossoms I suspect there was in my prosy soul something of the same sentiments to which Lucy Larcom, with her poetical nature, gave expression in the words:

The world we live in wholly is redeemed,
Not man alone, but all that man holds dear—
His orchard and his maize, forgetmenot
And heartsease in his garden and the wild
Aerial blossoms of the untamed wood
That make his savagery so homelike. All
Have felt Christ's sweet love watering their roots.
His sacrifice has won both earth and heaven.

Does familiarity with the flowers bring contempt? Little Ivah Strachan, 4 years old, cried when the wagon wheels crushed one. Mr. Carter quaintly informed us that he was trying the æsthetic on his pigs this year. Why should they not share in the floral bounties? When we reached the pigpen, which was about the size of a New England farm, there was the same rosy profusion as elsewhere, the occupants evidently preferring the growing wheat for ordinary diet. It was a strange combination, however—pigs and roses!—Mrs. Janette H. Knox in Boston Zion's Herald.

STATED HIS PRICE.

A Witness Who Convulsed the Judge and the Spectators.

In certain ready made clothing shops the most valuable salesman is not the one who can sell a coat to the man who wishes to buy, but the one who can sell a coat to the man who doesn't want to buy. A witness who was giving evidence in an east end London court must have been a salesman. He was testifying against a man who had stolen a pair of pantaloons from his shop.

"How much are the trousers worth?" asked the magistrate.

"Well, your worship," responded the witness, "it depends on the man who wants to buy them. I sell them to one man for 30s., to another for 25s., but you can have them for 23s. 2d."

"Sir," responded his honor in a disgusted tone, "I want you to tell me what those trousers are worth."

"Ah, your worship," said the witness, "take 'em for 22 bob if 23s. 6d. don't suit you."

"Look here!" thundered the magistrate. "If you don't tell me the exact value of those trousers, I will send you to jail for contempt of court."

"Well, then," pleaded the obtuse witness in a most insinuating tone, "take 'em for 20s. It is giving them away almost, but you can have 'em."

By this time the spectators were convulsed with laughter, and the magistrate himself was obliged to forget his disgust and join heartily in the laugh. He did not buy the trousers, however.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Lack of Pure Coffee In England.

A writer in The Lancet laments that good, wholesome, pure coffee, free from chicory, is not brought to the notice of the public by advertisers as much as tea, cocoa or chocolate is. As he observes, those who have traveled on the continent know that a cup of excellent coffee can be obtained at an almost trifling cost and know what an excellent stimulant it is. Why (it is asked) should this be? And why, on the other hand, should coffee, even in the homes of the rich in this country, be too often wholly undrinkable? That there is no difficulty about the making of good coffee is held to be proved by the fact that the best is made in the simplest apparatus—a plain earthenware jug. This, with boiling water and a reasonable amount of berries freshly ground, is all that is required. "Both the demand and supply of coffee in this country (adds the writer) are diminishing, but a more extended knowledge of its value as a stimulant and as an article of diet would insure its increased use and in due time its reduced price."—London News.

Indian Photographs Not Much Sought.

"There is very little demand," said a Washington photographer, "for pictures of noted Indians, of which we have quite a collection. We tried to induce Sitting Bull to give us a sitting when he was in Washington on one occasion, but he wanted to be paid $20 for the privilege, and we concluded the sale of his pictures would not justify the expense. He was in a group of Indians which was photographed on the capitol steps, but in order to prevent us from getting a likeness of him he threw his blanket over his head and hid his face."—Washington Post.

Easy.

Some questions are not half so hard as they sound.

"Doctor, I have an important physiological question to ask you. When I stand on my head, the blood rushes into my head. Now, when I stand on my feet, why doesn't it rush into my feet?"

"Because your feet are not hollow."—New York World.

The number of men and women in France is more equal than in any other country, there being 1,007 women to 1,000 men. In Switzerland there are 1,064 men to 1,000 women, and in Greece only 933. In Hongkong there are only 366 women to 1,000 men.

The boy is taught at school that the earth is not square. By and by he finds out for himself that the same thing is true of a good many of the people.—New York Herald.

IMPERFECTION.

At last I have a Sabine farm
Abloom with shrubs and flowers,
And garlands gay I weave by day
Amid these fragrant bowers.
And yet, O fortune hideous!
I have no blooming Lydias!
And what—ah, what's a Sabine farm to us without its Lydias?

Within my cottage is a room
Where I would fain be merry.
Come one and all unto that hall
Where you'll be welcome, very!
I've a butler who's Hibernian—
But, no, I've no Falernian!
And what—ah, what's a Sabine farm to you without Falernian?

Upon this cozy Sabine farm
What breeds my melancholy?
Why is my muse down with the blues,
Instead of up and jolly?
A secret this between us,
I'm shy of a Mæcenas!
And what—oh, what's a Sabine farm to me without Mæcenas?

GRANT'S CARTRIDGE MATCHSAFE.

The Much Prized Souvenir of a San Francisco Policeman.

Police Officer C. Gould of this city has in his possession a matchbox which was presented to him by General U. S. Grant during his visit to this city in 1879. Officer Gould was detailed by the chief of police to act as the special bodyguard of General Grant during his tour of inspection of San Francisco. Every day Officer Gould would report early at the Palace hotel, and he never left the general's side during the trips made around the city.

On the day that General Grant visited the banks, public buildings and business houses he was greeted everywhere by vast crowds, and Officer Gould frequently had difficulty in clearing a passageway for the hero. At 6 o'clock in the evening the carriage bearing the general and his guard returned to the hotel. After the general left the carriage Gould was attracted by the glitter of a metal cartridge on the seat of the vehicle. It proved to be a matchbox made out of two rifle shells. Five ordinary matches were in the case, which was made on the principle of a telescope, one shell fitting over the other. Both shells had been exploded. The dent of the firing pin was plainly visible. The larger shell bore the mark "F, 88, No. 12" on the end. The smaller one, which acted as the cap, was unmarked. The match safe measured 2½ inches when closed.

The general was in his room by the time Officer Gould reached his apartment. His orderly carried a message in, and in a few minutes the hero of Appomattox appeared and inquired what his bodyguard required. Officer Gould held out the match safe. For a minute General Grant looked at it in silence and in his kindly manner said to Officer Gould:

"You may keep it. Some day you may learn the history of the shells from which I made this matchbox. Good night."

From that day Officer Gould has treasured the matchbox. As to the history of the shells, he has never found out how they came into possession of the general. It is possible that some of the general's comrades may know the history of the curious souvenir which its present owner regards as a talisman.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The Grave of Jenny Lind.

It has been stated that the grave on Malvern hills, in England, of Jenny Lind Goldschmidt, the Swedish nightingale, has been sadly neglected and is not even marked by the simplest slab. This is not true. A handsome and costly monument in the shape of a cross tells the passerby that there rests the body of that noble woman, renowned not only as the most wonderful songstress of her day, but for her almost unparalleled generosity and saintly character. It is stated that her husband, long after her decease, was in the habit of visiting her grave daily and strewing upon it the most beautiful flowers. He was a most devoted and loving husband, and her last days were made happy and sweet by his kind attentions.

Mr. P. T. Barnum, her American agent, in a visit to England some years before his death, called upon the Goldschmidt family and saw the daughter and granddaughter. In the house were a number of fine portraits and marble busts of the Swedish nightingale. She was much beloved, not only by her own family friends, but by multitudes who have been the grateful recipients of her many charities. Her very last days were spent in singing for indigent clergymen. It is recorded of Mr. Barnum that he could make her cry any time by repeating to her a story of poverty, and that she always "backed her tears with a purseful of money."—B. W. Williams in Boston Transcript.

The Ballot Has All the Attraction.

To see and to discuss acquaintances and to be seen and discussed by them and (for men) to go gossiping from box to box are everywhere the main objects with which "the world" goes to the opera. In southern Europe indeed it may be said that they are the sole objects. There are of course a quantity of people, less regular in their attendance, whose purpose is simply to hear the music, but they are not "the world." They do not talk as others do.

In Paris especially it is an accepted principle that society n'ecoute que le ballet

It is only when the curtain rises on the short skirts that tongues grow still, and that eyes turn unanimously to the stage. There are naturally singers to whom everybody listens and songs (even if heard for the hundredth time) for which all conversations are interrupted, but the general rule remains that relative silence and attention are reserved in Paris for the dancing.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Resented.

A newspaper artist was sent to sketch a batch of Italian counterfeiters in the county jail. After much trouble with the turnkeys he reached the cell of the prisoners. The artist was a man of much experience, and he knew that a blunt request for the Italians to sit for their portraits would bring only a surly refusal. So he tried diplomacy and its prime minister, blarney.

"Pretty bad quarters you have here," he said all innocently.

Back from the depths came a growl. "They didn't find any on us!"—Chicago Chronicle.

Tricks In All Trades.

"This man robbed me, judge."

"How did he do it?"

"I went to him with the toothache, and instead of pulling the aching tooth he pulled one with a $10 gold crown on it."—Chicago Record.

An embarrassed best man at a recent inland wedding offered the groom at the critical moment a cigar instead of the ring.

BLESSED BY THE POPE.

A Scene In the Audience Chamber of His Holiness.

Then we were ushered into a vast empty antechamber hung with tapestries, with a brazier of charcoal in the center, where the chamberlain presently came and chatted with my friend and the sisters who were there before us. Soon we were moved forward—like chessmen, I thought—into the audience chamber, where some nuns were kneeling in a row, and a sprinkling of bright uniforms relieved their blackness on the opposite side. Down went my friend on her knees, and the chamberlain touched my shoulder. "It is a form," said he in English. "Comply with it." There was a Swiss guard with a drawn sword just behind, and what could I do but obey the voice? "Pray heaven I get out safe again!" was my cry in spirit as I cast a terrified glance over my shoulder, for I have ever had a dread of soldiers.

When I turned my head again, there was a mild looking old gentleman clothed entirely in white, even to his slippers and mittens, talking gently to the nuns in soft Italian speech. I drew back behind my friend as far as I could without impaling myself on the Swiss guard's naked sword when his holiness came near us and devoutly hoped he would not see me. But he gave us each a hand to kiss and exchanged questions and answers with my friend, whose family had known him when he was only a cardinal. I had plenty of time to look at him, for she had much to say, and of course I understood not a word of their talk. I was just recovering from my nervousness when he turned to his chamberlain, or ecclesiastic in attendance, and asked in French, "Who is this lady, and why is she here?"

"Oh," returned he, "she comes but as escort to her friend, and she is a heretic. Your holiness need not trouble to speak to her."

"If she is a heretic," said he, "why does she wear the sign of our faith?" touching as he spoke the cross round my neck. The chamberlain shrugged his shoulders in embarrassment, but my friend took up the word.

"She is no heretic, holy father," said she warmly. "She is a good Christian, who nurses the sick and the poor, but she had the misfortune to be born in England, which is not to be laid to her door as a fault."

"My daughter," said the kindly voice of the old man as he laid one hand on my head and gave me the other to kiss for a second time, "I give you my blessing. Prosper in your good works." And he moved away.—Macmillan's Magazine.

General Gordon's Memory.

General J. B. Gordon has the power of memorizing wonderfully developed. On more than one occasion the writer followed him with a proof slip in hand and has been surprised at the accuracy with which he followed copy. On one occasion, while he was governor of Georgia, the writer came down on the train with him from Atlanta to this city, where he was to deliver a speech. It had already been set up in the Atlanta Constitution office and proofs sent out to the leading papers in the state. On the train Governor Gordon thought of something he desired to add to his speech, and he wrote it out as he traveled, filling several pages. When he finished, he read it over, handed the copy to the writer, and designated the point where he desired to bring it in the printed speech. He did not see it again.

On his arrival in Augusta, he was met by a committee, and from then until the hour of speaking he had scarcely an opportunity to think of his speech. He did not see the interlineation from the time he read it over once after writing it on the train, but when he came to deliver the speech he repeated it as accurately as though it had been laboriously committed to memory and rehearsed. It is seldom that General Gordon ever departs from the written copy, but it is a notable fact that when, in the heat of his speech and under the enthusiasm of the occasion, he changes his phraseology, it is always an improvement on the written text.—Augusta Chronicle.

What the Englishman Sang.

A party of New York men and women who were entertaining an Englishman the other night wound up the entertainment by singing. The lady at the piano played "America," and the hostess ran to her in alarm and said: "Please don't play that. The man will discover that we don't know our national song. We Americans are always put in a ridiculous position when patriotic songs come up. Every foreigner knows his own, but we none of us know ours." It was too late. The company caught the first bar and fell to singing. Everybody got as far as "Of thee I sing," and then the Americans began to replace the words with la-la-la and tum-te-tum. The Englishman sang straight ahead, and the hostess looked at him with amazement. "He is the only one present who knows the words," she said. She walked near him and listened. Then she whispered: "Thank heaven, it isn't so. He is singing 'God Bless Her Majesty' to the same tune."—New York Sun.

Ancient Trading.

Professor Hommels, in his "Aus der Babylonischen Alterumskunde," shows how thousands of years ago commercial relationships were constant. The professor has found out that in 4000 B. C. Babylonia was in active business with Arabia, Syria and Kurdistan. The idea of isolation, which has been somehow entertained, is to forget the wants and the activity of man. In the past it was pretty much like the present, only, if we think of it, the risk and dangers attending commerce were greater in remote periods and that inclines us to consider that more courage and patience were necessary on the part of traders 6,000 years ago than today.

Malaga Vines.

The method of cultivating the vine in Malaga is in every way simple. The only feature there which is not observed in other countries is that the "crowns" of the vine are kept very close to the ground. The object of this is to enable the surface growth to benefit from the close proximity to all moisture rising from or descending upon the soil.

NIGHT.

In the still and sweet of the night,
Oh, the wakening out of dreams
Ere ever a line of light
Through the gate of the morning streams!
With never a roof above
That the sweep of our joyance mars,
Only the sky and the love
Of the brotherly infinite stars!

In the still and sweet of the night,
Oh, the voicing of wondrous things
From the Druid firs on the height
And the lips of the lowland spring;
From the sibylline tongues that tell
The truths that the ages teach,
Loosed from the day's deep spell
Into soft, articulate speech!

In the still and sweet of the night,
Oh, the sense of soul release
From the passions and pains that blight
In the dewy balms of peace!
The brooding rapture of rest
Free from the fret and feud,
Close to the earth's warm breast
In her loving mother mood.

EUGENIE LOST HER WAGER.

Boxed the Ears of a Royal Guard, but He Did Not Move.

Nothing could be more magnificent than the appearance of everything pertaining to the court on all public occasions. The balls, especially in the various splendid rooms, particularly in the immense "Salle des Marechaux," were a sight not to be forgotten, from the first entrance and ascent by the great staircase, adorned with flowers and shrubs, where on each step stood two of the "cent-gardes" (the emperor's bodyguard) as motionless as statues. Nothing was more remarkable than the drill which enabled these men, on all occasions when on duty at the palace, to remain without moving a muscle. The fatigue of this immobility is said to be so great that it could not be endured beyond a certain time, but it was so complete that to come suddenly on one of these guards in the palace was positively startling. It was scarcely possible to believe that they were alive. They were all remarkably fine men, subofficers chosen out of various regiments, and when the war came they proved that they were not merely parade soldiers, for they figured among the best and bravest troops.

One day the little prince, when a young child, in the hope of making the sentinel move, poured a whole bag of sweets into his boot, but without eliciting any sign of life from the military statue before him. This play of the child being mentioned in the presence of Colonel Verly, who commanded the regiment, he declared that nothing could make one of his men move when on duty. The empress would not believe this assertion and finally laid a wager that she would contrive to make one of the guards move. Colonel Verly having accepted the wager, the empress went with him into the neighboring gallery, where they walked backward and forward before the sentinel, the empress trying by every means to attract his attention. The guard stood as if turned into stone. Colonel Verly smiled. The empress, with her characteristic impetuosity, then went straight up to the soldier, and, according to familiar speech, "boxed his ears." Not a muscle moved. The empress then acknowledged that Colonel Verly had won the day and sent a handsome compensation to the soldier, who proudly refused it, saying that he was sufficiently compensated by having had his sovereign lady's hand on his cheek!—"Life In the Tuileries Under the Second Empire," by Anna L. Bicknell, in Century.

A Woman's Bargain.

"It takes a woman to whittle expenditures down to a fine point and figure out a bargain," remarked a booky man to a writer recently. "I was looking at some new books in one of the shops last Monday, and just behind me was stacked over 1,000 popular novels, put up to sell cheap. Each tier was placarded 'Three cents each, four for a dime,' and the tiers reached to the ceiling.

"Two ladies were looking at the books, both well gowned and rather above the average in appearance. They were evidently strangers, for I heard one say to the other, 'Are you going to take a book, madam?' 'Why, yes, I thought I would,' was the surprised reply. 'I want something to read on the cars. I think I will enjoy rereading "David Copperfield," so I have selected that.' 'Have you got 2 cents?' was the next question. 'I—I think so,' was the rather slow response, the tone of surprise deepened. 'Just let me have it,' said the other as I turned around to see if there wasn't some kind of flimflam game going on. 'Here,' to the clerk she had beckoned, 'do "David Copperfield" up in one package and these three in another, and here's your 10 cents. Hurry! This lady has to catch her train!'

"The girl was back in a jiffy, and before any of us could figure it out the lady had shoved 'David Copperfield' in the hands of the traveler and taken possession of her own three books. 'There,' she said, with a satisfied smile, 'you get your book for 2 cents and I get my three for 8 cents. You have saved a penny and so have I. Save the pennies and the pounds will take care of themselves.' And she went off laughing. I'll bet it would have taken a man a week to figure that out, and I am not quite sure that I have it right yet!"—Washington Star.

Worked His Way Up.

The proprietor of a factory on the South Side has a son who has had about everything there was going—a college education with a degree, all the fun to be had on a liberal allowance and a European tour. When he got back, he told his father he wanted to settle down and get "and son" on the signboard. The next morning the proprietor brought him to the foreman, saying, "Got anything for this young man to do?"

"Sorting scrap iron—$1 a day."

"All right; put him at that. I want to give him a chance for the sake of his mother. If he's any good, he'll work up."

In two years the young man had worked up to be manager and junior partner, and the proprietor began to have his turn at a good time.—Chicago Tribune.

Rainy Day Petticoat.

It is advisable that one should have one petticoat to be used exclusively for walking, and this may be faced some distance from the bottom with a waterproof cloth. There will then be almost perfect protection for the feet and ankles in wet weather. It is the swishing of damp clothes about the feet that constitutes most of the discomfort of a rainy day expedition, and the waterproof lining does away with this.

There is nothing in life so irrational that good sense and chance may not set it to rights; nothing so rational that folly and chance may not utterly confound it.—Goethe.

An intelligent class can scarce ever be, as a class, vicious and never, as a class, indolent.—Everett.

PLAYING CARDS.

The Figures They Bear and What They Are Supposed to Represent.

There are but few persons, even among the historians, antiquarians and students in general, who have the least idea of the significance of the figures on playing cards. In very early times the four suits represented the four principal trades followed by the people and the figures on the cards were supposed to be symbolic of the same. The heart was the symbol of the choirmen, or ecclesiastics, and in all early packs, besides the figure of the heart, each card also bore a rude picture of a monk's cowl or of his cloak and crooked staff.

Some authorities say that the cut of the early monkish cloak was in the form of a heart, and that the figure used today is but a representation or picture of that portion of the old prelate's wearing apparel. The "spade" is really a pike, or spearhead, and was originally the trademark of the soldiery, typifying the nobility of that very important branch of ancient "industry." The artisans in general were represented by either a Mason's arch or by a diamond shaped roofing tile. The former, being somewhat unhandy to properly figure, gradually gave way to the tile, which is still used and called a "diamond," because of its shape. The farmers, or great class of agricultural laborers, were given their symbol, which was originally a wheat head, or sheaf of wheat bound up with the common straw band. As clover gradually became the chief forage grass of the agriculturists, they adopted a single leaf of that plant as their card symbol. A figure of this useful species of trefoil is still used and is called a "club," but why no one knows.

The four kings were originally David, Alexander, Cæsar and Charlemagne, representing the four greatest monarchies. Authorities differ as to the queens, but the preponderance of the evidence is in favor of the opinion that they are Argine, Judith, Esther and Pallas. The knaves, or "jacks," are supposed to be rude caricatures of ancient assassins, or general all around villains, whose names have been lost in the many centuries that cards have been used in games of chance and amusement.—St. Louis Republic.

YACHTING THROUGH MEADOWS.

Novel Experience In Cruising on the Norfolk Broads In England.

The river was a thronged highway. Yachts, barges, yawls, rowboats—such was the flotilla riding between the meadow banks. With the sunny whiteness of the bulging sails was contrasted the novelty of the prevailing background—trees, farmhouses, hayricks, garden walls, herds of cattle, windmills—a landscape through which the moving sails seemed to play the role of winged figures. Gradually the charm and beauty of this river life began to work their spell. The zigzagging of the yacht from shore to shore was soon accepted as a novel way of getting into closer touch with a river bank, the narrowness of the river and the low, close shores giving one the sense of being at one and the same moment on land and on water.

All the usual signs and sights seen and looked for from a yacht's deck must be forgotten, to be replaced by fresh and novel experiences. For the usual horizons seen from aboard a yacht, there were fringes of larches behind which the blues of the hills and of the sky came together. To test the course of the wind one looked at the tossing tree boughs, and to note its strength there was the waving grain to take the place of foam capped water. The sails we met came from behind barns, and the bows rounded the bark of tree trunks.

To speak a ship one had only to shout across the meadows. As far as the eye could see the landscape was dotted with white wings. Rarely above the low shores did the river show its sunned face, and the boats in the narrow channels seemed to walk upon the meadows. The church spires of Horning and Hoveton crowning the hilltops alone appeared stable, for the ever moving sails gave to all the landscape a shifting and fluctuant aspect.—"A Cruise on the Norfolk Broads," by Anna Bowman Dodd in Century.

The Brave Little Peccary.

Of the few American quadrupeds for which an intelligent hunter entertains a certain amount of respect, the collared peccary is one. Although he is only a little, flat sided, highly shouldered hog, wild and uneducated, yet he is a plucky fighter when angry, and like a true child of the wild west he gets mad quite easily. It always annoys him very much that any one should dare to go a-gunning for him, and Mr. A. B. Baker of the Washington zoo points to a long slit in the side of his leather leggings as an illustration of what a Texas peccary can do when he is very angry.

This species has a very wide range, being found from the Red river of Arkansas as far south as Patagonia. In Texas it is no longer abundant save in the low jungly bottom lands along the Rio Grande. It does not go in great droves, like the white lipped peccary, and it is seldom that more than eight or ten individuals are seen together. The time was when they were much more ready to fight than they are now, but, like all other dangerous animals, they have learned to fear man and his deadly firearms.—W. T. Hornaday in St. Nicholas.

Vain Pretense.

One day in the Uffizi gallery in Florence a learned American was studying a great Etruscan vase when a stranger, standing near, said to him: "Does not this seem to you like a mysterious book, written in forgotten characters? Is not a collection of such vases like a library?"

"I see," was the reply, "you refer to the so called Etruscan library, which an Englishman has made and which contains only vases and inscriptions in that now unknown tongue of Etruria. And indeed when we turn over the pages of Inghirami, Gerhard and Gori, Gray or Dennis it does seem—but what do you think the old Etruscan language truly was?"

"Look here, my friend," said the stranger in broad Yankee, "I guess I'm barkin up the wrong tree. I calculated to tell you somethin, but you're ahead of me!"—Youth's Companion.

HENPECKED?

Not At All—His Wife Only Bullied and Nagged Him.

A wild eyed gentleman said to me recently:

"I know a married man—mind you, I'm not mentioning any names—whose wife picks at him morning, noon and night. His life is a slavery and a curse, and he's liable to do something desperate."

"Why doesn't he rebel?" I queried.

"I've tried it—I—I mean he's tried it," he answered, "and he's always got the worst of it."

"I've no sympathy with any man who lets his wife tyrannize over him," said I, "and you can—hem—you can tell your friend so."

He sat down on my front steps, took off his hat and rubbed his poor old bald head with his handkerchief.

"I wonder if a woman ever inquires of herself why a man married her," he went on. "Surely it wasn't to be bullied by her, to dread the sound of her voice and long to have her go away."

"You feel this affair of your friend's deeply," I said, but he heeded me not.

"Does a woman ever think that a man got along pretty well before he met her?" he continued; "that he kept out of jail and out of the idiot asylum and gutter before he knew her; that he could manage to spend a dollar without advice and wasn't a menace to society?

"Why does she think that she must 'run' him and the servants and the children and everything in the neighborhood?

"He earns the money that makes her position possible. He has his nose at the grindstone 12 and 15 hours a day, and he doesn't even get out of it a quiet boarding place as he did when he was a young man earning $9 a week!

"If he dares to venture to a little social card party with some of his old friends, he has to fight a terrific battle before he goes and another one when he comes back, so the game isn't worth the candle—or the 'candle' either.

"And women can be such mean cowards too.

"No man can fight tears and hysterics, and well they know it.

"Your logic may be perfect, but what good is it when your wife stamps on the floor and screams at the top of her lungs after she finds she hasn't got the best of the argument?

"Why, I—that is, my friend—has to give a regular account of where he was at every hour of the day and keeps his letters and telegrams to substantiate his statements.

"Oh, it's something awful, but it won't last, that's one comfort."

"What are you—I mean what is your friend—going to do about it?" I asked.

He rose and smiled darkly as he went away.

"He may disappear," he said mysteriously, "and let the river be dragged and the morgue be searched, and only come home when his wife repents of her conduct. Goodby. I'm going off to the theater by myself, no matter what may happen."—New York Herald.

When Did They Live?

One of the most interesting questions relating to the early history of Switzerland is that of the probable length of time that has elapsed since the people called the "lake dwellers" occupied the curious houses whose remains are now found there. A fresh examination of this question has lately been undertaken by M. Vouga.

The earliest of the lake dwellers belonged to the age of stone, and they were succeeded by others who made weapons and implements of bronze. M. Vouga thinks that the people who made the stone implements lived during only one, or at most two, centuries on the shores of the Swiss lakes and that for some reason, perhaps because of an inundation, they suddenly deserted their homes.

Then for 3,000 years the waters continued to deposit a slowly thickening layer of mud upon the sites of the abandoned villages. At the end of that time another people, who had acquired the art of making bronze, appeared upon the scene, the lakes having in the meantime perhaps sunk to their former level. These people remained there for two or three centuries, and then in their turn disappeared, and another layer of mud, occupying 3,000 years more in the process of deposition, covered the remains of their dwellings and the relics of their art and industry.

The muddy bottom of a lake forms a strange record book for human history, but it is better than none at all.—Youth's Companion.

Spiteful Epitaph on Dr. Johnson.

The writer of the epitaph was Soame Jenyns. It appeared in The Gentleman's Magazine, 1786. Boswell quotes it in a footnote to chapter 12 of his "Life of Johnson." After commenting on it with deserved severity, he adds:

This unjust and sarcastic epitaph was met by an answer, in terms by no means soft, and such as wanton provocation alone could justify:

EPITAPH.

[Prepared for a creature not quite dead yet.]
Here lies a little ugly nauseous elf,
Who, judging only from its wretched self,
Feebly attempted, petulant and vain,
The "Origin of Evil" to explain.
A mighty genius, at this elf displeased,
With a strong critic grasp the urchin squeezed.
For thirty years its coward spleen it kept
Till in the dust the mighty genius slept,
Then stunk and fretted in expiring snuff
And blinked at Johnson with its last poor puff.

Croker adds: "The answer was no doubt by Boswell himself, and does more credit to his zeal than his poetical talents."

In the epitaph on Johnson, as given by Boswell, there is a slight difference in two lines. One version is:

Ill bred and overbearing in dispute,
A scholar and a Christian—but a brute.

And another:

Haughty and overbearing in dispute,
A Christian and a scholar, but a brute.

—Notes and Queries.

A Hole In a Stone.

When primitive man pierced a hole through a stone for decorative purposes mainly, the resultant was due to a great deal of trouble and expenditure of time. When he came across a stone with a hole in it, he thought the perforation was due to some miraculous power, and accordingly he endowed the stone with supernatural attributes. Man's belief in the marvelous ought to diminish in exact proportion to his information. A stone may be formed of the same silex, only one portion is crystalline, the other amorphous. While the crystalline part resists abrasion and solution the amorphous does not. If the amorphous part lie in the center of a stone which is in the water, it wastes away, and so a hole is the result.—New York Times.

A treatise on natural history was forbidden in Turkey because in its chapter on starfish it was supposed to contain some occult allusion to the sultan's palace, which is named "The Star."

WATCHES AND THEIR WEARERS.

Timepieces Said to Reflect the Temperaments of Their Owners.

There appears to be some occult connection between a watch and its owner. Else why should a timepiece go at one speed on one person and at a different one on another? Read what a Washington jeweler has to say about the matter:

"I used to have a friend who had an excellent Swiss watch, while I had one of another make. By mutual consent at one time we exchanged watches, and though they had gone all right before they changed their gait entirely, mine running five minutes ahead in a couple of days and his running five minutes behind. There was ten minutes' difference in our temperaments. But that is nothing compared to the difference between some people. Sometimes a watch that will run well on one man will not go with another, and there are some people who cannot get a watch that will run on them at all.

"I remember a good many years ago I had a man come to my place with an old fashioned English lever silver watch to be repaired. I had some very nice gold watches in stock at the time, and as he looked well off I tried to sell him one, but he laughed and said if any of the gold watches I had in the store would run 24 hours in his pocket he would give me twice what I asked for it. He said he had tried all sorts of gold watches and had never been able to get one that would run while he had it. He had experimented with his brother's watch only a little while before, he said, and it cost him $3.50 to have it demagnetized after he had carried it in his pocket two days. Most silver watches acted the same way with him, but the old English watch he was carrying had a double inside case to it and worked fairly well.

"I've never been able to tell whether the average watch will run faster when it is in its owner's possession or not. There seems to be no rule on the subject, but I can never regulate a watch on my swingboard there and then give it to a customer and have it keep good time. Then there is a variation with a change of vitality. A watch will ordinarily run slower the longer it is carried after cleaning, because the oil dries and the bearings are harder, but I have had customers come to me and say that their watches had started up and gone to gaining time several months after they had been cleaned. I just tell them that I can't account for it except on a theory of a change in their own vitality and temperament. It's one of those things that cannot be explained, but it is true nevertheless."—Home Journal.

FITTING A JAPANESE ROOM.

Plainness, Simplicity and a Fusion of Oriental With Occidental Ideas.

A Japanese room in an American house does not mean so much the furnishing of a certain limited amount of space with a large collection of Japanese objects and material as it does a perfect fusion of oriential with occidental ideas, writes F. Schuyler Mathews in detailing and illustrating "A Japanese Room," in The Ladies' Home Journal. A lot of Japanese things will not make the room they occupy Japanese. Its whole arrangement and character must undergo a complete change. For instance, a chair is a thing quite foreign to the oriental idea of a seat. There are no chairs in Japan. Divan and stool are both oriental and conform with our ideas of comfortable seats. Indeed, they often prove quite as luxurious as the conventional American rocking chair.

Whatever is Japanese that will adapt itself to the requirements of our American civilization we may apply to our needs in the furnishing of such a room. I do not think that a plentiful supply of fans, lanterns, vases, umbrellas and screens will properly meet these requirements. A room furnished in good taste must not look like a museum. The Japanese room should look like one we might see in a house in Tokyo, the character of the furnishings of which is marked by plainness and entire simplicity. The less furniture we have in the room the nearer Japanese it will be. Some of us will think that because Japanese rooms look bare the condition is purely a matter of Japanese expediency or custom not worth notice. If a Japanese room does appear bare, it at least escapes every hint of vulgarity. A table, two spacious divans, two or three cushioned stools, a cabinet, a vase stand, a window seat and a chest of drawers are all that are requisite for the complete furnishing of the room a la Japanese.

"Tear Pits" of the Deer.

Both the poets and the prose writers of imaginative or contemplative turn of mind have often alluded to the tears shed by stags and other wounded creatures of the deer family. Shakespeare put it in this way in describing the injured stag:

The big round tears
Coursed one another down his innocent nose
In piteous chase.

There is, of course, more poetry than truth in these references to the actual shedding of tears by members of the deer family, yet it is a fact that such animals are provided with a curious set of organs, the action of which has given rise to the tear shedding belief. The organ in question is the lachrymal sinus, or "tear pit," which is situated just below each eye. It is a kind of closed cavity, capable of being opened at the pleasure of its owner, and which secretes a greasy, waxy fluid of very disagreeable odor. When creatures provided with this curious organ get hurt or become enraged, it has the effect of softening the waxy substance in the "tear pit." When so softened, it escapes as tears would and flows down over the nose and face.

The uses of this queer set of so called lachrymal organs is not clearly understood by the zoologists.—St. Louis Republic.

No Fancy Prayers at Westminster.

The Westminster Gazette quotes a delightful story told by one of the speakers at the meeting of the Catholic Truth society held in Bristol. A pious Catholic once visited Westminster abbey. Withdrawing into a quiet corner to pursue his private devotions, he was summoned in stentorian tones to come and view the royal tombs and chapels. "But I have seen the royal tombs," politely rejoined the stranger. "I only wish to say my prayers." "Prayers is over." "Still, I suppose there can be no objection to my saying my prayers quietly here?" mildly pleaded the stranger. "No objection, sir?" said the irate verger. "Why, it would be an insult to the dean and chapter!" This is worthy of Sydney Smith, and distinctly better than the older form of the legend in which the verger sternly declares that "no fancy prayers are allowed here!"—London Spectator.

Anxious to Begin.

"Will you think of me when I'm gone?" asked Mr. Linger sentimentally as the hands of the clock moved toward 12.

"Certainly," replied Miss Kittish. "How soon shall I have an opportunity to begin thinking?"—Detroit Free Press.

A TURKISH FIRE BRIGADE.

Its Extinguishing Apparatus Is Generally of but Little Avail.

A Turkish fire engine consists simply of a hand pump, supported on two long poles, and carried on the shoulders of four of the firemen. The latter make a great show of haste. They run at a brisk trot, and keep shouting and yelling all the way, pushing rudely aside all wayfarers who are unlucky enough to get in their line of march. But, in truth, Turks are seldom in a hurry. It may be that their speed on setting out is stimulated more by the expectation of being able to levy "backsheesh," if they are early on the scene, than by any ardent desire to quench fire. The clothing they wear is white, and their lower limbs and feet are bare, consequently their progress is noiseless but for the yells they emit as they push along.

There is a high tower in Stamboul and another on the other side of the Golden Horn at Galata, both of which display flags on the alarm of fire. The flags are supposed to indicate the locality of the fire, but as several localities are sometimes enlivened by fires about the same time, these indications cannot always be very explicit. If fires break out during the night, the bekjies (night watchmen) take up the cry, and bawl out with discordant intonation where the fire is supposed to be.

When that formidable company of firemen with the hand pump arrives on the scene of conflagration, the bachi first of all calls at the contiguous houses, as yet untouched by fire, and endeavors to extort backsheesh for the exertions his men are about to make to save property. And woe betide those who admit these rascals. For the furniture is dragged out into the street, and if the household goods are not plundered there, they are probably destroyed beyond recovery. The writer has been told that householders generally prefer to bolt their iron doors and shut their iron shutters rather than give access to those plundering ruffians. Their extinguishing apparatus is generally of little avail.—J. Arthur Grey in Cassier's Magazine.

A Baron Newsboy.

One of the most interesting characters in a way in Chicago is said to be a "newsboy" who bears the title of baron and one of the proudest names in northern Germany. He is Baron Richard von Sydow. Every day Von Sydow goes his rounds with a bundle of papers so big that he can hardly carry it, for he is 70 years old now and has lost the vim that distinguished him as a young lieutenant years ago in the Blucher hussars in his native land. He is the son of General William von Sydow, who fought at the battle of Waterloo. He is also connected by marriage with the family of the Princess Bismarck. The baron, when a young man, was a guest at the marriage of the ex-chancellor and loves to tell what a fine, stalwart, popular fellow Herr von Bismarck was in those days. Von Sydow, it is said, tiring of the life at home on a small pittance, came to this country in 1861 and served as a captain in the famous Twelfth Illinois cavalry. He took up service again in Prussia, but soon came back to America, where, however, he has had difficulty in getting along.—New York Tribune.

TALK OF THE TOWN!

AND EXPLANATION WHY

Amos H. VanHorn

LIMITED,

73 Market st., Near Plane Street,

are doing all the business. Our stock is the largest, prices are the lowest and terms the easiest in the city. Just give it a passing thought that you can get an antique oak bedroom suit, 8 pieces, for $15, $20, $25 and $30, including a woven wire bed spring and a mixed mattress. No house in the city offers such inducements.

And then to think again that you can get tapestry Brussels carpet for 50, 60, and 70 cents a yard, made and laid with paper, which is a saving of 15c per yard. Where is there a house in the city that will offer such bargains?

And then imagine and wonder how we can afford to give away a moquette rug or parlor table with a parlor suit for $20, $30, $40 or $50.

Some of our competitors say that our ads are too much sameness, and that this ad. is old. Well, we will admit it, but as long as it does the business and saves the people money we will continue to run it.

CORSA CANNOT GO BACK.

Judge Beekman Decides That Col. Waring Need Not Restore the Plainfielder.

In Superior Court in New York yesterday Judge Beekman handed down a decision in the case of Henry C. Corsa, of this city, who was discharged from a deputy street cleaning commissionership by Col. Waring, and who had applied for a writ of mandamus, under the veteran act, compelling his restoration to the office.

It appeared that Corsa, after declining to resign in obedience to a private request, was notified to answer charges, and when he appeared and claimed a veteran's privilege, Col. Waring declined to swear the witness, who accused him of disobeying orders. Corsa and his counsel withdrew. When the application for a mandamus was made, the Commissioner notified him that he was restored, but Corsa, on advice of counsel, refused to abandon the proceeding, except upon condition that the pending charge should be dismissed. Corsa absented himself from duty for five days after the reinstatement, and was then dismissed again for his five days' absence. Corsa claimed that his absence was in pursuit of an agreement that he should not be prejudiced pending the mandamus proceeding. Judge Beekman denies the writ, as the respondent has already complied with any direction the Court would make, but costs are awarded to Corsa.

WORKS OF MYSTERY.

True Reformers Entertained by a Display of Magic Art.

The entertainment given by Siloam Fountain of True Reformers in Reform hall last night provided an occasion for the members to gather in sociability and enjoy and entertaining program which had been arranged for their pleasure. The principal feature of the affair was the display of magic work by Prof. J. E. Bolden, of Virginia. The conjurer was wonderfully deft with his tricks and the novelty of them was a surprise and mystery to the audience. A number of local talent participated in the programme. The committee who arranged the affair was as follows: J. H. Saunders, S. J. Whendington, W. J. Crowley, John T. Cox, A. S. Venable, G. L. Croon and J. A. Saunders.

PILGRIMS PROGRESS.

An Illustrated Lecture at the Park Avenue Baptist Church.

Rev. Dr. Adam Chambers, of Roselle, will give his illustrated lecture on "Pilgrims Progress" at the Park Avenue Baptist church on Sunday evening. The illustrations consist of a panorama of one hundred artistic oil paintings. The same lecture was given under the auspices of Rev. Charles Spurgeon, at London, for a hundred consecutive nights.

At the close of the lecture, a collection will be taken for the benefit of the Roselle Baptist church which is largely in debt.

Failed to Return Borrowed Goods.

The case of Mira Pleasant against Amanda Dunham, both colored, in tort, has an amusing history, the details of which will be brought out in the hearing before Justice Newcorn November 11th. Some time ago Amanda borrowed a coat and pair of shoes from Mira and forgot to return them. The latter being very anxious to have them has been obliged to take the case into court. Lawyer H. C. Runyon will represent the plaintiff.

No Canary Birds.

A man with an immense package of canary birds in cages applied to Chief of Police Grant this morning and asked permission to peddle them. As a city ordinance forbids peddling, Grant could not grant the request and the peddler left with a woeful-looking face.

Valuable Canines.

A number of valuable dogs belonging to William Tallman, of Netherwood, were shipped south yesterday morning to enter several competitive races. They have been in training sometime and the owner is expecting great results.

Henry Wilson, the postmaster at Welshton, Florida, says he cured a case of diarrhœa of long standing in six hours, with one small bottle of Chambertain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. What a pleasant surprise that must have been to the sufferer. Such cures are not unusual with this remedy. In many instances only one or two doses are required to give permanent relief. It can always be depended upon. When reduced with water it is pleasant to take. For sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. R. Armstrong, Manager.

CUPID'S NOVEMBER EVENT.

A PRETTY HOME WEDDING CELEBRATED ON WATCHUNG AVENUE.

A Pennsylvanian Carries Off a Plainfield Bride—The Ceremony Performed Amid a Bower of Flowers—Guests.

Surrounded by a bower of beautiful palms, white chrysanthemums and smilax, Miss Zulema Schroder, daughter of Frederick Schroder, of 929 Watchung avenue, became the wife of George L. Brinley, of Birdsboro, Pa., yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The parlor of the pretty home was a perfect garden of flowers. While Mendelssohn's wedding march was being rendered by Mrs. John M. Schorb, Jr., on the piano, the flower girls, Helen and May Schroder, sisters of the bride, entered the parlor gowned in white Swiss, wearing wreaths of pinks and carnations. They were followed by Carl Schroder, acting as page. Then came the bride leaning on the arm of her father. She was beautiful in an ashes of rose traveling gown with pearl trimmings and pearl front. She also wore a tulle veil caught up with a diamond chester, a gift of the groom, and carried white roses. Following came the maid of honor, Miss Mamie Hass, of Birdsboro, Pa., exquisitely gowned in pink fre fronce covered with pink tulle and and trimmed with pink flowers. She carried a bouquet of pinks. The bridemaid, Miss Jennie Schroder, came next, and was gowned the same. This portion of the bridal party were met by the groom and best man, Walter Focht, of Birdsboro, Pa., and they all were received by Rev. Herbert Randolph, who performed the ceremony, after which they were heartily congratulated by those present.

An elegant supper was then served, and after a social time the bride and groom left on the 6:40 train for Philadelphia on a short honeymoon. On their return they will reside at Birdsboro, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. Brinley received many handsome and useful presents from their friends and relatives.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. H. Winter and Miss Winter, of Orange; Mr. and Mrs. William Carroll, Miss Bouneli, Mr. and Mrs. Trujillo, of New York; Mrs. Charles Colladay, Mrs. Rebecca Irvin, of Philadelphia; Miss May Laing, Miss Nellie Van Winkle, Mr. and Mrs. James Lewis, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Randolph, Mr. and Mrs. John Schorb, of Plainfield; Miss Mamie Adams, of Brooklyn.

Dr. Reinhart, of Birdsboro, acted as usher.

House Warming.

Mr. and Mrs. Fank Briggs entertained their friends at a house warming Tuesday evening. The evening was pleasantly spent with music and games, after which refreshments were served. It was in the early hours of the morning when the guests took leave.

Those present included Mrs. Combs, Miss Isabel Finke and Edward Finke, of New York; Miss Anna Bell Haradon, of Williams Bridge; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Startup, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Ryno, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Miller, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. VanFleet, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Rugg, the Misses Laning, Dr. Pocock, Mr. Dunbar, Miss Laura Holder, A. K. Holder, John Holder, E. M. Vail, Miss Mae VanFleet, Miss Ethel Conkee, Miss Ada Clark, Miss Burrows, Miss Edna Briggs and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Briggs.

Two Aged Women Surprised.

Mrs. James Philpitt and sister, Mrs. George Philpitt, celebrated the anniversary of their birthdays on Monday. The former is seventy-six and the latter eighty-six, and it happens that both come on the same day. In the evening they were surprised to see a number of relatives and friends walk into their house on West Front street. All joined in singing and dancing, after which refreshments were served.

Both were the recipients of many useful presents. After all had offered congratulations the happy guests left for home. Among those present were Mrs. C. Crook, and Miss Gerald, of Brooklyn, Mr. Warner, Mr. Scott, Mr. Winters, and Miss Pauline Smith, of Newark; Oscar Philpitt, Mr. and Mrs. Perham, of Pennsylvania: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Philpitt, Mrs. Dantz, and Miss Birdie Philpitt.

Death of James Sheridan.

James Sheridan died this morning at his home on East Fourth street, aged sixty-one years. He has resided in this city for the past nine years and for some time past his health has been poor. The funeral will be held from his late residence Saturday morning at 9 o'clock and from St. Mary's church at 9:45.

BOWLING GAMES ARRANGED.

Select a Class Ring.

The class of '96, of Leal's School, held a meeting yesterday and, after considering a number of designs, decided to adopt a class ring. The ring is made in the shape of a snake, the head and tail forming an S, while '96 and Leal's are placed upon it in gold letters across the front.

Arrested on a Serious Charge.

Charles McGuire, of Summit, aged eighteen years, was arrested this morning and taken to the county jail at Elizabeth on the charge of assault on Lizzie Sisco, daughter of George Sisco. The girl is fifteen years of age.

W. A. McGuire, a well known citizen of McKay, Ohio, is of the opinion that there is nothing as good for children troubled with colds or croup as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He has used it in his family for several years with the best results and always keeps a bottle of it in the house. After having la grippe he was himself troubled with a severe cough. He used other remedies without benefit and then concluded to try the children's medicine and to his delight it soon effected a permanent cure. 25 and 50c bottles for sale at Reynolds's pharmacy, Park and North aves. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

ECHOES OF VACATION.

Interesting Summer Trips Talked of By the Seventh-Day Baptists.

The first of anything is always looked upon as a sample of those to follow, and if the rest of the socials of the Seventh-Day Baptist church are as enjoyable as the first one of the winter, which was held last evening, then the year will be a noted one as far as the social work is concerned. The fog and dampness kept many at home but, despite them, the sociable was very largely attended and the evening was spent very pleasantly.

The programme was a novel and successful one. It was called "Vacation Echoes" and consisted of a number of short sketches of the various places in which different members of the congregation spent their vacation. The subjects and the speakers were as follows: Kentucky, Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis; Concord, Cambridge and Plymouth, Miss Lou Clawson; Lake George and Fort Ticonderoga, Miss Louise Lewis; Nova Scotia and the "Evangeline" trip, William M. Stillman; British Columbia and Vancouver, Dr. Russell; A Visit to the Shakers, Miss Lena Tomlinson; The Adirondacks, Prof. H. M. Maxson. There was also a piano solo by Miss Mabel A. Maxson and a vocal solo by Mrs. G. E. Stillman.

Photographs showing various views of the different places were passed around and during his talk Dr. Russell exhibited two tables covered with interesting souvenirs of British Columbia. The talks were all greatly enjoyed and the entertainment committee, which consisted of Mrs. D. E. Titsworth, chairman, Mrs. J. G. Miller, Miss Mabel A. Maxson, Miss Ida L. Spicer and Miss Lena Tomlinson, deserves great credit for their efforts to provide a successful programme.

After the programme was concluded, the rest of the evening was spent in conversation and partaking of the excellent refreshments which were provided by a committee consisting of Mrs. A. T. Tomlinson and J. F. Hubbard.

A GOOD WOMAN GONE.

Death of a Prominent and Active Member in the Friends' Society.

In the death of Mrs. Rachel Bogert, widow of the late Henry A. Bogert, which occurred yesterday in her sixty-eighth year, at her home, 522 East Second street, Plainfield loses a most valued and estimable woman. She had been seriously ill for several months past and her death was not unexpected.

As a Christian woman she did all that she could, and her well directed efforts in the cause of religion will reap a rich harvest. She was a staunch member of the Friends Society, and the W. C. T. U. A large circle of relatives and friends will feel her absence, and the family have the sincere sympathy of them all. Three daughters and two sons survive her.

The funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 1:30 from the decedents late home, 522 East Second street.

For a pain in the side or chest there is nothing so good as a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of pain. It affords prompt and permanent relief and if used in time will often prevent a cold from resulting in pneumonia. This same treatment is a sure cure for lame back. For sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North aves. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

MIKE WATSON LICKED AGAIN.

NOT IN A FISTIC MILL, BUT IN THE SUPREME COURT.

He Still Shows Fight and Will Endeavor to Have the Common Pleas Court Decision Reviewed by Certiorari.

The litigation between this city and Michael Watson is proving to be one of the most involved and protracted of all liquor prosecutions. Watson has had not his day, but his many days, in court. Convicted and sentenced in the City Court, he appealed to the Court of Common Pleas and he there succeeded in having the conviction set aside. But his success was short lived. By advice of the Corporation Counsel the city carried the case to the Supreme Court where the judgment of the County Court was reversed and the case remanded for a new trial. The city then had Watson's appeals in both this and a later case dismissed in the County Court and Watson was lodged in jail. His counsel sued out a writ of error, which removed the case to the Supreme Court again, and Watson was bailed out of jail. Yesterday, on motion of Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh on behalf of this city, judgment was ordered against Watson with costs by Judges Depue, VanSyckel and Gummere, for failure to assign and file errors.

Watson's next move will be an attempt to have the judgment of the Common Pleas Court reviewed by writ of certiorari.

Watson's counsel are John A. Frech, of Somerville, and Fred C. Marsh, of Elizabeth.

ALL THE BIDS REJECTED.

Charges That a Change Had Been Made in One of Them.

The Board of Freeholders of Middlesex county yesterday rejected all the bids for the construction of a macadamized road from Dunellen to Stelton, and the Committee on Highways was authorized to readvertise for bids. The first bids were rejected because suspicion was raised that there had been a deal in the Road Committee, which is made up of a majority of Republicans, by which the $30,000 contract was to go to a contractor in Dunellen. It was charged that the figures in this bid had been changed at the last moment by a member of the committee. When the bids were thrown down for public inspection it was found that in the bid the word "seventy" had been written over "eighty-four." The writing was in different colored ink. It is claimed that the bids was change after it had been presented to the committee.

Wheels Out in Force.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Jones, of Grandview avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Vail, of Prospect place, to a spin on their wheels Tuesday to Short Hills, where they attended the chrysanthemum show. They found the road thick with other cyclists. Going and coming they counted three hundred and twenty-six different riders and found about two hundred wheels stacked all about the vicinity of the green houses at Short Hills.

John Sebold Dead.

John Sebold, the contractor, who met with an accident on the trolley road between New Brunswick and Milltown on Tuesday morning by which two heavy spools of copper wire rolled upon him, died yesterday. Mr. Sebold was for many years deputy health inspector.

About the Children's Home.

The eighteenth annual report of the Plainfield Children's Home Association has just been issued and is being distributed to those who are interested in the institution. Besides the list of officers and annual reports it contains the names of the contributors for the year ending May 1st, 1895.

An Old Folks Concert.

The first rehearsal is to be held tomorrow evening for an "Old Folks" concert which is to be given by the young people of the First Presbyterian church at the Y. M. C. A. hall sometime during December.

Croup is a terror to young mothers. To post them concerning the first symptoms, and treatment is the object of this item. The first indication of croup is hoarseness. In a child who is subject to croup it may be taken as a sure sign of the approach of an attack. Following this hoarseness is a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's Cough remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the rough cough has appeared it will prevent the attack. It has never been known to fail. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

A SESSION OF DEBATE.

Red Men to Have a Novel Sort of a Meeting Tomorrow Night.

Miantonomah Tribe, No. 118, I.O.R.M., will meet tomorrow night and work the adoption degree on two candidates, the hunter's on three, and receive one, after which a select programme will be rendered as follows: Guitar selections, Harry Drier; selected humor, W. A. Westphal; song, C. L. Holstin; recitation, George Leighs; banjo solo, William Force; song, Robert Perrine; lullaby, A. J. Stiglitz, short talk, N. C. Mague; duet, banjo and guitar, William Force and Harry Drier; recitation, Robert Guttridge; song, Joseph Newman.

Following the above there will be a debate on the subject "The desirability of attaching a general death benefit fund to the Improved Order of Red Men, under the auspices of the Great Council." W. A. Westphal, N. C. Mague and J. A. Karet will speak for the affirmative, and William Newcorn, C. L. Holstein and Francis Whiteley will represent the negative.

A collation will be served at the close, and the pipe of peace will end the festivities.

MARRIED AT DUNELLEN.

Happy Nuptial Event of Miss Nettie Hill and Finlin Lewis.

The marriage of Miss Nettie Hill to Finlin Lewis took place last night at the Methodist parsonage in Dunellen, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Frank Custard. After the nuptial knot had been tied the happy couple returned to the home of the bride's parents where a collation was served and a reception given to a few intimate friends and relatives. They were the recipients of a number of handsome and useful presents. Among those present at the reception were the following: Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hill, Martin Lines, Walter Lewis, Mabel Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Giles.

FINE BANJO MUSIC.

George Jenkins to Give a Concert at Music Hall.

Lovers of banjo music are to be given a treat on Tuesday, Nov. 26th, when George Jenkins will give a grand banjo concert at Music Hall. He will be assisted by John Daly, the famous humorist, George Halloway, the guitarist, the Dore Banjo Quartette, of New York, and many others. Brooks, Denton and Ossman, three of the most celebrated banjo players in the country, will exhibit their skill, while a banjo orchestra composed of thirty-five local players will render several selections. The entertainment promises to be a delightful one.

WON'T HAVE TO PAY FOR THE SUITS.

Howard Woolston Non-suits Mague in the Common Pleas Court.

The appeal case of Mague against Woolston was brought up in the Court of Common Pleas yesterday and Judge McCormick rendered a decision of non-suit, thus reversing the result of Justice Newcorn's court. The decision carries with it the costs of both courts, which the plaintiff will have to settle. The action was brought to recover the value of several of the old Crescent Wheelmen's suits, which it was alleged Woolston had detained from their rightful owners. W. K. McClure represented the defendant.

A Hilarious Time.

The evils of intemperance were very much in evidence last evening at Patrick Callahan's residence on Manning avenue. The latter was under the influence of the flowing bowl so that when he reached home he had an abundance of ambition. As a result he and his wife engaged in a dispute which ended in a fight. Indecent language was used profusely, and a crowd was attracted in the neighborhood. Chief Van Horn, Special Marshal Goodwin, and Constable Taynor went to the place, but the disturbance was not quieted.

Camera Club Exhibition.

The lantern slide entertainment of the Plainfield Camera Club is to take place on Tuesday evening. The tickets which were issued for the entertainment are good for admittance, and those who have none can procure them from the members. The entertainment will be held in the cosy club rooms in the Babcock building.

—At Swain's on East Front street can be found etchings, photographs, photogravues, water colors and oil paintings; also a large assortment of framing of the newest designs, all at prices as reasonable as first-class goods are to be obtained. 2t

PROBABLY FORTY DEAD

Detroit Buildings Wrecked by an Explosion.

Many People Buried in the Ruins. Several Persons Perish in the Flames in Sight of Others Helpless to Aid Them — Appalling Scenes During the Rescue.

Detroit, Nov. 7.—The battery of boilers in the building of the Evening Journal exploded yesterday, wrecking the buildings Nos. 45 and 47 West Larned street, killing probably forty persons, wounding twenty others more or less seriously and causing a money loss of $60,000. Seventeen bodies have already been taken from the ruins and identified by distracted relatives and friends. Almost half of the killed are women. The hospitals are taxed to their utmost capacity by the numerous injured people who were taken to them as quickly as possible in ambulances.

Scene of the Disaster.

The Detroit Journal was located at Shelby and Larned streets, occupying for its main offices a seventy foot front on Larned street. Next east of its building and in part of the same block were two twenty-foot fronts which constituted the scene of the disaster. One of these, No. 45, was wholly occupied by John Davis & Co., salaratus manufacturers and dealers in grocers' supplies, while in the basement of the other were the two boilers which exploded. The buildings were a mass of ruins in an instant under which were buried more than fifty human beings. At 11 o'clock three dead bodies had been taken out of the ruins.

The Work of Rescue.

The firemen were quickly at work rescuing those who were caught in the wrecked building. Cornelius George, foreman of the journal mailing department, was one of the first to be taken out. He will not live. The explosion shook the surrounding buildings and glass in all directions was shattered. Many employes in adjoining establishments were cut.

Fire Adds Its Horror.

Half an hour after the explosion occurred fire broke out in the debris and the firemen had to suspend the work of rescue and devote their attention to putting out the flames. Just before the flames started one poor fellow was found with the lower part of his body pinioned tightly. He was conscious and begged the rescuers to get him out. They worked like fiends to release the unfortunate victim, but all to no avail. The flames suddenly shot up around him and he had to be left to his fate.

Harrowing Spectacles.

Near the top of the ruins, before the fire started, Annie O'Donoghue was found, her head a mass of bloody flesh, from which faint cries for a priest were emitted constantly. She was carried to the hospital. Then came the harrowing spectacle of the awful calamity. One poor fellow, stunned and helpless, lay just upon the edge of the pile. He was taken out and passed to volunteer helpers. Then another, whose feet were pinioned, was reached, but it was found that he could not be released. Constant digging finally effected his release and he was placed in one of the ambulances. Near the top of the ruins, one arm and the leg of a man protruded. The remainder of the body was buried beneath the rubbish. At intervals the arm was feebly moved. The rescuers centered their efforts at this point and worked bravely to effect a release as quickly as possible. Many moments afterwards he was lifted into an ambulance. At that time it was not determined whether life was extinct, but he was unconscious. As the workers dug into the debris and the air got into it, the furnace fires set the debris from the bindery ablaze and the wreckers were driven back by the smoke through which, from time to time, came muffled cries for help. The firemen worked on heroically and streams of water turned on the blaze soon checked the fire so that a gang of 200 laborers who had collected could get into the debris and pull it into the street.

Under Masses of Debris.

It was necessary to move huge pieces of stone, timbers and fragments of machinery before many of the bodies could be released. Some of the victims had escaped the steam and smoke, but a few were crushed into shapeless masses. Two more bodies were found. They presented an awful sight as the hot bricks and smoking timbers were pulled away. One was sitting bolt upright with his back to the street, the other was just below him and had been caught as he plunged headlong downward. This was Dunlap, the typograph supply dealer. The other body was that of George Shaw, a Journal clerk.

Abandoned to the Flames.

Shortly after the rescue of Shaw the firemen and citizens engaged in clearing away the wreckage at the rear of the building caught sight of two bodies, that of a man and a girl, under a great heap of beams, boards and bricks. It was thought at first that both were dead, but someone said they could see the bodies' pulsation and could hear faint moans. Efforts to reach them were redoubled, but about this time the fire spread to the rear of the building, driving the workers back. About the same time another man was discovered below an immense heap at another saw him crouching in a large barrel which corner. He was shouting. The workers was standing upright and into which he must have fallen feet first. Cries of encouragement were sent back to him, but hope failed when it was seen the flames were slowly creeping toward him. All three had to be abandoned when the smoke and flames drove their helpers back.

An Awful Position.

A man with his arms free was discovered. The poor fellow called for water. A glass of water was brought him. It had slight affect towards reviving him. He began to fail from the effects of the smoke. Hats were used to fan the smoke from his face. It seemed an age before the saw was brought. After the scantlings had been sawed away so that the helpers could get hold of him, his legs were so pinioned that he could not be pulled out. It was fully three-quarters of an hour before he was extricated. The cries of a girl further in the ruins, who had previously been heard, now died away. The man was James Ross. He pleaded with the workers to dig for another man whom he said was near him. He was practically dead when extricated.

May Have Been an Oil Explosion.

The latest theory of the cause of the disaster is that an oil tank instead of the boilers exploded, and it is believed that this will be shown when the basement is reached.

COLT DIVORCE CASE.

Depositions To Be Taken at Conway, N. H., To-morrow.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 7.—In the Colt divorce case the counsel for Mrs. Elizabeth W. Colt, Messrs. Comstock & Gardner, served formal notice upon lawyers Colwell & Tillinghast, acting for Col. Colt, that depositions would be taken at Conway, N. H., to-morrow at the law office of Mr. Osgood in that place. A month or six weeks ago when the representatives of Mrs. Col. Colt were asking for a settlement from Colt and separate bed and board, they intimated that they had a large number of witnesses at their disposal, and that the Jacksons Falls affair would be backed up by evidence from all kinds of people. The list has now narrowed down to three. The accusations in the divorce petition on file in the supreme court here were founded almost entirely, it is stated, upon the incidents of the past season at Jacksons Falls. Attorney Colwell will go to Conway to be present at the hearing of witnesses, of whom there are three. Mrs. Colt will be represented by Lawyer Comstock. The names of the New York witnesses against Col. Colt will probably be known in a few days. James J. Van Alen will leave for Europe at the end of this week, but will return in time to defend himself in the $200,000 alienation suit brought by Col. Colt.

BOSTON MERCHANTS.

List of Speakers at the Association's Annual Banquet.

Boston, Nov. 7.—The arrangements for the annual banquet of the Boston Merchants' association, which will take place November 15 at the Hotel Vendome, are now so far advanced that the executive committee have announced the following list of speakers: Lieut.-Gov. Roger Wolcott, Hon. Hilary A. Herbert, secretary of the navy; Col. Samuel M. Mansfield, U. S. A.; Hon. Wm. P. Frye, United States senator from Maine; Hon. Orville H. Platt, United States senator from Connecticut; Hon. George F. Hoar, United States senator from Massachusetts; Wm. H. Lincoln, Hon. Alden Spear, president of the Boston association board of trade; Woodward Emery, chairman of the state board of docks and terminal facilities.

STARVATION FEARED.

Impoverished Newfoundland People in Desperate Circumstances.

St. Johns, N. F., Nov. 7.—Incoming steamers bring reports of dire destitution along certain sections of the Newfoundland coast, owing to the bad fishery, poor prices for the catch and the retrenchment policy of the government. The usual annual grants in aid of roads and bridges and other public undertakings have been suspended this year, owing to the colony's financial difficulties, and consequently the people are without the customary assistance from these sources. The reports represent these impoverished people as in desperate circumstances and it is feared that numbers will starve during the next six months.

IMMENSE FRAUDS PROVED.

St. Johns Has a Sensational Scandal in Business Circles.

St. Johns, N. F., Nov. 7.—The cruiser Fiona is preparing to make another visit to southern outports in search of smuggled goods. The police authorities are working up a sensational scandal in business circles, involving many men of importance in commercial and official life. The full details have not transpired, but enough is known to prove the existence of immense frauds.

CRETANS IN REVOLT.

Turkish Troops Meet with Armed Resistance and Are Repulsed.

London, Nov. 7.—A dispatch from Athens to the Central News says that advices are that a revolutionary committee was recently formed in Crete with a military commandant, and that a body of armed Cretans repulsed a force of Turkish troops sent to capture the members of the committee.

IMPERIAL FEDERATION

Mr. Chamberlain Says the Dream Will Be Realized.

England's Colonies, Now That They Have Attained Full National Growth, Evince No Desire To Desert the Empire—Great Britain's Future Depicted.

London, Nov. 7.—A banquet was given here last evening on the occasion of the opening of the Natal railway, at which Joseph Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies, Sir Charles Tupper, Canadian high commissioner, all of the colonial agents in London and several members of the house of lords and the house of commons were present. Sir Charles Tupper offered a toast in honor of Mr. Chamberlain, referring in very complimentary terms of the colonial secretary. Mr. Chamberlain, upon rising to reply, was enthusiastically received.

Approaching a Critical Stage.

He said that Great Britian was approaching a critical stage in the history of her relations with the autonomous colonies. Upon their opinions of her policy during the next few years—certainly the next generation—would depend the future of the British empire. This hung together on a thread so slender that even a breath might sever it. Not long ago statemen despaired of the possibility of maintaining a permanent union, foreseeing that a time would come when the colonies having attained a position of independence, must be expected to claim an entire separation. This time had arrived sooner than had been expected. These great communities had taken rank with the nations of the world. He did not suppose that the idea of compelling them to remain in the empire was within the range of intelligent speculation.

Expectation Not Realized.

Yet, notwithstanding that the time had come for these conditions to be fulfilled, the expectation of the statesmen had not been realized. As the possibility of a separation had become greater the desire had become less, until it no longer existed. Great Britain, on her part, was prepared to do all that could be fairly expected of her. The mother country rejoiced greatly at the wider patriotism, embracing the whole of Great Britain. He believed that the slender thread of which he had spoken was capable of carrying a force of sentiment and sympathy which would be a potent factor in the history of the world—just as a slender wire would carry an electrical force capable of moving machinery.

Imperial Federation.

He heard on all hands that an imperial federation was a vain, empty dream. He would not contest this opinion; but men must be blind who did not see that it was a dream that impressed itself on the mind of the English speaking race—the sort of dream, which somehow or other becomes eventually unaccountably realized. The signs of the times were already in the direction of such a movement. Mr. Chamberlain concluded with an appreciative reference to the African colonies.

FREITCH'S BOAT WRECKED.

After Crossing the Atlantic She Lies on the Island of Bute.

London, Nov. 7.—The forty-foot boat built by John Freitch of Milwaukee, in which he crossed the Atlantic in 1894, and which he has since been exhibiting in England, was wrecked on the rocks off the island of Bute, in the Firth of Clyde, during a gale which prevailed in that locality yesterday. Freitch, who was on board the boat when she was wrecked, reached the shore in safety.

A CHILD'S SAD ACCIDENT.

Drove a Stick Through His Mouth and May Die.

Morristown, N. J., Nov. 7.—Dominick Kelly, the 5-year-old son of Thomas Kelly, is in a dying condition at the Morristown hospital, suffering from injuries received in a peculiar way. He stumbled and fell while having a sharp pointed stick in his mouth and the point came out through the throat. The boy nearly bled to death. It is thought he cannot recover.

TOOK CARBOLIC ACID.

Former Prominent Leather Merchant Ends His Life.

New York, Nov. 7.—Henry Frank, formerly a leather merchant in this city, committed suicide by taking carbolic acid in the Glenmore house yesterday. It is said that Frank was formerly prominent in the leather trade, but that over-indulgence in strong drink caused his downfall. The body will be sent to Albany, where Frank's relatives live.

Actor Crane's Silver Wedding.

Indianapolis, Nov. 7.—The actor, W. H. Crane, and his wife were taken to the stage, after the performance, and serenaded by the orchestra and then the company presented a huge artistic silver loving cup to the the couple in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding.

Manager Taylor's Funeral.

Bethlehem, Pa., Nov. 7.—The funeral of John Taylor, late general traffic manager of the Lehigh Valley railroad, yesterday afternoon, was attended by many prominent in railroad circles. Rev. T. Lincoln Litch of the Presbyterian church officiated at the services.

Tinplate Works Strike.

Elwood, Ind., Nov. 7.—The strike at the tinplate works is critical. The police were called on last night to protect the few men that went to work in the strikers places. The police succeeded in preventing trouble but it may occur at any moment.

Bicycle Record Broken.

Baltimore, Nov. 7.—Fred C. List of Syracuse, N. Y., broke the world's 5 mile paced bicycle record here yesterday. He made the distance in 11 minutes and 17 seconds, paced by three tandems.

Another Shock in Rome.

London, Nov. 7.—A special dispatch from Rome says that another earthquake shock has been felt there.

Erysipelas

Yields Quickly

as do other diseases caused by an impoverished condition of the blood, when Bovinine is used. It is not a medicine, but the most perfect food product, containing all the vital principles of lean, raw beef. It is quickly assimilated, and by its wonderful power of creating new flesh tissue and enriching the blood, soon puts the patient in a physical state where disease can find no footing.

Bovinine

besides its wonderful effect as a food, is invaluable in such cases as an external application, nourishing by absorption, and creating new, healthy flesh, where the disease is manifested. Dr. H. M. Sanger of Providence, R. I., says that he effected very rapid cures with slight spreading and no suppuration in three cases of erysipelas, two by simply applying gauze saturated with, and the third by injecting Bovinine at the border of the inflamed patch. All Druggists.

TURKS LED THE RIOTING

Bodies of 320 Armenians Found at Erzeroum.

Only the Corpses of Six Turks Were Among Them—Fresh Disturbances Reported at Adana—Report That the Powers Have Made Fresh Threats Confirmed.

Constantinople, Nov. 7.—Independent reports from Armenia do not confirm the official statements that the Armenians provoked the disturbances there. At Erzeroum alone the bodies of 320 Armenians have been found and only the corpses of six Turks were among them. Fresh disturbances are reported to have broken out at Adana, capital of the village of that name. Kiamil Pasha will doubtless be replaced as grand vizier by Said Pasha, formerly grand vizier and now minister for foreign affairs. The report that the ambassadors of the powers went to the porte separately and urged that immediate and adequate measures for the restoration of order be taken is confirmed in official circles. The representatives declared that otherwise the powers would take their own steps in the matter, and the Turkish minister for foreign affairs was asked what steps the porte intends to take.

SPRECKLES' REFINERY OPEN.

The Franklin Sugar Company at Philadelphia Shuts Down.

Philadelphia, Nov. 7.—The Spreckles sugar refinery, which shut down on Friday on an order from the trust, has resumed work with about half a force. There had been too much sugar on the market, a little more than there was a demand for, and as the aim of the trust is to make no more than it can sell the refinery was closed until the surplus was used up. The Franklin factory, which had been running full force, reduced its production on Monday and on Tuesday shut down entirely. It is not certain how long it will be closed. The stoppage is for the double purpose of making repairs and letting the demand catch up to production.

MICHAEL ACCEPTS.

Welsh Champion Willing To Meet Bicyclist Johnson.

New York, Nov. 7.—The manager of J. Michael, the Welsh champion, who was challenged through the American Wheelman by John S. Johnson for a series of three bicycle races, has accepted the challenge. He cables that Michael will accept the challenge of the American, but will insist that the contest be held in France or England. He is willing to allow Johnson $500 for expenses. Manager Eck, in a telegram to the American Wheelman states that Johnson prefers the race to take place in America, and is willing to offer sufficient inducements to make it to his advantage to do so.

TWO BURNED TO DEATH.

Drunken Captain and Steersman of a Canalboat Lose Their Lives.

Whitehall, N. Y., Nov. 7.—The canalboat W. H. Swift, loden with hay, from Canada, bound for New York, was burned in the canal here at 1 a. m. Capt. Larry Sutton of Roundout and steersman James Burke of Waterford were burned to death. Both men had been drinking hard and it is thought they upset a lamp.

JETTISONED HER CARGO.

A British Schooner Encounters Heavy Weather and Is Damaged.

London, Nov. 7.—The British schooner Telephone, Capt. Bermeister, from Harbor de Grace, N. F., which has arrived at Gibraltar, reports that she encountered heavy weather, and that on Oct. 26, in lat. 42 n., long. 23 w., she had her bulwarks damaged and was compelled to jettison thirteen tons of her cargo.

WAS SHORT IN HIS ACCOUNTS.

Northampton, Mass., Nov. 7.—The Central Oil Gas Stove company, operating mills in Florence, Gardner, Greenwich, Conn., and Jackson, Mich., has made a voluntary assignment to M. F. Dickinson of Boston, Calvin H. Hill of Chicago and Charles W. Conant of Gardner. Liabilities, $400,000; assets, nearly the same amount.

Williams College Defeated.

Troy, N. Y., Nov. 7.—The Laureate Boat club's football eleven defeated a substitute team from Williams college here yesterday by the score of 16 to 0. The Trojans won easily. The game, which was in two 15-minute halves, was devoid of noteworthy incident.

Movements of the Essex.

Washington, Nov. 7.—The training ship Essex, with naval apprentices on board, has sailed from Madeira for St. Thomas, West Indies. She will proceed under sail and the voyage will probably take two weeks.

Big Fire at West Lynchburg.

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 7.—The large furniture factory of the Johnson-Woodson company was burned at West Lynchburg yesterday. The loss is estimated at over $100,000, and there is only $32,000 insurance.

WHY THE KATAHDIN FAILED.

Explanation Issued by the Treasurer of the Bath Iron Works.

Bath, Me., Nov. 7.—Treasurer E. W. Hyde of the Bath Iron works, who built the Katahdin, has issued this statement: "That the ram Katahdin on her official trip failed to make 17 knots, is not the fault of the government designers nor of her builders; nor does it show that the ram is in any sense a failure. The speed, 17 knots, mentioned in the contract, was determined by the designers from data procured from tried models, and having no model in any way similar to that of the ram this could be but guess work. The designer did not calculate that a speed of 17 knots was necessary to the success of the ram as a naval vessel, but took that speed as the speed that could be obtained from the ordinary model. The ram would be just as effective at a speed of 13 knots as at 17. The principal object in the design was to have the vessel manoeuvre quickly (turning in a small radius, etc.) and shot proof. These requirements have been carried out successfully by the designers and the ram will be a useful and effective addition to our navy."

THE DUKE AND DUCHESS.

Honeymoon of the Marlboroughs Will Be Spent at "Idle Hour."

New York, Nov. 7.—The Duke and Duchess of Marlborough have gone to "Idle Hour," Mr. Vanderbilt's magnificent estate at Oak Dale, L. I., where they will spend their honeymoon. Within a few weeks the young couple will sail for Europe, their objective point being the southern part of France, and at the close of the winter they will take up their residence at Blenheim castle. No one was permitted to see the magnificent wedding presents yesterday, Mrs. Vanderbilt having fixed upon Monday and Tuesday next as the days upon which the exhibition will take place. Speculation is rife in society as to what may transpire in the way of reconciliation between the father and mother of the bride.

Celebration at Blenheim.

London, Nov. 7.—The celebration of the marriage of the Duke of Marlborough to Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt by the tenants and employees of the Blenheim estate has been deferred until the arrival there of the young couple.

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT.

Two Men Lose All Semblance of Humanity in a Collision.

Pittsburg, Nov. 7.—Two shifting engines, one of which was drawing a train of loaded cinder modoc cars from Jones & Laughlin's furnaces yesterday collided. Andrew Hornyak, riding on the front of one of the engines, was smashed out of all semblance of humanity. John Almond was riding on the side of one of the cinder cars, which toppled over, burying him two feet or more under the molten cinders. His body, with the exception of a part of his head, was entirely consumed. Another laborer was slightly injured.

PIETZELS LEAVE FOR ILLINOIS.

The Murdered Man's Widow and Daughter Go from Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Nov. 7.—Mrs. Pietzel and her daughter Dessa have left here for Galva, Ill., the home of Mrs. Pietzel's parents. Mrs. Pietzel took a number of photographs of her late children and her husband, which were prepared at the request of District Attorney Graham and which figured in the Holmes trial. Should Holmes' counsel succeed in securing a new trial for their client, Mrs. Pietzel and Dessa will come east again.

COL. HIGGINSON ILL.

Sickness Compels the Lecturer To Cancel All Engagements.

Boston, Nov. 7.—Colonel Thomas Wentworth Higginson, lecturer and literateur, is ill with gastric trouble at his home in Cambridge. He has been compelled to cancel all his lecture engagements, and is unable to see any one except his family and physicians. His recovery will not be so speedy as in the case of a younger man, but as he has always had a strong constitution no fears are entertained of a fatal termination of the disease.

30,000 COUNTERFEIT STAMPS.

They Were Made by the Mrs. Mack Gang in Chicago.

Washington, Nov. 7.—Chief Hazen of the secret service has been informed that his officers in Chicago have captured 30,000 counterfeit United States stamps and the plates from which they were printed. The stamps were made by the Mrs. Mack gang, nearly all of whom are now in custody.

The Shutdown Unexpected.

Boston, Nov. 7.—The sudden shutdown of 100 tanneries by the United States Leather company, better known as the Leather Trust, was entirely unexpected by local dealers, supplemented as it was by the announcement that for sixty days not a hide would be taken from its vats.

Lawrenceville Defeats Princeton.

Lawrenceville, N. J., Nov. 7.—The Princeton freshman football team played the Lawrenceville eleven yesterday afternoon, and were defeated by a score of 10 to 6. This is the first time in six years that the Princeton freshmen have been beaten by the Lawrenceville team.

Protests Against the Fine.

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 7.—G. L. Haskell of Gloucester, Mass., owner of the American schooner John L. Nicholson, seized for infraction of the Canadian fishery laws, is here protesting against a fine of $1,000 imposed by the Canadian authorities.

Portugal's King in London.

Senator Sherman in Washington.

Washington, Nov. 7.—Senator Sherman reached Washington yesterday afternoon, coming direct from his home in Mansfield, O.

Yale's Game.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 7.—At foot ball yesterday Yale defeated the Carlisle School Indians by a score of 18 to 0.

THE TARDY RETURNS

They Only Increase the Republican Victory.

Palmer's Plurality in New York Over 90,000—Griggs Has Nearly 27,000 in New Jersey and in Maryland Lowndes' Plurality Is About 17,000—Other Returns.

New York, Nov. 7.—Returns received up to this morning materially increase the republican plurality in this state. In all but a half a dozen counties the figures have been filed with county clerks, and the result compiled from their figures give Palmer, the republican candidate for secretary of state, a plurality of 90,100. In nearly every county the actual republican vote is heavier than the estimate of last night indicated. The standing of the next senate will be, republicans 36, democrats 14. The house will be, republicans 103, democrats 47. In the Thirty-fourth assembly district of this city and in the Seventeenth senate district there are close contests which may slightly change the result. The proposition to bond the state for the $9,000,000 improvement to canals has been carried by a large majority.

New Jersey.

In New Jersey the republican plurality has grown until the latest returns give the state to Griggs, republican candidate for governor, by 26,700. The Jersey legislature will stand: Senate, republicans 18, democrats 3. Assembly, republicans 43, democrats 17.

Brooklyn's Republican Mayor.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 7.—The committee who are canvassing the votes for Wurster and Grout, for mayor, continued their task this morning without completing the work. They made no announcement of having discovered any irregularities. Wurster, rep., is elected mayor by over 2,000.

Doubt About a Judgeship.

Philadelphia, Nov. 7.—Later and more complete returns have added materially to the earlier returns in the vote for Smith, dem., for superior court judge, particularly in the anthracite coal counties, where Smith gets a remarkably large vote over that of the other democratic candidates for superior court judge. These late returns now leave it doubtful whether Yerkes or Smith will be the minority representative on the superior court bench, with the prospects that the returns from the missing counties will show that Smith has the larger vote of the two. The other democratic candidates run considerably behing Yerkes and Smith.

Maryland Senate Democratic.

Baltimore, Nov. 7.—Later advices from the counties show that the democrats will retain control of the state senate, but that the republicans will have a big majority of the legislature on joint ballot. The democrats elected Bennett in Carroll, Bond in Calvert, Michael in Harford, Finley in Queen Anne's and Jackson in Wicomico. They already had nine holdover senators, and thus have a vote of fourteen in a senate of twenty-six members. Michael and Bennett were eleted as anti-Gorman democrats. The republicans had three holdover senators and elected Randall in Anne Arundel, Dobler and Strobridge in Baltimore city, Hopper in Baltimore county, Scott in Washington county, Day in Howard, Dryden in Somerset and Norwood in Frederick. This will give the republicans eleven votes. One senatorship is still in the balance. Westcott and Pearce both claim Kent county. Senators Bruce, Michael and Bennett will vote with the republicans on all questions of good government. The democratic vote in the house will be but twenty-five. The republicans will have forty-three majority on joint ballot. Lowndes' plurality is about 17,000. A republican will go to the United States senate to succeed Charles H. Gibson, and fourteen of the senators elected yesterday will vote for a successor to Senator Gorman in 1898.

Massachusetts Complete.

Boston, Nov. 7.—Complete returns from the state give the following vote for governor: Greenhalge, rep., 185,900; Kendall, pro., 8,766; Williams, dem., 121,401. Plurality for Greenhalge, 64,499.

Iowa, 50,000.

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 7.—The republicans claim the state by 60,000, while the democrats concede 33,000, which was Jackson's plurality two years ago. The final figures will probably place it at about 50,000. Indications are that it cannot go below 45,000, as the tabulated precincts show average gains over two years ago of about sixteen. The populists have made some gains, mostly from the democrats. The prohibitionists polled a larger vote than they did two years ago. The republican committee estimates the house as 74 republicans and 26 democrats and the senate 42 republicans and 8 democrats. [This gives Senator Allison 116 out of 150 votes on joint ballot next winter when he comes up for re-election.

Latest Returns in Ohio.

Columbus, O., Nov. 7.—The republican victory in Ohio is still growing. This morning Chairman Kurtz, of the state republican committee, claims 114,000 plurality for Bushnell and a majority on joint ballott in the legislature of 86. The house, he says, will contain 88 republicans and 22 democrats. Two members are yet in doubt. The senate will contain 30 republicans and 6 democrats One member is still in doubt.

Kentucky 5,000 Republican.

Louisvile, Nov. 7.—All parties concede the election of Bradley (rep.) as governor by more than 5,000 plurality and that the republicans have elected fifteen senators and fifty representatives. Republican headquarters claim the state by about 15,000 and the lower branch of the legislature by five or six votes.

Griggs Serenaded.

Paterson, N. J., Nov. 7.—Governor-elect John W. Griggs was serenaded last night by 3,000 citizens of Newark, headed by Maj. Carl Lentz, and an equal number from this city. Mr. Griggs reviewed the parade from the residence of ex-senator Garrett A. Hobart on Carroll street.

City election is close at hand.

For the first time in thirty long years the Republicans in New Jersey really know how it feels to be on top.

Higher and higher keep going the Republican pluralities. They are crowding close to the landslide of 1894.

According to the American Wool and Cotton Reporter, there is not likely to be afforded any degree of concerted support by wollen manufacturers to any movement in the incoming Congress looking to a change in the wool schedules of the present tariff. In the judgment of this organ of the trade, prices might be advanced and the domestic market held without recourse to dangerous tariff tinkering on the eve of a Presidential campaign. If this opinion should be shared by a considerable proportion of the manufacturers the appeals to Congress of the Ohio shepherds would fall upon deaf and unheeding ears.—Newark News.

The Herald gives the table of corrected majorities, as between McGill and Griggs, as follows:

	Griggs.	McGill.
Atlantic	1370	..
Bergen	680	..
Burlington	2250	..
Camden	6275	..
Cape May	458	..

A LOVELY FACE

Beauty Is the Greatest Power of Attraction.

Women Recognize It, Men Bow Before Its Shrine.

The Secret of Good Looks Disclosed—How to Look Your Best.

Never was there a time when women did not try to make themselves beautiful. What is so lovely as a round, rosy face, white forehead and red lips; what so annoying as the black-heads and pimples on the face, with the dirty, greasy look which always accompanies them. Life is not worth living, the young girl thinks, because of the bad, unpleasant look of her skin which she tries in vain to improve by the use of the various cosmetics, ointments and powders, not knowing that all the while the trouble is not in the skin itself, but in the system. It is sometimes absolutely dangerous to use outside applications, for if the skin is simply cleared the disease is likely to attack some internal organ of the body, where it may prove fatal to life itself. But in purifying the blood, the cure is natural, permanent and without any injury.

Miss Alice Hopkins, who resides at 632 South Tenth St., Philadelphia, Pa., was unhappy because of her unsightly face, and writes an interesting letter on this subject.

She says: "Dr. Greene' Nervura blood and nerve remedy is a wonderful medicine and it cured me completely of one of the very worse forms of dyspepsia. Words cannot express what I have suffered in body and mind for almost three years. Not the least of my troubles was an entire loss of healthy color in my face. The natural glow disappeared entirely, and a horrible saffron yellow took its place. You can imagine my feelings when I was asked a dozen times a day as to whether I was suffering from jaundice At this time I was enduring all the tortures of indigestion, and could not retain enough food to give me the necessary nourishment. Consequently I lost flesh rapidly and became weaker each day. The doctors told me I was suffering from nervous dyspepsia and biliousness.

MISS ALICE HOPKINS.

"I knew I was getting worse day by day, and I soon lost all heart. Everything irritated me, and I was in a state of most intense nervousness. I took to my bed and did not leave it for several weeks. I firmly believe I never should have risen from my bed again had it not been for the relief I obtained from Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. When I look back upon my condition then, it seems positively miraculous that any medicine could have worked such a prompt and effective cure.

"The first benefit I felt from Dr. Greene's medicine was a general toning up of the system. After the first bottle I was able to hold light, nutritious food on my stomach. The constant feeling of dull pain in the region of the stomach, grew daily less, and my blood seemed to circulate more rapidly. I was filled with a new life and hope.

"The effect of Nervura on my complexion was most satisfactory. The yellow tinge gradually disappeared, and in a few weeks the natural color began to return to my cheeks. I was charmed with Dr. Greene's Nervura and I continued taking it until I was entirely well and strong. Of course I was highly complimented on my greatly improved condition, but I always assured my friends that my restoration to health was entirely due to Dr. Greene's Nervura, the wonderful blood and nerve medicine. My complexion is clear and healthy and at night I sleep as soundly as a child."

It is letters like these which prove the wonderful power of Dr. Greene's Nervura, the great blood and nerve remedy. By the use of this marvelous medicine the system is cleansed, giving a clear and healthy bloom, and freeing the complexion from blotches and pimples. It is nature's own remedy, a purely vegetable and perfectly harmless compound, the discovery of the celebrated physician, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th st., New York city, who can always be consulted free of charge, either personally or by letter.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces, such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

TO THE BLUE GENTIAN.

Unfold, O fairest flower, and share
The benediction of this air
That softly floweth everywhere,
And blesseth most the things most fair!

Twice welcome flowers when flowers grow few;
Thrice welcome, thou, of heavenly hue—
The rarest, tenderest shade of blue
That earth's dear bosom ever knew!

The goldenrod resigns his plume,
And all frail beauty seeks a tomb,
Bequeathing thee more ample room
Wherein to set thy fairer bloom.

Unfold, thy gentle right to claim,
O flower of softest tint and name!
Thy bashfulness delays like shame,
Yet lovelier makes thy lovely fame.

To exile only half resigned,
Her locks with violet memories twined,
Departing summer turns to find
How fair a thing she leaves behind.

And since the summer henceward flies,
Thou, darling of these lonely skies,
The dearer art to human eyes,
Unfolding as a sweet surprise!

OLD FASHIONED "FREIGHT."

A Human Being Shipped and Billed as So Much Merchandise.

The ocean commerce of the old days was a formal and solemn thing, accompanied by many documents and much red tape and carried on with constant pious reference to the power which rules the winds and waves. Sometimes the old bills of lading have a queer look, when the character of the merchandise itself is taken into consideration, for the vessels which carried rum to Africa and brought back slaves were not less punctilious in all these formal regards than others. The United States consul at Funchal, Madeira, has lately been looking over some old bills of lading, issued in Madeira in the last century, and in a report to the state department at Washington gives a facsimile of one of them. He also gives a copy of another, which is dated in Madeira, Sept. 11, 1761, and which is significant of old time customs. It is as follows:

"SHIPPED, by the Grace of God, in good order and well-condition'd by Newton & Gordon in and upon the ship called the Fame, whereof is master, under God, for this present Voyage, Viner Leaycraft, and now riding at Anchor in the road of Funchal and by God's grace bound for New York—to say:

"One negro named York, consigned to Wm Thos Newton, Merchant in New York, being mark'd and number'd as in the Margin (a negro Man named York) and to be deliver'd in the like good Order and well Condition'd, at the aforesaid Port of New York (the Danger of the Seas only excepted) unto the said Wm. Thomas Newton or to his Assigns, he or they paying Freight for the said goods with Primage and Average accustom'd.

"In witness whereof the Master or Purser of the said Ship hath affirmed to three Bills of Lading, all of this Tenor and Date; the one of which three Bills being accomplish'd, the other two to stand void.

"And so God send the good Ship to her desir'd Port in Safety. Amen.

"Dated in Madeira 11 September 1861.

"VINER LEAYCRAFT."

In transmitting this copy the consul at Funchal, Mr. Healy, says, "The people of the United States and Madeira alike are more than pleased that we no longer import such 'goods' from this island."—Youth's Companion.

The Gull and the Eel.

We had a gull, a tame gull, with clipped wings, who would feed on fish if we would give him any; failing fish, on raw meat; failing raw meat, on worms and insects, and failing these, on anything, including sparrows. It was the most fascinating entertainment to give him an eel, for he would toss the eel about several ways until it came to the position most suitable for swallowing, when he would swallow it. But the eel, not yet defeated, would often wriggle up in his gullet again, and this process would be repeated many a time. So if swallowing be a delight th pleasure which our gull derived from th process must have been manifold. Even tually the eel would weary of the vai ascent of the gull's gullet and consent to remain in contact with the juices of digestion. Nature is a queer mother to her children.

One never knows how much the state of domesticity affects creatures that ought to be wild. In the natural state perhaps one swallowing would have been enough for the gull and for the eel. He was a herring gull, and it was not until his fifth year that he arrived at the full dignity of his white and pearly plumage. Before that he was always dressed in some of the dingy, dusky feathers of infancy. Yet in their wild state these gulls are said to arrive at the adult plumage before the fifth year.—Macmillan's Magazine.

Father Bonomi's Imprisonment.

Father Bonomi relates the following about his imprisonment together with Father Rossignoli: "When we were taken prisoners and conveyed to El-Obeid, our clothes were torn from us, leaving us only a few rags. Our crucifixes and crosses were also taken, as they seemed to be of some material value. When we appeared before the mahdi, he exhorted us to embrace Mohammedanism, and when we refused he exclaimed, 'Well, then, tomorrow we will behead you.' The next day we were surrounded by an army of soldiers, perhaps 40,000. We expected to be executed immediately, but the mahdi ordered the execution to be put off indefinitely. After this we were no more molested, not even put in irons, but we had hardly any means of living. Sometimes we dined at the mahdi 's table, which was very scanty. A dish contained a curious mixture from which each took with his fingers the portion he liked."—London News.

Slow.

There used to be a bridge in New York city spanning a small creek on which a young man could claim and exact a kiss from the young woman he was with. The bridge is gone now, and the exact site is unknown. If the slow New Yorkers of today had any gumption, they would rediscover the site and resurrect the bridge within a week—that is, if the girls there are as well worth kissing as they are here.—Philadelphia Ledger.

THEATRICAL.

The latest farce comedy on the road is "The Irish Alderman," which John Kernell and his company are to present at Music Hall Saturday night. This new comedy is broad in its character and is described as a very clever satire on American politics. In it Mr. Kernell has the role of Alderman McSweeney, who is anxious for a nomination as mayor and who, by the finesse of American politics, works out his end aided by two typical heelers. The plot of the story is connected as well as a farce comedy can be, but in the play itself there is a vast deal of interesting specialty matter of great interest. The play is new this season, but reports received from cities in which it has been presented show that it has been very successful. Mr. Kernell's company is said to be an extremely well balanced one and is composed of more than ordinarily able vaudeville entertainers.

whose practice in Plainfield has proved such a wonderful success has opened an office at

134 Crescent Avenue

(next door to his former residence) where he can be consulted from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., on

Tuesday and Friday

of each week.

DR. LIGHTHILL makes the treatment of deafness, catarrh and diseases of the throat, lungs and heart a specialty.

Piles radically and permanently cured in a few weeks without the use of the knife, ligature or cautery and without pain or detention from business. The most desperate cases yield unfailingly to Dr. Lighthill's unique method of treatment, with guaranteed success. Fistula, fissure and ulcers of the rectum are also completely and permanently cured without the knife or other surgical operation.

Diseases of the bowels, bladder and stomach, mental and nervous derangements, diseases of the skin and blood and all chronic and obstinate complaints affecting the human system, of whatever name or nature, are successfully treated.

DR. LIGHTHILL refers with pardonable pride to the remarkable cures of his former practice in Plainfield and to the reputation which he established throughout the State. He has in his possession hundreds of testimonials from well-known residents of Plainfield and vicinity, which can be seen at his office.

Always Something New.

It's the way of the store, something new and extra cheap. Advertisements with us are honest and to the point; no fictitious values on anything. We know you can judge value and when we name a price you know the article is worth it. Don't you always

FIND IT SO?

MATTING came in today. Two hundred rolls of the finest seamless, inlaid matting, some linen warp among them. We sell for 14c a fine Jap, seamless, inlaid matting. 22c buys a very heavy damask seamless matting; you would say 35c would be cheap for it. Linen warp, inlaid and fancy colorings 22c the yard.

UNDERWEAR. Underwear of the right sort. Soft and fleecy and the prices to your liking. Children's natural wool shirts at 10c; children's ribbed vests and pants 10c; Ladies' fleeced vests and pants 27c; ladies' natural wool vests and pants 50c; Men's white wool shirts and drawers 50c; Men's natural wool shirts and drawers 50c.

COATS. Don't know what others ask for coats, but we haven't missed a sale this season. They come back and tell us our garments are the best in material, fit and price. Double cape of boucle cloth, very stylish, $6.50. Reefer jackets of boucle cloth, extra large sleeves, ripple back, box front $7.50. Dress goods are plentiful here and the right sort. Pretty Scotch plaids 40c. New wool Scotch mixture 25c. New Gilberts suitings 49c. Fine black and colored serges 45c. Fancy silks 37c.

HOSIERY Hosiery for big and little at little prices for the good kind. Children's fast black, double knee 15c. Ladies' fast black, fine quality, the 25c kind for 18c. Men's full regular made black half hose 13c. Men's natural wool half hose, very heavy, 19c pair.

HOUSE Furnishings. Wonderful what little money it takes for new glassware, China and granite iron. Two quart granite coffee pots 27c. Large Japanned coal hods, not the poor sort but the best made, 17c. Hall lamps, all complete, 97c. Large Japanned dust pans 5c each. Ten-piece decorated toilet sets $1.89 set. 100-piece decorated dinner sets $6.98 set. 54-piece decorated tea sets $3.49 set. Set of knives, bread, cake and paring knife, 19c the set. Witch Kloth for cleaning silver 8c piece. Silver polish, a good one, 5c box.

Ladies' skirts, waists and wrappers, all ready for you and not everywhere will you find the styles and prices so much to your liking. Ladies' shirt waists, well made and good styles $1 each. See that wrapper made of fine twilled outing flannel, only $1.39.

CURTAINS and curtain nets are here for you today in endless variety. Nottingham lace curtains, three and a half yards long, with curtain pole complete $1.43 per pair. Lace curtain nets, dainty effects, 13c the yard. Figured Swiss curtaining 13c, 16c and 20c the yard, Japanese tinsel draperies, all colors, 12c yd.

BLANKETS and comfortables. Start at a 10-4 cotton blanket in white, tan and slate, 55c pair. A good comfortable, full size, turkey red design, 98c each. A good honest blanket is that 10-4, nearly all wool, $2.98 pair.

SHEETS Three good reasons for skipping the trouble of making them at home. Full size pillow cases, 14c each. Full size hemstitched pillow cases 17c each. Full size Boston sheets made of the best quality muslin, 49c each.

HIGHLAND COURTING

When was our loving? Oh, ask when the mountains
Keep but a lacing of cold winter's snow.
Grass lands are greening, and lambs by the fountains
Are bleating below.

Have you not seen on the loch's glassy water
Dolphins leap onward in sport by the shore,
The hind stand and wonder the stag had not sought her
With challenging roar?

Heard you the musical note of the blackgame,
Flutelike, in tremulous laughter arise
From the pine and the birchwood, while from the rock came
The cave pigeon's cries?

Were you then sleeping when moorland and meadow
Woke to the call of the plover, and song
Rang in the woodlands that scarce knew a shadow,
For spring was yet young?

If you were wakeful, then why ask the season
The highlands are loveliest? Lovely alway.
Stay, I will tell you—enough in all reason!
Before—we were gray.
—Lorne in Blackwood's Magazine.

LIFE AND THE KNIFE.

Vivisectors Not as Merciful In Using Anæsthetics as They Claim.

Physicians are rather fond of telling the public that in experiments on living animals pain is reduced to a minimum by the use of anæsthetics. Occasionally a being turns up who accepts this statement, but we think he is rare. Mr. Philip J. Peabody, in the columns of the Boston Transcript, gave a few interesting facts on this subject:

"I have never yet, in all my experience, seen any anæsthetic in, or about, in use in any laboratory, with one exception. I have a personal acquaintance with many vivisectors, including a number of the best known ones in this country and Europe, and have hundreds of times conversed with them. No vivisector has ever claimed or pretended to use any anæsthetic, in conversation with me. They have always freely admitted that they never used them whenever the subject came up.

"In the one exception noted, a dog which was about two hours undergoing a very agonizing experiment on the bladder, had tracheotomy performed, solely to stop his howls, as I saw and was also informed. After this a small rubber vessel was at times balanced some distance away from his nose and for a few times only, and for a few seconds at a time only, it seemed slightly to relieve his agony. The use of this chloroform told me more eloquently than volumes would have done how utterly false was the pretense that animals are saved from suffering by anæsthetics. This dog was breathing through the hole cut in his neck as much as his nose. As a famous English doctor said—it is the public who are anæsthetized, not the animals."

The doctors must have their fun, but it is a grewsome sport, and the appetite seems to grow with what it feeds on. People with kinder feelings, however, are offended by the brazen insolence that perpetrates these disgusting brutalities in the name of science. These "interesting experiments" bear the same relation to science as do the tortures of the inquisition to the Ten Commandments.—Life.

Electricity In Horticulture.

Some valuable work has been done on French farms at the suggestion of men who have made a study of electrical science. The germination of beans, peas and grain has been quickened to a marked extent by the electric current. The apparatus that has been employed with good effect by agriculturists consists of an ordinary pole 40 to 50 feet high, on the top of which is insulated a row of copper spikes to collect electricity from the atmosphere. An insulated wire transmits the electric force to a network of galvanized iron wires buried 4 to 6 feet in the ground under the growing crop. This apparatus is called a geomagnetifere. It is claimed that an increase of 50 per cent in yield can be obtained by its use. Grapes thus treated contain a higher percentage of sugar and alcohol and the perfume of flowers is stronger.

The geomagnetifere 60 feet high is claimed to enrich the ground to the same extent as ten times its cost in manure. It has long been supposed that electricity assists leguminous plants in appropriating free nitrogen from the atmosphere, but it is hard to understand the character of the process. It scarcely can be fixation in the earth of nitrogen obtained by decomposition of the air, but it would seem rational to suppose that the electric force makes the useful material in the soil more rapidly and completely assimilable than it otherwise would be.—Chicago Tribune.

An Extraordinary Map.

The University of Tokio is said to possess the most remarkable map in the world. It is on the plan of those familiar to students at summer schools, being made of sand and earth so as to represent accurately all the physical features of Japan.

According to a recent writer: "The seas are represented with white sand and the mountains, hills, valleys, cities, etc., with dark colored clay. All the bays and gulfs are seen and the islands are shown in the proper proportion of their size and distance from the mainland. Little channels run among the hills and past the cities, and whenever there is a shower of rain, the water flows along these rivers to the sea, precisely as it does in the larger streams they imitate. The students of the university can thus see at a glance all the physical features of their own country, and learn more of their native land by this method in a day than they could acquire in a week by the ordinary avenues of information."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Horseshoes Made From an Aerolite.

The only man in the world perhaps that ever drove a horse wearing shoes made from metal which but a few weeks before had been on the moon is Frank Morris of Worthington, W. Va. A few years ago a small aerolite composed of pure iron fell near Mr. Morris's homestead. He obtained possession of it and had a portion of it made into shoes for his favorite horse. These moonstones are usually highly prized and seldom used for such base purposes.—St. Louis Republic.

Observant.

Fond Mother—My darling, it is bedtime. All the little chickens have gone to bed.

Little Philosopher—Yes, mamma, and so has the old hen.—Philadelphia Call.

According to the Gotthardpost, the canton of Schwyz, in freest Switzerland, is the land of saloons par excellence, intoxicating drink being on sale in every ninth house in that canton.

It is a common belief in the rural districts of all countries that when hogs carry straw or sticks in their mouths rain will soon follow.

BULL SMITH'S NAME.

How He Got It by a Diversion From an Old Story.

When Mrs. Abigail Tuthill Smith died in Patchogue, N. Y., some time ago at the age of 96, old settlers in the town "allowed" that the oldest inhabitant of Long Island had gone to her reward. A lineal descendant of Bull Smith she was, the neighbors said, as they discussed her years and her worth. But few of them knew why her ancestor, the man who had founded Smithtown, had lost his own Christian name in favor of that of the animal.

The story of it much resembles that of the founding of Carthage that is told by the classic writers. The city of Hannibal, the legends say, was surrounded by the hide of a bull. The men who wanted to settle and own it were told by those who had a prior right that they could have as much land as they could surround with the hide of a bull. These prospective settlers had brains that were finely developed, and by cutting the hide into thin strips they managed to work out a claim on which they built a city that became the home of one of the greatest conquerors the world has ever known.

Bull Smith did not surround Smithtown with a bull's hide. The bull in his case was a live one. In the days when Indians owned Long Island, Smith roamed over there looking for a good place to settle on. He was well received by the Indians, who, however, did not seem particularly anxious to give or sell him more land than he could stand on.

He made offers, but received no consideration. Finally, partly to have some fun with him and partly to make him tired of his hunt for a section, the Indians told him they would give him as much land as he could cover, riding on the back of a bull.

Smith was willing, and the bull was lively. The Indians, in gleeful anticipation, watched Smith struggle to the back of the animal, which tore frantically away with the determined man digging his heels into its sides. The bull snorted and cavorted, whirled and jumped, but that was just what Smith wanted, for the more frequent the deviations from a straight course the more land for the dauntless rider.

The land the bull trod is now Smithtown, and Smith, the story goes, never heard his Christian name again.—New York Times.

Why Foxes Must Be Hunted.

The city man's desire to hunt is based neither on affection nor on mimicry. Americans do not hunt foxes or ride across country because it is done in England. The strain of English blood may show itself perhaps in American horsemanship, but Americans ride across country because that is a far livelier and more interesting form of riding than riding on the road, even when it is a park road or a paved street. And when Americans hunt foxes they do it for the same reason that the English do—because following the trail of a fleet and wily animal is better sport than following a cross country trail artificially laid, and because the fox is the only wild creature fit for the chase that will live and flourish in proximity to man.

That the city man, be he Briton or American, should wish to hunt is a reasonable desire. The circumstances of his daily life are such as draw on his vitality and abate his vigor. When once he has put himself in the way of making an adequate living, his physical life is apt to be easy. He gets no taste of cold or hunger or hard physical labor. He is too apt to be overfed and overheated, to drink more than is good for him, to work too hard with his head and too little with his body, to be luxuriously lodged and generally to be made too insidiously comfortable. He has to fear the debilitating influences of such a life both on his physique and on his character. His simplest remedy is some sort of out of door exercise which involves some self denial, some exertion and a reasonable amount of grit.—Scribner's.

Poetry Societies.

How lamentably true is Mr. Lang's contention, "Can any thing speak more clearly of the decadence of the art of poetry than the birth of so many poetical societies? They all demonstrate that people have not the courage to study verse in solitude and for their proper pleasure. Men and women need confederates in this adventure. There is safety in numbers, and by dint of tea parties, recitations, discussions, quarrels and the like Dr. Furnivall and his friends keep blowing the faint embers on the altar of Apollo. They cannot raise a flame!" Such may be the fate of Tennyson.

But no society, not even a clique of log rollers, was needed to secure him popularity. He gave expression to the intenser emotions and larger movements of his time, or at all events what seemed to be such, to an extent and with a perfection of art to which none of his rivals could lay claim. And when all is said and done what is the greatest poet of a period but the man who gives the most artistic expression to the deepest feelings of the greatest number?—Scottish Review.

Who Was Nelson?

On a recent visit to Mme. Tussaud's exhibition, I found myself among a crowd of persons gazing at that memorable scene in the cockpit of the Victory, described in the catalogue as "The Death of Nelson." It is certainly a realistic group, sufficient to enlighten the most untutored mind. While standing there contemplating the tragic scene before me, I heard a woman say to her companion, "Who is Nelson?" The man, startled for a moment, pulled himself together and with creditable promptitude replied: "Nelson! Oh, he was the captain of a man-of-war!" No one laughed.

It was a very natural answer, and it seemed to satisfy the company, which moved onward to inspect the Polish giant, who, ever since I was a boy, has been poising Tom Thumb on the palm of his hand. —Notes and Queries.

Diet For Nervous Persons.

Mrs. Rorer recommends plenty of salad in the diet for nervous persons. Fat around the nerves, she says, smooths them out very quickly. Meat, such as lean roast beef, broiled steak, broiled mutton or broiled chops, should be used three times a day. Cereals are to be avoided and little fruit taken and such as is should be eaten at the end of breakfast, or luncheon, never in the latter part of the day. White bread toasted in the oven, or whole wheat bread, coffee without sugar at breakfast, very weak tea once a day, without sugar or cream, and no sweets or desserts are more suggestions for the bill of fare.

Not Worth While.

"Perhaps if I were to boil it down," suggested the space writer.

"Wouldn't do any good," said the obdurate editor. "Take a gallon of water and boil it down to a pint, and it would still be nothing but water."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

LINCOLN'S HESITANCY TO MARRY.

Apprehensive That the Pathway Was Not One of Flowers and Sunlight.

Letters from Lincoln to his closest friend, Joshua Fry Speed, subsequent to the latter's marriage, betray an anxious and impatient desire to learn if marriage is a pathway of flowers and sunlight and not of darkness and pain the two had morbidly feared it to be. John Gilmer Speed presents these hitherto unpublished letters bearing upon "Lincoln's Hesitancy to Marry," in The Ladies' Home Journal. In one Lincoln says:

"It cannot be told how it now thrills me with joy to hear you say you are 'far happier than you ever expected to be.' That much I know is enough. I know you too well to suppose your expectations were not, at least sometimes, extravagant, and if the reality exceeds them all I say, enough, dear Lord. I am not going beyond the truth when I tell you that the short space it took me to read your last letter gave me more pleasure than the sum total of all I have enjoyed since the fatal 1st of January, 1841. Since then it seems to me I should have been entirely happy but for the never absent idea that there is one (referring to Miss Mary Todd) who is still unhappy, whom I have contributed to make so. That still kills my soul. I cannot but reproach myself for even wishing to be happy while she is otherwise. She accompanied a large party in the railroad cars to Jacksonville last Monday, and on her return spoke so that I heard of it of having enjoyed the trip exceedingly. God be praised for that. One thing I can tell you which I know you will be glad to hear, and that is that I have seen Mary and scrutinized her feelings as well as I could and am fully convinced she is far happier now than she has been for the last 15 months past."

Eight months after Speed had married, Mr. Lincoln wrote him:

"But I want to ask a close question: 'Are you now in feeling as well as judgment glad that you are married as you are?' From anybody but me this would be an impudent question not to be tolerated, but I know you will pardon it in me. Please answer it quickly, as I am impatient to know."

Mr. Lincoln's object in asking this "close question" is manifest. Mr. Speed gave the answer quickly and satisfactorily, and on the 4th of November, 1842, one month exactly after the question had been submitted, Mr. Lincoln was married.

KEATS AND SHELLEY.

Leigh Hunt Tells What He Thought of the Two Poets.

Before I end these rambling notes of this Hampstead visit it may be of interest to mention that once I had the pleasure of meeting a gentleman who had known Leigh Hunt in his later years and had often heard him speak of Keats and that "heart-of hearts," Shelley. "I loved them both," Hunt would say in his tender, sympathetic way, "Keats not so well as Shelley, but he was very dear to me. I can never forget the manner in which his genius first impressed me. Of all men I have met, he had most of the true poetic spirit. Shelley was largely a politician and a reformer, Wordsworth a philosopher and teacher, but Keats was pure poet. In the midst of London streets he was in the thick of the wild woods; in the woods he never looked at an oak tree without seeing the dryad. He lived with all those beautiful fancies and dreams which made the earth once so divine a place to the old Greeks. In character he was strong and manly; had a masterful and earnest spirit. I respected him as well as loved him. At the last, when he was so sensitive, so suspicious, so miserably restless, we all knew it was not a revelation of his real character, but a manifestation of his disease."

My informant told me that once he was with Hunt when Mary Shelley, accompanied by her son, visited him. In the midst of their tender reminiscences he remembered that Hunt spoke of Keats and regretted that he had not more strenuously taken his part against his infamous reviewers. "He did not need my help," Hunt would say, "for he bore the shafts from those cowardly hunters with smiling courage, and indeed my defense would have hurt his cause far more than it would have helped. A few years more, after I am gone, people all over England will be speaking of Keats and doing homage to his rare intellectual qualities. They will acknowledge that I was right in my prophecy, published some time ago, that he was as true a man of genius as these latter times have seen, one of those who are too genuine and original to be properly appreciated at first, but whose time for applause will infallibly arrive with the many." And then Hunt would relapse into silence, his eyes gazing into the distance, as though he saw unutterable visions.—"Keats In Hampstead," by Kenyon West, in Century.

Straightened It Out.

In a city within half a thousand miles to the west, the trolley cars have a board about 8 or 9 inches square suspended at one side of the front platform with one large letter upon it. A means the car goes to Allentown, B to Bowlersville, C out Brown street, and so on. Four members of a family that recently moved here from that city labored hard to tell a current joke, due to the signs.

"They have a colored E on the front platform," said one.

"No," corrected No. 2, "they have an African sign."

"You mean," added No. 3, "that the cars always have a negro on board."

"That isn't it," asserted No. 4. "It's something about the motorman being colored."

"Oh!" exclaimed the almost bewildered listener, "I suppose you mean they always have a darky on the front platform."

All in chorus: "Yes, that's it. There's a dark E on the front of each car."—Philadelphia Call.

That Exasperated Him.

"What are you so cross about?" said one card sharp to another.

"That duffer did me out of $10," he growled.

"That's nothing. You'll get it back off the next man that you meet."

"Oh, it isn't the money that makes me mad. It's the disgrace of the thing. The cove said he was from Philadelphia.—Detroit Free Press.

WHEN GREEK MEETS GREEK.

Could Not Get the Lost Purse, but Neither Could That Other Woman.

Where they all came from was a mystery. And why so many women had selected this day to shop was incomprehensible—at least to the finite masculine mind. But the big shop was packed and jammed with them. They all looked utterly fagged out, and many showed signs of growing irritation.

Two women of widely contrasting types paused for a moment on the outskirts of this human vortex. They stood at opposite points, equally distant from that portion of the long counter dedicated to "remnants." Neither was young. The one, evidently a country woman, had the placidly stupid gaze of a ruminating cow. The other was distinctly a product of New York. She was dressed in rusty black. Bits of crape were pinned at uncertain intervals upon her costume. Her shabby bonnet, with its drunken plume, was very much over one ear. She wore the suspicious but alert air of a terrier that has been fooled too often by the cry of "rats!" The illusion was heightened by a peculiar habit of carrying her elbows close to her sides and letting her hands flop down from her extended wrists, as if "sitting up, begging."

A common impulse put both women in motion. On the floor by the remnant counter lay a purse. Apparently no one else saw it.

The small woman, by a vigorous application of her sharp elbows, worried her way toward the prize. But here size defeated agility. By sheer force of her own weight the country woman projected herself upon it. Victory was hers.

The little woman gave a yelp of disappointment as she saw her rival's hand open the purse and disclose a goodly sized roll of bills. Instantly her face gleamed with malicious triumph.

Leaning over the counter, she called in a shrill voice: "Miss, here's a lady"—with scathing emphasis—"as has found a purse with money. Won't you take her to the department for lost articles?"

The country woman's eyes filled with tears of rage. "I guess it ain't your business. I kin take care of it myself, I reckon."

But it was too late. The ever present floorwalker had heard the request, and he condescended to lead the crestfallen country woman to the cashier's desk. With a last exultant snarl the small woman corkscrewed her way through the crowd and disappeared.—New York Herald.

WON HIS CASE

A Philadelphia Lawyer's Idea of Thrift and How It Worked.

Over in Philadelphia dwelt a young law student who fell in love just as he was about to be admitted to practice. The girl's father also belonged to the profession and was reckoned pretty smart, as Philadelphia lawyers go. The old fellow gave a partial consent to the young man's pleadings, but concluded he would try the student and see if he was worthy to be his son-in-law. So he said:

"The case of Blank against Blank has been on the calendar several years. It has been tried, appealed, decision reversed, tried again and comes up again for argument at the next general term. I am counsel for the plaintiff. I have had the case four years, but now I turn it over to you. Here are the papers. See what you can do."

The young man took the papers and went to work with a vim born of love—for if he won the case would he not also win a bride? At last life seemed to him worth the living. He studied the case thoroughly. He consulted the authorities and was loaded and primed for a brilliant argument when the court convened. He made his plea and won the case without any trouble.

With a heart overflowing with joy, he returned to his prospective father-in-law, and, slapping down the papers, he exclaimed:

"See here, sir! The case is won! These are the proofs. What you tried for years to do I have accomplished at a single term of court. Now, may I have your daughter?"

The old fellow looked up with a smile upon his face as he replied:

'I think you a fool and you can't have my daughter. But I will just give you a little gratuitous advice: It is true I had the case four years without winning it, and it is also true that I made thousands of dollars out of it. But you have gone and settled it, and what have you made? About $50. No, sir, you can't have my daughter!"—New York Journal.

A Stunning Speech.

A distinguished traveler who had made the ascent of an Asiatic mountain (which may be here called Upapol) was to return thanks for the visitors at a dinner of the Alpine club, but though he was a bold mountaineer, he was a timid orator. "Got to make a speech?" said a friend whom he consulted at the club. "Then there is nothing like taking a glass of sherry and bitters first." So said other friends, one after the other, and on each occasion the prescribed dose was conscientiously swallowed. The effect on a nervous organization was nothing less than confusion worse confounded.

When his achievement had been described in glowing terms by the proposer of the toast and the celebrated explorer rose to reply, he contented himself at first with smiling blandly at his audience for a minute or two as he swayed backward and forward. Then he began: "Gentlemen, Upapol is 17,000 levels above the feet of the sea." There was a roar of Homeric laughter, but the orator smiled still and continued: "No, that is all—nonsense. Of course I mean 20,000 seas above the level of the feet." Another shout made him think that this statement, too, had something wrong about it, and then he gave up his task in despair, and we never heard particulars of an ascent which we were quite prepared to celebrate as the most remarkable feat of modern climbing.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Mary Mapes Dodge and Emerson.

It is interesting how strong the influence of a face sometimes is. A friend of Mary Mapes Dodge, who had occasion one day to go with her into a private room in her charming apartment in Fifty-eighth street, stopped for a moment by the door to examine a large framed photograph hanging on the wall. It was a very beautifully finished head of Emerson.

Mrs. Dodge turned back and exclaimed: "You are admiring my Emerson! It is one of the dearest things I possess. It goes with me everywhere, though I do not often carry about his essays. The face is constant enough help."—New York Herald.

What man in his right senses, that has wherewithal to live free, would make himself a slave for superfluities? What does that man want who has enough? Or what is he the better for abundance that can never be satisfied?—L'Estrange.

SPRING SONG.

In the recurrent pauses of the night
Not all unmeet is pain;
But how shall I endure it when the light
Of morning comes again?

When the black clouds of winter hedge me round,
Grief is no alien thing;
But how shall I support the sight and sound
And ardor of the spring?

—Elizabeth C. Cardozo in Century.

USED A TRAINED HORSE.

A Robber Band That Captured Its Victims In a Novel Manner.

"When I was in Nebraska, near the Snake river, north of the Great Sand hill, in 1859," said a Lewiston citizen, "we had four camps situated about 18 miles apart, and to go from Thorne's camp to Dunham camp it was necessary to go through a long piece of pine woods. For a number of months every one who had gone through the woods alone never came back. One day it was necessary that I should go through with a lot of money and no escort, and I set out on a horse that I got from a stable keeper near Thorne camp. When I had nearly reached the woods five miles out, my horse was taken ill and foaming at the mouth and refused to go on. Clearly to my medical eye it had been poisoned slightly by some one. A man not so well up in medicine might not have known it. Soon what looked like a hunter came along on a horse and offered to swap, taking mine back to the stable if I would leave his near Dunham camp with a trapper. I ought to have seen through this, but did not.

"I got on to the powerful horse of the stranger and started through the five miles of woods. Half way through, without apparent reason, the horse broke into a trot, a gallop and finally a run, and dashing off the trail through the woods, picked his way among trees as nicely as if he had gone that way 100 times. Pull as I would at the bridle, he paid no attention, but ran the faster. When he had leaped a brook and landed on the sand beyond, the marks of footprints alarmed me, and I slipped off at the risk of my life. He ran on up a ravine and I hid, fearing that it was a trap, as it afterward proved. In a little while three men armed with rifles came back on the trail, one riding the horse, now as calm as a lamb. I picked my way to the road and got to the camp.

"Two weeks later 19 of us followed a man who hired a horse at the same place I did. It was taken ill, and the same trapper came along on the same horse. When the horse dashed into the woods as he had been trained to do, 19 of us dashed after him, and finally arrived at a mountain camp of the robbers. We took every man—seven of them, and—well, law was not well supported out there then, and no court sat nearer than 200 miles. We didn't carry the rascals away from their own campfire. The trained horse met the fate of its owners."—Lewiston Journal.

Disinterested.

It is said that the extraordinary influence which Agassiz exerted over men who had only a slight perception of the scope of his wonderful mental powers was due as much to a universal belief in his disinterestedness as to his magnetic personality. Mr. E. P. Whipple once told an incident which illustrated this fact.

On one occasion, when his museum was in need of money for a purely scientific purpose, he invited the members of the legislature of the state of Massachusetts to visit it, with the design of inducing them to vote the sum he required. After a short, persuasive address delivered in the hall of the museum, he led them over the building, pointing out the great things that had been achieved and the still greater things that were to follow if his plan was carried out.

In ascending the stairs I happened to overhear two intelligent legislators, evidently farmers, who were considering the propriety of giving the proposed legislative aid.

"I don't know much," said one, "about the value of this museum as a means of education, but of one thing I am certain—that if we give Agassiz the money he wants, he will not make a dollar by it. That's in his favor."

The appropriation was made a day or two after, though it was generally considered that no other man could have wrung the sum from the reluctant hands of that economical legislature.

Death and Rest.

The lines engraved on Professor Huxley's tombstone show a confusion of thought that one would not expect in the burial place of this great man:

And if there be no meeting past the grave,
If all is darkness, silence, yet 'tis rest.

It is not rest. There is no rest where there is no consciousness. Rest implies consciousness. We lie down, we sit down, to rest; we enjoy the repose. If death is annihilation, there is nothing; neither light nor darkness; neither work nor rest. There is nothing. There are no words by which we can express annihilation, because there are no thoughts by which we can understand the state of nothingness. To me this total inability to understand nothingness is one of the thousand indications of the continuity of life.—Walter Besant.

Bad Spellers.

Sarah Bernhardt cannot spell well, and one of our own most cherished actresses does not always spell correctly. In a recent autograph letter of hers we find "occured." Then Bismarck never could spell. He himself has confessed to "a lack of diligence at school," as a consequence of which his letters contain many spelling errors. John Bright was another statesman somewhat weak in the same particular. Even Oliver Wendell Holmes made a mistake in spelling the rather common word "indispensable," which he wrote "indispensible."

The First Inquest.

The nearest approach to the holding of a judicial inquiry into the cause of death in England occurred as long ago as the year 1200, when, according to an old writer on the subject, "six and twenty venerable persons were summoned together to hear and consider the testimony of any who could speak with authority regarding the death of a digger in the fields named Martin Bolsover."

King Humbert owns nearly 200 horses, and the greatest number of them are English bred. The double row of stalls forms a regular street, and each animal has its name printed in large white letters above the manger.

Many of the East Indians, particularly among the Hindoos of south India, believe that monkeys can speak, but will not do so for fear they will be put to work.

Avoid him who, for mere curiosity, asks three questions running about a thing that cannot interest him.—Lavater.

PATRIOTIC BLOOD.

Your Blood is Red, White and Blue.

The Three Colors in Your Blood, and What the Kidneys Have to Do With Them—Healthy and Unhealthy Blood—Sickness Caused by the Blood That Has Not Been Filtered.

How It Can Be Cured by Curing the Kidneys.

You have three colors in your blood.

The red comes first. It is the best blood.

The clear, rich red blood that flows through your arteries from your heart all over your body, is what keeps us alive.

It gives food, heat, strength to your body.

It is your kidneys which make it so pure and red.

Your white blood is not too healthy.

It runs through the same blood vessels as your red blood. You need a little of it, but too much will make you sick.

Pale, sickly, bloodless complexion, anaemia, loss of weight, lack of energy and ambition, all these are caused by too much white, which means too little red blood.

When this happens it is because your kidneys are filtering out the red blood and leaving the white when they should be doing the opposite.

The blue blood is generally supposed to belong to the aristocracy, and perhaps it does, for it certainly is "effete."

The blue blood vessels you see through your skin are veins. The blood in them is of a dark blue-red color. It contains all the effete and worn-out matter it has been able to collect. It is on its way to your kidneys to be purified.

Your kidneys will filter your blue blood and make it red and clean.

It would not be patriotic not to have this done. You would soon have nothing but white and blue blood.

It would not be healthy, either.

If your blood were not properly filtered, your blue blood would carry poison to all parts of your body, and you would soon begin to suffer from all sorts of diseases.

So that it is good policy to keep your kidneys healthy.

Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills will do it.

Bright's disease, congestion of the kidneys, nephritis, pain in the back, sleeplessness and all other kidney troubles can be immediately relieved, and finally certainly cured with Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.

Rheumatism, gout, pains and aches in the joints, neuralgia, headache, anaemia, pale and sallow complexion, chlorosis or green sickness, depression of spirits, lack of ambition, general weakness, dizziness, etc., and all other blood diseases, can be relieved and cured by Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.

If the kidneys are to filter your blood, they must be kept well. There is nothing to make them well that does it so well as Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.

But all the medicine in the world cannot keep them well if you give them too much to do.

Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills are sold by all druggists, or mailed prepaid for 50c per box.

Valuable pamphlet, "A Filter for Your Blood," mailed free on request. Hobb's Medicine Co., Chicago or San Francisco.

Hadn't Earned the Reward.

A fat man carrying a gun and leading a dog made a dash down Market street for the Oakland ferryboat. He could have caught it if he had walked quietly along, but he became excited, and old Time commenced having fun with him. The dog would run on the wrong side of telegraph poles and hydrants, and tangle up his chain in the legs of pedestrians. By the time spent in apologizing and untangling the dog he was delayed till the little gate closed in his face. Then he ran around to the big gate, dodged around a mail wagon, and made a run for the boat. The deck hands raised the apron and the boat moved slowly out, but he was determined to catch it, and, gripping his gun and dog chain a little tighter, made a run and sprang into the air. The boat was only six feet away, but the dog balked at the apron. The hunter stopped in the middle of his leap, his feet flew out toward the steamer, and he dropped into the bay like a bale of hay. A small boy who was fishing from the wharf dropped his pole, splashed into the water, and towed the fat man to a pile, where he clung till a boatman pulled him out.

"My boy, you saved my life," he exclaimed enthusiastically, as he kicked the dog and tried to wring the water out of his shotgun. "Let me reward you."

He thrust his hand into his clammy pocket and fished out a wet 10 cent piece. "There, my boy; take that, but don't spend it foolishly."

"No, sir; I can't take it, sir." The boy pushed the generous hand aside. "I didn't earn it."

"Why, you saved my life, boy."

"Yes, I know it, sir; but it ain't worth 10 cents!"—San Francisco Post.

A STORY WITH A MORAL.

She Patched Her Chum's Quarrel at the Cost of Her Friendship.

"I hear that you and Charley have been quarreling of late," said the girl with the hair looped over her ears.

"We have," said the girl with the dimple in her chin, "and it was all his fault too. I have just finished a letter telling him that it is all over."

"You surely wouldn't throw him over with all the money he has," said the girl with her hair looped over her ears. "It wouldn't be half as easy to get him back as if he had none. And, then, he spends it just as freely as he would if he were quite poor."

"I don't care," flashed the girl with the dimple in her chin. "I hate him. He—he is awfully quarrelsome, and he would die before he would ever confess that he was in the wrong."

"Well, so would you, wouldn't you?"

"I? Of course I would, but that is a very different matter. Why, he would probably remind me of it next time—men have no tact. Besides he actually gave Lulu a bunch of flowers yesterday."

"Well, he was something of a flirt before"—

"I don't see how you come to know anything about it. But I'm sure I don't care how much he flirts after this—provided he can find anybody to flirt with."

"Oh, some girls will flirt with just anybody to keep in practice. There is Lulu—but you say you don't care any more?"

"Of course I don't. She is welcome to what I have refused."

"Oh, she won't believe that. He will tell her"—

"I'm sure I don't care what he tells her!"

"Of course not. If you did, I would not tell you that I saw them out driving together this afternoon."

"Care indeed—not I! Did they—were they having a very nice time?"

"They seemed to be. By the way, I never noticed before that his nose was quite crooked, did you?"

"Crooked, indeed! It is perfectly straight. You ought to wear glasses, even if they are not becoming."

"Yes, he is an awful flirt. I believe he would make eyes at any girl who would let him. Why, there was Nellie, who"—

"He is not a flirt. It is not his fault if the girls will run after him!"

"Humph! I don't know about that. Besides, as you say, he has an awful temper, and it is just as well"—

"I don't see what you know about his temper. I consider it very good, and I ought to know."

"And then his stubbornness is a great fault. You are quite right, after all, to throw him over, and I don't doubt that Lulu—why, what are you doing?"

"I am tearing up the horrid letter I wrote him. I—I have been treating him badly of late, and I shall tell him that our quarrels are all my own fault, so there! And I hope you are satisfied, now that you have tried to make mischief between us and failed!"

"Well, I've done my duty," sighed the girl with her hair looped over her ears as she went out, "but I have certainly lost my chance of being bridesmaid."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Taglioni.

There was a dancer of whom it is impossible not to speak, not, indeed, to tell stories of her, for I know none, but to give her the first place which belongs to her in dance history—Taglioni! Nature did not most certainly intend that she should dance, although she belonged to a family of dancers, for as a child she was a most wretched object—pale, crooked, wasted—but will and work made of her a wonder.

Her debut was at Vienna. Her success, however, was won in Paris, and Paris claims her as its own. She appeared there in 1827, but it was not till 1830 that, in "Le Dieu et la Bayadere," she took her real place. In 1832 came "La Sylphide," a still greater triumph, in which even the physical defects of Taglioni, especially her phenomenal thinness, seemed almost to add to the effect she produced.

She made diaphanousness the fashion; "toutes les femmes essayerent de se vaporiser, a l'aide de jupes de tulle, de mousseline, et de tarlatane; le blanc fut presque la seule couleur adoptee." The dance of Taglioni was a revelation of new possibilities. It did not look human. She floated. When she soared into the air, there seemed to be no reason why she should come down again. Her bounds were the flights of a bird.

She has had no successor. Stage dancing has become acrobatic. It is no longer the dream of grace which she made of it. As she ceased in 1837 to dance in Paris, in consequence, I think, of some dispute with the management, it was in London that I saw her. She was not only extraordinary, but incredible. There was no believing that such aerial movements could be performed by a woman.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Woman's Trust In Man's Honesty.

Surely woman's ingenuity is unequaled. Witness the way she takes care of her key at the summer hotel or boarding house. When a man takes up his abode at such a place, he lugs his key around with him or leaves it at the office, and in almost any event he as likely as not loses it. But woman has discovered a new and sure way of disposing of the article. She doesn't lumber up her pockets with it, neither does she leave it at the office, and rarely indeed does she lose it. Her almost invariable habit is to thrust it under the strip of matting covering the entry before her chamber door, where it is supposed to repose in peace and safety. This, too, notwithstanding the fact that the little hump it produces in the carpet is by no means invisible to the naked eye. Nor is it without significance to the average understanding. What is more, there is a similar little hump before each neighboring bedroom door, so that a glance down the entry reveals a whole double row of such humps. They speak volumes of not only the ingenuity of woman, but of her sublime faith in human nature.—Chicago Chronicle.

To Polish Furniture.

A Japanese furniture polish said to be exceptionally valuable for its purpose is prepared by mixing well together one pint linseed oil, one pint strong cold tea, the whites of two eggs and two ounces spirits of salt. When thoroughly combined, pour into a bottle, which must be shaken each time before the polish is used. Make a pad of soft linen, pour on a few drops of liquid, rub well over the article to be polished and finish the process with an old silk handkerchief or dry chamois skin. The Japanese use their fine paper both as polisher and first applier.

In almost every country in Europe there is a current belief that the presence of crickets in a house is a fortunate omen and that the singing of the crickets at night betokens good luck for the next day.

MUNYON'S

LIVING WITNESSES.

People Who Have Been Cured of Catarrh, Rheumatism in All Its Torturing Phases Asthma, Kidney Disease, Dyspepsia, Insomnia and Nervousness Are Now Well and Enjoying Life.

Sarah H. Smith, of Pineville, Bucks county, Pa., says: "I have had rheumatism for the past twenty-five years, and it was chronic when I began using MUNYON'S RHEUMATISM CURE. I had tried every remedy that was suggested, but none of them did me any good. I suffered a great deal and was in almost constant pain. Finally I began to use MUNYON'S RHEUMATISM CURE. In a short time I was entirely cured, and have not had the slightest symptom since."

Professor Munyon has a separate remedy for each disease; for instance, the Kidney Cure contains the medicinal principles which act upon the kidneys, and restore their functions to the normal condition; so with every disease, one remedy for each disease; no curealls are claimed, and here is where Professor Munyon has solved the problem of rapid and permanent cure. From any druggist you may obtain "Munyon's Guide to Health" free, and his Improved Homœpathic Remedies at mostly 25c a bottle. You can then cure yourself and save a doctor's bill. [redacted]

Personal letters to Prof. Munyon, 1505 Arch st., Philadelphia, Pa., answered with free medical advice for any disease.

The market is full of cough mixtures but one trouble with most of them is that when they do a little good the patient has to take so much that he gets to loathe the taste. The Pineola Balsam is superior to other cough remedies because it is agreeable to the palate and its good effects are immediate. In a few days an ordinary cough is gone altogether. Bronchitis and asthma are more stubborn, but they too are cured by Ely's Pineola Balsam. A remedy worth trying. 25 cents is all it costs. [redacted]

THE DAILY PRESS

ESTABLISHED MAY 10, 1887. PLAINFIELD, N. J., FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1895. TWO CENTS A COPY—$5 A YEAR

THE PICTURESQUE KIRMESS

THE NATIONAL BOOTHS WILL BE SOON READY FOR DECORATORS.

Various Countries Will be Represented by Pretty Girls Dressed in National Costumes, Whose Ways Will Bring Cash.

If next week is not by far the liveliest week Plainfield has seen for a long time, then it will not be because the entire city has not tried to make it so. The Kirmess at the Y. M. C. A. fair was a great success, but the one which begins next week will completely eclipse it.

There is always some guiding hand to every great enterprise and, in the dances, that position is filled by Miss Lila Agnew Stewart. It is no slight task to teach a multitude of children and young people the complex figures of a dance, and it is still harder to manage them all without causing hard feeling and keeping up the interest of the dancers in the work. The manner in which Miss Stewart has trained the dancers for the coming Kirmess certainly exhibits natural ability and a high degree of talent for this particular work.

Miss Stewart was born in Monticello, and is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. James L. Stewart. Her father, who is a lawyer of ability, practiced for several years in Sullivan county, New York, and is now located at Kingston.

But while the dancers and their instructor are hard at work, those who have the arranging of the hall at the Crescent Cycle Academy have not been idle, and the hall is fast changing from a riding school into the most delightful of places. In the rear of the hall, a large stage has been erected and on it the dances are to be held. On the left of the stage is that queer two story structure, "Desdemonia's Palace," whose less classic name is the Venetian booth. The booth is the only one in the hall with two floors, and in it several Desdemonians are waiting to receive their Othellos and sell them some of the handsome array of dolls which greets the eye of the beholder. And if those on the first floor do not satisfy, a basketful can be lowered down from above.

The thrifty German is the good father of the next booth, the outside of which represents his home. Here, as most appropriate to his nationality, useful articles will be sold to the housekeepers and others interested.

The third booth to the left of the stage is shaped after a Japanese pavilion, and here the little children will congregate, for the Japs have been given charge of the toys and the assortment will be a varied one.

The next two booths will offer great attractions to the warm and thirsty and to them will come the great rush after the dances are over, as ice cream and soda water are always popular.

Candy, chocolate and cigars will be the principal articles for sale at the last of the booths on that side, and Spain will be the ruling country. Opposite to the Spanish booth will be the Welsh booth where the famous Welsh rarebit will be placed on sale. Flowers will reign in the next booth on the right, and the third will see stationery of every kind and fashion awaiting the purchaser.

The Art booth well deserves its name, for here the eyes of the passerby will be almost dazzled with the artistic arrangement of paintings, engravings, glass, and painted china.

There will be no gallant knight to defend the entrance of the French castle which comes next, but instead fair faces will beguile the unwary stranger into a bower where fancy articles of every kind will be ready to be sold. The last booth, next to the stage, will be devoted to the mysteries of the Gypsies, and here the best fortune tellers of the city will be found, while other natives of Hungary will sell baskets.

The dances have all been described, but after they are over the stage will be devoted for the rest of the evening to all who care to dance, as Rogers, with an orchestra of twelve pieces, will furnish music during all the evening.

A misunderstanding seems to have arisen regarding the admission fee. The fifty cents that is charged in the evening and the twenty-five cents in the afternoon admit to the hall, the dances and everything. The gallery will be devoted to boxes, which are selling quite fast. They are rented out for one day, including matinee and evening dances, and entitle to six admissions each time.

Dr. Riggs's Lecture.

Tonight at 7:45, Dr. J. F. Riggs will deliver an entertaining and instructive lecture on "Constantinople" in the Trinity Reformed church. It is hoped that the many friends of the Doctor in Plainfield will attend and be instructed by this very interesting lecturer.

TALK BY THE MOTHER OF ALL.

King's Daughters Listen to an Address by the National President.

The union meeting of the King's Daughters held in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church, yesterday afternoon, was very largely attended. Mrs. W. L. C. Glenny, president of the Union, opened the meeting with a selection of Scripture, after which Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards offered prayer. Miss Louise Green, the secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting and Mrs. George Harder made her report as treasurer, which showed the union to be in good financial standing. Miss Tracy, chairman of the committee to secure a nurse, reported that they had found just the woman wanted and hoped to secure her services.

After a hymn, Mrs. Margaret Bottome, President of the Order of King's Daughters, was introduced. She talked of the help the order had been to everybody and how it included all denominations, all colors and all ages of women. She spoke especially of the need among King's Daughters of a deepening of spiritual life. She said that the King's Daughter's work was placed in their own hearts, next in their own homes, then in their churches, and then outside. She told many interesting anecdotes connected with the order, and closed by saying that she hoped that every woman in the world would belong to the order which had been such a help to so many hundreds of women all over the world.

At the conclusion of Miss Bottome's address her listeners adjourned to the lower floor where tea was served and a period of sociability followed.

ORDERED UNKNOWN THINGS.

Mt. Zion Parishioners Enjoy a Supper of Conundrums.

A conundrum supper was the novel but pleasant way in which the congregation of the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church was entertained last evening. The menu contained the list of good things written in French instead of English, and the diners were compelled to choose at random what they should eat. The evening passed very pleasantly and the supper was well attended. The supper was given for the benefit of the church by a committee from the congregation, the officers of which were as follows: President, Mrs. A. Peters; Vice-president, Mrs. George Henry; Secretary, Miss B. Groves; Treasurer, Mrs. A. Ben. A number of the young men waited on the tables and the women looked after the cooking. Miss B. Groves acted as cashier.

University Extension.

A meeting is to be held in the chapel of the Grace P. E. church tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in aid of the University Extension movement. It is proposed to institute a course of lectures by Prof. Riggs, of New Brunswick on the "Eastern Question." Prof. Riggs is so well known in this city and so thoroughly familiar with the subject that a series of lectures by him should be largely attended. It is anticipated that the price of the tickets for the six lectures can be placed at such a figure that all may attend.

The Needlework Guild.

The annual meeting of the Plainfield Branch of the Needlework Guild was held yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Van Nest Talmadge, of Central avenue. The following officers were re elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Van-Nest Talmadge; Vice-President, Mrs. Charles E. Ryder; Secretary and Treasurer, Mrs. J. Parker Mason.

—At Swain's on East Front street can be found etchings, photographs, photogravues, water colors and oil paintings; also a large assortment of framing of the newest designs, all at prices as reasonable as first-class goods are to be obtained. 2t

NOT COMPELLED TO PAY FARE

IMPORTANT DECISION GAINED FOR HARRIS BROTHERS BY C. A. MARSH.

Were Wrongly Informed as to a Train and When Carried Beyond Dunellen Refused to Pay—Taken to Supreme Court.

George T. Harris and Fred J. Harris were about a year ago arrested on complaint of the Central Railroad Company on the charge of attempting to ride without prepayment of fare. They are gentlemen of means and high standing, and resented their arrest as a gross indignity, but on the testimony of Conductor Prawl, the Plainfield magistrate who heard the case, found them guilty and imposed a sentence of $5 fine in each case. The Harris brothers smarted under what they regarded as a miscarriage of justice. They declared that they had purchased return tickets from Dunellen to Trenton and had been told to take the train in question by the stationmaster at Trenton Junction. So far from attempting to ride without payment of fare, they repeatedly demanded of the conductor that he should let them off at Dunellen, as they had been told that the train stopped there, and they had to carry a heavy piece of machinery, and as it was long after midnight. The conductor, they said, took up their tickets, and after carrying them beyond Dunellen, demanded payment of extra fare, which they indignantly refused to pay.

After their conviction and sentence, Harris brothers consulted Craig A. Marsh. That lawyer advised them that their conviction was illegal, and that he could have it so declared by the Supreme Court. Harris brothers determined to accomplish this if it took their last dollar. The were unwilling that they should stand recorded as attempted fraud-doers, who had had been caught and convicted.

The Supreme Court granted a writ of certiorari and other orders so as to bring all the facts and proceedings before them.

After hearing learned counsel for the railroad company and counsel for Harris brothers, the Supreme Court yesterday, in an opinion delivered by Justice VanSyckel, declared that the complaint made by the railroad company was fatally defective, and the conviction of the defendants wholly illegal, and set aside the conviction with costs of suit. Judgment will be entered accordingly against the railroad company in this suit, and Harris brothers propose to follow up that by bringing actions for damages for false imprisonment.

Preparing for the Kirmess.

The Crescent Cycle Academy is in a general state of disorder at present as the carpenters are hard at work putting up the stage and booths for the Kirmess. The work will be finished very soon, however, and the decorating will be begun. It is expected to start the decorating tomorrow.

Missionary Life in Japan.

Mrs. G. P. Pierson, a returned missionary from Japan, will address the Sunshine Mission Band of the Crescent Avenue church on Monday afternoon at four o'clock, in the church parlors. All the women of the congregation are invited. Tea will be served at five.

Chrysanthemums.

The chrysanthemum show at Short Hills is now in full blast and a number from this city have attended. The chrysanthemums are very late this year and have just begun to open so that the exhibition will be much better in a few days.

The Endeavor Rally.

At the Christian Endeavor rally of the local union in the First Baptist church Thursday evening, November 21st, there will be several excellent talks and Dr. French, of Newark, will make the address of the evening.

A Zither for Duets.

J. VanEps, of Park avenue, is drawing the plans for a new departure in zither making. When the zither is completed it will be the largest ever constructed. It is so designed that two can play at once.

W. A. McGuire, a well known citizen of McKay, Ohio, is of the opinion that there is nothing as good for children troubled with colds or croup as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He has used it in his family for several years with the best results and always keeps a bottle of it in the house. After having la grippe he was himself troubled with a severe cough. He used other remedies without benefit and then concluded to try the children's medicine and to his delight it soon effected a permanent cure. 25 and 50c bottles for sale at Reynolds's pharmacy, Park and North aves. CRESCENT BOWLERS BEATEN

THE WESTFIELDERS WIN BY A MARGIN OF THIRTY-TWO PINS.

The Home Team Started Off in Good Shape But the Visitors Took the Lead and Kept it to the End—The Score.

Plainfield saw an exciting bowling match last evening when the Westfield team outbowled the cracks of the Crescent Wheelmen by thirty-two pins. The game was not as close, however, as the one at Westfield when the Crescents won by three pins. The start proved a good one for the home team and in the first frame led by eight pins, but that was the last time that Plainfield saw the lead, for Voehl and Mangam presisted in making strikes and spares until the faces of the Crescent rooters grew pale. Gradually the lead of the Westfield increased while the hands of Wilbur and Vail seemed to lose their skill. The lucky seventh frame was an unlucky one for the Wheelmen bowlers and Westfield made her lead forty-six pins, but that was too much and Plainfield settled down to bowl in the eighth. There were a few spares but everything was quiet until Maltby shot the ball down the alley with his accustomed speed and "Strike Plainfield," shouted the umpire. Vail followed and cleared the alley also. Meanwhile C. Smith and Pell of the Westfield's, got excited and each scored a strike. Then the excitement began to rise. Mighty Sam Wilbur followed in the line and downed his ten pins with one ball. Price did the same and Anderson also. Then after a breathing spell, Petrie capped the climax with another strike. But the effort was too much and although the home team cut down the lead materially they could not hold the hot pace they had started.

Van Emburgh was unable to bowl on account of an injured foot.

The individual scores were as follows:

CRESCENTS.		WESTFIELDS.
Wilbur	132	Pell	139
Price	144	Voehl	200
Anderson	179	Schmitt	139
Clarkson	129	Marsh	117

Plainfield Athletes.

The Xavier A. C. and the Twelfth Regiment, of New York, will hold some indoor games on Friday night, November 15th, at the Armory, Sixty-second street and Columbus avenue. Plainfield has three men entered who are Neil Head for the sixty and two hundred and twenty yards run, and Alex. Muir and George Firtsbrook for the one mile run.

Winners to Be Entertained.

The winning side in the Junior Y. M. C. A. membership course will be given an entertainment this evening at 7:30 in the building. Captain George Morrison will tell sea stories and a quartette will sing. The invitations will be sent out tomorrow evening.

Catholic Club to Meet Tuesday.

The Plainfield Catholic Club will not meet Sunday afternoon as previously announced, as the committee on constitution and by laws has not quite completed its labors. The meeting will be held on Tuesday evening instead.

Grand Officers and a Banquet.

The grand officers of the Knight Templars visit Trinity Commandery on the evening of Monday, November 18th, when a banquet will be held.

Another Lawyer for Plainfield.

John P. D. Kirch, of the borough, was yesterday admitted at Trenton as attorney at law and solicitor in chancery. Lawyer Kirch studied law in the office of Hon. W. R. Codington.

The County Canvassers.

The Union County Board of Canvassers, comprising the judges of election boards, met today at noon to canvass the vote of the recent election.

Won a Hat.

S. P. T. Wilbur is wearing one of Hallock's latest style derbies as the result of an election bet with George Tobin.

For a pain in the side or chest there is nothing so good as a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of pain. It affords prompt and permanent relief and if used in time will often prevent a cold from resulting in pneumonia. This same treatment is a sure cure for lame back. RECEIVED BY THE LADIES AID.

Young People of Warren Chapel Entertained in a Pleasant Way.

The young people of Warren chapel were given a pleasant reception last evening by the Ladies Aid Society of the chapel. The receptions and socials have become a feature at the chapel and they are extremely pleasant on account of the sociability shown on the part of all.

The main part of the building was well filled with young people and older ones. During the evening a very interesting programme was rendered. The first number was singing by the scholars of the Sunday school which was followed with a recitation, "Somebody's Mother," by Miss Lilly Mirox. Other recitations included "Who's Boy Am I," Franklin Whitely; "What Grandma Said," Miss Jessie Staats; "The Inventor's Wife," Miss Try Mattox. An inermission was then given, during which all were served abundantly with refreshments.

Part second opened with singing by the scholars, a recitation by Miss Try Mattox, and a recitation by W. R. Mattox, entitled "The Volunteer Organist." Every number was well given and received hearty applause.

L. N. Lovell made an admirable master of ceremonies. The women who had charge of the refreshments included Mrs. McKelvey, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Francis Whitely, Miss Rachael Mair, Miss Taynor, and several others.

RUPTURED A BLOOD VESSEL.

Mrs. H. A. Thorne Dies From the Effect of Sudden Excitement.

Sorrow entered the home of Henry Anthony Thorne, of 411 LaGrande avenue, last night at 10:45, when his wife, Herrisene Caroline Thorne, suddenly passed away. Yesterday, when at lunch at about 1 o'clock, Mrs. Thorne was thrown into a state of great excitement, during which a blood vessel was ruptured in her brain. She never rallied but died at the hour above stated. She leaves behind a sorrowing husband and three daughters, Mrs. Mortimer Day, Miss Katherne Thorne and Miss Caroline Thorne.

Mrs. Thorne was born in New York, fifty-four years ago, and lived there with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abel Hardenbrook Rogers, for some time. She has resided in this city for a number of years with her husband.

Mrs. Thorne was a true Christian woman, greatly beloved by all who knew her, a loving wife and a kind and gentle mother. She attended the Crescent Avenue church, where she was quite prominent in the work. The funeral services will be held on Sunday. The interment will take place at Montville, N. Y.

Flowing Wells at South Plainfield.

Many people have formed the impression that the Plainfield Water Supply Company has purchased the South Plainfield pond for the purpose of furnishing water to their customers from the pond itself. Such is not the case, however. The property about the pond is full of springs and it is the intention of the water company to drill a number of wells and get their supply from this source. Already a test well has been sunk to the depth of sixty feet and a stream flowing five and a half gallons a minute is the result. The flow was struck at the depth of thirty-seven feet.

A Protest From Bound Brook.

Whoa, Emma! Plainfield people recently made fools of themselves by changing the name of their time-honored Peace street (upon which stands the Friend's meetinghouse) to Watch Hung avenue, and now some bothering boroughites in North Plainfield want to rechristen Emily street and call it Lincoln or Garfield avenue. A plague on such simpletons!—Bound Brook Chronicle.

A General Cut.

A sharp piece of glass will cut a tire all to pieces, and Tier has cut the prices of his candies for a special sale to be held today and tomorrow, of all kinds of candies.

Croup is a terror to young mothers. To post them concerning the first symptoms, and treatment is the object of this item. The first indication of croup is hoarseness. In a child who is subject to croup it may be taken as a sure sign of the approach of an attack. Following this hoarseness is a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's Cough remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the rough cough has appeared it will prevent the attack. It has never been known to fail. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

THE ORCHESTRAL CONCERT.

PROF. CONDE'S THIRD ANNUAL EVENT A GREAT SUCCESS.

The Performance of Each Participant Showed Him to Be an Artist—Prof. Conde Renders an Original Composition.

The orchestral selections in the third of the series of Conde's concerts were admirably rendered last night in the Y. M. C. A. Hall. P. Ludwig Conde, as conductor of the twenty members of the New York Philharmonic Club who composed the orchestra, selected the programme with good taste and regard for the refined and intelligent audiences that assemble at these concerts. The work of the Philharmonic Club last night was up to the standard it set long ago for its concerts in this city. The various selections were familiar to most of those present, and their presentation was in every way satisfying to many critical hearers.

The tenor solo, "Because I Love You," of Raymond Wheeler Smith was sung in a voice of much clearness, and, although Mr. Smith's voice may not be designated as powerful, his method is graceful and pleasing.

Mr. Conde distinguished himself as a genius of his instrument in his Mendelssohn Concerto, which is one of the most difficult pieces for the violin. In his beautiful rendition of Faust Mr. Conde showed himself a leader in bringing out all the richness and beauties of this greatest composition of Gounod.

David A. Gober, Walter Damrosch's 'cello soloist, played with wonderful power and expression an Andante and Capriccio by Schubert, and received the heartiest applause accorded anyone during the evening; and the expression of favor was not undeserved.

C. G. Davis, a pupil of Mr. Conde, showed evidences of his training in a violin solo by DeBeriot. The appreciation of the audience was manifested in the hearty applause, and he then played Hauser's Cradle Song very effectively.

In the Mazurka Mr. Conde appeared as a composer. This selection was with sextette accompaniment. It was a most enjoyable number and the audience were most hearty in their applause. Mr. Conde was forced to give the Carnival of Venice, with the original Paganini variations, as an encore.

Wm. E. MacClymont was a praiseworthy accompanist, and those to whom he lent aid may give him a portion of the credit of a finished performance.

The Yearly Meeting.

The services at the Seventh-day Baptist church will be adjourned tomorrow morning on account of the yearly meeting, which commences with the Seventh-day Baptist church, of New York city, this evening. The Sabbath-school will be held at three o'clock p. m. as usual. The regular prayer meeting will be held this evening. Dr. Lewis preaches at the opening service of the yearly meeting in New York this evening. Tomorrow is the fiftieth anniversary of the church in New York and suitable exercises will be held at the Y. M. C. A. building, Fourth avenue and Twenty-third street, in the afternoon.

Ambulance to be Repaired.

The city ambulance will be taken to P. T. Quimby's carriage factory in Newark today, where it will be readjusted, and lighter springs will replace those now in use. This is done so that it will conform to Plainfield streets.

Passed the Century.

Three rare old paintings are on exhibition in Garret Q. Packer's window. One is by Inman and all are over a century old.

Republicans Rejoicing.

The Union Colored Republican Club will hold a meeting on Tuesday evening when the members will hold a general rejoicing over the result of the election.

Patent for Car Lighting.

T. Kinsman, of this city, has been granted a patent on an apparatus for street car lighting.

Henry Wilson, the postmaster at Welshton, Florida, says he cured a case of diarrhœa of long standing in six hours, with one small bottle of Chambertain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. What a pleasant surprise that must have been to the sufferer. Such cures are not unusual with this remedy. In many instances only one or two doses are required to give permanent relief. It can always be depended upon. When reduced with water it is pleasant to take. For sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. R. Armstrong, Manager.

BRILLIANT LIFE ENDED

Death of Rear Admiral Shufeldt at Washington.

His Career in the Navy and as a Diplomat Was of Exceptional Distinction—Secured the Treaty That Opened Korea to the World—Refused an Offer from China.

Washington, Nov. 8.—Rear Admiral Shufeldt of the United States navy is dead at his residence in this city.

Sketch of His Career.

The death of Robert Wilson Shufeldt closes a naval and diplomatic career of exceptional brilliancy. He was born at Red Hook, Dutchess county, N. Y., on Feb. 21, 1822, and entered the naval service as a midshipman from his native state on May 11, 1839. He was commissioned as lieutenant in 1854, and resigned from the naval service in that year. At the outbreak of the war he promptly volunteered for naval duty and was appointed lieutenant. He went to Havana on a special mission. In 1863 he commanded the Conemaugh of the south Atlantic squadron. He participated in the capture of Fort Morris, and in the attacks on Fort Wagner, commanded the Proteus of the East Gulf squadron, 1864-65, and was senior naval officer in the attacks on St. Mark's, Fla. In 1866 he commanded the flagship Hartford, and from 1866 to 1868 the Wachusetts on the Asiatic station. After the naval rendezvous at New York, in which he participated, he received his commission as captain Dec. 31, 1869, and was placed in command of the Miantonomoh. He was commissioned commodore Sept. 21, 1876.

Cruise of the World.

In his flagship the Ticonderoga he began in 1878 a commercial and diplomatic cruise around the world, under the auspices of the state department. During this cruise he was selected arbitrator by the British and American governments to settle the Liberian boundary question, and subsequently, upon his own suggestion, was authorized to negotiate with the kingdom of Korea for the protection of American life and property. In 1881, while naval attache at Pekin, as special agent of the United States with plenipotentiary powers, he secured the treaty which opened Korea to the world and recognized that state as an independent nation.

Declined an Offer from China.

Subsequently he was urgently requested by the Chinese emperor through Li Hung Chang to take charge of the Chinese navy and coast defenses and become honorary adviser to the empire. He declined these honors, with their attractive emoluments, preferring to remain in the United States service, but upon his advice Li Hung Chang fortified Port Arthur as the chief strategic point of the coast line. He was promoted to rear admiral in 1883 and retired February 21, 1884, upon reaching the age limit of sixty-two years.

BETTER TIMES IN WALES.

Tin Plate Industry Picking Up and Hope Is Revived.

Washington, Nov. 8.—Consul Howells writes the department of state from Cardiff, Wales, that on every hand signs are observed of better times in that country, and that in no industry is there more hopefulness just now than in the tin plate industry, which for a considerable time past has been so depressed that numbers of the skilled workmen have left the country to take employment in the works in the United States. The change is attributed to the price of steel in America, the rise in which has been so great that tin plates cannot be manufactured at competitive prices.

QUIET IN VENEZUELA.

The Boundary Dispute May Be Settled Without Trouble.

New York, Nov. 8.—Gen. N. A. Bulello, Venezuelan consul-general to this city, was a passenger from Laguayra by the steamer Venezuela, of the Red D line. When seen at quarantine, he said all was quiet when he left Venezuela, and an amicable settlement of the boundary question was expected and confidently looked forward to. Business was good and the country was prosperous.

JUMPED OVERBOARD AT SEA.

An Insane Passenger Cut to Pieces by the Portia's Propeller.

St. Johns, N. F., Nov. 8.—The steamer Portia, from New York, has arrived here. On the voyage an insane passenger named Buckingham jumped overboard and was cut to pieces by the steamer's propeller.

Vineyards Destroyed by Phylloxes.

Washington, Nov. 8.—Consul Seymour writes to the department of state from Palermo that the phylloxera, or vine pest, has struck twenty-six provinces in Italy, destroying vineyards aggregating 285,845 acres, and that on account of it other vineyards, aggregating 188,345 acres, will also suffer.

A One-Sided Game.

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 8.—The football game played here between the Chicago Amateur athletic team and the Y. M. C. A. eleven was a one-sided affair as the visitors clearly out-classed their opponents. The final score was Chicago, 40; Y. M. C. A., 0.

Palmer's Plurality 97,169.

New York, Nov. 8.—Official returns from four-fifths of the counties of this state, with unofficial but practically complete figures from the other counties, give Palmer, 600,980; King, 503,811 votes, a republican plurality of 97,169.

Bushnell's Plurality over 110,000.

Columbus, O., Nov. 8.—According to the unofficial returns received by the republican state executive committee the indications are that Bushnell's plurality in the state will exceed 110,000.

Indictment Against Debs Quashed.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Judge Seaman, at Milwaukee, has quashed the indictments against Debs and other American Railway union men who were active in promoting the big strike last year.

WILL REPORT AGAINST HIM.

Newark Presbytery Has Decided the Case of Rev. Howard Widdemer.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 8.—The presbytery of Newark met last night to report on the case of Rev. Howard Widdemer, referred to by the synod of New Jersey. Mr. Widdemer had been deprived of his pastorate at the First church, Asbury Park, in the Monmouth presbytery, going thither from the Newark presbytery. A committee was prepared last night to report adversely to the further continuance of Mr. Widdemer as a clergyman when that gentleman appeared, and an adjournment was taken. It was decided to make the report at some future time when Mr. Widdemer was not present. From a member of the committee it was learned that the committee had decided that Mr. Widdemer is a layman aud not entitled to the ecclesiastical functions; that he was deposed by the Episcopal ecclesiastical court of Pennsylvania for five years and did fraudulently act as a reordained clergymen within that period at Asbury Park.

MRS. EUSTIS'S BODY HOME.

Arrived on the Majestic, Accompanied by Her Son.

New York, Nov. 8.—The body of Mrs. J. B. Eustis, wife of the American ambassador in Paris, arrived on the steamer Majestic yesterday in charge of J. B. Eustis, jr. The casket was inclosed in a plain pine box and stowed by itself on deck No. 2 of the steamer. Almost all the passengers were ignorant of its presence on board. The steamer came to her dock at about 11.45, and an hour later undertaker C. A. Benedict, with a board of health permit, took away the casket. Young Mr. Eustis, accompanied by three friends, who had met him at Quarantine, accompanied the undertaker's wagon in a carriage. The body had been shipped from England as "special freight."

RELEASED FROM AN ASYLUM.

Lauer, Although Sane, Imprisoned Three Years at His Wife's Instance.

Logansport, Ind., Nov. 8.—Habeas corpus proceedings were commenced in the circuit court yesterday to secure the release from the Northern insane hospital of Peter Lauer, a wealthy citizen of Porter county. The charge was made that Lauer has been held in the insane asylum for three years in order that his wife and children might control his property. Lauer was brought into court and upon hearing the case Judge Lairy discharged him and pronounced him sane. Lauer will also institute proceedings for divorce. He owns large tracts of land near Houts, Ind., where he lived.

THE TEXAS' CONDENSERS.

Could Not Work Because the Strainers Were Filled with Mud.

Washington, Nov. 8.—The trouble with the condensers of the battleship Texas has been ascertained. When the vessel was docked at New York it was found that the mouth of the strainers was filled with a composition of seaweed and mud, which offered so much resistance that it allowed but one-sixth of the circulating water for condensing steam to reach the condensers. A sample of the matting formed by this substance has been received at the navy department. It is thought that when this obstruction is removed the condensers will work perfectly.

DR. A. D. PUTNAM DEAD.

Probably the Oldest Active Dentist in Vermont.

Brattleboro, Vt., Nov. 8.—Dr. A. D. Putnam, probably the oldest active dentist in Vermont, if not in the United States, died here yesterday of heart trouble after an illness of several weeks. He was born in Sharon, N. Y., January 11, 1816.

SNOW IN THE WEST.

Fall of Nearly a Foot in Minnesota—Weather Mild.

Winona, Minn., Nov. 8.—Nearly a foot of heavy wet snow has fallen here during the night. The weather still remains rather mild, but snow continues to fall rapidly. This is the first snow of the season here.

Rain and Snow in Nebraska.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 8.—It rained and snowed throughout Nebraska last night and still continues in many sections. This is believed to be in time to save all fall seeding.

1,672,942 JERSEYMEN.

State Census Shows an Increase of 229,009 in Five Years.

Trenton, Nov. 8.—The census of the state of New Jersey has been completed. The enumerators worked hard, and their efforts show that the state has a population of 1,672,942. This in an increase in population of 229,009 in five years.

SYMPATHY FOR CUBANS

Significant Resolutions by Confederate Veterans.

Pledged Themselves To Maintain, by Arms, if Necessary, the Rights of the American People—President's Authority To Interfere with People Aiding Rebels Denied.

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 8.—A meeting of Cuban sympathizers was held at the court house last night which was called by the Confederate veterans and the G. A. R. The most significant part of the proceedings was the adoption of the resolutions offered by the Confederate camp, which pledged the Confederate soldiers to maintain, by arms, if necessary, the rights of the American people in any conflict with any foreign nation and claiming that the principles embodied in the declaration of independence give to the Cuban people the right to throw off the Spanish yoke and to be recognized as belligerents. The resolutions "Deny to our present executive the right of espionage on our people to prevent them, as individuals, from aiding the Cuban people in this war against Spain," and adds, "The constitution of the United States was in a large part the work of a great Virginian. The flag of this Union is our flag; the honor of America is in part in our keeping and we will defend it against all foreign nations, against executive usurpation or neglect, indifference or timidity, or betrayal of trust."

THIRTY REBELS KILLED.

Government Lost Eight, But Captured an Insurgent Camp.

Havana, Nov. 8.—A dispatch from Santa Clara states that the government troops under Colonel Molina had an engagement Tuesday with rebel bands numbering about 1,000 men under Lacret, Perez, Nunez and Pino at Rincon Hondo in the Cienfuegos district. The fighting lasted four hours. The troops made a bayonet charge and captured the rebel camp, fifty horses, arms and ammunition. Thirty rebels were killed. The government loss was eight killed, including an officer, and fourteen wounded.

COLUMBIA FAIR OFFICERS.

To Make a Trip to Atlanta as the Guests of Stuyvesant Fish.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—President Stuyvesant Fish of the Illinois Central railroad, who was a World's fair director, has invited all the living members of the historic board, thirty-five in all, and the chiefs of departments who are within reach, and a few other executive officials of the exposition, to take a trip on a special train to Atlanta and New Orleans. The party will leave Sunday and join with the Chicago hosts, who will make Chicago Day at the Cotton States exposition a red letter one.

SHOT WHILE HUNTING.

Burleigh Kitchen Probably Fatally Wounded by a Companion.

Lambertville, N. J., Nov. 8.—While Frank Parsons and Burleigh Kitchen were gunning near New Hope, Pa., yesterday afternoon the former's gun was accidentally discharged and its contents entered Kitchen's left breast, penetrating the lung. The wounded man was taken to the University hospital, Philadelphia, where his condition is pronounced serious. Parsons is almost crazed with grief over the sad ending of a pleasure trip.

TO BREAK THE STRIKE.

Special Policemen and New Trainmen Taken to Devil's Lake, N. D.

Devil's Lake, N. D., Nov. 8.—A special train arrived here yesterday on the Great Northern railroad with 70 special policemen, 18 new conductors, 25 brakemen and 3 firemen. The arrival of these men is expected to break the strike as the delayed trains have been sent out with the new men and the old employes who would not go out. The yards are patrolled by deputies.

KILLED BY THREE BEARS.

Two Men Dead and Two Others Badly Injured in a Shed.

Sandstone, Minn., Nov. 8. — Three bears broke into a shed at Marren's place, near Foxbore, Wis., and after feasting on some deer hanging there, killed David Falsten and Michael McGuire, woodsmen, and badly injured Frank Burnett and Thomas Grady, who heard the noise and went out to see what it was.

Socialist Vote in Massachusetts.

Boston, Nov. 8. — Returns received from 268 towns and cities at the headquarters of the socialist labor party give Ruther, socialist candidate for governor, 3,124. The eighty-five other small towns to hear from will increase the vote about 100. The total vote in the state for the head of the ticket last year was 3,104.

Seizure of Sealers by Russia.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 8.—A dispatch to the Novoye Vremya from Vladivostock says that the Russian warship Yakut has seized seventeen foreign sealing vessels in the Sea of Okhotsk, all of them having slaughtered seals on board. One schooner which was chased by the warship succeeded in escaping.

Letter Carrier Under Arrest.

Washington, Nov. 8.—The postoffice department has been advised of the arrest of C. F. Householder, a letter carrier at Harrisburg, Pa., for stealing registered mail. He was held in $1,000 bail.

Detained for Fumigation.

New York, Nov. 8. — The China steamer Nestor, Capt. Asquitt, at this port, is detained for fumigation and disinfection, as the ports she touched at were very unhealthy.

Congressman Baker Better.

Belleville, Ill., Nov. 8.—The condition of ex-Congressman Baker is improved to-day and his physicians think he will recover.

Baron Bolton Dead.

London, Nov. 8.—Baron Bolton died yesterday at Bolton hall, Leyburn, Yorkshire.

AMBITIOUS WOMEN

MAKE HEROES OF MEN.

She Will Brave Anything for the Man She Loves.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

When an ambitious woman loves a man she will spur him to heroic efforts. She will dare with him the rigors of the frozen North, and encourage him in daring dangers almost unsurmountable.

Women are by nature ambitious according to their physical and mental strength. Hope and ambition come with perfect health, but vanish before sickness and despair.

American women are, unfortunately, particularly subject to those painful female diseases that are the cause of so much hopelessness and misery.

Could all women realize the undeniable fact that they suffer unnecessarily, how much brighter life would be!

Lydia E. Pinkham devoted her life to the study of female diseases and their cause; and she discovered in the Vegetable Compound an absolute remedy. It succeeds in removing the cause of the trouble.

Women who rely more upon their own natural common-sense, rather than on the theories of their physicians, write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., and are soon restored to health.

Here is a living example: "Four months ago I was unable to stand on my feet. I had falling of the womb, kidney trouble, and inflammation of the bladder; the backache and bearing-down pains were dreadful.

My physician could give me no relief. A friend said, try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Well, I did. Oh if every suffering woman would do the same, they would be cured, cured absolutely and entirely, as I am!" MRS. WM. M. MOREY, 20 Seymour St., Pittsfield, Mass.

Administrator's Sale.

By virtue of an order of the Orphans' Court of the County of Union, bearing date October 2d, 1895, the subscriber, administrator of John Collins, deceased, will expose for sale at public vendue on the premises on Wednesday the twentieth day of November next, at the hour of two o'clock in the afternoon of said day, all that tract or parcel of land and premises hereinafter particularly described, situate, lying and being in the township of New Providence, county of Union and State of New Jersey.

Beginning at the centre point for a corner, where the newly laid-out road leading from New Providence to or near Feltville, crosses the Stony Hill road leading from the old New Providence road to the Summit, and from thence running in a course in the middle of the said Stony Hill road north sixty-five degrees and thirty minutes east, eight chains and fifty-seven links to a point for a corner of lands owned by David W. Smyth and John L. Dean; thence on a course south two degrees east along the line of lands of the said Smyth and Dean ten chains and fifty-three links to a corner which is an angle in the line of lands of said Smyth and Dean; thence on a course south eighty-eight degrees and thirty minutes west along the line of lands of the said Smith and Dean, eight chains to a point for a corner in the middle of the aforesaid newly laid-out road leading from New Providence to Feltville, which is also another corner of the said lands of Smyth and Dean aforesaid, and in the line of lands of John Brown; and from thence on a course north one degree and fifteen minutes east seven chains and sixteen links along a line in the middle of the newly laid-out road to the place of beginning, containing seven acres and thirty-two hundredths of an acre of land more or less.

Being the same tract of land conveyed to said John Collins, deceased, by deed of John Brown, dated February 25th, 1871, and recorded in the Clerk's office of the county of Union, in book 71 of deeds for said county on page 469.

Dated October 17, 1895.

THE ARMENIAN RIOTS

Turks Still Trying To Justify Their Position.

Alleged That the Mussulmans Were Attacked—Report of Plots and Dissatisfaction in the Army and Navy Attributed to Newspapers Friendly to the Armenians.

Washington, Nov. 8.—The Turkish legation has received the following telegram from the sublime port under yesterday's date: "All news concerning plots, threatening letters and supposed dissatisfaction in the ranks of the army and navy are intentionally propagated by well-known newspaper correspondents, affiliated with the Armenian committees, to alarm public opinion. As for the oft repeated assertion of the intended extermination of the Armenians, it is too absurd to be contradicted. The efforts of the imperil government tend, on the contrary, to quell the revolt of Armenians and to resist their criminal and bloody situation.

Accuse the Armenians.

"The Armenian agitation at Diarbekir was on the point of subsiding when the Armenians began their attacks on the Mussulmans by throwing bombs at them and by firing at the Muezzins at the time when the latter were calling the faithful to prayers. During the affray fifty Mussulmans and ninety Armenians were killed or wounded. Armenian rioters attacked the patrols at Sivrik, killing a few Mussulmans and setting fire to the bazaar.

Armenians Attack a Village.

Two hundred Armenian revolutionists, having at their head Kevrok, chief of the parish of Ferns (Marash); attacked the village of Tchonkour Higgar and killed twelve Mussulmans. Some of the agitators were arrested, including part of the Armenian brigands who captured Hadji Hassan Ogion Husni. All news published as to the occurrence of troubles at Adana, Tarsus and Mersine is absolutely without any foundation."

THE RIOTING AT DIARBEKIR.

Turkish Officials Say the Armenians Attacked the Mussulmans.

Constantinople, Nov. 8.—Official dispatches received at the ministry of the interior state that the authorities at Diarbekir had almost succeeded in suppressing the disorders there when the Armenians resumed the offensive and attacked the Mussulmans. They threw bombs and fired at the Muezzins while the latter were calling the Mohammedans to prayer. The rioting was thereupon renewed and fifty Mussulmans and eighty-six Armenians were killed. The official dispatches further say that a number of Armenians, headed by Kevork, the Armenian mudir of Ferns, attacked the village of Tchoukour Hissar, killing twelve Mussulmans.

Arrests of British Servants.

London, Nov. 8.—The Daily News publishes a Constantinople dispatch giving the details of the arrest at the postoffice of the servants of British merchants. The dispatch adds that the foreign postoffices are surrounded by spies and there is serious danger of a conflict between them and the foreigners. The setting of these spies and the seizure of the messengers are violations of treaty obligations. The Hon. M. H. Herbert, the British charge d'affairs, is moving in the matter.

2,000 Armenians Killed.

A cipher letter that has been received from Erzengan states that 2,000 Armenians have been killed in the rioting there.

USED CLUBS AND FISTS.

Wesleyan Freshmen and Sophomores Engage in a Fight.

Middletown, Conn., Nov. 8.—A row lasting three-quarters of an hour and at times assuming serious proportions occurred here between the freshmen and sophomores. Ever since the faculty prohibited the hat rush at the beginning of the term the feeling existing between the two classes has not been friendly. Clubs and fists were freely used and several students received scalp wounds and other injuries.

BOLD ROBBERY IN NEW YORK.

One Man Shot and Killed and a Saloon Keeper Robbed.

New York, Nov. 8.—Three masked thieves entered the saloon of William Walters at Brown place and Southern Boulevard at 11.30 o'clock last night and shot and killed Richard Pope, held up the proprietor and bartender, robbed the money drawer and escaped.

Pneumatic Boxing Gloves.

Philadelphia, Nov. 8.—An exhibition of a set of pneumatic boxing gloves was given yesterday in the gymnasium of the Philadelphia Fencing and Sparring club. The gloves are novel in construction, consisting of a rubber bag or bladder covered with soft, pliable leather. After being placed on the hands, the gloves are inflated with air by a tube back of the wrist band. Every part of the hand is protected by an air cushion from two to three inches thick.

Believe the Steamer Is Lost.

Cleveland, Nov. 8.—The feeling among many Cleveland vesselmen is that the steamer Missoula is lost. Captain Williams, master of the Missoula, First Mate Gorman, Chief Engineer Lamar and a majority of the Missoula's crew live in this city.

Collapse of a Clothing Strike.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 8.—The clothing strike which has been on in this city for nearly three months is at an end. The strikers who remained in the city after the general exodus a few weeks ago have gone back to work.

Tin Plate Strike Spreading.

Elwood, Ind., Nov. 8.—The tin plate strike is growing and the company has stopped night work in the tinning department and it will not be resumed until the strike is over.

Steamer on the Rocks.

New London, Conn., Nov. 8.—The Vermont Central railroad's steamboat Doris is reported ashore on Execution rock.

ELECTION EXPENSES.

First Statements Filed with the Secretary of State at Albany.

Albany, Nov. 8.—The first statements of election expenses of candidates at Tuesday's contest were filed in the office of the secretary of state yesterday afternoon as follows: Edgar T. Brackett, republican senator-elect in the 28th district, paid $500 to the republican county committee in each of the counties of Saratoga, Schenectady and Washington, and $28.90 for telephoning, telegraphing and traveling. Charles McLouth of Palmyra, Wayne county, democratic candidate for supreme court justice, seventh judicial district, paid out nothing directly or indirectly.

Candidates in New York City.

New York, Nov. 8.—The first batch of depositions from the various politital candidates as to the expenses incurred by them during the campaign, has been filed in the county clerk's office. Ex-Police Commissioner Charles F. MacLean, one of the successful Tammany candidates for the supreme court bench, swears that the campaign did not cost him a cent. George W. Meyer, jr., the Tammany assemblyman-elect in the Thirtieth District, swears that it cost him for printing, stationery, carriage hire and other miscellaneous expenses $170.25. Charles Steinberg, the republican candidate for assemblyman in the Twenty-second district, spent $121. Louis D. Robb, prohibition candidate for assemblymen in the Thirty-second district, and Charles B. Copp, socialist party candidate for senator in the Sixteenth district, spent nothing, while James H. Land, prohibition candidate for assembly in the Fifteenth district, spent $3.20.

COMPETITION TOO GREAT.

Du Bois Manufacturing Company Asks for a Dissolution.

New York, Nov. 8.—The Du Bois Manufacturing company, manufacturers of plumbers' lead traps, has applied to the supreme court, through President Frederick N. Du Bois and other officers, for the voluntary dissolution of the company, and the order to show cause has been set down for February 10, 1896. The company was incorporated in December, 1884, with a capital of $1,000,000, which was afterwards reduced to $50,000, to manufacture lead traps under an invention of Mr. Du Bois, and had a monopoly in that line. The patent, however, has expired. Other manufacturers have gone into the same business, and competition has become so great that the company can no longer carry on the business at a profit and therefore ask for a dissolution. According to the papers filed there are no assets and no debts.

PLEAD GUILTY TO MURDER.

Mrs. Larkins and Her Husband Made Soap from the Body.

Monroe, Mich., Nov. 8.—Mr. and Mrs. Enos Larkins, who were charged with the murder of Mrs. Merrill on July 5 last, were brought into court under indictment for murder in the first degree. Both pleaded guilty. Mrs. Merrill was decoyed to the woods, where Larkins choked her while his wife brained her with a club. Part of the body was taken to their house to make soap, while a portion was burned in the cook stove.

BARNES PLEADS NOT GUILTY.

Released in $500 Bail on Magowan's Charge of Embezzlement.

Trenton, Nov. 8.—John A. Barnes pleaded not guilty yesterday to stealing $7,000 in stocks from ex-mayor Frank A. Magowan of this city. Barnes was released on $500 bail for trial Nov. 18. The grand jury did not indicte Barnes on Magowan's charge of perjury in falsely swearing to allegations in Barnes' suit against Magowan for $100,000 for alienating the affections of Mrs. Barnes.

BASEBALL FRANCHISE SOLD.

Little Possibility of a State League Team at Scranton in '96.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 8.—The franchise of the Scranton Eastern league baseball club was sold by the sheriff yesterday afternoon for $2,180.50. It was purchased by Robert Murray, an attorney, in the interest of President Betts and other directors of the club, who were the judgment creditors. There is little possibility of a state league team in Scranton next season.

Died at a Wedding.

New York, Nov. 8.—While a fashionable wedding was being performed in St. George's church in Rutherford place yesterday afternoon, a relative of the groom expired in the vestry. The deceased was Mary Jane Pomeroy, seventy years old, of Stockbridge, Mass. The couple married were Henry Dwight Sedgwick of Massachusetts and Miss Sarah May Minturn of this city.

Old Enough To Know Better.

Pittsburg, Nov. 8.—Susan Parker, 58 years old, the mother of two children, the oldest a son 21 years old, and Jerome Zimmerman, 51 years old, the father of seven children, were arrested at Union Station yesterday afternoon. The couple were eloping from their homes at Logantown, near Lock Haven.

—The seafood market of E. P. Thorn on Park avenue was opened today and here it is that everything in that line of eatables can be procured at low prices.

Father's Writing Found By the Son.

J. T. Vail is having the front piazza to one of his houses on LaGrande avenue thoroughly repaired. J. B. Mills is the builder in charge of the work. When one of his carpenters, named Sheppard, was tearing down the old piazza he found a block of wood on which was written "C. Sheppard, October 2, 1871. Warm and smoky." C. Sheppard was the father of the man who found the block and had built the house.

State Sunday-School Convention.

The fifth triennial convention of the New Jersey Sunday-school Association will be held in the First Methodist Episcopal church, Millville, November 12th to 14th. Twelve delegates have been elected by each County Association, and a general invitation is extended to Sunday-school workers throughout the State to attend. Special attention will be given to State, county and township organization.

Scott Presses Sent to Russia.

FORTNIGHTLY WHIST CLUB.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Woodruff Entertain the Players Last Night.

The Fortnightly Whist Club held their first meeting of the season at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Woodruff on Westervelt avenue last evening.

The playing throughout was very interesting. Mrs. L. B. Woolston won first lady's prize, a decorated China cracker jar, while Mrs. Peter Emmons secured second prize in the form of a very pretty vase. For the gentlemen, L. B. Woolston and J. F. Buckle captured first and second prizes. The first was an alligator card case and the second a silver-mounted blotter.

After the playing refreshments were served.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Woolston, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Buckle, Mr. and Mrs. R. I. Tolles, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Woodruff, Mr. and Peter Emmons, Mr. and Mrs. John Emmons.

A Lunchbox Social.

The lunchbox social and entertainment given in the Parishhouse of the Church of the Heavenly Rest last evening, attracted a large number of people. The entertainment consisted of a vocal solo by William Tallamy, a fan drill by the young women of the chapel, a recitation by Willie Sherman and two amusing dialogues. After the programme was concluded the lunchboxes were auctioned off and as a result $5 was received.

Planning for a Rally.

THEATRICAL.

John Kernell has been known for years as one of the most entertaining celtic comedians. He has a style and manner that is irrepressibly his own and he is alone in the field which he occupies. In his new play, "The Irish Alderman," a broad burlesque on American politics, he has, it is reported, more opportunities for merry making than he has ever had before. As Alderman McSweeney contesting the election with Coroner Hoba he is seen at his best. Outside of the interest that attaches to the farce comedy itself there is a fund of promise in the specialty entertainment furnished by the members of his company and they are all clever specialty performers. The engagement here is for Saturday night at Stillman Music Hall.

Of all the farce-comedies there is none more potent to create laughter than "The Hustler," which pays a visit to this city next Monday evening at the Stillman Music Hall. The Irish "Hustler," himself, penniless but full of plans for making millions, is one of the funniest individuals ever seen in a theatre, and his fellow boarders are almost equally amusing. The farce has been thoroughly revised and an entire new second act added, which places "The Hustler" this season in an almost entire new dress. The specialties in the piece are all new and the company is a very strong one, including John T. Tierney, Charles A. Loder, Harry Foy, George W. Kerr, Charles Udell, Gus Mills, The Electric Quartette, Miss Dolly Theobold, Miss Marian VanCourtland, Miss Georgie Lingard and others.

BIRTHDAY SOCIAL.

Entertainment and Money Making Affair at First Church of Christ.

The birthday social given under the auspices of the Sunday-school of the first church of Christ last evening was a thoroughly enjoyable affair. There was a large audience present and all joined heartily in the festivities. The Superintendent, J. H. Staats, had charge of the affair and introduced those who entertained the audience.

The exercises were opened with singing by the Misses Mabel Benner, Ella Benner, Lillie Ackerman, Mabel Wilson and Etta Staats, after which Rev. B. W. Hand offered prayer.

The Superintendent then made a few remarks of welcome and congratulated the members on their untireing efforts. Rev. J. B. Cleaver, of Bound Brook, the founder and first pastor of the church was then introduced and delivered an excellent address. Following the address a recitation entitled "Thanksgiving Day" was admirably rendered by Miss Lottie Benner, as was also one by Miss Sadie Hand, entittled "The Fallen Star." A vocal duet by the Misses Mabel and Ella Benner was an enjoyable feature. Then came a dialogue "City Manners or Country Hearts" by the Misses Lillie Ackerman, Mabel Wilson, Ella Benner and Percy Hand. "The World What We Make It" was the subject of a recitation given by Miss Mabel Hand, and Miss Ada VanHorn recited "Grandfather's Spectacles," in an excellent manner. The programme closed with the following recitations: "Two Kinds of People," Henry Staats; "Company is Coming," Miss Etta Staats, and "Transformed Pie," Miss Belle VanNest.

The collection was then taken and every one present gave a sufficient number of pennies to correspond with their age. The receipts will be used in the church and Sunday-school work.

After everyone had been bountifully served with refreshments an evening of pleasure was brought to a close.

$13.84 was realized from the social, and a vote of thanks is extended by the Sunday-school to the following who arranged the affair: Mr. and Mrs. Bush, Mr. and Mrs. Hand, Mrs. Wilson Clayton Ackerman and Mrs. Staats.

MINES UNDER THE SEA.

Visitors May Hear the Booming of the Ocean Over Their Heads.

There is a striking example of man's boldness in searching for wealth and his skill in securing it at Betallock, near Cape Cornwall. Betallock is a bold headland composed of huge masses of hornblende, masked by walls of slate, against which the Atlantic surges are constantly dashing. The persevering efforts of man have at this point been more powerful than those of nature. The Alaska Mining Record says that the gloomy precipices of slate, which unnumbered ages of sea storms have been unable to displace, are here cut in twain by the miner, whose complicated machinery clings to the cliff at places where it would seem almost impossible for an engine to be fixed. Powerful steam engines, stamp mills and all the heavy machinery required in modern mining are perched on what at first sight seem inaccessible situations, so that from a distance they look as if growing out of the crags. All is noise and bustle, which contrasts strangely with the placidity of the seaward view.

"Kibbles" descend fathoms beneath the sea and ascend again with copper or tin ores, which are wheeled away to larger heaps, where women, boys and girls separate various qualities with the systematic industry of workers in a factory. Everybody and everything—rocks, platforms and paths—is smeared with the prevailing red hue derived from a slight mixture of iron with copper or tin ores, and then the very muddy stream flowing from the stamp mill to the sea has imparted to the beach, the breakers and the foam the same rubicund tinge. If ore is coming up plentifully and of good quality, everybody is pleased, and far down in the gloomy depths of the mine, which Cornish legends people with spirits, the news that a new "bunch" of copper has been struck or that the old lode is growing richer fills the workers with professional joy.

As the visitor creeps along the passages into which the light of day has never entered he hears comparatively little, until, having become accustomed to the darkness, barely illuminated by the flicker of lamps, he dimly distinguishes the stalwart gnomes at work. Coming from the upper world amid the din of heavy stamps and measured gush of pumps, the clang of machinery above and the surge of the sea below, the rattle of wagons on tramways and the crowds of men and boys climbing up and down paths which seem to be too steep for a goat, the modified silence of the level strikes some as unnatural.

In places, however, the guide may ask the visitor to listen to a curious sound. It is the booming of the waves above and the grating of the stones on the sea bottom. Then he is told, to give him courage, that in some of the recesses of the first level the ore has been cut away until a roof not more than six feet thick has been left. First worked on the face of the cliffs only, the mine descended, level by level, until the excavations extended for more than six fathoms under the sea and for long distances inland, while the greatest depth to which it had been sunk is about 2,000 feet.

Dunellen.

Mrs. W. H. Cole, of Front street, is spending a few days with friends in Clinton.

Ed Mundy, of Warrenville, is visiting the family of N. B. Snell, of West Dunellen.

Mrs. Al Randolph, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Sprowl, of Jersey City, has returned home.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist church realized about $12 at their sale of refreshments in the Vars building, election day.

John Syers, who has been visiting grandparents at Mr. Warden's home, has returned to her home, Sheepshead Bay.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Oakley, of New Brunswick, spent Tuesday with Mrs. Oakley's mother, Mrs. R. J. Swackhamer, of Dunellen avenue.

Martin Rarick, of New Market road, has purchased the house formerly occupied by him, from John Apgar, and is having a new barn erected on his premises for his trotter.

The Board of Education, of the borough of Dunellen, met last night with the President of the Board, Rev. Frank Fletcher. The members present were: F. Fletcher, A. F. Samson, L. T. Titsworth, G. E. Lowrie, A. Bogardus, T. L. Thomas and Adam Dealaman. County Superintendent Willis, of New Brunswick, met with the Board. He had visited the schools during the day and was very much pleased with them. He praised our corps of teachers and recommended that the Board employ another teacher. He pronounced our schools among the best of their grade in the State.

—The Borough Council meet this evening in adjourned session to transact important business.

Back Again!

Dr. E. B. Lighthill

—OF—

New York City,

whose practice in Plainfield has proved such a wonderful success has opened an office at

134 Crescent Avenue

(next door to his former residence) where he can be consulted from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., on

Tuesday and Friday

of each week.

DR. LIGHTHILL makes the treatment of deafness, catarrh and diseases of the throat, lungs and heart a specialty.

Piles radically and permanently cured in a few weeks without the use of the knife, ligature or cautery and without pain or detention from business. The most desperate cases yield unfailingly to Dr. Lighthill's unique method of treatment, with guaranteed success. Fistula, fissure and ulcers of the rectum are also completely and permanently cured without the knife or other surgical operation.

Diseases of the bowels, bladder and stomach, mental and nervous derangements, diseases of the skin and blood and all chronic and obstinate complaints affecting the human system, of whatever name or nature, are successfully treated.

DR. LIGHTHILL refers with pardonable pride to the remarkable cures of his former practice in Plainfield and to the reputation which he established throughout the State. He has in his possession hundreds of testimonials from well-known residents of Plainfield and vicinity, which can be seen at his office.

36 DEAD TAKEN OUT

Other Bodies Still in the Detroit Building Ruins.

Death List Will Probably Exceed Forty—Some of the Dead Found with Their Working Tools Still Clutched in Their Hands—Engineer Blamed for the Accident.

Detroit, Nov. 8.—The work of recovering the bodies of the victims of the Journal boiler explosion continued all morning. By this evening all the debris will have been explored and the last of the bodies recovered. Up to 6 o'clock this morning thirty-six bodies had been taken out of the ruins, nearly all those taken out last night being frightfully burned. As the workers got into that portion of the debris into which the fire had not crept the condition of the corpses recovered was found to be better. Death had come to the victims of the disaster so suddenly that many of them were found in the very attitudes in which they were at the moment of the explosion. It is now believed that the dead will number more than forty if all of the missing are under the ruins.

Sitting Bolt Upright.

One body recovered from the ruins last evening was that of a young woman sitting bolt upright in a chair as she had been when the explosion took place. She had been suffocated. At 6 o'clock the ghastliest find of the day was made. It was the trunk of a woman. The head was seen at some distance from the trunk, severed by a falling timber. It was hard work getting out these awful remains, for they were pinned down by timbers and the men had to saw away the wood bit by bit. Fred Wiedbusch looked only at the clothing and declared the body was that of one of his two daughters, Annie or Lizzie, he could not tell which one, as they dressed alike. "When the other one is found I will know them by measuring their skirts," he said, as he returned to the scene of horror to look for the body of his other dead child, the third of the trio of Weidbusch girls, two sisters and a cousin, who met their death there.

Tools Still Clasped in Their Hands.

An hour afterwards three bodies were found together under the debris in the alley in the rear of the Journal building. There were two men and a girl in the group. The woman's body lay wedged between the other corpses. She was Lou Fritz, apprentice in the machine shop of the Rogers Typographical Supply company. In her hand she still held the small instrument with which she was working. On either side her were Bradley and Derby, the carpenters who were caught while making some alterations to the building. Bradley held in his death grasp the hand-axe with which he had been working when the accident occurred, poised as if he was delivering a blow, while Derby's hands firmly grasped the piece of wood which he was apparently steadying for Bradley to cut when the two of them and the girl were blown through the building covered with debris.

Engineer Responsible.

It has been discovered that the cause of the explosion was low water in the boiler. This throws the responsibility upon the engineer and the owners of the building. The former had been repeatedly warned by neighboring engineers that he was too careless, while the owners of the property had been given at least one formal notice that he was negligent. The engineer is Thomas M. Thompson. He was away from the engine room at the time, but only a few minutes before he had looked at his gauges and found them satisfactory.

ALL QUIET IN HAYTI.

No Insurrection and No Revolutionary Talk.

Quarantine, S. I., Nov. 8.—The Atlas line steamer Claribel, which arrived last night from Kingston, brought no news of the reported insurrection in Hayti. At the time she left the island all was apparently quiet, and there was no revolutionary talk.

Extradition for a French Embezzler

Washington, Nov. 8.—At the request of the French government Secretary Olney signed a warrant for the extradition of Joseph Mangaria, held in New York city for alleged embezzlement of funds of a French railway company.

The Skipper Skipped Out.

Gloucester, Mass., Nov. 8.—Schooner F. W. Homans has arrived here minus her skipper, who disappeared at Newport with the proceeds of the vessel's bait, which he sold. One of the crew brought the vessel here.

Killed by Her Brother.

Northampton, Mass., Nov. 8.—A fatal shooting accident occurred here last evening. Stella Hallet, aged 14, was killed by the accidental discharge of a shotgun in the hands of her brother Charles, aged 17 years.

Strike Against a Non-Union Man.

Elwood, Ind., Nov. 8.—The 300 sheet mill men at the Union Steel works at Alexandria are out on a strike, caused by the firm hiring a non-union man, and may end in closing the plant, throwing 800 men out of work.

Must Not Use the Mails.

Washington, Nov. 8.—The postoffice department has denied the privilege of the mails to the Heliograph company and Mrs. Laura Foster of St. Louis for violation of the postal laws.

Kentucky's Legislature.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 8.—Mr. Hunter, chairman of the republican campaign committee, says the republican majority on joint ballot in the next legislature will be four or five.

Dr. Donaldson Smith's Return.

Aden, Arabia, Nov. 8.—Dr. Donaldson Smith of Philadelphia, the African explorer, arrived here Monday from Mombasse.

For Mayor of New Bedford.

New Bedford, Mass., Nov. 8.—Mayor David L. Parker was last night renominated for mayor by the citizens party.

TELEPHONE SMELLED OF GAS.

The Joke a Weary Clerk Played on a Complaining Visitor.

A majority of the cranky people who visit Washington make the White House their objective point, but occasionally some will wander into the departments to unfold their grievances. Not long ago a good specimen of the genus made his appearance at the postoffice department, and as he wanted to see "one of the judges" a bright messenger steered him into the room and up to the desk of one of the old clerks in the fourth assistant's office, whose gray hairs and dignified appearance helped to carry out the deception. The visitor was evidently an old soldier, as his complaint was in reference to the management of one of the soldiers' homes. After listening to his disjointed utterances for a moment the clerk wheeled around in his chair and said:

"My friend, I am not the proper person to come to with such a complaint. I am"—

"Yes, you are," interrupted the crank. "The man out in the hall told me you were just the one to fix things for me." And he continued with a long string of grievances until the clerk, who was quite busy, stopped him with the remark:

"I can give you no relief for your trouble. You should go to the war department." And concluding that his troublesome visitor was a crank of the first water he continued: "Come around here and sit down, and I'll connect you by telephone with the secretary of war. That will save you the trouble of going up to his office and waiting a long time for an audience."

The clerk seated the crank at a little table behind the high backed desk. Then going around beside his own chair he uncoupled from the gas jet the long tube which led to the drop light on his desk. Putting the tubing over the high back, he placed the end in the hands of the complainant and remarked:

"There you are. That puts you in direct connection with the secretary himself. Talk to him all you want to."

And he did talk to the secretary for a full hour to the great amusement of the clerks in the room. Finally, after he had relieved himself of a big batch of complaints, he laid down the "telephone" with a sigh of satisfaction, and as he took his hat to go said to the clerk:

"Some one ought to notify the war department that there is a big leakage of gas somewhere up there."—Washington Star.

ARMY NICKNAMES.

The Odd Titles German Soldiers of the Day Give Each Other.

Everybody is familiar with the name of Tommy Atkins, representing the British soldier, but how many know the terms of endearment by which the German soldiers are called? Some of them are applied to the entire regiment, some to an individual corps. The guards are called "hammel," or "sheep." The guards call the soldiers of the line "field rats." The infantry speak of the cavalry as "grooms," and the cavalry return the compliment by bestowing upon the infantry the names of "sand hares," "sand carriers" and "clodhoppers." The cuirassiers are known as "flour sacks," the pioneers as "moles," the hussars as "packthreads" and the artillery as "cow soldiers." The latter are called also "astronomers" and the engineers "water rats."

In these divisions again the corps have names for themselves and their rivals. In the cavalry the Seventh cuirassiers are the "whitesmiths;" the First hussars the "death's heads," as their shako bears the emblem, and the Fourth hussars, from their brown uniforms, are called the "partridges," the only brown in the German army, preserved in remembrance of Frederick II, who used all the cloth found in a Capuchin convent for his soldiers. The green uniform, with yellow facings, has given to the Sixth hussars the name of "spinach and eggs," and for a similar reason the Tenth hussars are called "parrots."

In the guards the first regiment of foot are called "tinheads" in poetic allusion to their helmets; the chasseurs are "green frogs;" the First grenadiers, "potato peelers;" the hussars, "glowworms," from their red clothes; the Third uhlans, "dusties," from their dull yellow trimmings, and the pioneers, "earthworms."—New York Mail and Express.

Boston's Standard of Means of Support.

A School street lawyer tells the following story as characteristic of the late Judge McCafferty:

Among the cases before him one morning was one in which a rather seedy looking fellow was billed for vagrancy. The officer who made the arrest and who was the principal witness was one of those officials who never speak a good word of a prisoner. He testified in substance that he had seen the man loafing around for several days, and as far as he knew had no visible means of support.

"Was this man searched when arrested?" asked the court, nodding his head in the direction of the man in the dock.

"I searched him, your honor," replied the officer promptly.

"Did you find any money about his person?"

The officer looked at the judge somewhat confusedly and then, after a few moments of thought, replied rather lightly:

"Yes, your honor, 10 cents."

"Can you buy a plate of beans for 10 cents?"

The officer, thinking his honor was about to crack a joke, laughingly responded:

"Why, yes, of course."

"Then, sir," and the judge spoke severely, "understand from me that a man who has money enough to buy a plate of beans is not a vagrant. Understand further, sir, that as long as I am a justice in this court I never again want to see you bring a man before me on a charge of vagrancy who has 10 cents in his pocket. Mr. Clerk, discharge the prisoner."—Boston Globe.

A Radical Cure.

John F. Martin, clerk in the second division, newspaper department, general postoffice, writes:

"The other day you prescribed a remedy for sleep walking. Now, will you be good enough to prescribe one for that annoying creature who disturbs one's repose—to wit, the fellow that talks in his sleep?"

Certainly. Keep him awake.—New York Press.

Hat Reverence.

In mediæval times the hat of a ruler was regarded with peculiar reverence, something of the respect shown for the crown as an emblem being also entertained for the hat. The story of William Tell, with Gesler's cap or hat on a pole to be reverenced by the people, furnishes an illustration of an incident often seen in the middle ages.

SWEETHEARTS.

By A. CONAN DOYLE.

[Copyright, 1895, by the Author.]

It is ill for the general practitioner who sits among his patients both morning and evening and sees them in their homes between to steal time for one little daily breath of cleanly air. To win it he must slip early from his bed and walk out between shuttered shops, when it is chill, but clear, and all things are sharply outlined, as in a frost. It is an hour that has a charm of its own, when but for a postman or a milkman, one has the pavement to oneself, and even the most common thing takes an ever recurring freshness, as though causeway and lamp and signboard had all wakened to the new day. Then even an inland city may seem beautiful and bear virtue in its smoke tainted air.

But it was by the sea that I lived in a town that was unlovely enough were it not for its glorious neighbor. And who cares for the town when one can sit on the bench at the headland and look out over the huge blue bay and the yellow scimeter that curves before it! I loved it when its great face was freckled with the fishing boats, and I loved it when the big ships went past, far out, a little hillock of white and no hull, with topsail curved like a bodice, so stately and demure. But most of all I loved it when no trace of man marred the majesty of nature and when the sunbursts slanted down on it from between the drifting rainclouds. Then I have seen the farther edge draped in the gauze of the driving rain, with its thin gray shading under the clouds, while my headland was golden, and the sun gleamed upon the breakers and struck deep through the green waves beyond, showing up the purple patches where the beds of seaweed are lying. Such a morning as that, with the wind in his hair and the spray on his lips and the cry of the eddying gulls in his ear, may send a man back braced afresh to the reek of a sickroom and the dead drab weariness of practice.

It was on such another day that I first saw my old man. He came to my bench just as I was leaving it. My eye must have picked him out even in a crowded street, for he was a man of large frame and fine presence, with something of distinction in the set of his lip and the poise of his head. He limped up the winding path, leaning heavily on his stick, as though those great shoulders had become too much at last for the failing limbs that bore them. As he approached my eyes caught nature's danger signal—that faint bluish tinge in nose and lip which tells of a laboring heart.

"The brae is a little trying, sir," said I. "Speaking as a physician, I should say that you would do well to rest here before you go farther."

He inclined his head in a stately old world fashion and seated himself upon the bench. Seeing that he had no wish to speak, I was silent also, but I could not help watching him out of the corner of my eyes, for he was such a wonderful survival of the early half of the century, with his low crowned, curly brimmed hat, his black satin tie, which fastened with a buckle at the back, and, above all, his large, fleshy, clean shaven face, shot with its mesh of wrinkles. Those eyes, ere they had grown dim, had looked out from the box seat of mail coaches and had seen the knots of navies as they toiled on the brown embankments. Those lips had smiled over the first number of "Pickwick" and had gossiped of the promising young man who wrote them. The face itself was a 70 year almanac and every seam an entry upon it, where public as well as private sorrow left its trace.

"The brae is a little trying, sir."

That pucker on the forehead stood for the mutiny perhaps; that line of care for the Crimean winter, it may be, and that last little sheaf of wrinkles, as my fancy hoped, for the death of Gordon. And so, as I dreamed in my foolish way, the old gentleman with the shining stock was gone, and it was 70 years of a great nation's life that took shape before me on the headland in the morning.

But he soon brought me back to earth again. As he recovered his breath he took a letter out of his pocket, and putting on a pair of horn rimmed eyeglasses he read it through very carefully. Without any design of playing the spy, I could not help observing that it was in a woman's hand. When he had finished it, he read it again, and then sat with the corners of his mouth drawn down and his eyes staring vacantly out over the bay, the most forlorn looking old gentleman that ever I have seen. All that was kindly within me was set stirring by that wistful face, but I knew that he was in no humor for talk, and so at last, with my breakfast and my patients calling me, I left him on the bench and started for home.

I never gave him another thought until the next morning, when, at the same hour, he turned up upon the headland and shared the bench which I had been accustomed to look upon as my own. He bowed again before sitting down, but was no more inclined than before to enter into conversation. There had been a change in him during the last 24 hours, and all for the worse. The face seemed more heavy and more wrinkled, while that ominous venous tinge was more pronounced as he panted up the hill. The clean lines of his cheek and chin were marred by a day's growth of gray stubble, and his large, shapely head had lost something of the brave carriage which had struck me when first I glanced at him.

He had a letter there, the same, or another, but still in a woman's hand, and over this he was moping and mumbling in his senile fashion, with his brow puckered and the corners of his mouth drawn down like those of a fretting child. So I left him, with a vague wonder as to who he might be and why a single spring day should have wrought such a change upon him.

So interested was I that next morning I was on the lookout for him. Sure enough, at the same hour I saw him coming up the hill, but very slowly, with a bent back and a heavy head. It was shocking to me to see the change in him as he approached.

"I am afraid that our air does not agree with you, sir," I ventured to remark.

But it was as though he had no heart for talk. He tried, as I thought, to make some fitting reply, but it slurred off into a mumble and silence. How bent and weak and old he seemed—ten years older at the least than when first I had seen him! It went to my heart to see this sweet old fellow wasting away before my eyes. There was the eternal letter, which he unfolded with his shaking fingers. Who was this woman whose words moved him so? Some daughter, perhaps, or granddaughter, who should have been the light of his home instead of ——! I smiled to find how bitter I was growing and how swiftly I was weaving a romance round an unshaven old man and his correspondence. Yet all day he lingered in my mind, and I had fitful glimpses of those two trembling, blue veined knuckly hands, with the paper rustling between them.

I had hardly hoped to see him again. Another day's decline must, I thought, hold him to his room, if not to his bed. Great, then, was my surprise when, as I approached my bench, I saw that he was already there. But as I came up to him I could scarce be sure that it was indeed the same man. There were the curly brimmed hat, and the shining stock, and the horn glasses, but where were the stoop and the gray stubbled, pitiable face? He was clean shaven and firm lipped, with a bright eye and a head that poised itself upon his shoulders like an eagle on a rock. His back was as straight and square as a grenadier's, and he switched at the pebbles with his stick in his exuberant vitality. In the buttonhole of his well brushed black coat there glinted a golden blossom, and the corner of a dainty red silk handkerchief lapped over from his breast pocket. He might have been the eldest son of the weary creature who had sat there the morning before.

"Good morning, sir, good morning!" he cried, with a merry waggle of his cane.

"Good morning!" I answered. "How beautiful the bay is looking!"

"Yes, sir, but you should have seen it just before the sun rose."

"What, you have been here since then?"

"I was here when there was scarce light to see the path."

"You are a very early riser."

"On occasion, sir, on occasion." He cocked his eye at me as if to gauge whether I were worthy of his confidence. "The fact is, sir, that my wife is coming back to me today."

I suppose that my face showed that did not quite see the force of the explanation. My eyes, too, may have given him assurance of sympathy, for he moved quite close to me and began speaking in a low, confidential voice, as if the matter were of such weight that even the sea gulls must be kept out of our counsels.

"Are you a married man, sir?"

"No, I am not."

"Ah, then you cannot quite understand it. My wife and I have been married for nearly 50 years, and we have never been parted, never at all until now."

"Was it for long?" I asked.

"Yes, sir. This is the fourth day. She had to go to Scotland—a matter of duty, you understand—and the doctors would not let me go. Not that I would have allowed them to stop me, but she was on their side. Now, thank God, it is over, and she may be here at any moment."

"Here!"

"Yes, here. This headland and bench were old friends of ours 30 years ago. The people with whom we stay are not, to tell the truth, very congenial, and we have little privacy among them. That is why we prefer to meet here. I could not be sure which train would bring her, but if she had come by the very earliest she would have found me waiting."

"In that case"—said I, rising.

"No, sir, no," he entreated. "I beg that you will stay. It does not weary you, this domestic talk of mine?"

"On the contrary."

"I have been so driven inward during these last few days. Ah, what a nightmare it has been! She was very good in writing, but still it was dreadful. Perhaps it may seem strange to you that an old fellow like me should feel like this?"

"It is charming."

"No credit to me, sir! There's not a man on this planet but would feel the same if he had the good fortune to be married to such a woman. Perhaps because you see me like this and hear me speak of our long life together you conceive that she is old too." He laughed heartily, and his eyes twinkled at the humor of the idea.

"She's one of those women, you know, who have youth in their hearts, and so it can never be very far from their faces. To me she's just as she was when she first took my hand in hers, in 1845. A wee little bit stouter, perhaps, but then, if she had a fault as a girl, it was that she was a shade too slender. She was above me in station, you know—I a clerk and she the daughter of my employer. Oh, it was quite a romance, I give you my word, and I won her, and somehow I have never got over the freshness and the wonder of it! To think that that sweet, lovely girl has walked by my side all through life, and that I have been able"—

He stopped suddenly, and I glanced round at him in surprise. He was shaking all over, in every fiber of his great body. His hands were clawing at the woodwork and his feet shuffling on the gravel. I saw what it was. He was trying to rise, but was so excited that he could not. I half extended my hand, but a higher courtesy constrained me to draw it back again and turn my face to the sea. An instant afterward he was up and hurrying down the path.

I saw that he put out both his hands.

A woman was coming toward us. She was quite close before he had seen her—30 yards at the utmost. I know not if she had ever been as he described her, or whether it was but some idea which he carried in his brain. The person upon whom I looked was tall, it is true, but she was thick and shapeless, with a ruddy, full blown face and a skirt grotesquely gathered up. There was a green ribbon in her hat which jarred upon my eyes, and her blouselike bodice was full and clumsy. And this was the lovely girl, the ever youthful! My heart sank as I thought how little such a woman might appreciate him, how unworthy she might be of his love.

She came up the path in her solid way, while he staggered along to meet her. Then, as they came together, looking discreetly out of the farthest corner of my eye, I saw that he put out both his hands, like a child when its little journey is done, while she, shrinking from a public caress, took one of them in hers and shook it. As she did so I saw her face, and I was easy in my mind for my old man. God grant that when this hand is shaking and when this back is bowed a woman's eyes may look so into mine!

THE END.

A PEOPLE OF FEW WORDS.

"Let your speech be yea, yea, and nay, nay," says the Good Book, "for whatsoever is more than these cometh of evil." The Shakers abide by the spirit of this rule. Their words are few, simple, sincere and direct. They waste no energy in idle talk; they use it in thinking and doing. And whatever they do they do with their might. They are content with nothing short of the essence and principles of the things they investigate. They take pains and are patient. And thus the doors of many strange truths open to them. In this way they discovered what may almost be called the unity of disease. A venerable Shaker says of it: "It is said that one man's meat is another man's poison. That is but half the truth. Any man's meat is any man's poison, under certain conditions. If the grain never got further than the hopper we should never have bread; and if bread never got further than the stomach we should never have strength. When the stomach is torpid, helpless and inflamed the food lies in it and rots. This fermentation produces poisons which may, and often do, disorder every other organ and function of the body. This is indigestion or dyspepsia, with many symptons and disguises. Cure it and you cure nine-tenths of our complaints." These words were uttered many years ago. Since then they have found a remedy, now known as the Shaker Digestive Cordial. It is made from medicinal plants cultivated by them. It is a food and digests other foods. Taken while eating it rests the stomach and nourishes the system. The pains and distresses of dyspepsia disappear before it. It prevents fermentation and soon restores full power to the digestion. It succeeds in the worst cases. It is worthy the name of that people whose name it bears. Any druggist will sell you a trial bottle for ten cents.

A CHERRY TREE STORY.

But an Oil Man Blankets It at the Start With a Watch Yarn.

"You observe this plain gold ring on my little finger," said the man from Chicago, turning the circlet off as if it were a brass nut on a screw. "It has my wife's full name engraved in the inside. Well, it is our engagement and wedding ring. My wife lost it one day when we lived near San Francisco, and, though we searched high and low, we couldn't find it. One day, nearly two years later, a friend of ours insisted on presenting me with a small cherry tree"—

"I'll take a cigar this time, please," remarked the man from Oil City.

"I said cherry tree," continued the man from Chicago, "and I'm giving you a true story. Well, this offer of my friend was declined at first, but my wife insisted, saying that we could set it out in a particular place in the lawn. She marked the spot, and I sent for the little tree. I dug down about 14 inches where she designated, and, so help me—I turned up this ring! How it got there we never could guess."

"There's nothing improbable about that," said the Oil City man, "unless it is the cherry tree. But did I ever tell you the story of my watch? This same watch"—pulling out a gold hunter. "Several years ago I was drilling a well up in the Bradford district and had got down about 1,900 feet, without any sign of luck. I was looking at the hole under the derrick with something like despair one day—for we had stopped work on it. Pulling out my watch, which I carried without fastening, it suddenly slipped from my fingers and down she went, chuck into that dry hole. The idea of adding that to my loss riled me, so I got a cylindrical tube, such as we get tests of sand with, and put some putty near the open end and let it down the hole, which it fitted neatly. My watch came up with the suction, stuck fast to the putty. It hadn't stopped running.

"Yes, and do you know we renewed work on that hole the next day and got first sand in six hours!"

"I hadn't finished about my ring," put in the Chicago man. "We had moved to Iowa, and my wife lost it again. I offered $100 reward for it, but no use. We came to Chicago, and seven years after I had left the Iowa place I received the ring through the mail from the man we had sold out to. He said he was pulling cabbage in the garden and found it solidly grown on the root of a cabbage!"

We began to move away before the Oil City man could recover.—New York Herald

A Gentle Hint.

Whistler, the artist, once sat at the theater next to a lady who was going in and out of her seat constantly, not only as soon as each act was finished, but also while the play was going on. The space between the rows of seats was very narrow, and the artist was subjected to much annoyance as she passed him. "Madam," he said at length in his sweetest tones, "I trust I do not incommode you by keeping my seat?"

ALLABOUT THE SULTAN'S LAND

REV. JAMES F. RIGGS DELIVERS AN ENTERTAINING LECTURE.

The Turks are Great Fighters, But Civilization Progresses Slowly Among Them—Related Many Personal Experiences.

Nearly two hundced people turned out last evening, despite the rain, to attend the lecture on "Constantinople" by Rev. James F. Riggs, D. D., of Rutgers College. The lecture was held in the Trinity Reformed church and the attendance was very large considering the bad weather. The lecture was given under the auspices of the Ladies Christian Work Society of the church, and the women deserve great credit for securing such a noted lecturer. The front of the church was artistically decorated with chrysanthemums and ferns which were arranged by a committee of which Mrs. J. C. Van Dyke is the chairman.

Before the lecture commenced, Rev. Cornelius Schenck introduced Isaac L. Miller, who spoke of the University Extension course of lectures which is being arranged.

Dr. Riggs was then presented to his audience.

He spoke of Constantinople as the oldest inhabited capitol and as being unique in that the old and the modern cities are built up together. He next told of Constantinople's favorable situation at the meeting place of two continents and two seas and how its ruler is called "The lord of two continents and prince of two seas."

The prospect of the Turkish capitol as it is seen when approached was described, and Dr. Riggs spoke especially of the wonderful blue water. The harbor was next sketched very realistically.

"The Turks are great fighters," he said, "but the mysteries of a steam engine are beyond them," and he told of the experiences of the natives with their men of war.

The Bosphorus and the beautiful palaces which line its banks were spoken of, and, and from an artistic point of view, the statement refuted that the Turkish people are barbarians.

The special palaces of the Sultan were described as were also the wonderful mosques.

Dr. Riggs scored the Turks roundly for their action to the country people away from the towns and unprotected foreigners.

The Turks have their humorous stories as well as other nations and Dr. Riggs kept his hearers in roars of laughter when he repeated some of them. The city of Constantinople was partially described and something told of the customs, feasts and festivals of the people.

Dr. Riggs kept the close attention of all his audience throughout the lecture and proved a very interesting speaker with his ready flow of words, his vast fund of information, and his bright humor.

Councilman Elias H. Bird and Harry W. Marshall made very efficient ushers while Street Commissioner Robert A. Meeker presided over the ticket department.

Daily Press Thanked.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—It gives me pleasure to inform you that at the last executive meeting of the Plainfield Local Union a motion was carried to the effect that a hearty vote of thanks be extended for the very efficient service rendered the Local Union through the columns of The Daily Press, as well as for the kindness manifested by the free printing and distribution of the song "Plainfield, '96."

Sincerely yours,
Florence G. Hawkins,
Secretary.

Stationery at the Kirmess.

The attention of the public has been so absorbed in the dances at the coming Kirmess the ladies in charge of the stationery table wish to turn the thought toward the opportunities they will give for the purchase of Christmas gifts, books, calendars, and all kinds of fancy stationery. The committee in charge consists of Mrs. John Gray Foster, Mrs. A. Walter Haviland, Mrs. Elliott T. Barrows, Mrs. J. Doull Miller, Mrs. James R. Joy and Miss Emily Tracy.

To Be a Handsome Structure.

The main portion of the marble front of the new First National Bank building is about completed, thus far showing that it will be very handsome. The other work is progressing very rapidly.

An Article by Dr. Lewis.

Dr. A. H. Lewis, of this city, has an article in the Independent for November on "The Seventh-Day Baptist Position."

THE BANNER TOWNSHIP.

Charles A. Reed Expresses His Appreciation of His Neighbors' Good Will.

After the council meeting in the borough last night the recent election was discussed and Charles A. Reed stated that North Plainfield had placed itself at the head of the column and was now recognized as the banner township of Somerset county. It gave for every candidate on the ticket, except the opponent of Dr. Zeglio, the largest majority given for any candidate in any township. Dr. Zeglio received many Republican votes in North Plainfield and ran far ahead of his ticket. Even Bridgewater township, which includes Somerville, had to take off its hat to North Plainfield and admit that the latter is the most important factor in county politics. Personally, Mr. Reed said, he was proudest of the fact that in Raritan, his former home, and North Plainfield, he received many more votes than were cast even for the Governor-elect, and that he felt most grateful for the support he received and particularly for that accorded to him by those Democrats who allowed friendship for their neighbor and pride in their town to over ride mere partisan spirit. He said that he would never forget how nobly the citizens of North Plainfield, without regard to party lines, stood by their fellow townsman.

JOHN DALY MANAGER NOW.

He Will Look After Music Hall Affairs After Next Week.

Bristow Aldridge, who has been the resident manager of the Drake Opera House in Elizabeth and Stillman Music Hall in this city for Rich & Maeder, the lessees, will next week become the manager of Rhea for the same firm.

The direct and active management of Music Hall will be placed in the hands of John Daly, who has been the assistant manager since the opening of this season. This will be pleasant news to Mr. Daly's host of friends in this city who will congratulate him on this recognition of his ability and services by such experienced theatrical agents as Rich & Maeder.

A large number of the best attractions on the road have been booked to appear before the end of the season, among whom are Modjeska, Chauncey Olcott, Rhea, Charles T. Ellis, Eight Bells, Trilby, The Capitol, and various other standard performances.

DECORATING FOR THE KIRMESS.

The Firemen Kindly Assist in Trimming the High Places.

The Crescent Cycle Academy is fast being transformed into a beautiful hall surrounded by handsome booths. Yesterday morning, afternoon and evening were spent in preparing for the Kirmess, and much work was done. In the evening a delegation of firemen came over with their long ladders and lent their assistance in decorating the roof with flags and lanterns. Among those who so kindly aided in the work were Chief T. O. Doane, Assistant Chief James Martin, Foreman William Newman, Foreman John Newman, Foreman Jos. Blimm, A. B. Rogers, James Dawe, William Chamberlain, Charles Glaentzer, Charles Johnson, Lewis Dunavan, David Dunavan and Frank Schuck.

Manning to Make Improvements.

L. L. Manning, the West Front street marble and granite dealer, is soon to make a number of improvements to his shop at the corner of Central avenue. The roof of the present building is to be raised and another new story added. The new story will be used as a show room for marble mantels. George Henry will have charge of the raising of the roof and J. Gulick will do the mason work.

Grand Officers Coming.

Next Tuesday evening Minerva Temple, No. 4, Rathbone Sisters, will entertain the Supreme Senior, S. J. Goff, of Central Falls, R. I., Grand Chief of New York State, L. E. Palmer, of Brooklyn, and the Supreme Deputy of New Jersey, N. M. Morrison, of Elizabeth. Also a number of the members of the New York and Brooklyn Temples.

Coming Nuptial Event.

Cards are out announcing the coming wedding of Frank Runyon, a wealthy young farmer of Stelton, to Miss Caroline Ross, of this city. The wedding will occur on November 14th at the residence of the bride.

An Item and a Joke.

A new butcher shop will be opened this week in the Drake block by C. L. Sturtevant, of Plainfield. He says he hopes to make both ends meat.—Cranford Chronicle.

NEW FREIGHT HOUSE ASSURED

PRESIDENT MAXWELL SAYS THE IMPROVEMENTS WILL BE MADE.

Soon as the Freight House is Completed the Work of Adapting the Passenger Station to Needs Will Start.

One of Plainfield's citizens forwarded to President Maxwell, of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, the item published exclusively in The Daily Press of the 5th inst., commenting favorably upon the action of his company in restoring the waiting cars for the 7:53 a. m. train. President Maxwell replies as follows:

"Your letter of the 6th confirms our opinion that the people of Plainfield are ever ready to appreciate anything we do for them. We think they will be still further gratified to learn that we are about ready to begin work on a new freight house there, and as soon as that is finished it is our intention to take up the question of improving our passenger station.

"Yours truly,
Signed "J. R. Maxwell.
"President."

This news is, indeed, cause for rejoicing, and when the passenger station is improved it will remove the only source of discomfort arising through local railway service. It is understood that the plans are for the construction of a proper approach to the railway station on the side now occupied by the freight depot, with tunnels under the tracks for the convenience of foot passengers. These plans have been long under consideration and the completion of them has been deferred in consequence of the late business depression. The fact that the company now undertakes the work is evidence of its returning prosperity.

OFFICIAL VOTE OF UNION.

Griggs Carried the County by Exactly 1,538 Plurality.

The official vote of Union county, as compiled yesterday afternoon by the County Board of Elections, is: Griggs, Republican, for Governor, 8,421; McGill, Democrat, 6,883; Keim, Socialist, 411; Wilbur, Prohibition, 295; Ellis, Populist, 45; Griggs' plurality, 1,538.

For Assembly, Codington, Republican, 8,559; Roll, Republican, 8,482; Clauss, Republican, 8,335; Green, Democrat, 6,761; Febrey, Democrat, 6,759; Mead, Democrat, 6,758; Wilson, Prohibition, 306; King, Prohibition, 315; Sayre, Prohibition, 298; Faulkner, Socialist, 436; Bill, Socialist, 428; Bobertz, Socialist, 425.

Coroner, Keefe, Republican, 8,389; Dolan, Democrat, 6,638; Myles, 315; Hanson, 430; Keefe's plurality, 1,751.

Topics for Gymnastics.

The topics for the gymnasium men's Bible class, held every Sunday morning at 9:15, are as follows:

November 10—"The Place and Power of Christians;" Athletics, I Timothy 4:8, I John 2:1. November 17—The Race Course, Hebrews 12:1, Psalms 19:5; Ecclesiastes 9:11, II Samuel 18:19-26. November 24—The Boxing Bout, I Corinthians 9:26. December 1—The Wrestling Match, Genesis 32:24 25, Ephesians 6:12.

They Take a Quiet Smoke.

Complaint has been made to Chief of Police Grant that some of the young men who go to one of the local churches get up during the evening service and go out to the horse sheds to smoke. An officer is to be stationed near the spot on Sunday to prevent the continuing of the nuisance. Those who make the complaint are afraid that a fire will be started there through the carelessness of the young smokers.

Victory for Mr. Swackhamer.

Justice T. R. Crosley, before whose court the case of Morris C. Ballentine against Samuel K. Bowers, was tried last Friday, rendered his decision yesterday morning, awarding judgment to the plaintiff for the full amount of his claim, $94.75. The issue had been stubbornly contested. S. S. Swackhamer represented the plaintiff and James J. Meehan, ex-Prosecutor of Somerset, appeared for the defendant. No notice of appeal has been given.

W. A. McGuire, a well known citizen of McKay, Ohio, is of the opinion that there is nothing as good for children troubled with colds or croup as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He has used it in his family for several years with the best results and always keeps a bottle of it in the house. After having la grippe he was himself troubled with a severe cough. He used other remedies without benefit and then concluded to try the children's medicine and to his delight it soon effected a permanent cure. 25 and 50c bottles for sale at Reynolds's pharmacy, Park and North aves. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

JUST DAMAGES AND BENEFITS

COMMISSIONERS APPOINTED FOR THE WATCHUNG AVENUE OPENING.

Borough Council Select Three Conservative and Fair Men to Perform the Important and Difficult Duties Thereof.

Councilman Schutt was the only absentee at the adjourned meeting of the Borough Council last evening, and there was very little business transacted. Bills to the amount of $90.24 were presented and later ordered paid. Mr. Howell offered a resolution which was read by Borough Counsel Reed. It stated that according to law the Council had met the property owners on Watchung avenue in regard to the extension and were unable to come to any agreement. He therefore recommended that Justus H. Cooley, John P. Emmons and W. J. Roome be appointed commissioners to assess damages and benefits. The resolution was adopted. Mr. Lounsbury wanted to know if there was any action the Council could now take to prevent the street railway from running their tracks through Watchung avenue. Mr. Reed said there was none, but the tracks could not be laid unless the consents of property owners were obtained and the Council granted a franchise. There being nothing further to come before the Council, the meeting adjourned.

WANTED THE DIFFERENCE.

A Law Suit Results From a Disagreement About a Trade.

The case of Hetfield against Blimm, on contract, was tried before Justice Mosher and a jury yesterday afternoon. Hetfied owed Blimm a bill amounting to $164, and then Hetfield sold Blimm a horse valued at $200. Blimm wished to call it even, but Hetfield wanted the balance, and as Blimm wouldn't pay, he sued him for it.

Walter L. Hetfield pleaded his own case, while Harry C. Runyon acted as Blimm's attorney. After a pretty lively case, the jury brought in a verdict for Hetfield for the full amount.

An Evening with George Riddle.

All those who heard George Riddle last winter, through the courtesy of the Monday Afternoon Club, will be delighted to hear that this winter he will again visit Plainfield. On the evening of December 6th, at the Y. M. C. A. Hall, he will present a varied programme, including some of his choicest numbers from such authors as Sheridan, Victor Hugo, Frank Stockton and Kate Douglas Wiggin. The complete programme, together with a list of patronesses from whom tickets may be obtained, will be given later. This artist is now ranked foremost among readers and no one can afford to miss the opportunity of hearing him.

Decided in the Affirmative.

The programme as published in The Daily Press was rendered entire last evening at the entertainment given by Miantonomoh Tribe, No. 118, I. O. R. M.

The debate on the question whether it would be advisable to attach a death benefit fund to the order, was strongly contested. Each speaker was allowed five minutes after which there was a general discussion of the subject.

Sachem J. Newman finally decided in the affiamative.

Justice Newcorn's Court.

The case on contract of Appleby against Mortimer was tried in Justice Newcorn's court yesterday morning and judgment was rendered for the plaintiff.

The contract cases of Tobin vs. Sutton and Schipper vs. Mettler have been adjourned for one week.

A summons has been issued in the contract case of Taylor Provision Company against Ballentine, which is returnable Nov. 15th.

Local Bowlers to Contest.

Local bowlers will meet for the first time this winter next Friday evening when the team from the Crescent Wheelmen will meet the cracks of the Plainfield Catholic Club on the latter's alleys.

Henry Wilson, the postmaster at Welshton, Florida, says he cured a case of diarrhœa of long standing in six hours, with one small bottle of Chambertain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. What a pleasant surprise that must have been to the sufferer. Such cures are not unusual with this remedy. In many instances only one or two doses are required to give permanent relief. It can always be depended upon. When reduced with water it is pleasant to take. For sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. R. Armstrong, Manager.

TOO MANY BED BUGS.

Odd Argument Brought Out in a Suit to Recover Rent.

A rather amusing defence was made in the case of Lucy Warmington against Horatio C. N. Johnston, on contract, that came up before Justice Nash and a jury of twelve men yesterday afternoon. The jury was a representative one, and cosisted of A. Love, J., William Greenwood, Jerry Cash, W. W. Stratton, P. M. Decker, John Petrie, R. Walker, W. J. Benton, G. Sanders, F. M. Bacon, M. Keefe and G. Cook.

The suit was brought to recover two months rent which the plaintiff claimed that the defendant owed her. She owns the property at 417 Central avenue, which, sometime ago, was leased to Mr. Johnston for three years. After a month had passed, Johnston moved out and his landlady agreed to settle for $60, the amount of two months rent. This Johnston could not see, and hence the suit. J. P. Powers was the counsel for the plaintiff, and Winfield S. Angleman argued the case for the defendant. According to the terms of the lease, the rent was payable in advance, and Justice Nash ruled that the rent for only one month could be recovered as the term, "in advance," was not specific enough.

The defence had really nothing at all to bring up, but the defendant wanted to fight and so his attorney pleaded that the house was not tenantable on account of the great number of bed bugs which had taken possession. The jury then retired and brought back a verdict of $30 for the plaintiff, the amount of one month's rent.

A CROSS-COUNTRY RUN.

The Y. M. C. A. Members are Planning for One on Thanksgiving Day.

The members of the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium are planning to have a "hare and hound" chase on Thanksgiving Day. The hares will leave the Y. M. C. A. building at 9:30 a. m. and the hounds will be let loose five minutes after. Blue and red paper will be used for scent. The blue will be used on the trail from from start to the turning point and the red used on the return trail.

Messrs. Herbert Martin, Garfield Pike and Clarence Thorn will be the hares.

All who wish to join in this cross-country run can leave their names with Mr. Whiting at the Y. M. C. A. building.

T. A. Cuming will be the leader for the pursuing party.

A HORSE MORE THAN AGREED TO.

John Keiderling Clips Eleven Horses Against Father Time.

One of the local livery stables was the scene of an exciting race Thursday, and the contestants were John Keiderling, an expert horse clipper in the employ of F. A. Pope, and old Father Time. Keiderling had made a wager of $25 with a friend that he could clip ten horses from half-past six in the morning to six o'clock at night, and yesterday he tried. When the six o'clock whistle blew he had just finished clipping the eleventh horse.

M'VEY MAY BECOME A GOLD BUG.

The Restauranteur May Have Valuable Possessions at Gloversville.

The startling announcement in yesterday's New York papers that a gold mine had been found at Gloversville, N.Y., has filled J. H. McVey, of North avenue, with fond hopes and ambition, for he has 350 lots directly opposite the property on which the gold has been discovered. Mr. Mc Vey will probably have his property searched to see how much of the desired gilt he can capture. In the meantime he is anxiously awaiting further developments.

Wedding Tomorrow.

The marriage of Miss Sophia Duffler and John Wedemeyer, of the borough, will take place tomorrow evening at seven o'clock at the German Lutheran church in North Plainfield. A large reception will follow at the groom's residence on Somerset street.

Croup is a terror to young mothers. To post them concerning the first symptoms, and treatment is the object of this item. The first indication of croup is hoarseness. In a child who is subject to croup it may be taken as a sure sign of the approach of an attack. Following this hoarseness is a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's Cough remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the rough cough has appeared it will prevent the attack. It has never been known to fail. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

A DOG'S UNLUCKY RUSH.

KNOCKED DOWN AND DISCHARGED A GUN WITH BAD RESULTS.

John Shepherd's Leg Shattered by the Weapon, While Alfred Denise's Head Narrowly Escaped—Taken to the Hospital

A poor little innocent dog was the cause of considerable pain and worry yesterday afternoon when the little animal upset and discharged a shot gun, most of whose contents struck John Shepherd in the calf of the leg, inflicting a very serious wound.

John Shepherd, of 96 Westervelt avenue, and Alfred Denise, of 29 Emily street, started hunting yesterday. Each of the young men, who are about twenty years old, carried a doubled barrelled shot gun and they were accompanied by George Deal's little dog "Jip." They tramped over to the Passaic river but game was scarce and when dinner time came around they had not had the best of luck. They ate the lunch which they had carried and started home by way of Dugway Hill.

They had reached the second valley when they saw a red squirrel run for shelter in a hole in a bank nearby. Denise rested his loaded gun against the tree. The catch was loose and so he left one hammer up to prevent the gun from opening. Shepherd stood on top of the bank ready to shoot should the squirrel appear, while Denise tried to dig it out. In the meantime Jip had been wandering about, and seeing that something was to be found, made a rush for the hole. But as he went he knocked over the gun. The hammer struck something and the next instant there was a crash and a cry of pain. The charge missed Denise's head by about six inches and struck the calf of Shepherd's leg diagonally, tearing off the skin and flesh and exposing the muscles. The accident occured at about half past two. Shepherd jumped back and called to his comrade who came up to see what damage had been done. He bound up the injured member with handerchiefs and assisted the injured boy to some place where assistance could be obtained. At the home of H. J. Smith they found that the horses were all at work in the fields and there was no way to transport Shepherd to Plainfield.

At last they went on to the home of Henry Rogers who quickly harnessed up and carried the two hunters homeward. They stopped first at Dr. Adams, but he was not at home. Dr. Zeglio and Dr. Carman were both visited, but both were out and, as Shepherd was feeling faint, Rogers drove to Randolph's pharmacy. Here hs was directed to Dr. Probasco who was at home and ordered the injured lad to the hospital at once, where under the skillful treatment of the doctors, it is expected that his limb will be saved and put in as good condition as ever. The escape was a very narrow one, however, as had the shot struck one inch nearer the centre the leg would probably have had to been amputated.

SHOT IN THE HEAD.

The Irrepressible Flobert Rifle Causes a Painful Wound.

The irrepressible Flobert rifle in the hands of a youngster came near causing a serious accident last Tuesday, and as it was, caused a painful wound in the head of Wallace B., the young son of John Morton, the ice man, of 734 West Front street. The Morton boy, his older brother and Agnew Nicholl's, who lives with his parents at the corner of Second and Liberty streets, were playing about the ice houses on West Front street with the toy and supposedly harmless rifle, when young Nicholls accidentally discharged it, the bullet striking the Morton lad in the back of the head and making a bad abrasion of the skin. The injured boy went home and endeavored to make his mother believe that the accident was caused by some other thing than the rifle, intending to thus relieve his comrade of any blame, but when Mr. Morton came home in at night the older brotehr confessed to him the true cause of the hole in his brother's head. The wound is healing so that no bad results are anticipated.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the C.O.A.A. will be held in the Y. M. C. A. hall next Monday evening.

For a pain in the side or chest there is nothing so good as a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of pain. It affords prompt and permanent relief and if used in time will often prevent a cold from resulting in pneumonia. This same treatment is a sure cure for lame back. For sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North aves. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

JUDGE THURMAN DYING

His Illness Due Indirectly to a Bad Fall.

His Age and Feeble Health Was Against Him—He Succeeded Ben Wade in the United States Senate and Was Defeated for Vice-President with Cleveland.

Columbus, O., Nov. 9.—Judge Allen G. Thurman, the "Old Roman," who injured his hip a week ago, has suffered a relaps and is not expected to recover. Last week he fell and seriously injured himself. No bones were broken, and, owing to his wonderfully strong constitution, it was thought he would soon be on his feet again.

Little Hope of Recovery.

The effect of the shock to his nervous system appeared to have soon passed away, and he had improved so much that his physicians thought he would be out of his bed in a few days. But while down in his bedroom, he attempted to walk into the library. The effort was too much for the old man, and in returning he fell to the floor. From that time he sank, and this morning his family gave out little hope of his recovery. His son, Allen W. Thurman, said to-day that there is little ground for hope that his father can live for more than a few days, and that he may die at any time.

Sketch of His Career.

Allen Granberry Thurman was born in Lynchburg, Va., November 13, 1813. His father was a school teacher at the time, and his grandfather a Baptist clergyman, who from motives of conscience freed all his slaves. Six years after Allen's birth the Thurman family moved to Ohio, where his uncle, William Allen, was afterwards governor of the state. Thurman graduated at Chillicothe academy at the age of eighteen and studied law.

Chief Justice Ohio Supreme Court.

He was admitted to the bar in 1835. Nine years later he was elected a member of the twenty-ninth congress, and in 1851 was made judge of the supreme court of Ohio. From 1854 to 1856 he was chief justice. He was a strong Jackson democrat, and in 1867 was induced to run on the democratic ticket for governor of Ohio. Although he polled 35,000 more votes than had ever before been given to a democratic candidate for the same office in that state, he was defeated, his successful opponent being Rutherford B. Hayes. Eight years later his uncle, William Allen, was defeated for the governorship by Hayes.

In the U. S. Senate.

Not discouraged by his defeat, Thurman a was candidate for United States senate two years later, and was elected as Benjamin E. Wade's successor. Thurman's twelve years' service as senator ended in 1881. His most famous act while there was his successful fight to force the Pacific railroad corporation to keep their word to the government. In 1888 he was nominated for vice-president of the United States, but he and Cleveland were beaten by Harrison and Morton.

HE WAS A BIGAMIST.

When Fritchley Was Arrested He Committed Suicide.

Afton, N. Y., Nov. 9.—The suicide of John Fritchley has created great excitement. Fritchley came to Afton three years ago from Susquehanna, Pa., and soon afterward married Julia Davis. The couple have since resided here, at all times appearing to be perfectly happy. Their domestic happiness, however, was disturbed when Fritchley was arrested on a charge of bigamy, preferred by a wife now living in Pennsylvania with her children. Fritchley was left alone for a few moments about an hour after the arrest, and during the interval he committed suicide by shooting himself in the head.

WALL CAVED IN.

One Italian Workman Killed and Two Others Injured.

New York, Nov. 9.—While a number of workmen were excavating a cellar underneath the German branch of the Young Men's Christian association building on Second avenue yesterday afternoon a wall caved in, burying an Italian laborer named Frank Alta. His dead body was recovered shortly afterwards. Two other Italians were seriously injured, and after having their injuries attended to by a physician were sent home.

FISHING SCHOONER LOST.

It Is Believed That the Owner and Crew of the Riverdale Perished.

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 9.—The department of marine and fisheries has been notified of the loss of the fishing schooner Riverdale, near Southwest point, off the island of Anticosti. The Riverdale was owned by Alfred Lapouvre of Caspe Basin, who was also the master. It is believed that he has perished with the crew.

Princeton's Practice Game.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 9.—In anticipation of their game to-day with Cornell, the Princeton football team yesterday played two practice halves of only fifteen minutes each, besides doing preliminary work in signals. During the time of play the 'varsity players completely tore up the "scrub" line and made two touchdowns.

Sentenced for Contempt of Court.

San Francisco, Nov. 9.—United States Judge Morrow yesterday afternoon sentenced grand juror H. J. Summerhayes for contempt arising out of bribery charged in connection with the Freeman-Westinghouse case, to six months' imprisonment without the alternative of a fine.

Millionaire Reed Dead.

Pasadena, Cal., Nov. 9.—Simeon G. Reed, the millionaire and horseman, died at his residence in this city yesterday from the effects of a stroke of paralysis.

Accused of Arson.

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 9.—Michael J. Corbett of Newton was brought here to jail last night having been bound over under $1,000 for arson.

PROBABLY THE MURDERER.

New York Police Believe They Have One of the Highwaymen.

New York, Nov. 9.—There was no trace of the robbers who late Thursday night held up Walters' saloon on Southern boulevard and killed Richard Pope, until late last night when one of the guilty men, it is believed, was landed into custody. Officer Croughan was standing near the corner of Delancy and Eldridge streets when he was appealed to by a citizen who said that a man had just attempted to steal his watch, and he pointed the latter out to the officer. Croughan immediately arrested the man and took him to the station house. As soon as Sergeant Hatton saw him he recognized him from the description given by the police as the man who had shot Richard Pope in the saloon on Southern boulevard. The prisoner was taken to the rear room where upon being searched a 32-calibre revolver with two chambers empty was found in one of his pockets. Upon searching his hat the hat band was found to be missing. This was deemed as more evidence as to who the man was, as the man who shot Pope had left his hat hand behind him in the saloon. The prisoner gave his name as Raymond Elroy, 18 years of age of Boston. He refused to state the number of the street in which he lived or to answer any other questions. He held his head down and refused to look the officer in the face. He was sent to police headquarters.

Searching the "Wild West."

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 9.—The local police have been trying to locate the Wild West employes who held up "The Rest," in New York Thursday night and murdered Richard Pope, and have had all those at the winter quarters under surveillance. Detective Dorrien of the New York force and the bartender, Wm. Gillen, came to this city yesterday and with Superintendent Birmingham went to the quarters and examined the men as they came for their pay. The bartender did not recognize any of them as the robbers and murderers. The police believe that if connected with the show at all, the bandits were some of the employes who were paid off in the south and followed the show north.

KRAHN'S EXTRADITION.

Wanted in London for Stealing $60,000 Worth of Bonds.

New York, Nov. 9.—Herbert Krahn alias Charles Rousset, who is wanted in London on a charge of having stolen $60,000 worth of bonds of the Canadian Pacific railroad from "Lady" Winifred Gordon, was arrigned before United States Commissioner Shields yesterday, in extradition proceedings. Charles Fox, counsel for the British consul, produced the application for Krahn's extradition, the certification by Ambassador Bayard and the affidavit of "Lady" Gordon. After the reading of the affidavit the examination was adjourned until Nov. 22.

TAHITI AND FRANCE.

The Island's Governor Says All Vessels Must Fly the French Flag.

San Francisco, Nov. 9.—The officers of the American schooner Leon say that France is injuring the commerce of the United States in the Southern seas. The governor of Tahiti has made a regulation by which all trading vessels must fly the French flag, and be half owned and officered by Frenchmen. Nine-tenths of the traders are owned by Americans and American sailors man them. In consequence many men are out of employment and a number of vessels are tied up at Papecte. The Leon was obliged to wait for months before securing a crew.

HAS SUPREME COURT POWERS.

Highest Judicial Office Ever Held by a Negro in This Country.

Albany, Nov. 9.—James C. Matthews, colored, formerly recorder of deeds at Washington, under President Cleveland's first administration, has been elected judge of the recorder's court of this city, which office carries with it the power of a supreme court judge. His majority is over 2,000. He was nominated and elected on the regular democratic ticket. It is the highest judicial office ever held by a man of his race in this country.

ASSAULTED BY ENGLISHMEN.

A Winnipauk, Conn., Man Brutally Kicked and Beaten.

Norwalk, Conn., Nov. 9.—Frank Crowther of Winnipauk was brutally assaulted yesterday by an Englishman and his son named Maudlin, while nutting near Silver Mine. The Maudlins are said to own the property on which they discovered Crowther, and after depriving their victim of the nuts he had gathered and his hat and coat, they knocked him down and kicked him in an unmerciful manner. A physician attended to his injuries.

Chronic

Alcoholism

is a disease hard to cure, as is the morphine habit. Every organ of the body is affected. A continual demand for a stimulant is called for. Food ceases to gratify, in fact, often cannot be retained on the stomach, or when it is the vitiated blood ceases to absorb nourishment from it. Give such sufferers that greatest of food stimulants, blood-enrichers, flesh-creators, a highly concentrated extract of the vital principles of lean beef, it is retained by the weakest stomach and nourishes quickly, so that with renewed tissue and returned strength morbid cravings vanish. Dr. J. B Mattison of the Brooklyn "Home for Habitues" writes of Bovinine. "It is the best thing on earth of its kind. It is sustaining, nourishing, helpful in every way to patients of my special class."

Bovinine

NOTICE

is hereby given that the Common Council have fixed the 26th day of November, A. D. 1895, at eight o'clock p. m., at the Council chamber, No. 109 Park avenue, in the city of Plainfield, N. J., as the time and place for Townsend Rushmore, William T. Kirk and James C. Manning, the commissioners appointed by the Common Council pursuant to the ordinance, entitled "An Ordinance for the laying out and opening of Watchung avenue from the Northwesterly side line of East Front street to the city line in Green Brook," approved August 5th, 1895, to meet. The street proposed, laid out and opened will extend from the Northwesterly side line of East Front street, as now laid out and opened, to the city line in Green Brook, the center line of which street, as well as the width thereof, being particularly described in said ordinance, and shown on map in said ordinance referred to and on file in the office of the City Clerk, entitled "map showing proposed extension of Watchung avenue from East Front street to Green Brook, Plainfield, N. J., June 1895."

The lands, real estate and appurtenances intended to be taken for such purpose are all that come within thirty feet of either side of said center line between Northwesterly side line of East Front street, as now laid out and opened, and the city line in Green Brook, as shown in said map and said ordinance, to which reference is hereby made for more detailed description.

By order of the Common Council.
JAMES T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.

FOR OLYMPIC GAMES

Preparations for the Great Carnival in Athens.

America Will Be Represented by Picked Men from Our Different Athletic Clubs—A Sum of $193,000 Already Subscribed in Greece. Panathenaic To Be Rebuilt.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 9.—Prof. Sloan of Princeton university, who has charge of America's interests in the coming international Olympian games, which are to take place in Athens next April, has just given out some interesting facts in regard to it. The contests will be of a distinctively international character and will be the greatest carnival of sports ever known in the history of athletics in this or any other age. The American colleges have refused to send representatives, but America's reputation will be upheld by athletic clubs, who will send some of the most famous athletes in the world to compete. The New York Athletic club has already taken the matter in hand, and the recent victory of this orgaization's representatives over the London Athletic club's team will give America prestige superior to any other country.

A Vast Structure.

The international Olympic games will be held at Athens next April. To defray the expenses of this great contest a fund of $193,000 has been raised in Greece itself and a Greek merchant of Alexandria named Averoff has contributed 600,000 drachmae for the purpose of rebuilding the Panathenaic Stadion. The vast structure will be capable of seating 70,000 spectators. The sides slope up to a height of sixty to eighty feet, and in the shape of a horseshoe, is 670 feet long and 109 feet wide. A part of the Stadion will be finished in marble in time for the games next spring, and the rest in wood.

Locations for the Contests.

It is the intention of Mr. Averoff to have the entire structure ultimately constructed of Pentelic marble at his own expense. From its position between two of the lowest spurs of Mount Hymettus, it commands a magnificent view of Athens and the surrounding country. The foot races and gymnastic contests will take place in the Stadion, and there will also be finished the 26-mile race from Marathon, in memory of the runner who died in his effort to bring to Athens the news of the Persian defeat. The bicycle races will be held on the Phaleric plain. The swimming and rowing will be contested on the Phaleron, and the yacht races in the Saronic gulf.

Crown Prince Interested.

The crown prince and his brother are deeply interested in the enterprise, the king having promised to award in person the silver olive wreaths. Grand torchlight processions and illuminations will be held, and a series of representations of dramatic masterpieces, beginning with a tragedy by Sophocles and ending with Wagner's "Lohengrin," will be produced. As a closing selection, a special Olympic hymn, written by a modern Greek composer, will be sung by an immense chorus of over 1,000 voices.

THE DETROIT DISASTER.

The Thirty-seventh and Last Body Taken from the Ruins.

Detroit, Nov. 9.—The death list by the Larned street disaster will not exceed thirty-seven, the body of John Thomas, the last missing person, having been discovered last evening. It rained steadily all morning, but as soon as the walls of the Journal building had been shored the men went to work on No. 47 and the wreckage will be cleared away by this afternoon.

THE TROUBLE RENEWED.

Lehigh Valley Railroad Tears Up the United States Co.'s Pipes.

Belvidere, N. J., Nov. 9.—The Lehigh Valley railroad tore out the pipes of the United States Pipe Line company from under the Morris canal at Brass Castle last night. The pipe line company put their pipes under at that point last Monday night and last evening a large force of railroad men surprised and overpowered the small force of pipe line guards.

SENTENCE POSTPONED.

Two Weeks for Durrant To Prepare a Motion for a New Trial.

San Francisco, Nov. 9.—W. H. T. Durrant was brought up for sentence yesterday for the murder of Blanche Lamont, but on application of the prisoner's counsel a continuance was granted for two weeks to give them time to prepare a motion for a new trial. The Minnie Williams murder case, which was set for yesterday, was also postponed.

Reward for Murderers' Capture.

Des Moines, Iowa, Nov. 9.—Governor Jackson has offered $550 reward for the capture and conviction of the murderers of Professor Price Evans, principal of the Osage High school, and who was found dead in the woods three weeks ago.

Barely Escaped Cremation.

Hartford, Conn., Nov. 9.—The Keeney house on Spencer Hill, East Hartford, was burned to the ground yesterday. The inmates saved themselves with difficulty. All their belongings were burned. Loss, $40,000; partially insured.

Mrs. Cleveland's Uncle Dead.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—J. W. Cadman, who shot himself several days ago, died at the county hospital from the effects of the bullet wound in his head. He was Indian agent in South Dakota and was an uncle of Mrs. Cleveland.

Killed by His Own Hay Wagon.

Dunkirk, N. Y., Nov. 9.—Peter Olson, a prominent Stockton farmer, was killed by the overturning of his hay wagon. He was buried under the hay, and before it could be removed Olson had died from suffocation.

Organized a National Association.

Baltimore, Nov. 9.—The superintendents of sub-postal stations of the large cities yesterday organized a national association and adjourned. O. E. White was elected national president and J. A. Ward was chosen national secretary

TO DEPOSE THE SULTAN

Turkish Conspirators Want His Brother To Reign.

His Policy No Longer Successful—Foreign Diplomats at Constantinople Consider the Present Condition of Affairs as Unbearable—Outbreak Not Expected.

Berlin, Nov. 9.—A dispatch from Constantinople says that the aim of the conspirators against the sultan is to remove Abdul Hamid and proclaim his brother, Prince Mohammed Reshad, in his stead. The Cologne Gazette's correspondent at Constantinople telegraphs that Baron von der Goltx Pacha has made an application to be relieved of the command of the Turkish army.

Condition of Things Unbearable.

A dispatch from Constantinople says that the entire body of foreign diplomats accredited to the Turkish capital regard the present condition of things as unbearable. The sole policy of the sultan in the circumstances is that of playing off the powers against one another—a policy which he has pursued in many previous emergencies with success, but upon this occassion he is completely nonplussed by the unanimity of the representatives of the powers in pressing their demands.

Fanatical Outbreak Not Expected.

It is not expected that there will be a fanatical outbreak against the Christians. The danger, it is believed, lies in quite another direction.

Turkey's Financial Condition.

In spite of the fact that Sir Edgar Vincent, governor of the Imperial Ottoman bank at Constantinople, has succeeded in bettering the financial condition of Turkey by suspending for a month the payment of gold for bank notes, it is believed only momentary relief will be afforded, and that, together with the change of ministry at Constantinople, it will have little effect.

AN EXPEDITION TO ASHANTEE.

Preparation in the British War Office To Enforce the Ultimatum.

London, Nov. 9.—The Chronicle is officially informed that the war office has arranged for an expedition to Ashantee. This leaves no further doubt of the accuracy of the report from Accra, on the Gold Coast of Africa, that the king of Ashantee has rejected the ultimatum offered to him by Great Britain to the effect that the king should have a British commissioner in his country, and that he should place Ashantee under British protection.

WILL BE NO STRIKE.

So Says the Great Northern's General Passenger Agent.

Boston, Nov. 9.—W. H. Seward, general agent of the Great Northern railroad in this city, has received a dispatch from the general passenger agent at St. Paul, advising him to place no reliance on any report that traffic on the line of the Great Northern is interferred with. Trains are running as usual, promptly on time. There is no evidence of a strike on the part of the employes, he says, and there will be none.

LAST CALL FOR THE FIGHT.

Dan Stuart Says He Will Give a Purse and Find a Place.

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 9.—After a lull in the pugilistic excitement, matters have taken a new and fresh start. Says Dan Stuart: "I think the place and time for Corbett and Fitzsimmons to settle their differences will be found and fixed between now and the holidays. I am making this move individually, and intend to offer such a purse and protection that neither man can refuse if he intends to fight."

RAN INTO AN OPEN SWITCH.

Fatal Wreck on the Louisville & Nashville Railroad.

Cynthia, Ky., Nov. 9.—A northbound freight on the Louisville & Nashville heavily loaded with stock ran into an open switch nineteen miles below Cincinnati. Twelve cars were destroyed. Eugene Kelley, of Bourbon county, on his way from Lexington with horses, was killed. It is estimated that 150 head of cattle and twenty hogs were killed.

SAMUEL LORD DEAD.

Head of the Well Known Dry Goods Firm Expires in a Sanitarium.

Orange, N. J., Nov. 9.—Word has been received in this city that Samuel Lord, senior member of the New York dry goods firm of Lord & Taylor, is dead in a sanitarium in Goshen, N. Y., where he had been staying for the past few months.

Wheat Crop of the United Kingdom.

London, Nov. 9.—Sir John Bennet Lawes, the well known agricultural authority, has revised his estimates, recently issued, of the wheat crop of the United Kingdom. He now places the quantity of wheat that will be available for consumption at 5,271,366 quarters, necessitating the import of 24,250,000 quarters.

Sold to Yale College.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 9.—The property of the College street church was sold yesterday to Yale university for the sum of $27,000. The property will be used for the purposes of the musical department of the university.

Ambassador Bayard Will Preside.

London, Nov. 9.—The Hon. Thomas F. Bayard, the American ambassador, will preside at the Thanksgiving banquet that will be given by the American society in London.

Two Miners Killed by Dynamite.

Calumet, Mich., Nov. 9.—Two miners, Samuel Kent and John Polkhinhorn, both married, were killed in the Tamarack, jr., mine by the explosion of forty pounds of dynamite.

Steamer Foundered; Crew Saved.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 8.—The steamer Missoula of the Wilson line foundered off Cariboo island, Lake Superior. Her crew arrived here at a late hour last night.

The World says that Garret A. Hobart will be pushed for the Republican nominaton of vice-president.

Edward H. Hicks, Assemblyman-elect of Middlesex county, has already announced his candidacy for the Speakership.

The Supreme Court has decided that boroughs formed under the act of April 2d, 1891, are not empowered by the act of March 28th, 1892, to issue bonds, the proceeds of which are to be used for the purchase or erection of an electric plant for lighting either the houses or stores of the citizens or the streets of such boroughs.

With its accustomed regularity the News got the horse before the cart yesterday. Just how ex-Councilman Spangenberg can be a candidate for the council in the First ward when he is a resident of the Second, is a mystery that Editor Runyon is alone able to solve. Mr. Spangenberg characterizes the News statement that he is a candidate for the Democratic councilmanic nomination as false.

There is a plan on foot in Washington of having the President put fourth-class postmasterships under civil service classification. The idea is to authorize the Postmaster-General, whenever he deems it of advantage to the public interests, to consolidate a number of suburban fourth-class postoffices with a central free-delivery office, the suburban offices thereby merging their separate identity and becoming simply branches of the central office, the branch office coming under the civil service rules which govern the central office.

THEATRICAL.

The coming of John Kernell to the Stillman Music Hall, this evening, brings to the city an engagement of more than passing moment. Kernell's clever work in the past has given him a place in theatrical matters that none will gainsay. This year he brings a bright, new play of the farce comedy order called "The Irish Alderman." Nobody would expect that John Kernell would appear in anything but a farce comedy, as his style of entertainment is in attune with this class of work. His new play is a burlesque on American politics and is said to be remarkably clever.

There is rare fun in store for the theatre-goers of this city, for "The Hustler," the most potent of all the farce-comedies, is announced to appear at Stillman Music Hall on Monday evening next. The fame of "The Hustler" as a laugh-making entertainment, is such that the mere mention of the date of its engagement here will suffice to pack the house. In plot, episodes, dialogue, and interjected specialties, "The Hustler" is a perfect specimen of that sort of entertainment for which the name of "fun show" has recently been invented. The story of the hard-up Irish individual who tries to hustle other people's money into his own pockets and to hustle out of paying his board bill is in itself as amusing a conceit as the farce-comedy stage can offer.

Seasonable.

"Gone are the birds that were our summer guests,
With the last sheaves return the laboring swains,"
But still there's chance for all for optic tests,
That tell if normal strength the sight retains.
These you may freely get at Collier's, where You're warned of aught that may your sight impair.

—Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., met last night and worked five candidates in the second degree. Routine business was transacted.

—Frazee's sea-food market, 230 Park avenue, opposite North avenue, will tonight sell halibut at 15 cents a pound, striped bass, 12 cents, perch, three pounds for 25 cents, fresh mackerel 10 cents a pound.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. H. VanMiddlesworth is visiting in Somerville.

Mrs. John Bicknell, of South avenue, is visiting relatives at Mt. Horeb.

George L. Jenkins, of Somerville, was in town yesterday calling on friends.

Mrs. Clarence Leland, of Elmwood place, has recovered from her recent illness.

Miss Maud VanDyke, of East Front street, was the guest yesterday of Westfield friends.

Mrs. Jacob Craig, of Lafayette, is a guest at the home of Wallace Hall, of Rockview avenue.

Miss Lydia Mann, of Rahway, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Edward Willis, of South avenue.

Rev. P. S. Gibson, pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, has returned from a visit to Newark.

George Rose, who has taken up his residence in New York, spent the day with friends in this city.

Marins Carpenter, of Harlem, has returned home, after a short visit with the Misses Verdon, of Somerset street.

W. D. Hann, of Flemington, is spending a week with his son, Letter-carrier Edward Hann, of Somerset street.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cooper, of East Fourth street, are the proud parents of a twelve and a half pound little girl.

Mr. and Mrs. James Blair and Miss Mamie Dowd visited Short Hills yesterday and witnessed the chrysanthemum show.

Ralph K. Miner, of East Sixth street, has accepted a position at the American Engine Company's works at Bound Brook.

Walt C. Williams, of East Front street, who is studying law with S. S. Swackhammer, is on a few days visit with friends at White House.

J. H. Leggett, the druggist, is suffering from the effects of a heavy cold and has been unable to be at his place of business for a couple of days.

THE OPENING SOCIAL.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Congregational Church Entertain.

Rain prevented a large attendance at the opening socal of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Congregational church, which was held last evening in the parlors of the church, but those who did attend, spent a very pleasing evening in solving puzzles, assorting "Pi" and listening to an informal programme which the committee provided. It consisted of recitations, vocal and instrumental solos, and a greeting written for the occasion and read by Mrs. E. K. Miller. The rest of the evening was spent in conversation and enjoying the doughnuts and coffee which were served by the women.

The sociable was arranged by a committee of which Mrs. Charles E. Boss was the efficient chairman, and all deserve great credit for the pleasant evening they provided.

A YELLOW LUNCHEON.

Mrs. Henry A. McGee, of Washington Park, Entertain a Few Friends.

A very pleasant yellow luncheon was given by Mrs. Henry A. McGee at her home at the corner of Willow avenue and Orchard place Thursday. The house was artistically decorated, principally with yellow chrysanthemums. The table was also very handsomely arranged. Among those present were Mrs. Robert Stoutenburg, Mrs. Herbert Gleason and Miss Ida Dodd, of Newark, and Mrs. Alex. Gilbert, Miss Randolph, Mrs. Howard Corlies, Mrs. Elliot Barrows, Mrs. Emma F. Ege, Mrs. Laura Talmage, Mrs. Martin I. Cooley, and Mrs. Charles E. Horne, of this city.

Careless Work.

The attention of The Daily Press has been called to the condition of the street on North avenue, opposite the Love building. Honan & Sons yesterday dug a trench from the water main to the sewer flush tank, and the careless way in which the trench was left by Honan's men is certainly outrageous, and we hope our up-to-date Street Commissioner and the street committee, if possible, will pay a visit to the spot and either abate the nuisance or cause the contractors to do so.

IS DRIVING OUT DISEASE

Dr. J. R. Baird, Well Known in American Missions.

Hundreds of Bottles of Paine's Celery Compound Prescribed by Him.

Has Found It a Blessing to the Afflicted Beyond Any Other Remedy.

Dr. J. R. Baird is not only a missionary, but, what is not so well known, he is a physician of large experience.

His published account of the work he has done in the State of Michigan has been read with interest not only by those particularly concerned in missions, but by the public generally.

Dr. Baird is known as a practical worker. His health was broken by the severe winter climate in Michigan some time ago, and he seemed likely to be obliged to give up his work. But he resorted to the use of that easily obtained remedy, Paine's celery compound, and was himself again, energetic and active as ever, within a few weeks.

J. R. BAIRD, PHYSICIAN, MISSIONARY.

The remarkable, undisguised way in which Paine's celery compound fortifies the body against nervous exhaustion and rebuilds its shattered parts has been freely explained by physicians, the best of whom today always look to this great remedy where debility is to be overcome. It does its work thoroughly and speedily. Let every nervous sufferer and every man and woman who feels run down and tired beyond the power of a night's sleep to restore, try Paine's celery compound. It will make the man or woman strong and active and a stout believer in this great remedy.

Dr. Baird, who is now at his home in Indiana, Penn., describes his own experience as follows:

"It was about six years ago when I first tried Paine's celery compound for nervous diseases and rheumatism. In the severe winter climate in the State of Michigan I was at our mission station there, and became a great sufferer. I used three bottles of Paine's celery compound, and was very greatly benefited thereby. I then began to advise my members who were sick to use it, and in every case where the directions were strictly obeyed the treatment was successful. In a few years past hundreds of bottles have been used directly through my advice. Paine's celery compound is far better than any other remedy, and leaves no bad effects in the system. Its manifold healing qualities make it a boon of life and a blessing to the afflicted beyond any preparation within my reach."

The great falling off in the amount of rheumatism, neuralgia and nervous weakness that physicians have everywhere noted comes from the widespread knowledge that there is no need of suffering any longer from these common diseases. It is now everywhere known how correctly Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., of Dartmouth College, understood the needs of suffering men and women when he prepared the formula for Paine's celery compound. By the use of this world-famous remedy countless men and women have saved themselves from nervous prostration.

The cares of large families do not stop when the day is over. There is incessant anxiety, wakefulness and concern for some member of the household. It is no wonder that so many, especially women, break down under the crushing weight. Their very love and pride keeps them always at work. They "live on their nerves," as the saying is, till there comes a time when flesh and blood can stand it no longer. It is a simple thing for them to keep well and strong if Paine's celery compound is straightway used at the earliest signs of failing vigor. The tired, "dragged out" feeling is soon entirely removed. There will be no neuralgia, no persistent headaches, no dyspepsia, no haunting pain over the eyes, no nervous exhaustion when Paine's celery compound is used. It makes people well.

PUNTS AND KICKS.

The Y. M. C. A. eleven will play its next game on Thanksgiving Day against the Westfields.

The Alis eleven, of this city, plays a team from the borough this afternoon on the Park avenue grounds if the weather permits. They have received a challenge from Pingry's third to play next Saturday. No action has been taken about accepting it.

As several of the best players on the Y. M. C. A. eleven can not play again until Thanksgiving day, it is now proposed to organize a second eleven averaging about 145 pounds and play teams of equal weight. A game will be arranged with Dunellen if possible.

High School Notes.

The Kappa Delta Phi held its regular meeting yesterday afternoon. One new application for membership was received. A debate on the question, "Resolved, That the standing army of the United States should be enlarged," was then held. J. Hazlewood Craig and Charles M. Dolliver spoke for the affirmative, while the negative was defended by Henry Eggerding and Paul Kimball. The president decided in favor of the affirmative.

—The North Plainfield Township Committee expect to meet soon and transact some important business.

—George H. Batchelor's new house on Seventh street has just been papered and painted inside by Edward Love, of North avenue. It is a very fine job.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces, such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

JUST MISSED HER EYE.

Little Ida Bowers Accidently Struck in the Head With an Axe.

Little Ida Bowers had a very narrow escape from accidental death at the hands of her small brother when playing in the yard in the rear of her home on West Front street yesterday morning. She is about eleven years of age and her brother is slightly younger. The two children were playing in the yard with an axe, chopping the ground and little sticks. The lad was using the axe and when he was not looking his sister stepped directly in the stroke of it, which struck her directly above the eye. A cut about two inches long was made in the forehead just above the eye. The children were badly frightened at the accident but a man who saw the affair, took the weeping girl to one side and dressed the cut.

DID NOT PUT THE TOWEL THERE.

A Mock Trial Affords Instruction and Entertainment.

A very interesting mock trial was held at Prof. Phelps' Business College yesterday afternoon. It was the first of a series, and they give promise of being a feature during the winter among the students. The facts of the case yesterday were that Henry Vosseller was accused of placing a soiled towel in the sleeve of a coat belonging to Miss Matie Van Horn, and she made the complaint. Walter Hetfield, Jr., acted as the defendant's lawyer, while Elwood Sebring represented the plaintiff. Prof. Ferris acted as judge. The witnesses for the prosecution were George Reynolds, Miss Keely, Miss Casey; and those for the defense Prof. Wade, Thomas Rafferty, Miss Brokaw and Mrs. Ferris. After two hours amusement the judge decided that the defendant was not guilty. Another trial will be held in a short time, when the students will have the privilege of inviting their friends.

—Mrs. and Miss Thorne, whose music has been so heartily appreciated at the Y. M. C. A. in the past, will render mandolin and guitar vocal duets at the Y. M. C. A. meeting on Sunday at 4:15 p. m.

Dr. E. B. Lighthill

—OF—

New York City,

whose practice in Plainfield has proved such a wonderful success has opened an office at

134 Crescent Avenue

(next door to his former residence) where he can be consulted from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., on

Tuesday and Friday

of each week.

DR. LIGHTHILL makes the treatment of deafness, catarrh and diseases of the throat, lungs and heart a specialty.

Piles radically and permanently cured in a few weeks without the use of the knife, ligature or cautery and without pain or detention from business. The most desperate cases yield unfailingly to Dr. Lighthill's unique method of treatment, with guaranteed success. Fistula, fissure and ulcers of the rectum are also completely and permanently cured without the knife or other surgical operation.

Diseases of the bowels, bladder and stomach, mental and nervous derangements, diseases of the skin and blood and all chronic and obstinate complaints affecting the human system, of whatever name or nature, are successfully treated.

DR. LIGHTHILL refers with pardonable pride to the remarkable cures of his former practice in Plainfield and to the reputation which he established throughout the State. He has in his possession hundreds of testimonials from well-known residents of Plainfield and vicinity, which can be seen at his office.

"ONLY SKIN DEEP", yet freckles, sunburn and tan don't add to one's beauty! What then, aside from the dangerous and poisonous "skin cures" so freely advertised, can we use to clear and bleach a bad complexion? Well, why not try your grandmother's cure—lemon juice? It will and do all that can be safely done to clear the skin. And try it in the pleasant form of REYNOLD'S LEMON JUICE AND GLYCERINE. The results will please you. Sprinkler bottles 25 cents at

The market is full of cough mixtures but one trouble with most of them is that when they do a little good the patient has to take so much that he gets to loathe the taste. The Pineola Balsam is superior to other cough remedies because it is agreeable to the palate and its good effects are immediate. In a few days an ordinary cough is gone altogether. Bronchitis and asthma are more stubborn, but they too are cured by Ely's Pineola Balsam. A remedy worth trying. 25 cents is all it costs.

THE NICARAGUA CANAL

It May Be Constructed as a Private Enterprise.

American and English Capital About To Be Invested in the Project — Vigorous Opposition Expected on This Side of the Atlantic—Will Surrender the Charter.

New York, Nov. 9.—A special dispatch from Chicago says: It is stated here on what appears to be good authority that a new deal is on, the consummation of which will mean the complete construction of the Nicaragua ship canal with American and British millions, purely as a private enterprise, aided materially by Chicago capital, as represented in newly invented canal machinery in successful operation on the Chicago drainage channel. It is stated that all attempts to obtain financial assistance from the United States government through congress will be abandoned, and if it should develop that the charter granted the Nicaragua Maritime Canal company by congress is likely to prove embarrassing it will be surrendered without hesitation.

About $80,000,000 Required.

With revised estimates of the cost of constructing the canal, based on the great saving through use of the improved excavating machinery owned by Chicago contractors and inventors, it is said the canal promoters went to London and laid their tempting plans before the money kings of the world's metropolis. For months these financiers have been investigating the propostion and the great deal is on the verge of consummation. The new figures call for the expenditure of between $70,000,000 and $80,000,000.

Engineers' Encouraging Report.

In substantiation of the truth of this statement it is asserted that engineers and other experts in the employ of the Nicaragua Ship Canal Construction company, which has invested $9,000,000 in the Isthmus canal to date, have been camping for months on the line of the Chicago canal from here to Joliet, observing the wonderful mechanical improvements in ditch digging on a huge scale. When they returned to New York it is said the experts gave such an encouraging report of their examination that the prime movers in the canal enterprise, notably Warner Miller, president of the construction company, were induced to undertake at once the negotiation for the London deal.

Vigorous Opposition Expected.

The officers of the company expect there will be vigorous opposition on this side of the Atlantic, in the executive and legislative branches of the government, when the fact becomes known that British capital is to be invested in the canal, but they do not apprehend serious complications from this source and claim that as a purely private enterprise they have a perfect right to get capital in any market free from interference or dictation from any government. President Wenter of the drainage board and Contractors Qualey and Mason admitted that Warner Miller had been here on the mission stated above during last summer.

SCENE IN THE REICHSRATH.

Opposition and Spectators Attempt To Howl Down the Government.

Vienna, Nov. 9. — The anti-Semite members of the lower house of the reichsrath yesterday proposed to debate the question of the empeor's refusal to sanction the election of Dr. Lueger as burgomaster of Vienna. Count Badeni, the prime minister, stated that Dr. Lueger, being a party man, was not fit to be burgomaster. The anti-Semites, Czechs, clericals and democrats violently decried the statement. The public galleries were filled with a crowd of anti-Semites, who had visited the chamber with the expectation of hearing a heated debate on the question. When Count Badeni made his statement of the government's attitude in the matter the crowd started howling in concert and kept it up until the president ordered the galleries to be cleared. The proposal was then put to vote and was rejected—117 to 74.

unfortunate

Cod-liver oil suggests consumption, which is almost unfortunate.

Its best use is before you fear consumption; when you begin to get thin, weak, run down; then is the prudent time to begin to take care, and the best way to take care is to supply the system with needed fat and strength. Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil, with hypophosphites, will bring back plumpness to those who have lost it, and make strength where raw cod-liver oil would be a burden.

A substitute only imitates the original.

THE FIDDLER CRAB.

SOME FACTS AND A GOOD STORY ABOUT THE QUEER CREATURES.

Their Principal Uses Are as Fish Bait and to Have Fun With—How a Barrelful Got Loose on Staten Island and Justice Garret Was Fooled.

Fiddlers are 25 cents a quart. This may be a startling announcement for musicians, but the fiddlers we are dealing with do not play in orchestras. In other words, soldier crabs are 25 cents a quart. Soldier crabs are best known to the boatmen and the fishermen. They are among the smallest species of crab and are used as bait for sheepshead and blackfish. If they have any other utility, nobody so far has found it out. They swarm in the swampy places on the coasts of Long Island and Staten Island. In the sand it is easy enough to catch them. Two boards placed in the shape of a V constitute the apparatus for the capture of fiddlers. When the boards are set, the sportsman or marketman, as the case may be, simply drives the fiddlers before him, and all that run inside the two boards are grabbed by handfuls and tossed into a pail or barrel. The unfortunate creatures will live in captivity for a week or two. In muddy places it is difficult to catch fiddlers, for the simple reason that on the approach of danger they disappear in the holes which they make in the mud.

Fiddlers are queer looking little things, and their habits are interesting. Each one knows his own home and guards it jealously. In the little holes in the mud the married fiddlers—and they are nearly all married—live happily with their wives and families, and when an intruder attempts to climb down the chimney and establish himself in the abode of another fiddler the liveliest kind of a fight is sure to follow.

The invader does not go down far—in fact, he appears to holler at the fiddler down below and challenge him out to fight, for as sure as he presents himself at the top the fellow below comes up. A rough and tumble fight is then inaugurated. It is sure to end with the loss of a limb. When the fiddler loses his claw in the battle, he simply gives up the struggle and sneaks away, and his enemy, being chivalrous, never attempts to injure a wounded foe. Unlike other soldiers, the soldier crabs, or fiddlers, never have to wear artificial limbs, for when one is taken off in a fight all he has to do is to retire to some secluded spot and wait for another limb to grow.

There are two kinds of fiddlers—the chinabacks and the niggers. Some anglers prefer the former, and others insist that the nigger fiddlers with the yellow claws make the best bait.

One fine October morning several years ago two well remembered fishermen—Captains Van Pelt and Hodges—started out in a catboat from Stapleton, N. Y., bound for Coney Island to get half a barrel of fiddlers. In a short time they captured more fiddlers than they could possibly use during the remaining trips of the season to the Romer fishing grounds. They returned in good spirits, made their boat fast and snug and carried the barrel of fiddlers ashore. Hodges intended to keep them in his garden, so that no thieving anglers might steal them from the boat. On the way home they stopped at a lager beer saloon, where they refreshed themselves and met some friends. Late in the evening Hodges concluded that it was about time for him to go home. Van Pelt offered to accompany him to help carry the barrel of fiddlers, but Hodges insisted that he was able to manage the fiddlers alone. So off he started, promising to meet his friend Van Pelt at 7 o'clock sharp on the following morning to go down to the Romer and slaughter sheepshead and blackfish.

Next morning at the appointed hour Van Pelt was in the saloon equipped with everything that is necessary to catch fish except, of course, the bait. After waiting for nearly an hour Hodges staggered into the saloon.

"Well, you're a fine fellow," said Van Pelt. "Where did you catch it all so early, and where the devil are the fiddlers?"

"Fiddlers—they're everywhere."

"What do you mean?"

"Fellers put 'em into other fellers' beds, and the girls is sweeping 'em out o' th' halls. Fiddlers ev'rywhere!"

"What'n the world are you gettin at?"

"Well, I'll tell you, Jake. When I left here last night, it was a dead beat to wind'ard home, but on one tack I failed to clear Mike Oats' pump, and me and all the fiddlers was capsized. I got up and tried to catch some of 'em, but they was too fresh, and away they went helter skelter down the street, into stores and all round everywhere. I wasn't lively enough for 'em, and the whole barrelful got away. In the saloons and stores some of the boys got 'em, and the fellers who don't want to fish with 'em are havin fine fun with 'em."

Seated at a table in the same saloon, with his big stovepipe hat, in which he kept his bandanna handkerchief, in front of him, was the well remembered and far famed Justice Garrett. His honor was fast asleep. Before Jake finished his lamentations over the loss of the fiddlers two young men entered the saloon. Seeing that the judge was asleep, one of them went over, lifted up the bandanna, and pulling from his pocket a fistful of fiddlers he put them into the judicial hat and covered them carefully with the bandanna. Then he woke up the judge and invited him to take a drink. His honor was willing. He carelessly put on his hat and advanced to the bar with dignity. After he had had his drink he felt a strange sensation on the top of his head. He removed his hat, took out his bandanna and rubbed his forehead. Some fiddlers fell out of the bandanna, and a swarm of them came out of the hat.

"Jumpin Christmas! What'n thunder's them things?" he shouted.

Everybody in the saloon by prearrangement kept his face perfectly straight and wore a rather astonished look.

"What's the matter, judge?" said Jake.

"Th' matter? What—what's them things?"

"What things?"

"Look at 'em on th' floor crawlin all round."

"Oh, judge, I'm afraid you're drinking too much," said one of the group.

With a wild expression in his eyes the judge grabbed his hat and flew out of the saloon.

About a month after, when he understood the trick that was played upon him he was often heard to say that if ever he caught Hodges or Van Pelt before him he'd give them six months.—New York Sun.

HE LIKED CONTRASTS.

Stambuloff Had Unique Notions on the Subject of Joking.

It is said that you do not really know a man until you have joined him in a carouse. I have shared two with M. Stambuloff. The first was at Bourgas monastery, whither a whole crowd of visitors, journalists and commercial people had repaired from Sofia for a three days' picnic and a sight of the peasants dancing the choro. At about 6 every evening the evening meal would begin, and it generally lasted far into the small hours. M. Stambuloff always said that he did not care what he ate or drank so long as he had more than enough of it. I don't know where the things came from, but there were enough victuals to surfeit ten times our numbers. On these occasions M. Stambuloff seemed to pass through a transition from his chronic sourness to a new variety of sourness, which found its vent in rough, hollow hilarity. He would play practical jokes on his neighbors. For instance, I saw him cram bread down the neck of M. Grekoff, his foreign minister. Then he would break out into harsh, unmusical songs, some of them of his own composition. He was as one who had deliberately made up his mind to enjoy himself for once at any cost, but who either did not know how to set about it or found the effort much harder than he had expected.

One night I shall never forget. The prince was away at Carlsbad, and M. Stambuloff was regent in his absence. There had been a dispute about that, it is true, but M. Stambuloff had carried the day and was regent. We were indulging in a particular carouse in honor of the regent, and some Tsiganes had been chartered to play to us. Their music seemed to affect M. Stambuloff to an extraordinary degree. Just as the most emotional part of the music was reached, and his eyes were sparkling with desire, he beckoned to an officer, who brought in a formal document for him to sign. The music stopped, and he motioned to the company to crowd around to see what he was doing. The paper proved to be a death warrant, which he had planned to sign at the height of the revelry. "I like contrasts," he remarked, with a chuckle, as we gazed at him aghast.—London Saturday Review.

'TWAS FUNNY AT FIRST.

But the Sequel Proved That the Joke Was Not on the Baron.

Some years ago when the boom was raging in southern California a great seaport city was about to be built. It was called "Ballona." Beautiful chromo lithographs of a magnificent harbor, with great ships riding at their anchors, while long trains of cars were loading at vast docks, were scattered through southern California. It was whispered that "the Santa Fe road was behind it." People began to think they had "better get in on Ballona." A party of gentlemen went down from Los Angeles to look at it. Some of them were financially interested in Ballona, and some of them were not—yet. Among the latter was a foreigner, a genial French baron.

The party dined copiously at an adjacent hostelry and then went to look at "the harbor." Most of the party were a trifle surprised when they saw the narrow slough which was called "the harbor." However, three of them got into a boat to cross "the harbor." The baron was one. Of the other two one was a hardened joker and the third an officer high in the United States army. On the way over the joker conceived the idea of rocking the boat and scaring the baron. The general seconded him. They succeeded beyond their expectations. The baron protested that they would all be drowned, but the joker and the general kept on.

Finally the terrified baron stood up; but, being very tall, his center of gravity was too high. He fell out of the boat, amid cries of alarm from those on shore, for the baron had fallen into the fathomless waters right in the middle of the "harbor." However, to the great surprise of the intending investors on dry land, as well as to his own, the baron picked himself up out of three feet of water and waded ashore. The jest was an excellent one in the beginning, but as it practically squelched "the harbor" scheme the joke may be considered to be on Ballona instead of the baron.—San Francisco Argonaut.

When Stambuloff Held the Bank.

I had looked in late after dinner at the British agency, expecting only to find the usual skittle billiards and backgammon in progress. To my surprise I found the cardroom more crowded than I had ever seen it before. Not only the usual attaches, but a bevy of ministers and officers were crowded around the table. M. Stambuloff was taking a bank at baccarat. There must have been over £500 in the bank, besides a stack of I O U's—more or less worthless. The banker's eyes glistened in a way which showed he was taking the game very seriously. He kept his hands over the pack, clutching it in a nervous way, which would certainly never have been permitted in any French club. He twisted the cards out with a curious jerk, and when he had to turn a card up he slapped it violently—I suppose in order to show he was in high spirits. I have never known him to talk so much. Usually he was the most taciturn of men.

His luck was truly phenomenal. I have never seen so many eights and nines at a time before. At last the stakes against him became so small that he threw the cards on the floor with impatience, and then asked, with an air of magnificence, what everybody would drink. This surprised me, for it was a matter much commented upon that no one who went to see him ever got so much as a glass of tea out of him.—Saturday Review.

Holding the Breath.

It is a physical impossibility for a man to kill himself by holding his breath.

Individuals differ greatly in the length of time they can hold their breath, and what practice and determined effort, combined with natural great lung capacity, can do in this direction is shown by the long periods for which champion divers can remain under water.

If a man succeeded in continuing to hold his breath, in spite of the physical discomfort in which he had placed himself, the result would simply be to induce a state of coma.

When this state was reached, nature would reassert herself, and the breathing functions would again resume full activity, preventing a fatal issue in spite of their owner's desire.—London Tit-Bits.

The Polo Pony and the Cat.

We wonder if it ever occurred to the agents of the Massachusetts Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals that a polo pony chases a polo ball just about as naturally and as joyfully as a cat chases a mouse. It may be cruel to the ball and to the mouse, but it isn't to the pony or to the cat.—Boston Herald.

THE MAYOR'S ADVICE.

Mayor Wing of Montpelier, Vt., Heartily Endorses Dr. Greene's Nervura.

Mayor Wing Used Dr. Greene's Nervura in His Family with Marked and Decided Benefit---Makes All Strong and Well.

HON. GEORGE W. WING, MAYOR OF MONTPELIER, VT.

Hon. George W. Wing, Mayor of the capital city of Vermont, is a man of high eminence. A distinguished lawyer, he has served his state in many high offices, having been Deputy Secretary of State, occupied a position in the State Treasury, was Postmaster of Montpelier, and was elected to the State Legislature in 1882. Owing to his great popularity, he had the distinguished honor to be elected Mayor of Montpelier, a position he now fills with illustrious success.

When such a man, occupying so high a position in community, endorses the great curative powers and recommends the sick and suffering to use Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, no one will hesitate for a moment to use this grand medical discovery, this great restorer of health and strength.

Mayor Wing says: "I have used Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy in my family, with marked and decided benefit.

"Especially has it been useful in insomnia, arising from indigestion and its attendant evils. I think well of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and freely grant permission to use this letter in advertising it."

You who suffer from nervousness, nervous weakness, the exhaustion of nervous debility, the tired condition attendant upon poor blood and low vitality, the nerve-wearing pain of neuralgia or rheumatism, who pass sleepless or restless nights and wake mornings tired and unrefreshed, with dull-feeling head, bad taste in the mouth, and go to your occupation languid, nerveless, despirited, without your old-time energy and ambition, do not lose a moment in securing this grand strengthener and invigorator, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It is purely vegetable and harmless, and it will surely make you well.

It is not a patent medicine, but the prescription of the most successful living specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th street, New York City. He has the largest practice in the world, and this grand medical discovery is the result of his vast experience. The great reputation of Dr. Greene is a guarantee that his medicine will cure, and the fact that he can be consulted by anyone at any time, free of charge, personally or by letter, gives absolute assurance of the beneficial action of this wonderful medicine.

CHILDREN ENTERTAINED.

A Good Time Provided for Sunday-school Scholars of Holy Cross Church.

Superintendant B. R. Western and the teachers of the Sunday-school of the Holy Cross church gave a most enjoyable and highly appreciated entertainment last night to the many small scholars of the school. An exhibition of lantern slides lasting nearly an hour, with music and games, made the evening pass very pleasantly. A large number of the slides were in colors, and the mechanical ones caused many a shout of delight from the little ones present. After the slides were shown the children tried to pin a tail upon the donkey, a prize being given to the most successful. Some romping games and music completed the programme, when ice-cream, cake and other refreshments were served.

This entertainment is the first of a number to be given this winter and if all prove as enjoyable as this one, the children will look forward to them with many pleasant anticipations.

U. S. COURT DECISIONS.

A Prominent Plainfield Citizen Wins Two Important Cases.

Judge Green, of the U. S. Circuit Court yesterday, decided two suits of A. D. Miller against O. T. Waring. Mr. Waring was defendant in both cases and was successful in both. The order of the court was that the bill in equity and the action at law be dismissed with costs to be paid by the other side.

Craig A. Marsh was counsel for Mr. Waring and Barker Gummere, of Trenton, was counsel for Mr. Miller. The amount demanded was thirty thousand dollars, and the claim which has now been dismissed related to an old transaction between the parties, while both were engaged in the oil refining business.

ALIVE AND WELL

After a Dangerous Experience

One of the Multitude of People Who Have Been Speedily and Permanently Cured by Munyon's Remedies Tells His Story.

Mr. Charles W. Godfrey, of Merchantville, N. J., says: "I was unable to work for even half a day for a long time because of kidney trouble. What I have suffered during that time no one but myself knows. Liv- was a prolonged torment, and became more unendurable every day. I tried every remedy that was suggested, and I sought the best medical advice, but could not obtain any benefit. The physicians said I had Bright's disease, and my case was pronounced helpless. Finally, in despair, I went to Professor Munyon, Philadelphia, and began treatment under the eminent specialist there. After taking MUNYON'S KIDNEY CURE a short time I began to improve, and am now thoroughly cured of my trouble. I can perform my work properly, without fatigue. I shall always remember Munyon with gratitude."

Munyon's Homœopathic Home Remedy Company of Philadelphia, puts up specifies for almost every disease. So prompt and efficient are their curative properties that any person may be cured without the expense of a doctor bill. The remedies are mostly 25 cents a bottle, and may be had from any druggist. If you wish advice write to Professor Munyon, 1505 Arch street, Philadelphia, and he will advise you by letter regarding your ailment free of charge.

WHAT ARE KIDNEYS?

A Few Facts About Our Kidneys and What They Do for Us.

A New Name for Them and for Their Functions—How Dangerous Blood Troubles and Kidney Diseases May Be Cured by Seeing to Our Blood Filters.

Kidneys are for use, not show.

But they show what they can do when they keep us well, and bright and hearty, so long as we treat them right and do not overwork them.

Our kidneys are there to filter our blood.

If we give them too much to do they do less than they ought to do.

They don't filter our blood, and they won't till we cure them again.

This is why Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills cure diseases which are not kidney diseases, but which are caused by the kidneys not filtering the blood.

The truth is generally deeper than the surface of things.

If we see a person who has skin disease, or rheumatism, or neuraigia, or a pale, sallow, bloodless complexion, we may know that what is really making him sick is his kidneys. That his blood has not been properly filtered. That until his kidneys begin to work he will never be well again.

That Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills will cure him by curing his kidneys.

When you fall sick be sure you take the right medicine.

If it is your blood, see to your filters.

If you cure them, they will attend to your blood.

You need no blood purifiers. Your kidneys are purifiers enough.

When they are well, they are.

Bright's disease, nephritis, congestion, sleeplessness, backache, sideache, etc., are kidney diseases proper.

Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills will cure them.

Pains in the muscles and joints, headache, neuralgia, dizziness, weakness, tiredness, lack of breath, depression, anaemia, chlorosis, etc., are blood diseases.

Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills will cure them also.

Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills act on the kidneys in a healing and tonic way. They cure all injuries to and pains in the kidneys.

They tone them up and give them fresh vigor. They put your blood filters into proper working order again.

After you have taken a few doses you begin to feel new life bounding your arteries. Your eyes become bright, your complexion is cleared, you feel anxious and ambitious for work.

You have a new lease on life.

Your filters are working again.

Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills were first prepared by a physician who had long been a specialist on the kidneys. They contain nothing but purely vegetable, harmless drugs of special power over the kidneys.

They will cure the kidneys and all diseases caused by the kidneys when nothing else will.

Sold by all druggist, or mailed prepaid for 50 cents a box.

Help for the Home of the Aged.

A good variety of groceries, household articles, etc., were brought to the lecture room of the First Baptist church to be forwarded to the Home for the Aged in Newark. The reception and harvest home of this institution will take place Tuesday, November 12th at the Home, 235 Roseville avenue. Plainfield is represented in the list of officers by the following women: Directress, Mrs. O. B. Leonard; managers from First Baptist church, Mrs. William White, Mrs. J. D. Runyon, Miss Mary D. Thickstun; from the Park Avenue church, Mrs. F. K. Fish, Mrs. J. W. Johnson and Mrs. Theo. L. Runyon.

Good Luck to the Park Club.

The whist team of the Park Club, which consists of Messrs. Rogers, McCutchen, Townsend and Howell, goes to Philadelphia this afternoon to play the Hamilton Club, of that city, for the national whist trophy. The match will continue both afternoon and evening, and the visitors will make a determined effort to follow their own example of last year.

TESTIMONY FROM THE HEART.

Impressive Funeral Services Over the Late Mrs. Bogert.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Rachel Bogert, which were held Saturday afternoon at 1:30, were as unassuming and modest as the life of the decedent.

The desolate home was filled with a large number of relatives and friends, including members of the W. C. T. U.

The speakers were Charles Robinson, of Chapfequa, N. Y., J. McDowell, of New York, who had known Mrs. Bogert fifty years and Henry Adams, who had known her twenty-three years. They all spoke of her excellent Christian life. Mr. McDowell testified that during the fifty years acquaintance with her she lived the same Christian life every day from morning till night, and was always ready to visit the por, sick or dying. Much such personal testmony was given about the departed.

There were several beautiful floral tributes, including a large bunch of white chrysanthemums from the W. C. T. U. of which she was a member, and several smaller bunches of choice flowers.

Interment was made in the Friends burying ground, beside her husband.

The pallbearers were George Bogert and Peter Bogert, sons, Henry Palmer and John Poole, sons-in-law of the decedent.

Hustle It Along.

It is understood that the street railway company have already placed their order for material to be used on the proposed extensions.

Croup is a terror to young mothers. To post them concerning the first symptoms, and treatment is the object of this item. The first indication of croup is hoarseness. In a child who is subject to croup it may be taken as a sure sign of the approach of an attack. Following this hoarseness is a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's Cough remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the rough cough has appeared it will prevent the attack. It has never been known to fail. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

DAZZLING AND MAGNIFICENT

THE KIRMESS WILL START IN A BLAZE OF GLORY TONIGHT.

A Dress Rehearsal of Several of the Dances Held Saturday Evening, and Everything Tends to Indicate Success

The Kirmess is here, or at least it will be at eight o'clock this evening, and then will begin a week the like of which Plainfield has not seen for a long time.

A Daily Press reporter was one of the privileged few invited to witness the dress rehearsal of the Kirmess dances which was held at the Crescent Cycle Academy Saturday evening. Through a misunderstanding the suits for the men did not come until this morning, so they were unable to appear in costume, but their partners were there and a pretty picture they presented, the stately ladies of the Minuet, the dark senoritas from Spain, the dusky squaws, the fisher lassies of the Tarantelle, the simple peasant girls just returned from the harvest, the bright and lively Russian girls, the bonnie Scottish maidens and the red checked English girls who give the pastoral May dance, grouped as they were about the hall waiting for their turn. Early in the evening came the little sailor lads and lassies of the Hornpipe in their red and white sailor suits. All the evening dances were rehearsed and the May Dance and the Hornpipe.

Saturday night was not, of course, a fair criterion of a real Kirmess night. There were lacking the crowded house to put the dancers on their mettle, the light effects, the scenery on the stage and many other things, but yet it was a success and those who watched, became more and more enthusiastic as they thought of the week of delight in store for the patrons of the Kirmess. Every dance was applauded while the grand march proved especially pleasing.

The Press would like to describe each dance now, but as a guest at a "private view" it would be ungrateful, indeed if the pleasant surprises which, are in store for the audiences that will crowd the hall this week were revealed. It can only be said that it was good, splendid in truth, and well worth going to see. Miss Stewart, through her untiring efforts, has made it a success so far and it will be greater before the week is over. Of course there were some mistakes but they were but small ones and the Kirmess promises to be an unqualified success. It would, indeed be, difficult to select the best of the dances; they all were, in fact, the stately minuet, the gay tarantelle, and so one might name them all. The Military dance was noted as being especially well executed.

The solo dances, the booths, which are now about completed, and there are a thousand other thing to describe, but the best plan is to come tonight and see for yourself. Come, see, and enjoy.

The programme for this evening will be as follows:

Overture—"Morning, Noon and Night"	Suppe
Tableau—Processional	All Nations
North County Harvest Dance	Germany
Gypsy Dance	Hungary
May Dance	England
The Tarantella	Italy
Military Dance	Russia
Court Minuet and the Gavotte	France
Highland Reel	Scotland
War and Moon Dance	American Indians
The Serpentine Dance
Toreador Dance	Spain

The serpentine dance will be executed by Mrs. Lemuel W. Serrell every evening except Tuesday.

Cotillion Club to be Continued.

It will be gratifying to a large number of young Plainfield people to know that the Cotillion Club, which was such a success last season, is to be revived during the coming winter. The same names will appear on the invitation cards and the first cotillion will take place on Christmas Eve. The committee in charge this year are the following: Miss Maude Van-Boskerck, Miss Netta Whiton, Irving C. West, Howard Huntington, T. R. Van Boskerck.

The Boy's Clothing Went Off Fast.

The two column announcement in The Press that Edsall would sell a lot of boys clothing at half price last Saturday caused a big rush, and three extra clerks were required to wait on the people. The purchasers were free to say that the prices asked were as advertised, and were glad of the opportunity to buy at such great odds in their favor. The sale continues this week.

Judge Coddington Buys a Lot.

Judge William A. Coddington has purchased of William Trust the lot at the corner of Madison avenue and Eighth street, and will probably erect a costly and handsome residence thereon. The lot is one of the most desirably situated in the city.

FUNERAL OF A. D. MELLICK.

Last Sad Rites to an Intelligent and Respected Man.

There was a large gathering of relatives and friends at the funeral services of the late A. D. Mellick, Jr., which were held Saturday afternoon at 2:45 from his residence, 312 LaGrande avenue. There were also several members of the Sons of the Revolution of which decedent was a member.

The Scripture selections were read by Rev. Mr. Jones, of Bergen Point, and Rev. Dr. Richards, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, conducted the services.

During the services the choir of the above church consisting of Miss Banta, soprano, Miss Anna Hartenberg, contralto, E. E. Runyon, tenor and C. Lewis, basso, rendered two touching selections and Mr. Lewis sang an affecting solo. The organist, Frank J. Smith, was in charge.

Dr. Richards made a few remarks in which he bore rich testmony to the beautiful character of the decedent. He spoke of the vast amount of good that had been accomplished through suffering and through it all there had been a gradual purifying of his life, preparing it for the life to come. The doctor also spoke of the great influence the decedent had through helpful thoughts and writings that had been read by an innumerable host.

At the close the doctor offered prayer and after a selection by the choir, the benediction was pronounced. An opportunity was then given those present to look on the lifeless form of one whom they had learned to love.

The floral gifts were beautiful, simple and impressive, consisting of white chrysanthemums, palms, bunches of carnations, tied with satin ribbon, and a large wreath of autumn leaves intermingled with red roses. Interment was in Hillside cemetery.

SUFFERED A PARALYTIC STROKE.

Adam Utzinger Falls Down Stairs and is Seriously Injured.

Adam Utzinger, aged 40, of McDowell street, had a paralytic stroke on Friday evening while at his home, and fell down one flight of stairs. The noise frightened his family who hastened at once to his assistance. He was placed in bed where his condition continued for the worse.

Last evening it was thought best to to take him to the hospital, where on examination it was found that there was a concussion of the spinal cord.

Mr. Utzinger lies in a very critical condition and the outcome of the accident cannot be determined.

A Congressman to Marry.

Congressman J. P. Dolliver, the Republican orator, who spoke in Music Hall during the Cleveland-Harrison campaign and who has many warm admirers in this city, will lead Miss Louise Parsons to the hymenial altar on Wednesday evening, November 20th, at the first Presbyterian church in Fort Dodge, Iowa. Miss Parsons is the daughter of ex-Senator Parsons, of Iowa. Mr. Dolliver is a cousin of G. Q. Dolliver, of Manning avenue, North Plainfield. After the marriage the couple will take up their residence at the Hamilton in Washington.

Attempted Robbery.

Mrs. Henry Voehl, of 84 Somerset street, was startled yesterday morning about 2:30 by a strange noise in the rear of the bakery. She at once aroused her husband and he immediately went down stairs, where he learned that someone had broken in the outside cellar door and also the inner door. The depredators on hearing that the inmates were up, were frightened away and had no opportunity of taking anything.

Official Visitation.

Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. & A. M., will hold a regular communication tomorrow evening, when the M. M. degree will be conferred on one candidate. Right Worshipful District Deputy Grand Master Anthony Schroder, of the Fifth Masonic district will make an official visit to the lodge.

W. A. McGuire, a well known citizen of McKay, Ohio, is of the opinion that there is nothing as good for children troubled with colds or croup as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He has used it in his family for several years with the best results and always keeps a bottle of it in the house. After having la grippe he was himself troubled with a severe cough. He used other remedies without benefit and then concluded to try the children's medicine and to his delight it soon effected a permanent cure. 25 and 50c bottles for sale at Reynolds's pharmacy, Park and North aves. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

A SUNDAY NUPTIAL EVENT.

Pretty Wedding Solemnized in the German Lutheran Church.

The pretty little German Lutheran church on Grove street was well filled last evening with relatives and friends when Miss Sophia Dorfler became the wife of John Wedemeyer, both of the borough. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Edward Kionka at 7 o'clock.

The bride was gowned in white silk, and wore a tulle veil, with a wreath of smilax roses. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

The bridemaid, Miss Amelia Miller, wore a becoming gown of blue silk, trimmed with lace. Pauline Schmidt and Amelia Wedemeyer acted as flower girls. They were gowned in white and carried choice bouquets of roses. The best man was Reinhard Eckner. Richard Menzel presided at the organ and rendered the two favorite marches of Lohengrin and Mendelssohn. After the ceremony the bridal party were taken in carriages to the Arlington Hotel, where a reception was held, and the bride and groom were showered with congratulation by their many friends. They received a large number of handsome and useful presents. Mr. and Mrs. Wedemeyer will reside on Stone street, where the groom has furnished a home.

LOST PART OF HIS FOOT.

John O'Brien Fell From a Train and Was Severely Hurt.

John O'Brien, of 612 South Second street, met with a painful accident early Saturday afternoon while trying to steal a ride on a coal train between Dunellen and Bound Brook.

He made an attempt to jump on a coaler, but slipped and fell. His right foot went under the car and was badly crushed.

He was first taken to Bound Brook, but as there was no place to care for him there he was assisted to Plainfield and taken to Muhlenberg hospital. Dr. E. W. Hedges was called and found it necessary to amputate about one-half of the foot.

The young man is getting along nicely and experiences but little pain.

WORK AMONG THE NEGROES.

Miss Bella Hume Speaks of Her Work in New Orleans.

A very interesting address was made before the Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church last evening by Miss Bella Hume on the work among the colored people of the south She told of the great evils among them and of the Central church, at New Orleans, the only one of its kind in the country. She spoke very feelingly of the work that had been done and described the different lines of work, telling incidents which happened in each. Her address was listened to with great interest by a large audience.

Rev. C. L. Goodrich led the meeting. Miss Hume's object in speaking was to secure the aid of the society in supporting one of the different lines of work.

Working to Preserve Forests.

The autumn meeting of the New Jersey Forestry Association, held at Lakewood on the eighth and ninth of this month, was attended by a number of Plainfielders, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. Davis P. Pond, Mrs. E. D. McCarthy, Howard Turrill, Dudley Kyte, Prof. Dalziel. It was suggested at this meeting that the next annual session be held in this city, where there is an active movement being made to interest people in the preservation and propogation of forests. The interest shown at the convention was very marked and there is hope that it will prove of lasting benefit.

A Delicate Operation.

The case of Mrs. Isidore Fauchereau, of Mizzen Peak, who is a patient in the Muhlenberg hospital with a spinal trouble, is one of the most remarkable which the staff of that institution have yet had to treat with. An operation was performed on her and six small pieces of the spine removed, a very delicate piece of surgery. The patient is rallying from the operation in an unusually strong manner.

Henry Wilson, the postmaster at Welshton, Florida, says he cured a case of diarrhœa of long standing in six hours, with one small bottle of Chambertain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. What a pleasant surprise that must have been to the sufferer. Such cures are not unusual with this remedy. In many instances only one or two doses are required to give permanent relief. It can always be depended upon. When reduced with water it is pleasant to take. For sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. R. Armstrong, Manager.

UNABLE TO WIN THE TROPHY.

PARK CLUB WHISTERS DEFEATED BY THE HAMILTON CLUB.

The Plainfield Players Put Up a Good Game, But Were Unable to Equal the Score of Their Opponents—Cup Record.

The crack whist players of the Park Club went to Philadelphi on Saturday afternoon and played the team of the Hamilton Club, of that city, for the national trophy of the American Whist League. The Park Club players put up an excellent game, but the present holders of the cup put up a better one and won by the score of 27 to 11. The Plainfield players were Messrs. Rogers, McCutchen, Townsend and Howell. The Hamilton Club was represented by Messrs. Work, Remak, Moridge and Ballard. Dr. Neff president of the Philadelphia Whist Club, acted as umpire. The score was the average one by which the cup has been won. The previous match, when the Park Club won by one point, being an exceptional game

The victory of the Hamilton Club was a clean and fair one and was due to their superb playing. The Hamilton team is the strongest team in this country and can hold its own with any in the world.

The visitors were received in the most hospitable manner and, after the afternoon playing, were given a dinner at the University Club. Then followed the evening session of the match. The entire treatment of the guests by the Hamilton members was in every way satisfactory, and it was duly appreciated by the Park Club men.

The trophy for which the two teams fought is a very handsome cup. It was exhibited in Plainfield when won by the Park Club. It was first contested for at the National Whist Congress held a year ago last spring and then it has travelled all over the country. It was first won by the Minneapolis Club and finally came east where the Hamilton Club has held it the longest. The cup is to become the property of the club which wins it at three congresses or twenty regularly played matches. The Hamilton Club has now won eight matches. There are already ten challenges for matches with the holder of the trophy and they will be played off during the next two or three months, when the western clubs will have another chance to take it on their side of the continent again.

In June comes the annual whist congress, which will be held at Brooklyn, under the auspices of the Brooklyn Whist Club. Robert H. Weems, of that club, is in charge of the arrangements for it. It is expected that out of the one hundred clubs which belong to the league about fifty will contest for the trophy at that time. The Park Club expect to enter a team.

On Tuesday the same players of the Park Club will meet the Montclair Club in a match for the State trophy which the Park Club holds at present. The match will take place in this city at their clubhouse. They have already met the Montclairs in three other contests and defeated them in all.

Rahway's Encouraging Words.

A number of women in Plainfield have applied to the Board of Education to co-operate with them in forming an anti-cigarette league among the boys in the public schools. A good idea and one that should be encouraged—to prevent boys from ruining their health and making a nuisance of themselves by smoking the poisonous and offensive rolls made of no one knows what.—Rahway Advocate.

A Pleasant Surprise.

Miss Josie Van Natta, of East Third street, was given a surprise on the eve of her fourteenth birthday last Friday. About fifty of her friends and schoolmates were present. Miss Josie Van Natta received several very fine presents. The guests spent the evening in playing games, singing and dancing.

Anxious for Good Sidewalks.

The question of laying sidewalks in the borough is receiving considerable attention on the part of the borough mayor and the street committee. The mayor is anxious that walks be laid at certain points in the borough, and at the meeting Friday evening the street committee were given a little push in the matter, which will undoubtedly have a good effect.

Old Folks' Concert.

An old folks' concert will be given in the Y. M. C. A. assembly hall on Thursday evening, December 5th, by four bakers' dozen of men and women. The proceeds of the concert will be devoted to the interests of the Presbyterian church. The concert will be given under the direction of William E. MacClymont.

TRANSFERS AND CONTRACTS.

Plainfield Matters Recorded in the County Clerk's Office.

The following transfers of property have been recorded in the Union County Clerk's office from October 31st to November 6th inclusive, as published in the New Jersey Contractor:

Best of Catering.

There is a firm of caterers in Newark which has in recent years made a reputation so high that the leading society people of that city now prefer that Days' shall furnish refreshments for their teas and receptions, rather than any New York caterer. Days' cafe at 899 Broad street, therefore, is a busy place during the winter season, but although there may be a score of society events at which Days cater on one day, none is neglected or slighted. To have Days do the catering is quite the proper thing in Newark, and Plainfielders will doubtless be glad to know where the most exquisite table service may be obtained at reasonable cost.

Visited Lehigh.

James M. Middledith, of Park avenue, Mr. Brooks, of Newark, and Orville T. Waring, of Willow avenue, witnessed the football game between Lehigh University and Lafayette College at Bethlehem on Saturday. Mr. Middledith spent Sunday with his son, who is a student at Lehigh University, and Waring spent Sunday with his brother, who is a student at the same place.

Honesty Rewarded.

Mrs. A. D. Shepard, of Scotch Plains, stepped from her carriage into Reynolds' pharmacy on Saturday, and her pocketbook fell in the street without her knowledge of the fact. About the same time Sergeant Kiely came along, picked it up and stepping in the pharmacy he asked if any one had lost their pocketbook. Mrs. Shepard at once recognized it as her property and rewarded the honest policeman.

Frank E. Newman to Marry.

The marriage of Miss Grace Carrington, of Jersey City Heights, to Frank Eaton Newman, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Newman, of this city, will take place at the home of the bride on November 26th. It will be a quiet event, only the relatives being invited. Mr. Newman is one of the rising young architects of Philadelphia, and it is in this city that the couple will make their home.

Justice Newcorn's Court.

The following contract cases are set down for Justice Newcorn's court: Hooker against Day; Hooker against Leland, November 18th; Taylor Provision Co. against Ballantine, November 15th; Randall against Proud, Boone against Proud, Cole against Leland, Jr., November 18th; Boone against McCarty; Newman against J. Whitehead Miller, November 19th.

Camera Club Exhibition.

The Plainfield Camera Club will give their lantern evening tomorrow night, rain or shine. The club expect to give an entertainment every two weeks through the winter. Following this one "A Trip to Ireland" will be illustrated by the club and described by Rev. T. L. Murphy.

For a pain in the side or chest there is nothing so good as a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of pain. It affords prompt and permanent relief and if used in time will often prevent a cold from resulting in pneumonia. This same treatment is a sure cure for lame back, For sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North aves. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

THE EASTERN SITUATION

Reticence of German Foreign Office Absolute.

Sultan Dreads Austria's Power—Germany's Position—No Warlike Complications Likely To Arise from the Armenian Trouble—England May Enter the Dreibund.

Berlin, Nov. 11.—The declaration of Lord Salisbury in his speech upon the occasion of the banquet of the lord mayor of London Saturday night and the official statement made by M. Berthelot, the French minister of foreign affairs in Paris, sum up everything of an official character that is known here in regard to the eastern situation. The reticence of the German foreign office remains nearly absolute and no information conveying the slightest idea of the general position is permitted to leak out. Since Austria, under the approval of Germany, entered the European concert the semi-official press says the situation has cleared up very materially. The sultan knows Austria's power and disposition to take immediate action and dreads that more than any other thing that has yet menaced him, and, in consequence, these papers assert, is prepared to concede anything that may be demanded of the porte.

Germany's Position.

Although Germany has joined the European league she certainly has not committed herself to any project contemplating a European protectorate over Turkey, the occupation of Armenia by Russia, or any other scheme which would involve any interference at the present time with the powers of the sultan within his own domains, and the North German Gazette declares that the Christian inhabitants of Turkey in the meantime will be in no wise endangered.

Soothing Assertions.

The correspondent of the Tageblatt in Constantinople telegraphs to his paper that he is in a position to affirm that no warlike complications are likely to arise from the Armenian trouble, and behind the soothing semi-official assertion remains a combination of unexplained facts suggesting that it is the intention of Germany to play the part of the honest broker in the matter. The principal one of these facts is the action of Count Goluchowski, the Austrian secretary of state for foreign affairs, in first making overtures to Lord Salisbury by calling attention to the fact that it would greatly strengthen the position of England if the triple alliance should be taken into the alliance of powers on the Turkish question under condition that Austria should institute operations if required to protect the Macedonian population, Austria's geographical position enabling her to do so at a moment's notice.

The Partition of Turkey.

The assent of the English premier to this virtual proposal was obtained under Lord Salisbury's conviction that England would require a strong backing against the coalition of Russia and France, when the time should arrive for the partitioning of Turkey. In view of all this, while peace reigns for the moment under cautious ministerial utterances, nobody believes that the Turk will be able to weather the crises which confront him very much longer. It is thought that paramount interest in the present position to the highest official circle here lies in the hope that the policy now being pursued will force England into the dreibund.

Great Britain's Isolation.

England has always been ready to seize advantages from the central European coalition without committing herself to anything, but the time has come when she is confronted with the alternative of choice between fatal isolation and a definite union with the continental powers.

England's Ultimate Fate.

A semi-official paper in Hamburg, the Correspondenze, asks what practical meaning lies in the declaration of the English government that England will maintain her policy. What policy? The triple alliance, the paper continues, has not wanted nor does it now want war, and Russia and France would not go very far merely to help Armenia. The situation in eastern Asia has also to be considered and in view of that situation England ought least of all to be disposed to drift into war. Her ultimate fate therefore must be to choose allies.

PUPPETS OF THE SULTAN.

Turkey's New Ministry No Better Than the Old.

Constantinople, Nov. 11.—The recent change in the ministry here has not been conducive of any better feeling in political and diplomatic circles. In fact the new ministers, generally speaking, are looked upon askance, as their reputations give no promise of any better government than that hitherto ruling. In fact the members of the new cabinet are nothing more than puppets of the sultan, and whatever he wills will be without any questioning law to them. There is no doubt that the empire is passing through one of the most critical periods that has threatened it for years. The heir to the throne has no better policy than the sultan, so no advantages would be gained by deposing the latter in favor of the former. The young Turkey party aim at the removal of both and the substitution in the place of Reshad Effendi, the heir to the throne, of a healthy-minded agriculturist who dislikes intrigue. Advices from the interior show that great destitution is prevailing and that the suffering from this cause surpasses that arising from the massacres. A very large number of persons are homeless and without food, and there is no doubt that the suffering will increase during the winter. In several districts a famine is anticipated.

Railroad Wreck in England.

London, Nov. 11.—The Scotch express train on the Great Northern railway yesterday struck a freight train that was partly on a siding at St. Neote, in Huntingdonshire and one person was killed and five more injured.

Well-Known Scientist Dead.

Halifax, Nov. 11.—Prof. George Lawson, F. R. S., a well-known scientist and writer, died here last night.

FOUR KILLED.

A Lehigh & Hudson Engine Blows Up at Warwick, N. Y.

Warwick, N. Y., Nov. 11.—With an awful roar Lehigh & Hudson engine No. 13 blew up yesterday and caused the death of four men. The dead are: Herbert Beetner, fireman, Easton; William Cooper, engineer, Philadelphia; Martin O'Neill, conductor, Belvidere; James L. Sloan, brakeman, Phillipsburg. The force of the explosion was so great that the boiler was thrown from the trucks, but the latter remained on the rails. The train, consisting of thirty cars, although it was running on a down grade, was stopped by the brakeman, but not until it had run fully a mile and a half. Victims of the accident were hurled in all directions, their clothing stripped from their bodies, the tattered garments falling in branches of trees along the tracks, where they still hang. The first body found was Cooper's. It was pinioned under the shattered boiler. He had been crushed to death by the mass of iron and steel. O'Neill had been blown on the rails and run over by the train, his body being cut to pieces and otherwise horribly mutilated, while Sloan was hanging unconscious on a barb wire fence fifty feet away. He only lived a few minutes, dying in great agony. Fireman Beetner was thrown fifty feet and died in a very few minutes.

SILVER CAMPAIGN OPENED.

Senators Morgan and Pugh Denounce Cleveland's Policy.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 10.—United States Senators Morgan and Pugh have opened the democratic free silver campaign, which the democratic silver leaders in conference here decided to inaugurate and conduct on the most vigorous lines possible until the state democratic convention meets. A large crowd was present. Senator Morgan bitterly denounced Cleveland's policy of borrowing money as one which had never existed when the country was not plunged in war, and laid all the trouble to the influence of John Sherman for a gold standard and the demonetization of silver. Senator Pugh spoke on the same line, but was even more bitter in his denunciation of Cleveland's policy. The senators will continue their silver canvass two weeks.

BERGSTROM'S SHORTAGE.

Great Northern Officials Disinclined To Talk of His Arrest.

St. Paul, Nov. 14.—Officials of the Great Northern are disinclined to talk about the arrest in New York of Victor Bergstrom on the charge of embezzling $10,000 from the company. It was stated some time ago that the young man had made good his shortage through his father. It seems, however, that this was not true, as the company which was on Bergstrom's bond has been following him ever since he left the Great Northern. It is stated that Bergstrom lost the money in wheat speculation, but the amount is less than $10,000.

STRIKE AT PITTSBURG.

Structural Iron Workers Refuse To Work for Buchanan & Co.

Pittsburg, Nov. 11.—At a special meeting of the Structural Iron Workers' union held last night the grievances of the men employed by Buchanan & Co., contractors, received consideration, and it was decided to order a strike of all men employed by this firm. The firm is one of the leading ones in the Pittsburg district and has not yet signed the workers' scale, although requested several times to do so. Several hundred men refused to go to work this morning, and operations on several large buildings ceased.

BOMBS IN SPAIN.

Two Attempts Made To Destroy Religious Institutions.

Madrid, Nov. 11.—Two dastardly attempts to destroy religious institutions were made by unknown persons yesterday. Bombs were exploded at St. Joseph's Boys' school at Sabadell, near Barcelona, and at the convent at Cordejuela, near Bilbao. In the former place two boys were injured, but the nuns in the convent escaped uninjured.

HIS FAREWELL SERMON.

Rev. Dr. W. W. Everts Leaves Haverhill, Mass., for Omaha.

Haverhill, Mass., Nov. 11.—Rev. W. W. Everts, for the last eight years pastor of the First Baptist church here, preached his farewell sermon yesterday. He was presented with a purse of $500 by the congregation. He has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Baptist church in Omaha, Neb., to which point he will remove at once.

DEATH BY STARVATION.

Failure of Crops and a Plague of Caterpillars the Cause.

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 11.—Advices received from Jamaica state that much distress exists in St. Elizabeth district and that thousands of persons are on the verge of starvation, several having already died from that cause. The distress is caused by drought and failure of crops and by a plague of caterpillars.

MAY BE FLOATED TO-DAY.

No Change Yet in the Position of the Steamer Puritan.

New London, Conn., Nov. 11.—This morning there is no change in the condition of the Fall River line steamer Puritan. Two compartments are leaking badly. It is hoped she will be floated at high water to-day.

Lynching in Georgia.

Homerville, Ga., Nov. 11.—Lewis Jefferson, the negro who last Tuesday night attempted an assault on a Miss Froebel, was taken from the officers who had him in charge, hanged to a tree and riddled with bullets.

Fire at Gettysburg, Pa.

Gettysburg, Pa., Nov. 11.—The Colonial hotel and contents were totally destroyed by fire yesterday. The loss is about $12,000; insurance, $10,000. The cause of the fire is unknown.

SATOLLI IN IGNORANCE

Has No News of His Successor's Appointment.

But He Is Ready To Return to Rome When Recalled—Cardinal Gibbons' Advice Said To Have Caused Mgr. Laurenzelli To Receive the Commission.

Washington, Nov. 11.—Mgr. Sbaretti, a member of the papal delegation to this country, when seen in regard to the report in New York that a high ecclesiastical authority there had received a dispatch from Rome announcing that Pope Leo XIII. had decided upon the appointment of Mgr. Laurenzelli, now internuncio at The Hague, as the successor of Mgr. Satolli in his capacity of apostlic delegate from the holy see to this country, said: "Archbishop Satolli is in total ignorance of the matter outside of this publication. He has not received any word from the vatican touching the subject, and consequently can neither deny nor confirm the report. The whole question rests with the holy father, and in case he should see fit to make a change in his representative to this country, it would be his right to do so. When he shall recall Mgr. Satolli the latter will go without delay. We do not, however, and will not make inquiries of the holy see touching such matters. Thus, you will see, we are always in ignorance of the action of the pope until we are notified by him, and we have not been in this case."

Mgr. Sbaretti's Opinion.

Mgr. Sbaretti regards Mgr. Laurenzelli as an eminent ecclesiastical diplomat, and has nothing but praise to say of him. He was asked if he would tell when Mgr. Satolli intended to visit Rome, and his reply was: "When Pope Leo XIII. sends for him."

Surprise in New York.

According to advices from New York there was considerable surprise excited in the archiepiscopal palace when the contents of the cablegram became known, for of all the possible candidates named as a successor to Mgr. Satolli Mgr. Laurenzelli was not among them. However, as Mgr. Laurenzelli is known as a broad minded man, one who will follow in the footsteps of his predecessor, it is the general understanding that the appointment is in a measure due to the advice of Cardinal Gibbons, who is in favor of a broad and generous policy on the part of the papal representative in the United States.

POLICE INDIGNANT.

Disclosure of Newfoundland Ship Scuttling Practices Causes Anger.

St. Johns, N. F., Nov. 11.—The police are indignant at the premature disclosure of the ship scuttling practices, which are under investigation, but they are preparing to cope with any possible danger to their case which may result from the forewarning of those implicated. The cruiser Fiona started this morning to arrest outport members of the syndicate, while the houses and business places of those suspected in St. Johns are being watched to prevent the suspects from making their escape by outgoing steamers. Much excitement prevails here over the matter, owing to the reputed good character of many of those involved, but nearly everybody expresses the hope that if the cases are really as bad as is represented the offenders will receive exemplary punishment.

DR. NORRIS DEAD.

For Twenty-one Years Attending Surgeon at the White House.

San Francisco, Nov. 11.—Dr. Basil Norris, U. S. A., retired, died at the Occidental hotel in this city last night from apoplexy. Dr. Norris was for twenty-one years attending surgeon at the White House in Washington. He was physician to Hon. William H. Seward when the latter was injured by a fall from his carriage. Dr. Norris was transferred to the Pacific coast in 1884 and remained in active service until his retirement in 1892. He was a native of Maryland and was 63 years of age.

HIS VITAL POWERS WANING.

The Pope Conscious That He Is Physically Broken Down.

London, Nov. 11.—The Standard today publishes a dispatch from Rome saying that the pope's entourage has observed during the past few days that his holiness has very perceptibly broken down and that he is suffering. He himself says that his vital powers are waning rapidly.

IN DESPAIR.

A PEN PICTURE.

Many Women Will Recognize It.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

"Oh, I am so nervous! No one ever suffered as I do! There isn't a well inch in my whole body! I honestly think my lungs are diseased, my chest pains me so; but I've no cough. I'm so weak at my stomach, and have indigestion horribly. Then I have palpitation, and my heart hurts me. How I am losing flesh! and this headache nearly kills me; and the backache — Heavens! I had hysterics yesterday. There is a weight in the lower part of my bowels, bearing down all the time; and there are pains in my groins and thighs. I can't sleep, walk, or sit. I'm diseased all over. The doctor? Oh! he tells me to keep quiet. Such mockery!

Inflammatory and ulcerative conditions at the neck of the womb can produce all the above symptoms in the same person. In fact, there is hardly a part of the body that can escape those sympathetic pains and aches.

No woman should allow herself to reach such a perfection of misery when there is positively no need of it.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound acts promptly and thoroughly in such cases; strengthens the muscles of the womb, heals all inflammation, and restores that unruly organ to its normal condition. Druggists are selling carloads of it. Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., will gladly and freely answer all letters asking for advice.

Mrs. E. Bishop, 787 Halsey Street, Brooklyn, N.Y., suffered all the above described horrors. Now she is well. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured her. Write her about it.

NEW CUBAN EXPEDITION

Many Americans To Join Senor Valez's Party.

New Jersey National Guardsmen and Citizens of New York, Chicago and Other Cities Enlist as Filibusterers—Gen. Maceo's Emissaries Bring Nearly $300,000 Here

New York, Nov. 11.—Senor Valez, a Cuban, who was recently sent from this city to Madrid in the interests of the Cuban insurgents, has arrived here on the steamer Veendam. He has been chosen to lead the next expedition to Cuba, but while he admitted that he expected to lead an expedition at an early day, he refused to give any details of his plans for obvious reasons. It was, however, learned that the expedition will be accompanied by members of the New Jersey National Guard, and also emissaries recently sent here by Maximo Gomez and Antonio Maceo. These emissaries are Lieutenants Salas and Sanchez, who brought to Senor Estrada Palma his appointment as plenipotentiary delegate, and $60,000 in money.

To Purchase a Fast Steamer.

The other emissaries sent by Maceo arrived here from Jamaica. They are negroes and bring with them $220,000 for the purchase of a fast steamer to carry filibustering expeditions to the island. It caused some surprise among the Cubans that negroes should be entrusted with carrying such a large sum of money, but it is explained by the fact that they are intimate friends of Maceo, who is also a colored man.

Senor Valez's Expedition.

Senor Valez's expedition is to start in about a month, and will be the most important one taken to Cuba since the war began. It will be composed of Cubans and Americans from New York, Jersey City, Jacksonville, Philadelphia and Chicago.

Will Establish a Signal Corps.

The New Jersey national guardsmen will be very valuable to the insurgents, as they are to establish a signal corps which will enable the various commanders to communicate intelligence with the same facility as the Spanish troops now enjoy.

The Turning of the Tide.

Recent advices from Cuba indicate that the tide of the revolution has turned and is now with the Cubans struggling for liberty. The principal cause for this has been the statements made by Captain General Campos about three weeks ago and afterwards confirmed by him in newspaper interviews and through his private cables to Madrid, stating it would be necessary to send 150,000 more men to the island to crush the insurgents and that the lives of half that number would have to be sacrificed before that end could be reached.

To Destroy Sugar Plantations.

When Campos' statements were made public and the new Cuban assembly were fully aware of Campos' position in the matter, it was decided to place the Cuban army on the offensive and strike an effective blow at once. From private sources it was learned that an order had been given the leaders in the field to destroy at once all the sugar plantations, only preserving the machinery. This is the most important step that the new Cuban government has yet made, and the armies under Gomez, Maceo and Roloff have already begun operations in that direction.

A Hard Blow to Spain.

This move on the part of Cubans was only made about a week ago, but is bound to be a very hard blow to Spain. The complete or even partial destruction of the sugar cane on the island will be an almost irretrievable disaster to Spanish control in Cuba, as Spain depends more upon the revenue derived from the sugar crop than from any other source. The destruction of the sugar crop would also cause a great loss to the United States not only on account of sugar, but in the commerce with the island, which would suffer greatly. This is the first aggressive step taken by the Cubans.

SPANISH TROOPS DEFEATED.

Insurgents Succeed in Invading the Province of Matanzas.

New York, Nov. 11.—A special cable to the New York Herald from Havana says: A battle has been fought near the city of Guanojay. The government troops were defeated. The engagement at Cayo Espino confirms previous reports that large bodies of insurgents have succeeded in invading the province of Mantanzas and are now menacing the frontier towns in the province of Havana. Conservative estimates now place this year's sugar output at a million tons less than that of last year.

ANCIENT RELIC UNEARTHED.

May Have Been the Property of an Early French Explorer.

Winona, Minn., Nov. 11.—An ancient vessel has been unearthed in the Mississippi river shore near here. It was four feet under ground and made of heavy oak planks nailed together with hand-forged spikes. It is supposed to have been the property of N. Perrott, a French explorer, who early in the seventeenth century built a fort-trading post, the ruins of which remain now, being but a short distance from the strange vessel's location.

Twelve Thousand May Strike.

New York, Nov. 11.—It was decided by a mass meeting of the Housesmiths and Bridgemen's union yesterday to strike a week from to-day unless the employers sign the new scale of prices in the meantime. Should the strike occur 12,000 men would be involved.

Healy Acquires the Cork Herald.

London, Nov. 11.—Timothy Healy, M. P., who it is generally believed will shortly be dropped by the anti-Parnellite party, has acquired the Cork Herald, which has hitherto been an organ of the Parnellites.

No Typhus at Paterson.

New York, Nov. 11.—Health Officer Doty and his deputy went to Paterson to investigate the report that a case of typhus, contracted on the steamer Lucania, had developed in that city. They state that there is no truth in the report.

THE CZARINA DYING.

Physicians No Longer Able To Conceal Her Danger.

London, Nov. 11.—It is reported here that the czarina, whose accouchment is expected at any time, is dying from the result of the Caesarian operation. The court physicians are no longer able to conceal from her imperial husband the immediate danger in which she is placed. It is understood in St. Petersburg official circles that her recovery is impossible.

CASE WILL BE WITHDRAWN.

Mrs. Colt's Failure To Substantiate Her Charges the Cause.

Providence, Nov. 11.—The proceedings for divorce brought by Mrs. Elizabeth W. Colt, a social leader of Bristol, have come to a standstill. The failure of her counsel to obtain the slightest evidence to substantiate her allegations against Col. Samuel Pomery Colt will in all probability result in the withdrawal of the petition from the supreme court. Mrs. Colt wanted, first of all, a large sum in alimony, it is reported $7,000 a year and the Colt mansion at Bristol for her individual use. Her lawyers are denouncing the New Hampshire witnesses who were not on hand at Conway to make depositions, and they allege that they did not appear owing to some cause not yet exactly known. It was believed a week ago that some important evidence might be found in New York, but it is now conceded that only statements of doubtful value are available there. It is thought that the lawyers for Mrs. Colt made a mistake in filing the divorce petition prematurely before they had secured their New Hampshire evidence relating to the alleged episode at Jackson, in the White mountains. Mrs. Colt's divorce petition will be withdrawn or dismissed just as soon as her lawyers can do so without great publicity. The end of the divorce case does not in the least affect the standing on the court docket of the suit of Col. Colt against James G. Van Alen for $200,000 for alienation of his wife's affections.

JULIAN'S STATEMENT.

Will Remain South To See if a Fight Can Be Arranged.

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 11.—Bob Fitzsimmons and party are here. Reporters could get no interview with Fitzsimmons on pugilism, but Julian made this statement: "We are staying in the southwest in hope of bringing off the fight and have declined all offers of engagements in the north and east. We have confidence that Mr. Stuart will be able to arrange to pull off the fight in Mexico and we will remain in Texas until we hear definitely from him. Just the moment he is ready in Mexico I will be ready to deposit the $10,000 side bet for Fitzsimmons, and I tell you that Corbett will be hard to catch about that time. All that talk sent from Hot Springs and Little Rock that Fitzsimmons could not raise the side bet of $10,000 was inspired by the Corbett party. If we could have put up $100,000 what good would it have done? There was no earthly chance to fight in Arkansas and Bob and his friends were not going to take any chances on having their money tied up."

CARNEGIE'S PLANS.

Free Library To Be Established at Homestead, Costing $400,000.

Pittsburg, Nov. 11.—Andrew Carnegie has made known his plans for presenting the town of Homestead with a free library. The proposed building is to cost $400,000, independent of the permanent endowment for its maintenance, which Mr. Carnegie will also provide. The building will comprise a free library, reading rooms, music hall, gymnasium, club rooms and swimming pool. The music hall will be equipped with a large organ and organ recitals are to be held every week. The people of Homestead are profuse in their appreciation of Mr. Carnegie's generosity and a public meeting to that end will be held soon. The building is to be complete within a year.

DETROIT'S LAST HORSE CAR.

Broken Up by Relic Hunters—The Team Brought $100.

Detroit, Nov. 11.—The last horse car in Detroit made its last trip yesterday afternoon and the car is now kindling wood, being broken up by relic seekers. Quite a ceremony attended the obsequies and the campus in front of the city hall was crowded with people. President Hutchins told of the Citizens' company's promise to have electric cars on all its lines before snow fell this fall and the old car from Chene street was the last of its kind. The team was auctioned off and brought $100. The money is to go into the mayor's fund for the relief of the explosion sufferers.

WILLIAM III. AND HIS BROTHER

Rumors of Discord May Be Renewed Because Henry Is Absent.

Berlin, Nov. 11.—As the rumors of discord between the emperor and his brother are likely to be revived because of the latter's absence, it is given out that the reason for his absence is the delicate state of health of the princess, which statement is partly true.

Gaudaur-Bubear Race Off.

Austin, Tex., Nov. 11.—The double scull championship match between Jake Gaudaur and James Rogers and Bubear and Baines was called off owing to the fact that Major McDonald positively refused to permit the race to come off on Sunday.

For Speaker of New York Assembly.

Buffalo, Nov. 11.—Assemblyman S. Fred Nixon of Chautauqua county has announced himself as a candidate for speaker of the next assembly. Mr. Nixon states that he will begin his canvass for the speakership in about a week.

Disastrous Fire in Germany.

Hamburg, Nov. 11.—A disastrous fire occurred at Ottensen, a suburb, last night, when Dietz's machine works and the Steinle company's tar works were destroyed. The loss is placed at several million marks.

Newspaper Building Burned.

New York, Nov. 11.—The Illustrated American News building was badly damaged by fire yesterday. The loss on building and stock will amount to about $15,000, which is covered by insurance.

Y. P. C. U. Conference Adjourns.

Baltimore, Nov. 11.—The Young People's Christian Union conference of the Universalist church adjourned last night

CHICAGO OWNS THE CITY

Atlanta Invaded by a Host from the West.

To-day Is Illinois Day at the Exposition — Cordial Greeting Extended to the Visitors — Speech-making, a Banquet and a Military Review on the Programme.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 11.—Five train loads of Chicagoans came in yesterday to attend the exercises on Illinois and Chicago day at the exposition. Chicago was the first city outside of Georgia to take a lively interest in the exposition. When congress was asked to make an appropriation for a government display in Atlanta the Illinois delegation, with one exception, stood nobly by the south. The interest manifested by the world's fair city was sincerely appreciated here, and long before the exposition plans were completed it was decided that there should be a Chicago day. The merchants and railroad men of the west saw an opportunity to break into the south in a commercial way and heartily and substantially backed up the idea of sending a strong representation to Georgia. Yesterday the advance guard of the movement reached here.

Chicagoans Own the State.

Prominent cieizens went up to Marietta, twenty miles out at the foot of the famous battlefield mountain Kenfiesaw, and there met the train bearing Gov. Altgeld, Mayor Swift, Ferdinand Peck and other representatives of Illinois and Chicago. Col. John Chandler of the Fifth Georgia regiment, speaking for Gov. Atkinson, said that he was commissioned to turn Atlanta and Georgia over to the visitors. "The army and navy, the homes and hearts of Georgia are yours," he said. He referred to the friendship which has sprung up between the Chicago of the south and the Atlanta of the west and declared that the ties would grow stronger and closer, and that the people of the two sections would get nearer to each other socially and commercially.

A Pleasant Incident.

Col. Turner of the First Illinois regiment responded in a felicitous vein. Speeches were also made by Gov. Altgeld, F. W. Peck of Illinois, and Mayor King and H. H. Cabanias of Atlanta. It was a pleasant incident and the excursionists were each and every one commissioned a colonel by the time they reached Atlanta. The first train arrived here at 12 o'clock and the four rear sections came in at intervals of twenty minutes.

Viewing the City.

A detachment of the Fifth Georgia regiment met the First Illinois boys at the Union station here. It was the original plan for the regiment to camp on the ground recently occupied by Buffalo Bill's Wild West show, but the rain made the ground too wet and the soldiers remained in their cars. The visitors received many callers and were taken in charge by the Alantians, who showed them over the city. The air was much cooler than it has been for several days, but it was balmy for the Chicagoans.

To-day Is Illinois Day.

To-day is Illinois day at the exposition. Governor Altgeld, Mayor Swift and their party were escorted to the grounds by Governor Atkinson, Mayor King and the exposition directors. The two governors, the two mayors, President Woodson of the Atlanta chamber of commerce, President Peck of the Chicago Southern States association and L. L. Knight of Atlanta will speak in the auditorium this afternoon. To-night there will be a banquet. The world's fair directors will arrive to-night on a special train. They are the guests of Stuyvesant Fish, president of the Illinois Central railroad. The Illinois and Atlanta military will be reviewed after the speaking.

DEMAND MORE WAGES.

Pittsburg Plumbers Want a Restoration to the Old Rates.

Pittsburg, Nov. 11.—The 400 journeymen plumbers, gas and steam fitters of Allegheny county will some time to-day make a demand for $3.50 a day, or, in other words, for a restoration of the 10 per cent. reduction in wages made in February, 1894, and if the employers refuse to grant it the men will refuse to work. The men have canvassed the situation carefully and decided upon this action after consideration covering the past two months.

FIVE CRIMINALS ESCAPE.

Wholesale Jail Delivery in Hamilton County, O.

Cincinnati, Nov. 11.—Six well known and desperate criminals broke out of the Hamilton county jail last night and five of them succeeded in making good their escape. Their names are: J. F. Woodward, forger; James A. Clarke, burglar; John F. Foster, burglar; B. F. Ford, alias Fisher, forger; Albert Jerekel, pickpocket. The one who was recaptured is Stewart Posey.

IN NO IMMEDIATE DANGER.

Ex-Senator Thurman's Condition Continues To Improve.

Columbus, O., Nov. 11.—The condition of ex-Senator Thurman continues to improve. He spent a very good night and this morning Allen W. Thurman, his son, said he was now regarded by his physicians as out of immediate danger.

Clevelanders To Visit Atlanta.

Cleveland, Nov. 11.—Nine palace car coaches will leave Cleveland to-morrow noon on the Big Four road bound for Atlanta, Ga., with 350 prominent Clevelanders. The main object of the trip is to bring about a more friendly relation and closer commercial connection between this city and the south.

Hanged Himself in His Barn.

Gloversville, N. Y., Nov. 11.—Frank Lasher, a prominent farmer living about a mile east of this city, committed suicide yesterday by hanging himself in his barn. No cause is known for the rash act.

Railroad Sale Confirmed.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 11.—The United States circuit court has confirmed the recent sale of the Peoria & St. Louis railroad to the bondholders.

GOVERNMENTAL TELEGRAPHS.

They who advocate governmental telegraphs for this country might well pause before the statistics from England, where the last report of the Postmaster-General shows that the annual deficit on the service "will not down," but goes from bad to worse. In seven years the loss now amounts to nearly $13,000,000, and this in spite of, or perhaps because of, a good increase in the business done. To put it bluntly, the English telegraphs are bankrupt, and are only kept up by heavy drains on the national purse. There are now 9,661 telegraph offices in the United Kingdom, and the number of messages has reached 71,589,064 per year, on an average per head of population somewhat larger than our own, though by no means evincing the rapid acceleration seen in the use of the telephone. In this country there are now ten times as many telephone conversations exchanged as there are telegrams sent each year.—Evening Post.

The Tribune says that Foster M. Voorhees can have the presidency of the Senate if he wants it, but that he would rather be the leader on the floor.

There will be but four Democrats in the next State Senate. That is getting pretty close to the Michigan record of three years ago, when there was but one unterrified in the Legislature of that State.

The Newark Advertiser in reviewing the personelle of the next Assembly says of Assemblyman-elect Codington that he has the reputation at home of being able to say the right thing at the right time, and that Assemblyman-elect Reed is not slow when he takes to speaking.

According to the election returns the Republicans will gain five United States Senators—two from Utah and one each from Kentucky, Onio and Maryland—and the Democrats lose three—one each from the last three States named. None of these changes, however, take effect until after the 4th of March, 1897, except in the case of the two Senators from Utah, who will take their seats as soon as they are chosen. Thereafter the Republicans will have 44 Senators, the Democrats 38, the Populists 6, and one vacancy—Delaware. If the Delaware vacancy is filled by a Republican, the Republicans will have half the membership, and the Vice President will have the deciding vote.—Trenton True American.

THEATRICAL.

The welcome announcement is made to fun-lovers that "The Hustler" will be seen in this city this evening next at the Stillman Music Hall. So great is the fame of "The Hustler" as an entertainment of fun, pure and simple, that no further words of introduction are here necessary. The piece has received some additional improvements since last season and the specialties are all new and of the most diverting kind. The boisterously funny doings of the empty-handed, queer-headed Irish hustler and his amusing fellow lodgers remain unchanged save in details, where they have been made still funnier. The second act is almost altogether new this season.

An immense crowd held a sort of mass meeting around the Opera House doors while sections of it filed in and packed the house until the card was hung up, announcing "standing room only." This unusual demonstration was not due to anything new, for it was only Uncle Tom, but Stetson's management includes good and liberal advertising. The show was to an admiring audience; its funny side was enjoyed immensely and the pathetic incidents met equal appreciation.—Terre Haute (Ind.) Star. This play will appear at Stillman Music Hall Wednesday evening.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Louis Hunter, of Brooklyn, spent Sunday with friends on Grove street.

A baby girl arrived yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dawe, of Second place.

Frederick K. Fish, Jr., of First place, left this morning on a business trip to Easton.

Fred Barker, night operator at the telephone office, spent Sunday at his home in Newark.

Mrs. Robert Rushmore, of Grant avenue, is very much improved from her recent illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward VanBuren returned Saturday from their wedding trip to the South.

W. P. Smith and family, of Netherwood, are at the Holland House, New York, for several weeks.

Miss Helen Rodman, of Astoria, is visiting her uncle, Rev. E. M. Rodman, of LaGrande avenue.

Superintendent McClurg, of the Electric Light Company, has returned from the Atlanta Exposition.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Johnstone, of Philadelphia, are visiting at the home of A. J. Johnstone, of East Fifth street.

Gordon Burton, of Philadelphia, spent Sunday at the home of his father, Charles W. Burton, of Watchung avenue.

Mrs. Clapp and Miss Clapp, of Mercer avenue, returned today from Philadelphia, where they have been spending a few days.

Milton Clemenson, who recently resigned his position with the Columbia Cycle Academy, left yesterday for his home at Asbury Park.

Charles W. Burton, of Watchung avenue, left this morning for Savannah, Ga., where he will make the DeSoto Hotel his headquarters.

Scott Marble, the well know playright, was in town Saturday night and witnessed the production of "The Irish Alderman," of which he is the author.

Depositors at the City National Bank have noticed a smiling countence on the face of Cashier William Arnold. Inquiry reveals the fact that a baby girl now brightens his home.

Miss May Flanagan, who has been in the millinery department of White's drygoods store for some time, has accepted the position of head milliner in the same department of Lederer's store.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence M. Mundy, of Orange street, leave this evening on the Fall River Line for Boston, where Mr. Mundy will act as New England representative of the Seaboard Lumber Company.

Mr. and Mrs W. Palmer Smith and Miss Edith Smalley, of Netherwood, are registered at the Holland House, Thirtieth street and Fifth avenue, New York. They will occupy one of the arena boxes at the Madison Square Garden this week and witness the horse show.

Funeral of Mrs. H. A. Thorn.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Henry A. Thorn was held at the residence of her husband yesterday afternoon. Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards spoke a few words about the deceased, and Chas. L. Lewis, the bass in the Crescent Avenue church choir, sang a very beautiful solo. There was a large number present, among whom were a number of members of the Royal Arcanum and the Knights of Honor, of both of which Mr. Thorn is a member. The floral tributes were numerous and very beautiful.

Against Cigarette Smoking.

In the sermon of Rev. C. E. Herring at the First Presbyterian church last evening he gave some very plain facts in regard to cigarette smoking by young men, and spoke very emphatically against it.

The beautiful lamp, china and glass that add so much to the window decorations at Packer's, are from the stock of Gavett & Company.

STUDYING TO SAVE TIME.

How and Why the Parliamentary Club Was Organized.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—The question has been asked why the organization of the Parliamentary Club when so many societies already in Plainfield consume every available second of time given to the American woman of the nineteenth century.

If, Mr. Editor, you will kindly allow us to answer this query through your columns, we think we can assure the critical "head of the house" that the average woman needs to know at least the rudiments of Parliamentary law to save time, which, heretofore, has been wasted with random conversation at the business meetings of any society she belongs to.

Woman, as well as man, is waking up to the fact that somewhere, somehow more minutes must be found to keep the overcrowded brain from entire collapse.

At the annual meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, held this fall, our beloved sister and co-worker expressed her inability to serve us longer as president.

No amount of words or persuasion could alter her decision, and realizing that we could not hastily fill the office which Miss Cara Peck had held for two years so acceptably as our leader in the White Ribbon Army, the vice-presidents representing each church were to preside in turn at the meetings of the W. C. T. U. and share the privileges and duties incumbent upon the office.

This decision surprised some of the vice-presidents, and they at once suggested a class for study, which has since developed into the newly organized Parliamentary club.

The executive committee have received applicants for membership from several Christian Endeavorers, and young people of other societies. To become a member of the Woman's Parliamentary Club, no more constitutes membership to the W. C. T. U. than would the signing of the pledge or the wearing of the White Ribbon alone signify allegiance to that society of temperance workers.

The public should not be misinformed on this line. We regret to know there are women in Plainfield as well as elsewhere that wear the white ribbon, who should not, and advocate principles very foreign to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

The meetings of the club are held the second and fourth Thursdays of each month in the Y. M. C. A. building. The secretary will notify any who are desirous of joining the study after their names are presented. Only non-residents of Plainfield will be admitted to the class drills.

TRAMPS HAULED IN.

One Sent to Jail, and Two Sent on Their Way Rejoicing.

Two individuals, who are usually known as tramps, were brought before Judge Coddington at the city court Saturday afternoon. One, who gave his name as Edward Snyder, was brought in by Special Officer Murphy for trespassing on the Central railroad near Terrill road. Snyder did not like the idea of going of jail, so the charge of being disorderly was added. The Judge did not respect his wishes, and imposed a fine of three dollars or ten days in jail.

John Mullin, the other Knight of the road, was brought in by Officer McCue, but he appeared to be an innocent specimen and the Judge suspended sentence on him.

One lone man came before the bar of justice this morning and he was one of the same kind as the others on Saturday. Officer McCue caught him begging on West Seventh street and brought him in. The Judge allowed him to go on the promise to "get a wiggle on" as soon as possible, which he did.

Dunellen.

H. Feirstein, of Newark, has opened a tailor shop at 275 North avenue.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces, such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The Elizabeth Athletic Club's ten-man team will open the season Nov. 15th in the Amateur League tournament with a game on the Newark Bay Club's alleys.

The Crescent Wheelmen bowl the deciding game with the Westfields tomorrow evening. The Plainfield team will be picked from the following: Petrie, Price, Smith, Saunders, Vail, Stephenson, Anderson, Homan, Buckle, Maltby and Wilbur.

The Alcyone Cyclers, of Elizabeth, have decided to tempt fortune on the alleys and have already arranged for games with the C. Y. M. L., of Plainfield; the Jollys and Spheroids, of Hoboken, and the Westfield Club. Howard McConnell will look after the interests of the teams.

At the meeting held at Cranford to arrange a schedule of games to be rolled for the Westfield Standard trophy the following plan was decided upon. It was decided that each club should be assessed $10, payable on or before Dec. 1st, '95. The proceeds to go toward defraying necessary expenses of the secretary and for the following prizes: Second team prize, $10; first individual prize, $15; second individual prize, $10. It was also decided to roll eight games with each club, four at home and four away, and to bowl not oftener than once a week. In competing for individual averages sixteen games necessary to qualify. The rules and by-laws of the Amateur Athletic League are to govern in all cases not already provided for. The visiting clubs are to take the alleys at 7:45 p. m. and to retain them until the game commences, which shall be not later than 8:15 p. m. The following schedule was adopted:

Nov.	12th	Cranford at Westfield.
"	14th	Park at Roselle.
"	21st	Westfield at Park.
"	22d	Roselle at Cranford.

PUNTS AND KICKS.

The Elmira Athletic Club's football team came to Orange Saturday and was defeated on the Orange Oval by the Orange Athletic Club players by a score of 6 to 0.

The second Y. M. C. A. eleven is an actual thing and they would like to arrange games with teams averaging about 145 pounds. Volney F. Green has been appointed captain.

The Plainfield third team had a walk over in their game with a Westfield eleven on the Park avenue field, Saturday morning. They won without trouble be the score of 26 to 0.

Wesley Abbott, of Central avenue, filled the position of tackle on the Yale Freshmen eleven in their game with the South Orange Field Club, on Saturday and made one of the touchdowns. The Yale men won easily.

There was a very one sided game on the Park avenue grounds when the Alis boys, the crack junior team of this city, defeated the junior borough eleven by a score of 18 to 0. The Alis team made three touchdowns of which J. V. Rittenhouse made two, and Harry Cuming one. Two goals were kicked, one by William Wadsworth, and one by Morris Dermont. The borough boys made a safety, the ball being knocked from the hands of an Alis rusher just as he crossed the line. The interference of the Alis was excellent while their opponents had none. Another game will be played between the two teams on Saturday. At the conclusion of the game between the Alis and the Borough elevens, a game was played between two scrub teams captained by W. Kirby Dwight and William W. McCutchen respectively. McCutchen's team won by the score of 8 to 4.

The football committee of the Orange Athletic Club has sent out a very prolific statement of the controversy between Orange and Crescent over the game which was to have been played on November 16th, and on which date Orange has made arrangements to play Yale.

GOLF.

The young ladies of the Morristown Field Club had a very interesting golf tournament Saturday. It was the first contest ever held for ladies over the club course. The membership of the club is composed chiefly of the younger element of Morristown. The tournament Saturday was limited to young ladies of eighteen years and under. Miss Alice Day won the match and the honor of being the first holder of the cup by a score of 66 strokes.

As the list of golf clubs in this country lengthens, the advantage of having a controlling body like the United States Golf Association, becomes more and more apparent. It is, therefore, all the more remarkable that no association or league of a similar nature has ever been formed in Great Britain. There is at last a decided movement under foot in that country to form some such governing body.

of each week.

DR. LIGHTHILL makes the treatment of deafness, catarrh and diseases of the throat, lungs and heart a specialty.

Piles radically and permanently cured in a few weeks without the use of the knife, ligature or cautery and without pain or detention from business. The most desperate cases yield unfailingly to Dr. Lighthill's unique method of treatment, with guaranteed success. Fistula, fissure and ulcers of the rectum are also completely and permanently cured without the knife or other surgical operation.

Diseases of the bowels, bladder and stomach, mental and nervous derangements, diseases of the skin and blood and all chronic and obstinate complaints affecting the human system, of whatever name or nature, are successfully treated.

DR. LIGHTHILL refers with pardonable pride to the remarkable cures of his former practice in Plainfield and to the reputation which he established throughout the State. He has in his possession hundreds of testimonials from well-known residents of Plainfield and vicinity, which can be seen at his office.

A MINER'S INITIATION

THE LEADVILLE WAY OF GIVING A TENDERFOOT NERVE.

Peter Dean of Boston Was Born to Be a Miner and Was Allowed to Fire a Shot His First Day In the Shaft—How It Was That Peter's Hair Joined the Silver Party.

Peter Dean, a young mining engineer, went from Boston to Leadville to acquire the practical part of his profession. He tells what befell him as follows: "At Leadville I met a person named Thompson—Gassy Thompson, he was called by those about him in testimony to his powers as a conversationalist. A barkeeper who seemed the best informed and the most gentlemanly soul in town told me that Gassy Thompson was a miner full of practical skill and that he was just then engaged in sinking a shaft, I might arrange with Gassy and learn the business. At the barkeeper's hint, I proposed as much to him. 'All right,' said Gassy; 'come out to the shaft tomorrow.'

"The next day I was at the place appointed. The shaft was already 50 feet deep. Besides myself and this person Gassy, who was to tutor me, there was a creature named Jim. That made three of us. At the suggestion of Gassy he and I descended into the shaft. Jim was left on the surface. We went down by means of a bucket, Jim unwinding us from a rickety old windlass. Once down, Gassy and I, with sledges and drill, penetrated a hole in the bottom of the shaft. I held the drill, Gassy wielding the sledge. When the hole met the worshipful taste of my tutor, he put in a dynamite cartridge, connected a long five minute fuse therewith and carefully thumbed it about and packed it in with wet clay.

"At Gassy's word I was then hauled to the surface by Jim. I added my strength to the windlass; Gassy climbed into the bucket, lighted the fuse and was then swiftly wound to the surface by Jim and myself. We then dragged the windlass aside, uncovered the mouth of the shaft and quickly scampered to a distance to be out of harm's reach. At the end of five minutes from the time that Gassy had lighted the fuse, and perhaps three minutes after we had cleared away, the shot exploded with a deafening report. As a result, tons of rock were shot up from the mouth of the shaft full 50 feet into the air. It was all very impressive and gave me a lesson in the tremendous power of dynamite. I was much pleased and felt as if I were learning.

"Following the explosion, Gassy and I again repaired to the bottom of the shaft, and after clearing away the debris and sending it up out by the bucket we resumed the sledge and drill. We completed another hole and were ready for a second shot. This was about noon. It was at this point the miscreant Gassy began to put into action a plot he had formed against me, and to carry out which the murderer, Jim, lent ready aid. You must remember that I had perfect confidence in these two villians. 'I never seed no tenderfoot git along like you do at this business,' said Thompson to me. 'Looks like you was born to be a miner,' he went on. 'Now, I'm goin to let you fire the next shot. Usual, I wouldn't feel justified in allowin a tenderfoot to fire a shot for plumb three months. But you has a genius for minin. It comes as easy to you as robbin a birds' nest. I'd be doin wrong to hold you back.'

"Of course I naturally felt pleased. To be allowed to fire a dynamite shot on my first day in a shaft I felt and knew to be an honor. I determined to write home to my friends of this triumph. Gassy said he'd put in the shot, and he secured one of giant size. I saw the explosive placed in the hole. Then he attached the fuse and thumbed the clay about it as before. He gave me a few last words. 'After I gets up,' he said, 'an me an Jim's all ready, you climb into the bucket an light the fuse. Then raise the long yell to me an Jim, an we'll yank you out. But be shore an light the fuse. Thar's nuthin more discouragin than for to wait half an hour outside an no cortride goin off. Especial when it goes off after you goes back to see what's the matter with her. So be shore an light the fuse, an then Jim an me'll run you up the second follorin. This oughter be a great day for you, young man, firin a shot this away, the first six hours you're a miner.'

"Jim and Gassy were at the windlass and yelled, 'All ready below!' I was in the bucket, and at the word scratched a match and lit the fuse. It sputtered with alarming ardor and threw off a shower of sparks. 'Hoist away!' I called. The villains ran me up about ten feet and came to a dead halt. At this crisis they seemed to get into an altercation. They both abandoned the windlass, and I could hear them cursing and threatening and shooting presumably at each other. 'I'll have your heart out,' I heard Gassy say. My alarm was without a limit. I'd seen one shot go off. Here I was a-swinging some ten feet over a heavier charge and about to be blown into eternity. Meanwhile the caitiffs, on whom my life depended, abandoned me to settle some accursed feud of their own.

"I cannot tell you of my agony. The fuse was spitting fire like 40 fiends; the narrow shaft was choked with smoke. I swung there helpless awaiting death, while the two rascals, Gassy and Jim, were trying to kill each other above. Either from smoke or excitement I fainted. When I came to myself I was outside the shaft safe and sound, while Gassy and his disreputable assistant were laughing at their joke. There had been no shot placed in the drill hole; the heartless Gassy had palmed it and carried it with him to the surface.

"At my very natural inquiry, made in a weak voice—for I was still sick and broken—as to what it all meant, they said it was merely a Leadville joke and intended for the initation of a tenderfoot. 'It gives 'em nerve,' said Gassy. 'It puts heart into 'em an does 'em good.' As soon as I could walk I severed my relations with Gassy Thompson and his outlaw adherent, Jim. The next morning my hair turned the milky sort you see. The Leadville people with whom I discussed the crime laughed and said the drinks were on me. That was all the sympathy, all the redress, I got." This is the true tale of how Mr. Peter Dean's hair joined the silver party. It also shows why his friends today speak evil of the great throbbing west, its jolly practical jokers and the rough shod pilgrim initiation system.—Denver Field and Farm.

INSOLENCE AT A DISCOUNT.

Instead of Licking the Clerk the Guest Paid Him In His Own Coin.

Behind the onyx desk of a modern hotel in the Tenderloin a clerk is employed who was a remarkable exponent of the up to date young man who makes fun of others and thinks that his wit is invincible. He met his Waterloo recently, and now he is one of the meekest men that shouts "Front!"

It was early in the evening. The electric lights had just begun to blaze with an air of assurance. The music floating down from the dining room fell with a dreamy cadence upon the ears of the guests who were chatting in the corridors after dinner. Suddenly a man broke away from a group and stepped up to the desk. He was the last one that a shrewd observer would have picked out for an "easy mark," to use the vernacular, but the clerk made a mistake. The man said to the diamond bedecked guardian of the keys:

"Has any one inquired for me today?"

The clerk stroked his mustache, looked admiringly at a solitaire ring that sparkled on his finger and replied nonchalantly:

"Were you expecting somebody to ask for you?"

The man addressed looked hard at the clerk and replied in glacial tones:

"I never expect anything in this world. But that makes no difference. Did any one inquire for me?"

The clerk eyed him in mild wonder and then said, with a giggle:

"I think you would be ashamed to ask. Of course there did. It was a lady, and she was here twice."

"What sort of a looking lady was she?" asked the stranger.

The clerk said, with an air of conviction that was mingled with contempt for his interlocutor:

"Oh, just a smooth faced lady."

"That's my wife," said the other in such a cool way that the clerk was staggered, and his joke fell dead. The other continued:

"She will be back, so I think I might as well take a room. What are your rates for rooms?"

"Two dollars a day and upward," said the clerk glibly.

"I guess you mean $2 a day and down, don't you?" said the prospective guest in a tantalizing way.

"I know my business," said the clerk. "Two dollars a day and up, and that goes."

"No, you don't," said the man on the outside. "You mean that the rooms on the top floor are $2 a day, and then they raise as you come down. That is $2 a day and down, isn't it?"

The clerk gasped for breath and then said faintly, "Will you register?"—New York Tribune.

NOTICE

is hereby given that the Common Council have fixed the 26th day of November, A. D. 1895, at eight o'clock p. m., at the Council chamber, No. 109 Park avenue, in the city of Plainfield, N. J., as the time and place for Townsend Rushmore, William T. Kirk and James C. Manning, the commissioners appointed by the Common Council pursuant to the ordinance, entitled "An Ordinance for the laying out and opening of Watchung avenue from the Northwesterly side line of East Front street to the city line in Green Brook," approved August 5th, 1895, to meet. The street proposed, laid out and opened will extend from the Northwesterly side line of East Front street, as now laid out and opened, to the city line in Green Brook, the center line of which street, as well as the width thereof, being particularly described in said ordinance, and shown on map in said ordinance referred to and on file in the office of the City Clerk, entitled "map showing proposed extension of Watchung avenue from East Front street to Green Brook, Plainfield, N. J., June 1895."

The lands, real estate and appurtenances intended to be taken for such purpose are all that come within thirty feet of either side of said center line between Northwesterly side line of East Front street, as now laid out and opened, and the city line in Green Brook, as shown in said map and said ordinance, to which reference is hereby made for more detailed description.

By order of the Common Council.
JAMES T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.

Marsh, Ayers & Co.

A STRANGE TRAGEDY.

By W. CLARK RUSSELL.

[Copyright, 1895, by the Author.]

It is proper I should state at once that the names I give in this extraordinary experience are fictitious. The date of the tale is easily within the memory of the middle aged.

The large, well known Australian liner White Star lay off the wool sheds in Sydney harbor slowly filling up with wool. I say slowly, for the oxen were languid up country, and the stuff came in as Fox is said to have written his history—"drop by drop." We were, however, advertised to sail in a fortnight from the day I open this story on, and there was no doubt of our getting away by then.

I, who was chief officer of the vessel, was pacing the poop under the awning, when I saw a lady and gentleman approaching the vessel. They spoke to the mate of a French bark which lay just ahead of us, and I concluded that their business was with that ship, till I saw the Frenchman, with a flourish of his hat, motion toward the White Star, whereupon they advanced and stepped on board.

I went on to the quarter deck to receive them. The gentleman had the air of a military man—short, erect as a royal mast, with plenty of whiskers and mustache, though he wore his chin cropped. His companion was a very fine young woman of about six and twenty years, above the average height, faultlessly shaped, so far as a rude seafaring eye is privileged to judge of such matters; her complexion was pale, inclined to sallow, but most delicate, of a transparency of flesh that showed the blood eloquent in her cheek, coming and going with every mood that possessed her. She wore a little fall of veil, but she raised it when her companion handed her over the side in order to look round and aloft at the fabric of spar and shroud towering on high, with its central bunting of house flag pulling in ripples of gold and blue from the royal mast head, and so I had a good sight of her face, and particularly of her eyes.

I never remember the like of such eyes in a woman. To describe them as neither large nor small, the pupils of the liquid dusk of the Indian's, the eyelashes long enough to cast a silken shadow of tenderness upon the whole expression of her face when the lids dropped—to say all this is to convey nothing, simply because their expression formed the wonder, strangeness and beauty of them, and there is no virtue in ink, at all events in my ink, to communicate it. I do not exaggerate when I assure you that the surprise of the beauty of her eyes, when they came to mine and rested upon me steadfast in their stare as a picture, was a sort of shock in its way, comparable in a physical sense to one's unexpected handling of something slightly electric. For the rest, her hair was very black and abundant and of that sort of deadness of hue which you find among the people of Asia. I cannot describe her dress. Enough if I say that she was in mourning, but with a large admixture of white, for those were the hot weeks in Sydney.

"Is the captain on board?" inquired the gentleman.

"He is not, sir."

"When do you expect him?"

"Every minute."

"May we stop here?"

"Certainly. Will you walk into the cuddy or on to the poop?"

"Oh, we'll keep in the open—we'll keep in the open," cried the gentleman, with the impetuosity of a man rendered irritable by the heat. "You'll have had enough of the cuddy, Miss Le Grand, long before you reach the old country."

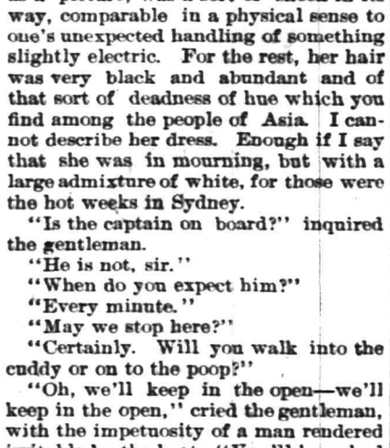
She smiled. I liked her face then. It was a fine, glad, good humored smile and humanized her wonderful eyes just as though you clothed a ghost in flesh, making the specter natural and commonplace

As we ascended the poop ladder the gentleman asked me who I was quite courteously, though his whole manner was marked by a quality of military abruptness. When he understood I was chief officer, he exclaimed:

"Then, Miss Le Grand, permit me to introduce Mr. Tyler to you. Miss Georgina Le Grand is going home in your ship. She will be alone. We have placed her in the care of the captain."

"Perhaps," said Miss Le Grand, with another of her fine smiles, "I ought to introduce you, Mr. Tyler, to my uncle, Colonel Atkinson."

Again I pulled off my cap, and the colonel laughed as he lifted his wide



"I ought to introduce you, Mr. Tyler, to my uncle, Colonel Atkinson."

straw hat. I guessed he laughed at a certain naivete in the girl's way of introducing us.

The colonel was disposed to chat. Out of England Englishmen are among the most talkative of the human race. Likely enough he wanted to interest me in Miss Le Grand because of my situation on board. A chief mate is a considerable figure. If any mishap incapacitates the master, the chief mate takes charge. We walked the poop, the three of us, in the violet shadow cast by the awning. The colonel constantly directed his eyes along the quay to observe if the captain was coming. During this stroll to and fro the white planks I got these particulars, partly from the direct assertions of the colonel, partly from the occasional remarks of the girl:

Colonel Atkinson had married her father's sister. Her father had been an officer in the army and had sailed from England with the then governor of New South Wales. After he had been in Sydney a few months he sent for his daughter, whom he had left behind him with a maternal aunt, her mother having died some years before. She reached Sydney to find her father dead. His excellency was very kind to her, and she found very many sympathetic friends, but her home was in England, and to it she was returning in the White Star under the care of the master, Captain Edward Griffiths, after a stay of nearly five months in Sydney with her uncle, Colonel Atkinson.

Half an hour passed before the captain arrived. When he stepped on board, I lifted my cap and left the poop, and the captain and the others went into the cuddy.

Our day of departure came round, and not a little rejoiced was I when the tug had fairly got hold of us and we were floating over the sheet calm surface of Sydney bay, past some of the loveliest bits of scenery the world has to offer, on our road to the mighty ocean beyond—the grim portals of Sydney Heads. We were a fairly crowded ship, what with Jacks and passengers. The steerage and 'tween decks were full up with people going home. In the cuddy some of the cabins remained unlet. We mustered in all, I think, about 12 gentlemen and lady passengers, one of whom, needless to say, was Miss Georgina Le Grand.

I had been busy on the forecastle when she came aboard, but heard afterward from Robson, the second mate, that the governor's wife, with Colonel Atkinson and certain nobs out of government house, had driven down to the ship to say goodby to the girl. She was alone. I wondered she had not a maid, but I afterward heard from a bright little lady on board, a Mrs. Burney, one of the wickedest flirts that ever with a flash of dark glance drew a sigh from a man, that the woman Miss Le Grand had engaged to accompany her as maid to Europe had omitted to put in an appearance at the last moment, in perfect conformity with the manners and habits of the domestic servants of the Australian colonies of those days, and the young lady having no time to procure another maid had shipped alone.

At dinner on that first day of our departure, when the ship was at sea and I was stumping the deck in charge, I observed, in glancing through the skylight, that the captain had put Miss Le Grand upon the right of his chair, at the head of the table, a little before the fluted and emblazoned shaft of mizzenmast. I don't think above five sat down to dinner. A long heave of swell had sickened the hunger out of most of them. But it was a glorious evening, and the red sunshine, flashing fair upon the wide open skylights, dazzled out as brilliant and hospitable a picture of cabin equipment as the sight could wish.

I had a full view of Miss Le Grand, and occasionally paused to look at her, so standing as to be unobserved. Now that I saw her with her hat off I found something very peculiar and fascinating in her beauty. Her eyes seemed to fill her face, subduing every lineament to the full spiritual light and meaning in them, till her countenance looked sheer intellect, the very quality and spirit of mind itself. This effect, I think, was largely achieved by the uncommon hue of her skin. It accentuated color, casting a deeper dye into the blackness of her hair, sharpening the fires in her eyes, painting her lips with a more fiery tinge of carnation, through which, when she smiled, her white teeth shone like light itself.

I noticed even on this first day, during my cautious occasional peeps, that the captain was particularly attentive to the young lady, in which indeed I should have found nothing significant, for she had in a special degree been committed to his trust, but for the circumstances of his being a bachelor. Even then, early and fresh as the time was for thinking of such things, I guessed when I looked at the girl that the hardy mariner alongside of her would not keep his heart whole a week, if indeed, for the matter of that, he was not already head over ears.

He was a good looking man in his way; not everybody's type of manly beauty perhaps, but certain of admiration from those who relish a strong sea flavor and the color of many years and countless leagues of ocean in looks, speech and deportment. He was about 35, the heartiest laugher that ever strained a rib in merriment, a genial, kindly man, with a keen, seawardly blue eye, weather colored face, short whiskers and rising in his socks to near 6 feet. I believe he was of Welsh blood. This was my first voyage with him. The rigorous discipline of the quarter deck had held us apart, and all that I could have told of him I have here written.

For some time after we left Sydney nothing whatever noteworthy happened. One quiet evening I came on deck at 8 o'clock to take charge of the ship till midnight. We were still in the temperate parallels, the weather of a true Pacific sweetness, and by day the ocean a dark blue rolling breast of water, feathering on every round of swell in sea flashes, out of which would sparkle the flying fish to sail down the bright, mild wind for a space, then vanish in some brow of brine with the flight of a silver arrow.

This night the moon was dark, the weather somewhat thick, the stars pale over the trucks and hidden in the obscurity a little way down the dusky slope of firmament. Wind sails were wriggling fore and aft like huge white snakes, gaping for the tops and writhing out of the hatches. The flush of sunset was dying when I came on deck. I saw the captain slowly pacing the weather side of the poop with Miss Le Grand. He seemed earnest in his talk and gestures. Enough western light still lived to enable me to see faces, and I observed that Mrs. Burney, standing to leeward of a skylight talking with a gentleman, would glance at the couple with a satirical smile whenever they came abreast of her.

But soon the night came down in darkness upon the deep, the wind blew damp out of the dusk in a long moan over the rail, heeling the ship yet by a couple of degrees; the captain sang out for the fore and mizzen royals to be clewed up and furled and shortly afterward went below, first handing Miss Le Grand down the companion way.

I guessed the game was up with the worthy man. He had met his fate and taken to it with the meekness of a sheep. He might do worse, I thought, as I started on a solitary stroll, so far as looks are concerned, but what of her nature—her character? It was puzzling to think of what sort of spirit it was that looked out of her wonderful eyes, and she was not a kind of girl that a man would care to leave ashore. So much beauty full of a subtle endevilment of some sort, as it seemed to me, must needs demand the constant sentineling of a husband's presence. That was how it struck me.

By 11 o'clock all was hushed throughout the ship—lights out, the captain turned in, nothing stirring forward save the flitting shape of the lookout under the yawn of the pale square of fore course. It was blowing a pleasant breeze of wind, and, lost in thought, I leaned over the rail at the weather fore end of the poop, watching the cold sea glow shining in the dark water as the foam spat past, sheeting away astern in a furrow like moonlight. I will swear I did not doze. That I never was guilty of while on duty in all the years I was at sea, but I don't doubt that I was sunk deep in thought, insomuch that my reverie may have possessed a temporary power of abstraction as complete as slumber itself.

I was startled into violent wakefulness by a cannonade of canvas aloft and found the ship in the wind. I looked aft. The wheel was deserted—at least I believed so till on rushing to it, meanwhile shouting to the watch on deck, I spied the figure of the helmsman on his face, close beside the binnacle.

I thought he was dead. The watch to my shouts came tumbling to the braces, and in a few minutes the captain made his appearance. The ship was got to her course afresh, by which time the man who had been steering was so far recovered as to be able to sit on the grating abaft the wheel and relate what had happened.

He lay on the deck.

He was a Dane and spoke with a strong foreign accent, beyond my art to reproduce. He said he had been looking away to leeward, believing he saw a light out upon the horizon, when on turning his head he beheld a ghost at his side.

"A what?" said the captain.

"A ghost, sir, so help me"— and here the little Dane indulged in some very violent language, all designed to convince us that he spoke the truth.

"What was it like?" asked the captain.

"It was dressed in white and stood looking at me. I tried to run and could not, but fell and maybe fainted."

"The durned idiot slept," said the captain to me, "and dreamt and dropped on his nut."

"Had I dropped on my nut, should not have woke up then?" cried the Dane in a passion of candor.

"Go forward and turn in," said the captain. "The doctor shall see you and report to me."

When the man was gone, the captain asked me if I had seen anything likely to produce the impression of a ghost on an ignorant, credulous man's mind? I answered no, wondering that he should ask such a question.

"How long was the man in a fit, d'ye think?" said he, "that is, before you found out that the wheel was deserted?"

"Three or four minutes."

He looked into the binnacle, took a turn about the decks, and without saying anything more about the ghost went below.

THE RETORT DISCOURTEOUS.

A Bright Newsboy Answers a Lady In a Caustic Manner.

A small and dirty newsboy worked a paying game for a week or so down in the shopping districts. He would don a most pathetic expression, go up to a woman and say, "Missis, won't you buy a paper? Dis is my birfday and I ain't sold hardly any." Of course he would sell one in nine cases out of ten and would generally get a nickel and be told to keep the change. He must have kept this up for fully a week and reaped a bountiful harvest. At last one young woman who had tired of the same story and who became rather skeptical on the subject of the "birfdays," stopped the young genius and remarked in tones clear enough to be heard some little distance, "See here, little boy, what did you say about your birthday?"

"Lady, please buy a paper. Dis is my birfday, and I ain't sold but one paper today," whined the young rascal.

"Now, little boy, to my certain knowledge you have had a birthday every day this week. Aren't you ashamed to tell such stories?"

He was cornered for a minute and stood with head cast down and every appearance of remorse. At last he looked up with a most innocent expression and said: "Well, you see, lady, you en me we're different. I ain't very old, en I thought I'd have a lot of birfdays to oncet, en den I could quit havin 'em, like you. See?"

She concluded he was past reforming, and, slipping a dime in his hand, moved on sighing over the wickedness of the generation, while the young sinner executed a pas seul of his own invention.—Chicago Tribune.

Sunlight and Colors.

Every one knows the danger of mistakes in attempting to select colored articles in artificial light. Only the white light of the sun, containing all the elements of color known to us, can be trusted in such cases to reveal the actual hues possessed by the objects under examination. Some interesting scientific experiments on the effect of light in revealing or concealing color were lately made by Dr. H. W. Vogel, the distinguished physicist and astronomer in Berlin.

Starting with the fact that in a photographic "dark room," filled with ruby colored light, bright scarlet cloth appears white, it was shown that when no white light whatever is admitted to a dark room the power of the eye to distinguish colors is temporarily lost, and all objects appear of various shades of white and black.

By mingling blue or green with red light the colors of objects can be made to undergo remarkable changes. The quantity of light alone also affects the appearance of a color, particularly certain tints of blue and violet, for which reason, even in the absence of artificial lights, a person purchasing colored goods in a dark store must carry them to the door or window, where a strong illumination can be obtained in order to make certain of the precise shade.—Youth's Companion.

AN AUTUMN IDYL.

A sunny calm upon the moorland lies,
Shadowed by fleecy clouds that lightly pass,
Peaceful beneath the mellow autumn skies
Save for the whir of wings among the grass.

And one that idly lies upon the sward
Thinks as the wailing partridge cry he hears
How the beloved disciple of our Lord
At Ephesus grew old and white with years.

He who had leaned upon his Master's breast,
He who had watched beside him to the end,
Let a tame partridge on his bosom rest,
The plaything of his age, his daily friend.

And unto one that chided thus he spoke:
"A gift from God the bird to me is sent.
The ox would chafe if always under yoke.
The bow were broken if 'twere always bent."

ORGANIZED AID OFFICERS.

THE ASSOCIATION TO BE REORGANIZED AND INCORPORATED.

The Word "Citizens," to be Dropped From the Title of the Society—President M. W. Tyler Re-elected—Other Matters.

There were about fifteen members of the Citizens' Organized Aid Association present at the meeting held in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church last evening and in the absence of the president, Mason W. Tyler, the chair was ably occupied by H. B. Newhall, the vice-president.

After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting the chairman called for a report from the Committee on Incorporation. D. P. Hall reported for the committee. The new constitution and by-laws which are, with the exception of a few slight changes like the old ones, were then adopted. One of the changes was made in the title by striking out the word "Citizens," which makes it now read "Organized Aid Association of Plainfield and North Plainfield;" and there will be three stated meetings of the Association a year.

The resolutions offered by the committee consisted of the following:

That steps be taken to incorporate the association; that officers be elected and empowered to incorporate the same; that the bylaws and constitution go into effect when the association becomes incoporated. They were all adopted. It was also ordered that the secr tary place the resolutions in the minutes.

There was a slight objection made to holding three meetings during the year, but the rule finally prevailed. The matter of finance was discussed and Treasurer H. P. Reynolds stated that there was almost enough money in his hands to meet the bills. The Association then adjourned and the members of the council of the Association met for the purpose of electing officers. All other business was suspended except that named.

Vice-President H. B. Newhall, and secretary J. Doull Miller, presided at the meeting also.

The election resulted as follows:

President, Mason W. Tyler; First Vice-President, H. B. Newhall; Second Vice-President, Mrs. Opdyke; Third Vice-President, C. W. McCutchen; Secretary, J. Doull Miller; Treasurer, H. P. Reynolds

The present committees were left standing till the new constitution and bylaws go into effect, when they will be elected at the first meeting held.

George Thatcher in Vaudeville.

Cupid's Chariot company, with whom George Thatcher has been playing since his minstrel company closed, disbanded at Elizabeth Saturday and Mr. Thatcher returned to his home in this city. He has an engagement to work on the vaudeville stage and will open in New York, and afterwards appear in Boston, Chicago and Philadelphia.

Mr. Reed Suggested for Speaker.

We are sorry that we are to be represented in the Assembly by a Republican, but seeing that such is the case, we are glad that the representative has the standing that Mr. Reed has. He will be one of the brainiest men in the House and should be elected speaker.—Somerville Democrat.

Delegates Dinner.

The delegates to the recent Christian Endeavor convention held at Atlantic City will enjoy a dinner at the First Baptist church on the evening of November 21st. Later in the evening a public meeting will be held in the body of the church, when the delegates will make reports.

Hotel Talk for New Brunswick.

There is a possibility of a large and elegantly appointed hotel being built in New Brunswick in the near future, to be managed by a Plainfielder.

Jurors Discharged.

All the petit jurors at Elizabeth were discharged until November 19th, excepting one panel, which reports on Wednesday to try a civil suit.

Croup is a terror to young mothers. To post them concerning the first symptoms, and treatment is the object of this item. The first indication of croup is hoarseness. In a child who is subject to croup it may be taken as a sure sign of the approach of an attack. Following this hoarseness is a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's Cough remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the rough cough has appeared it will prevent the attack. It has never been known to fail. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

UNIVERSITY EXTENSION STUDIES.

They Are Given in a Form of Lecture and Afford Instruction.

The interest in this place for securing a course of these lectures for the benefit of Plainfield is increasing and will continue to increase, as a knowledge of what is proposed extends among thoughtful people.

Two facts should be borne in mind. First, that these are not lectures in the ordinary sense, but are styled in the circular, issued by Rutgers College professors who have charge of the project, "Lecture studies." The professor delivers a lecture, say on the Eastern question, invites all who are so disposed, to tarry for further explanations by questions and answers, furnishes to each hearer a syllabus, or full abstract of the lecture, and gives lists of authors, to be consulted for further information, and at the close of the course an examination is held.

It is proposed to engage Prof. Riggs to give a course of six lectures on the "Eastern Question," which is now exciting so much attention, and which he is so well qualified from twenty years residence in Turkey and from many years study, to discuss. One hundred and seventy-five subscriptions have been obtained, and seventy-five more are needed before the committee having the matter in charge, will feel justified in inviting Prof. Riggs to come and commence the course. Second, that these "Lecture-studies" are intended to be enjoyed by all who are willing to come to them. With this object in view, the price of admission to the course has been put at seventy five cents.

Appreciating the importance and beneficent character of the undertaking, the trustees of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church have granted the chapel as a place for the delivery of the lectures, which it is proposed to begin on Tuesday, the 26th inst., provided the remaining seventy-five subscriptions are obtained. Major W. D. Miller, Isaac L. Miller or Rev. E. M. Rodman will be glad to receive subscriptions.

NEW GREEN GOODS PLAN.

Two Indiana Come-Ons Swindled in a Coach at Rahway.

Green goods men are in Rahway once more, and yesterday two comeons were taken in and swindled. A new means of working the game was used, although the usual inducements were offered. The results were the same—the victims received packages of green paper. There was but one swindler, and the exchange was made in a coach.

George Hasson and Henry Benjamin, two residents of Indiana, were the victims, and they did not open the packages until the smooth-tongued swindler had left the coach. Of course he is now missing. The men won't say how much they lost.

Sheriff Dilts Retires.

George Ditts will leave the Sheriff's office in Somerville today and his successor, William N. H. Wyckoff, will be inducted into office. Sheriff Dilts has been a general favorite during the past three years that he has occupied the Shrievalty office of Somerset county, and he has won the respect of all parties regardless of politics.

Employer and Employe Don't Agree.

The case of Richard Caldwell vs. Charles Coriell, on contract, will come before Justice Huff, of Dunellen, today. The suit is to recover wages, Caldwell claiming that they amounted to $60, while his former employer says $19 is the total. Harry C. Runyon represents the plaintiff.

Dinner of the Yale Club.

The alumni dinner of the Plainfield Yale Club will be held at the Casino on Thursday evening, December 5th.

Henry Wilson, the postmaster at Welshton, Florida, says he cured a case of diarrhœa of long standing in six hours, with one small bottle of Chambertain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. What a pleasant surprise that must have been to the sufferer. Such cures are not unusual with this remedy. In many instances only one or two doses are required to give permanent relief. It can always be depended upon. When reduced with water it is pleasant to take. For sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. R. Armstrong, Manager.

DANCES GAY AND PRETTY.

The Kirmess Opened in a Most Successful Manner.

A GREAT CROWD ATTEND THE EVENT

The Ladies Who Are Working Hard for the Muhlenberg Hospital Are Greeted With a Thousand Patronizing People Who See, Admire and Applaud—It Is a Galaxy of Bright Home Talent and a Panorama of Pretty Young Girls and Stately Young Men—Every Night Will See Them Improve in Their Performance—Light Fantastic Steps and Picturesque Booths to Represent All Nations—Description of the Dances and Names of Participants.

It was cold and dark outside last evening with only the stars for a light, but inside the Columbia Cycle Academy, where the Kirmess was about to open, all was life and brightness. There was a look of expectancy on every face and even the gaily decorated booths could not attract the attention of the crowd that thronged the hall before the the time came for the curtain to go up. As each newcomer entered the hall and the brilliant picture of people, decorated booths, flags and Chinese lanterns, blended into one harmonious whole caught their gaze, there was that long drawn exclamation of satisfaction from the fairer sex, while the men looked around completely dazed by the great change which had been made in the once barren looking Cycle Academy. The hall was beautiful—there was no denying that fact—while the booths which encircled it made the scene almost like fairyland. The electric lights shining out from every nook and corner, the gaily costumed dancers flitting by and the animated throng added to the illusion. It would take a Ruskin to describe the scene and he could scarce do it credit.

There was the usual first night's delay, but the spectators, who had by this time filled every available seat, forgave the brief delay when the curtain rose. There grouped on the stage were all the dancers, the Indian brave with gaudily painted face and brilliant costume, the fair maidens of the May Dance, the gay fisher lads and lassies of sunny Italy—they were all there forming a picture well worth coming to see, and as the different colored lights were flashed on them the building fairly shook with the applause.

At a signal from the court jester, represented by William N. Runyon, the tableaux was changed into a grand procession which wound back and forth on the stage until finally they disappeared behind the wings, and with a parting bow the jester followed.

After a pleasing selection by a male chorus from the Plainfield Sangerbund, the North Country Harvest Dance of the Germans was the attraction. On they tripped, the country lads in purple coats and knee breeches, with straw hats placed on at any convenient angle, and their lassies in light-blue skirts, white waists and back bodices.

They were a rustic gathering and they danced as if life had no cares for them, for the harvest was over and they were happy. Miss Helen Taylor and Charles Faber led the dancers and then danced together. Miss Taylor was especially good, entering into the full spirit of her part. The chaperones were Miss Emilie Schipper, Mrs. Evarts Tracy and Mrs. J. F. Wiechers, and the dancers were the Misses Helen Taylor, Antonia Mettfessel, Cornelia Faber, Anna W. Miller, M. Sterling, Edith H. Tracy, Helene Graff, Emma Sterling, Marion Henderson, Elvira Mettfessel, Alice Barlow, Mary E. Tracy, and Chas. Faber, Siegfried Arens, Henry Wells, H. N. Stevens, S. W. McAneny, Carl Brown, Walter Douglass, Allen Taylor, E. N. Spraul, L. Barlow, Albert Woltman and Bryant Harman.

Scarcely had the harvesters left the stage than the music changed. It was now in wierd quick strains and then out flashed the Gypsies in their brilliant barbaric costumes, with flowing hair. They rushed and whirled about in a fascinating dance, in which they were joined by the gorgeous Hungarian peasants. Miss Emma Schoonmaker and Miss Florence Abbott danced the duet with perfect grace, and well deserved the loud applause which was given them. The chaperone was Mrs. F. H. Andrews and the dancers were the Misses Florence A. Abbott, May E. Waring, Maude Middledith, Mabel W. VanDeventer, Jessie J. Bushnell, Clara A. Frost, Emma Schoonmaker, Marion P. Bowen, Gertrude Andrews, Katharine McClure, Laura Worthington, Bessie Evans, and Carl Walz, Roger Erickson, Robert A. Beebe, Walter Place, Reeve Stockton, Morris Dumont, William N. Runyon, Arthur C. West, George F. Schoonmaker, Clarence Peck, Jack B. Dumont and Laurens K. VanBuren.

As the Gypsies glided out, the audience was transported to merry England on a bright May day and saw the fair maidens of the village, clad in white, with flowers in profusion, gather for a dance. Soon the May pole was brought and the ribbons were braided and then unbraided. A pretty trio was danced by the Misses Constance Patton, Hattie Goddard and Eleanor Williams. Mrs. Samuel P. Huntington was the chaperone and those that took part in it were the Misses Elsa Pfeiffer, Ethel Bowen, Mary Anderson Reinhart, Agnes Minford, Hattie Goddard Constance Patton, Bessie Cahoone, Bessie Bowen, Florence Cahoon, Clyde Burnet, Marguerite Burnet, Elsie Martin, Edith Burt, Ada Woodruff, Lucile Rockwell, Mildred Cone, Eleanor Williams.

There was another pause and then the orchestra struck up a lively measure and in danced the Italian fisher lad and lassies for the Tarantella. One of the number has been bitten by the deadly tarantula and the rest assist in the cure. The first part of the dance was slow and filled with pretty tableaux, but gradually the dance became more rapid and the music became more wierd. The dancers then came to a sudden halt and one of their number, Miss Meredith, sprang forward and one of the prettiest solo dances of the evening followed. Afterwards the natives of Italy go through the quickening measures and then they left as they came, while hearty applause rang forth from all sides.

The dancers were chaperoned by Mrs. S. A. Cruikshank, while those that took part were the Miss Maud Lord, Miss Fuller, Miss Bogardus, Miss Emma Bogardus, Miss Annie Horton, Miss Meredith, Miss Arline Crane, Miss French, Miss Langdon, Miss Titsworth, and Messrs Arthur B. Horton, Albert Sampson, B. O. Bowers, Jr., Wilbur F. Cornwell, Sydney R. Titsworth, H. O. Nightingale, H. L. Day, Clarence Bogart, William Langdon, and Nathan Titsworth.

Russia was the god father to the military dance and out came the warriors with helmet and brilliant uniform, while the Russian ladies in half military costume also appeared Half marching, half dancing they circled about the stage in excellent time, executing difficult figures without making a misstep. Then as the soldiers rested, the Russian Mazourka was danced by Miss Henerietta Goff in a catching manner. Miss Verden acted as chaperone to the following dancers: Misses Alicia McIntyre, Katheryn Flynn, Katheryn Carty, Mamie Motly, Lizzie Casey, Julia Keeley, May Day, Helen Kelly, Heneritta Goff, Nellie Keeley, and Messrs Patrick Gleason, Edward Flynn, Dennis Bagley, M. J. Higgins, W. J. O'Brein, Cornelius Guinee, Morris Owens, Arthur Sherman, Daniel Guinee, and Michael Kane.

In striking contrast to the simple peasants and fishermen were the elegantly costumed brave knights and fair ladies of the French court. They entered with slow and and stately step and passed through the difficult figures of the minuet with dignity and ease. The costumes were the most elaborate of any in the Kirmess, the knights in their court costumes with powdered wigs and the ladies in rich gowns and long trains. They also wore powdered wigs. The dance passed off with scarcely a mistake and was heartily applauded at the close. The chaperone was Mrs. Walter E. Stewart, the dancers were Mrs. William L. Saunders, Mrs. L. G. Timpson, Miss Annie Murphy, Miss Elizabeth Stewart; Mrs. James Scott, Miss Nella B. Whiton, Mrs. J. W. Reinhart, Miss Vail, Mrs. J. H. Hallock, Miss Annie Stewart, and Laurens Van Buren, L. G. Timpson, Harry Patten, Charles Faber, Howard Beebe, Harry Johnson, Fred Walz, Edward R. Finch, J. H. Hallock, F. W. Frost.

Then the orchestra played the familiar strains of a Scotch reel and out came the Highlanders, with tartan and plaid. The bonnie red-cheeked Highland lassies, with skirts of plaid and white waists, danced with a simple grace that pleased all the spectators and they deserved the long and hearty applause which followed their exit. One of the prettiest parts of the dance was the duet by Miss Lillian A. Force and H. C. VanEmburgh. Mrs. J. F. Mac Donald was the chaperone in this dance and those who took part in it were the Misses Laura Snediker, Laura Emmons, Emma Gillem, Minnie Williams, Pansy Herring, Etta Krymer, Louise Holmes, Lillian A. Force, and George Snediker, Judson R. Giles, Herbert Case, John McLaughlin, Frank Flannery, Robert Bruce Douglass, P. O. Dayton, H. C. Van Emburgh.

The other dances were all beautiful, as everyone said, but the novel War and Moon Dance of the American Indians caught the popular fancy and was the favorite dance of the evening. As soon as the Highlanders disappeared the stage grew darker and the music changed. In glided a band of squaws, dressed in true Indian fashion, running from one side of the stage listening for a sound that soon was heard. There was a lull in the music, and then to the steady tum tum of the drum, in came the braves. They did not walk nor was it a run, but a genuine Indian war dance. Round their brown squaws they circled, their gaudy costumes and glittering tomahaws changing color as the different colored lights were flashed on them. Then there was a wild, blood curdling yell, a sound of falling bodies and every brave lay upon the ground with his squaw kneeling at his side. And so they danced in true Indian style while the inspiring music made the spectators keep time. At last the Indians grouped themselves about the stage in picturesque attitudes and Miss Genevieve Daniel sprang forward and gave the Shadow dance. The large calceum light was turned out and only a small one behind the scenes was used, the light following her as she glided about the stage. Again the native Americans whirled about the stage, and then they were off. The applause was tremendous and the audience would not cease until the smiling Indians came out and bowed again and again. Mrs. H. M. Blish was the chaperone for this dance and the unrecognizable participants in it were Mrs. S. Clark, and the Misses Genevieve Daniel, Edith Little, Henrietta Blish, Nettie Langdon, Grace Barlow, Halla VanDeventer, Alice Thompson, Ethel Green, Euphemia J. Johnson, George O. Stevens, Arthur F. Freeman, Samuel Clark, Edgar I. Serrell, Meredith Dryden, Charles Delette Stillman, Blanchard Randolph, Frank Richards, Fred Bettman, Volney F. Green.

While the stage was yet dark, a vision in white voluminous skirts glided in and the Serpentine Dance by Mrs. Lemuel William Serrell was begun. A small calcium light was turned upon her as she glided to and fro and the different colored lights were thrown in rapid succession. A Plainfield critic, who has seen the best dancers of that kind in the world, has only the greatest praise for Mrs. Serrell and says that her performance is equal to any of the present stars on the stage. That her dancing was appreciated was shown by the great applause.

The last dance of the evening was the Toreador Dance of Spain, and a graceful one it was. The senoritas were gorgeously costumed in gold and black and made a pretty picture with the equally gorgeous senors with their long spears. The figures were all pretty, especially in the Spanish Cachonca, which was danced by Miss Mary Anderson Reinhart. Their chaperone was Mrs. J. T. Scott. The dancers were the Misses Annie Murphy, Laura Underwood, Mabel Pierson, Clara Woltman, Ayune McCready, Margaret Holly, Mary A. Reinhart, Shelah McCready, Edith VanBoskerck, Elsie McClure, Mary Holly; Elinor Underwood, and Harry Johnson, Louis G. Timpson, Carl Pfeiffer, William McClure, O. G. Waring, Irving West, Harry West, Howard Huntington, C. C. Hutchins, Ernest Swazye, T. VanBoskerck and F. E. Richards.

After the last dancer had disappeared and the first evening's dances were over, the crowd began to take in the beauties of the hall itself. From the iron frame supporting the roof large American flags were hung at intervals while strings of Chinese lanterns were suspended the length of the hall. Directly over the stage was an immense flag that almost covered it, lent for the occasion by the Standard Oil Company; a large Japanese umbrella and more lanters were arranged in artistic figures about it. Around the sides of the hall above the booths were smaller American flags and flags of the Red Cross Society, while the gay lanterns of China were in profusion. The front of the gallery was tastefully draped in light blue and white bunting and American flags.

The booths were none of them alike but all were most tastefully arranged. A very pleasant feature of the decorations was the great number of electric lights, which were placed in every available nook and empty corner.

The most novel of the booths was the two-storied Venetian booth painted and draped to represent the front of a house in that famous old city. Here were dolls of all kinds, from the football doll to the little colored baby.

Mrs. Hugh Hastings was in charge and was assisted by Mesdames G. A.

NO RATS WERE ANNIHILATED.

BUT INSTEAD PETER CONDIT SHOT HIMSELF IN THE LEG

Colored Boy in McVey's Starts to Kill Rats But the Flobert Rifle is Prematurely Discharged—The Bullet in His Foot

Rats have been invading the cellar of McVey's restaurant lately, and this morning Peter Condit, one of the colored boys employed in the kitchen, started out on the warpath against them, and ended up by shooting himself in the foot. He took a 22-calibre Flobert rifle and a pocketful of caps and started down cellar. After various adventures he saw a good shot and dropped the muzzle of his rifle while he cocked it.

For some reason the hammer did not catch and as he let go it came down, exploding the cartridge. The ball struck him in the left foot just on the joint. When Condit found that he was hit, he put on his coat and went upstairs again. He told the cook of his mishap and started to walk home. He went as far as the North Avenue station when his foot pained him so that he took a cab the rest of the way. He lives on Sycamore street over Tunison's stable. The accident occurred at about half-past ten o'clock. The bullet remained lodged in his foot and Dr. Hedges was called to attend to the injured lad.

Struck by a Train.

John Gleason, a track walker on the Jersey Central, was struck by the 1:30 train from New York this afternoon just this side of Cranford and instantly killed. He was walking on the east bound passenger track and stepped over on to the west bound track to get out of the way of a Blue Liner.

He did not notice the fast approaching local train, and though the engineer gave every warning with the whistle and bell that was possible, and made a hard effort to bring the train to a stop, he was unable to prevent striking Gleason, whose brains were dashed out.

The conductor of the train was Charles Dodwell, of Dunellen, and Engineer Long and Fireman Stout. The dead man had been in the employ of the company for fifteen years, and leaves a wife and four children. His remains were taken to Cranford by the section gang who were at work near by.

Posting on Trees.

The city ordinance, which forbids the placing of posters on trees, telegraph or other poles in the city, was openly violated Saturday when the men who were distributing the posters, advertising the special Plainfield edition of The New York Tribune, hung them on convenient trees and poles.

Facts of the Fair.

The books for the contests in the firemen's fair will be issued tomorrow, and all who wish to contribute fancy articles will please notify R. B. Rogers, so that the articles may be called for. Spaces for advertising and exhibiting purposes should be spoken for at an early date.

To Entertain Endeavorers.

On Tuesday evening, November 19th, William Edwards, of Brooklyn, will entertain the Christian Endeavor Society of the Crescent Avenue church with one of his most interesting musical entertainments.

Fix It Up.

The condition of North avenue in front of the Love building, which was spoken of in Saturday's issue of The Daily Press, remains the same, no attempt having been made to fix it up.

Got One Office; Wants Another

Benj. W. Brown, Fish and Game Warden for Union county, is a candidate for the position of Chief of the Union Fire Department.

First Ward Councilman.

Amos Andrews is spoken of as the Republican nominee for city councilman in the First ward.

Dr. F. C. Ard performed an operation at the hospital this afternoon on Geo. Morning, the four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. David Morning, of McDowell street. A growth was successfully removed from the nostrils.

For a pain in the side or chest there is nothing so good as a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of pain. It affords prompt and permanent relief and if used in time will often prevent a cold from resulting in pneumonia. REBELS SUFFER DEFEAT

Spanish Troops Victorious in Three Battles.

Col. Palancas Disperses Three Hundred Mounted Insurgents—Cuban Camps Captured by Col. Brull's Column—Rebels Attack the Garrison at Santa Filomena.

Havana, Nov. 12.—A dispatch from Remedios states that the column of Col. Palancas had an engagement with and dispersed about three hundred mounted rebels commanded by Gonzalez Jimenez and Vitia Portal at Loma Puriol. The fight lasted an hour and a half. The troops sustained no loss, but several rebels were killed or wounded. A Santa Clara dispatch says that Lieut.-Col. Brull's column has completely dispersed a band of two hundred rebels led by Socorro, Espinosa and Garcia. The fighting took place near Mordazo. The troops have captured rebel camps at Macagnal, in the Guayabo mountains, inflicting heavy losses on the insurgents. Thirty-five horses and a quantity of arms, munitions and medicines were captured.

Rebels Routed.

The column commanded by Col. Arizon has routed about three hundred rebels under Bermudez and Alvarez on the La Rosa plantation, and captured their camp, together with arms, ammunition and provisions. The fighting lasted two hours. Many rebels were wounded. A dispatch from Sancti Spiritus says it is reported there that Maximo Gomez's band is encamped on a farm known as La Reforma. Troops have been dispatched to the place.

Insurgents Attack a Garrison.

The only important rebel force in the jurisdiction of Santiago de Cuba at present is that of Jose Maceo, and it is subdivided into different parties. Only slight skirmishes have occurred near here. On October 26, 150 rebels attacked the garrison at the village of Santa Filomena, in Arroy Blanco, fifteen miles from this city. The garrison was composed of eighty soldiers under a sub-lieutenant. The insurgents killed nine soldiers and wounded thirty and captured forty guns and some cartridges.

THE CUBAN REBELLION.

Capt.-Gen. Campos To Direct the Operations Against Gomez.

Madrid, Nov. 12.—A dispatch from Havana, received here to-day, says that Capt.-Gen. Campos will personally direct the military operations against Maximo Gomez, the insurgent leader in command in the province of Santa Clara.

"BAT" SHEA RESENTENCED.

To Be Executed During the Week Beginning Dec. 23.

Troy, N. Y., Nov. 12.—"Bat" Shea, who was convicted of murdering Robert Ross at the polls here at the spring election of 1893, and whose case was finally decideded adversely to him by the court of appeals, was brought here yesterday afternoon for resentence. There was a large crowd at the court house to see Shea when he arrived. He came in the custody of Warden Thayer of Clinton prison; Sheriff Collins of Troy and another Troy officer, and two powerful keepers from Clinton prison. Shea was resentenced by Justice Edwards. The sentence was that he be electrocuted at Clinton prison during the week commencing Dec. 23, 1895. After sentence had been pronounced the condemned man was driven to the Troy jail, from which place he was taken last evening back to Clinton prison.

TO SUE NATIONAL CORDAGE.

Judge Lacombe Grants the Petition of Kernochan and Wysong.

New York, Nov. 12.—In the United States circuit court Judge Lacombe has granted the petition of James P. Kernochan and John J. Wysong, trustees of the will of John R. Marshall, deceased, for leave to sue Edward G. C. Young and George Loper, as receivers of the National Cordage company, to secure $150,000 on a bond and mortgage because of a default in the payment of the principal, which became due May 23, 1886, and the unpaid interest since Nov. 23, 1894, which bond had been executed by the Tucker & Carter Cordage company, and delivered to the National Cordage company July 24, 1893, subject to a mortgage of $150,000 held by the petitioner.

THE SULTAN AROUSED

Will Send 120,000 Troops Against the Kurds.

Even This Great Force May Be Unable To Cope with the Lawless Mountaineers—Their Outrages on the Increase—Turkey Hampered by Lack of Money.

Constantinople, Nov. 12.—The lawlessness of the Kurds in the Eastern provinces has grown measurably since the demands for reforms were made upon the sultan by Great Britain, France and Russia. The sultan's evident inclination to refuse to grant the demands, or at least to defer giving a definite answer to the representative of the powers, encouraged the Kurds to believe that the sultan tacitly supported them in their attacks upon the Armenians. Color has been lent to this belief by the action of the sultan in giving good service decorations to several officials who are notoriously in favor of exterminating the Armenians and who gave their sanction to the massacres that have led Turkey to the verge of dismemberment. The Kurds have assumed such an attitude of disregard of all authority that it is believed here that the officials are now powerless to stop them from continuing their massacreing and pillaging.

Anarchy in the Eastern Provinces.

Advices from the eastern provinces show that the condition of anarchy is such that a very strong force will have to be employed if any progress at all is to be made against the Kurds. The porte apparently understands this fact, for it is announced to-day that 120,000 troops will be sent against the Kurds. Should the latter offer resistance it is doubtful if even this force would be sufficiently strong to cope with the Kurds, whose intimate knowledge of the mountainous country would stand them in good stead in opposing the Turkish troops.

Turkey in Need of Money.

In spite of the bad financial condition of the government, which is now in arrears in the pay of the reserves already called out, it has been decided to summon more of the reserves for service. It is doubtful if the government's scheme can be affected owing to the scarcity of money, but, at any rate, the attempt will be made, owing to the continued demands of the powers that the porte restore order forthwith.

Whole Districts Devastated.

Stories of the ravages committed by the Kurds continue to be received here. It is said that in Erzeroum and Sivas whole districts have been devastated by the marauding Kurds. A traveler who has arrived at Trebizond from Erzeroum states that when he was approaching Baiburt he met 300 women, who in their extremity knelt before him and implored protection, declaring that their husbands, fathers and brothers had been killed and that there were no males of their race who could save them from either dishonor or death.

Revolt of the Druses.

The revolt of the Druses in Hauras is assuming a most serious aspect. The agitation against the authorities is extending and the rebels are gaining many accessions. An official dispatch that has been made public says that, thanks to the energetic measures that have been taken by the imperial officials, the disturbances and revolts which occurred in certain provinces of Asia Minor, and which had their origin in the seditious intrigues of Armenian agitators, have been everywhere suppressed and order restored in all the districts which were recently the scene of riots and conflicts. Measures have been taken to ensure that peace will be maintained.

TROLLEY EXTENSION.

New Jersey Lines To Connect by Ferry with Staten Island.

Elizabeth, N. J., Nov. 12.—The Consolidated Traction company purchased yesterday valuable wharf property at Elizabethport to be used as a terminal of the New Jersey system of the trolley lines of this part of the state, and will connect by means of a ferry across Staten Island sound with the trolley on Staten Island. The latter system comprises about twenty-five miles of road along the shore to St. George and to South Beach.

Fatal ✲ Pneumonia.

That dreaded disease that temporarily compels a cessation of the work of all the greater organs of the body, thus stopping the digestion of food, the creation of new tissue, brings the patient to a point where the flickering flame of life is blown out like the light of a burnt-out candle. To make recovery probable, keep up the patient's strength — give him that great concentrated essence of the vital principles of lean beef, the strength of which is enhanced by our special cold process method of manufacture, it can be retained by the weakest stomach, and in every instance makes blood, flesh and strength. Dr. Charles Wilson, Atwell Ave., Providence, says; "My wife suffered a severe attack of pneumonia; after passing the acute stage fearing heart failure, I gave her freely Bovinine and port wine, equal parts. I have never seen such good results. I am a hearty believer in Bovinine for quick nutrition." Over 25000 other physicians endorse it equally strong.

MISS WHITNEY MARRIED

Ex-Secretary of the Navy's Daughter Now Mrs. Paget.

Wedding Celebrated To-day at St. Thomas' Church, New York, Amid a Scene of Splendor—President Cleveland Accepts an Invitation to the Breakfast.

New York, Nov. 12.—Another international wedding of great magnificence was celebrated at noon to-day when Miss Pauline Whitney, daughter of ex-Secretary of the Navy William C. Whitney, became the wife of Almeric Hugh Paget, youngest son of the late General Lord Paget of England and a grandson of the first marquis of Anglesey. The ceremony was performed in St. Thomas church, where Miss Vanderbilt became the Duchess of Marlborough. The decorations of the church were on a grand scale and equal in their effect to those at the Marlborough wedding. Although in more quiet colors they were in exquisite taste. The musical programme was, if anything, even more elaborate than that at the other great society event. Miss Whitney was introduced into society three years ago, and her marriage is one of the social events of the year. George William Warren played the organ, while Nahan Franko's orchestra was stationed in the gallery of the church and gave a concert before the ceremony. Edouard de Reszke and Mme. Nordica sang.

Ushers and Bridesmaids.

The ushers were Goold Hoyt, John C. Furman, H. Maitland Kersey, William Cutting, jr., Winthrop Rutherford, Jared Howe, Crawford Livingstone and Harry Payne Whitney. The bridemaids were Miss Susan Dimock, Miss Azuba Barney, Miss Beatrice Bend, Miss Emily Sloane and Miss Gertrude Vanderbilt.

Bishop Potter Officiates.

Bishop Potter performed the ceremony, assisted by Dr. John Wesley Brown. The bridal procession was led by the ushers. Four girls carrying flowers followed them. They were Miss Dorothy Barney, Miss Katharine Barney, Miss Frances Bingham and Miss Laura Whitney. Then came the bridesmaids, followed by the bride on the arm of her father.

The Bridal Costume.

Miss Whitney wore a white satin gown with an extremely plain skirt. The corsage was finished with a stock collar of plaited satin and covered with point lace. The sleeves were very full and finished from elbow to wrist in gauntlet style. The bridesmaids' gowns were of moire, alike in design, but different in color. The colors were turquoise blue, buttercup yellow, violet, rose and white.

Guests at the Wedding Breakfast.

The wedding breakfast was served at the Whitney home, 2 West Fifty-seventh street. About 100 of Miss Whitney's nearest friends were invited to the breakfast. Among those who accepted invitations to the wedding and breakfast were President and Mrs. Cleveland, Secretary of the Navy Herbert, Secretary of War Lamont, Gov. and Mrs. Morton, the British ambassador, Sir Julian Pauncefote, and Lord Westmeath.

NEWFOUNDLAND MATTERS.

The Colony Cannot Exist a Year as a Self-Governing One.

St. Johns, N. F., Nov. 12.—The authorities are perfecting the case against those concerned in the conspiracy to scuttle vessels. The Telegram, the government organ, announces that shortly after the arrival of Gov. Murray, who is due about the end of the month, Premier Whiteway will leave on a visit to Canada. It expresses no definite opinion upon the subject of his mission, but the prevailing opinion is that he goes to seek to reopen the confederation negotiations, it being almost a foregone conclusion that the colony cannot exist beyond another year as a self-governing one upon the present outlook. The same paper urges the government to appoint Sir Ambrose Shea, ex-governor of the Bahamas, who is now visiting here, as commissioner in London of the colony.

THROWN AGAINST A TREE.

Perhaps a Fatal Runaway Accident at Dover, N. H.

Dover, N. H., Nov. 12.—A terrible runaway accident occurred here last night which may result fatally. Frank Remick and Mrs. George B. Palmer were out riding when their horse suddenly took fright and ran away, throwing them both out against a tree. When found the were both unconscious and have since remained in that condition. Blood flowed freely from Mr. Remick's mouth and ears when he was taken up and both of the victims are in a critical condition with but little hopes of their recovery.

IVES-GALLAGHER MATCH.

The Former Falls Behind on the First Night's Play.

New York, Nov. 12.—The billiard match between Frank Ives and Thomas J. Gallagher began last night at Maurice Daly's academy. The game is one of five nights' play for a purse and Ives is to play 3,600 points against 1,200, or 600 against 240 each night. He was 287 points behind his task at the close of last night's play, having made only 313 when Gallagher scored 240. To reach 1,200 to night before Gallagher scores an additional 240 Ives will have to make 887 points.

Strike May Be Settled.

Pittsburg, Nov. 12.—The journeymen plumbers, gas and steam fitters of Pittsburg and Allegheny who struck yesterday for the 10 per cent. reduction they accepted in February, 1894, may soon return to work. The master plumbers will meet to-day and there are prospects of a settlement of some kind.

Maher Whips O'Donnell.

Maspeth, L. I., Nov. 12.—It took just [illegible] minute and three seconds for Maher to knock out O'Donnell here last night. It was one of the quickest fights on [illegible]

Liberated by a Mob.

Purvis, Miss., Nov. 12.—The jail here was broken open by a mob and William Ives, an alleged murderer and white-capper, was liberated.

HIS AWFUL DEATH.

Engineer So Horribly Scalded That His Flesh Left the Bones.

Auburn, N. Y., Nov. 12.—Engineer Charles True met a horrible death on the Ithaca division of the Lehigh Valley railroad yesterday afternoon. His train, a freight, dashed into a landslide on the track near Aurora and the engine and tender ran off an embankment and rolled over to the edge of Cayuga lake. The engineer was pinioned in his cab, where he was found by the crew of the derailed train without a broken bone, but when they touched him they found that he had been so horribly scalded by the escaping steam that the flesh fell off in places. Physicians were summoned, but death came to his relief in a few hours. His age was 46, his home was in Ithaca and he is survived by a widow and three children. He was a member of the Lehigh Relief association and the Brotherhood Relief association. Eight freight cars also left the track and the ties and rails were torn up for a distance of 300 feet. A passenger train had preceded the freight train by only a few hours.

PENNSYLVANIA DAY.

Gov. Hastings and Party Leave Harrisburg for Atlanta.

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 12.—A special train of Pullmans rolled out of the station last evening with Gov. Hastings and party on board bound for the Atlanta exposition. A large streamer down the side of the train bore the legend "Pennsylvania" and will convey to the south as the flyer proceeds toward Atlanta, the purpose of the invasion. There were of the party, beside the governor and Mrs. Hastings, the members of the cabinet and their ladies, exposition commission and the ladies auxiliary, members of the supreme court and governor's staff and other military officers and a score or more of invited guests. The party will be absent one week, returning next Sunday. A day will be spent on the battlefield of Chickamauga. Thursday will be Pennsylvania day at the exposition when there will be special ceremonies. Gov. Hastings will make an address.

DUNRAVEN'S CHARGES.

Special Meeting of the New York Yacht Club To Consider Them.

New York, Nov. 12.—All doubt as to the course which the New York Yacht club will pursue in relation to the Earl of Dunraven's charges against the Defender syndicate was removed last night when the following notice was posted on the club house bulletin: "A special meeting of the club will be held at the club house, Monday, November 18, at 9 p. m., to consider the statement made by the Earl of Dunraven in reference to the late America's Cup races." Dunraven's audacious charges of foul play on the part of the Defender syndicate continue to be discussed in club and business circles to-day, and continue to be severely criticized. Every member of the New York Yacht club feels that he has been grossly insulted and there seems to be no doubt that Dunraven will be expelled in disgrace from the club.

YOUNG FEMALE DESPERADO.

Jennie Metcalf, Aged 15, in Prison for Horse Stealing.

Boston, Nov. 12.—Jennie Metcalf, only 15 years of age, who is noted throughout the entire west as a bold and daring female desperado, and a member of the famed Dalton gang of ruffians and outlaws, was yesterday committed to imprisonment at the Massachusetts reformatory prison for women at Sherburne, as a United States prisoner from Oklahoma Territory. Horse stealing is the crime for which she is sentenced, and two years the term, clemency, for various reasons, having been shown in her case. The girl attracted considerable attention in the corridors of the United States hotel and together with her custodians, United States marshal for Oklahoma, E. D. Nix, and his deputy, C. F. Colcord, formed a group that was a cynosure of all eyes.

JAPANESE MAIL LINE.

Representative Saito Looking for a Favorable Terminal Site.

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 12.—The new Japanese consul, Miki Saito, who has arrived here, says he has been ordered by his government to make a report on the feasibility of establishing a Japanese mail line to this country. He will ascertain what advantages the Pacific coast cities offer for a terminus. The line is to be established by the existing Japanese mail steamship company which is heavily subsidized by the government and can establish the proposed line with extra steamers purchased for use as transports during the recent war.

THE WARRIMOO'S PROTEST.

Little Importance Attached to It at the State Department.

Washington, Nov. 12.—A protest from passengers of the steamer Warrimoo against Commander Pigman of the United States gunboat Bennington, based on the allegations that he ran his vessel so near to the Warrimoo while the Bennington was infected with cholera that the lives of the passengers were endangered, has been received at the navy department and mailed thence to Commander Pigman for a report. Little importance is attached to the protest at the department.

Chicago Newspaper Prices Reduced

Chicago, Nov. 12.—The announcement by the Tribune that its price to the residents of Chicago would be reduced to one cent per copy has been followed by similar announcements by the Times-Herald and the Inter-Ocean. All the morning papers in this city are now reduced to one cent per copy.

Will Operate 10,000 Spindles.

Winston, N. C., Nov. 12.—Stock has been taken for the building of a large cotton mill at Spray, Rockingham county. The new enterprise will operate 10,000 spindles and its erection will be commenced at an early date.

Two Men Blown to Pieces.

Marquette, Mich., Nov. 12.—The Marquette Powder company's mill, situated four miles from this city, exploded yesterday. The entire structure was demolished and two men killed.

Virginia Military Institute.

Lexington, Va., Nov. 12.—Virginia Military institute celebrated her [illegible] sixth anniversary yesterday by a suspension of all academic duties.

FUTURE OF THE NEGRO

Convention of the Race in Session in Atlanta.

Several Orators Speak in Glowing Terms of the Advancement of the Colored People in Civilization—Their Work at the Exposition and What It Means.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 12.—The National Negro congress, comprised of the leading spirits of the colored race throughout the United States, was called to order last night in the exposition auditorium. The congress will continue in session until Nov. 22. From all sections of the union the negroes are coming and several thousand are in Atlanta to-day. The colored soldiery of the south paraded at exposition grounds, marched up and down the plaza and passed the negro building in review. The execution of the tactics by the soldiers was good and and their movements elicited frequent applause.

Future of the Race.

Last night the auditorium was filled and several addresses were made. Commissioner Garland Fenn, chief of the negro department of the exposition, introduced the speakers and spoke at length upon the future of the race in the south. He was satisfied with what had been accomplished by his race at the exposition. His people had met with many difficulties, yet, they had also received assistance and been extended many courtesies. He thought the negro as a race was attaining those things which they most needed in order to make the types of higher civilized people.

Only Opportunity Required.

John G. Dancy of Salisbury, N. C., spoke on the negro exhibit and what it meant to the south. He said the only way for the negroes to become great in those things that would lift them to a higher plane of living was to demonstrate to the people of the world that they were capable of appreciating and living up to the high standard of life. They were just as eager to learn, he knew, as any race, and if they only had the opportunity that many other races had, the negro would be in the foremost ranks of civilization.

W. A. Plodger's Speech.

W. A. Plodger, who is well known in Georgia, made an address. Plodger's remarks were loudly applauded. He said that the exposition in Atlanta was to result in much good for the race. The fact that the negro had been instrumental in adding to the glory and achievement of the exposition was to him a stimulous to throw his whole soul and energy into the movement and do all he could for the great enterprise that had been launched in the south. The exposition meant just as much for the negro as it did for the white man and it was the duty of the colored man to do all in his power to add to the success of the show.

MILLIONS INVOLVED.

Bay State Trust's Suit Against Several Railroad Companies.

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 12.—Foreclosure proceedings have been commenced by the Bay State Trust company of Boston in the United States court here against the Oregon Railway Extension company and all affiliated organizations. Over $24,000,000 is involved. The other defendants in the case are the Oregon Railway & Navigation company, the Farmers' Loan & Trust company, the Union Pacific railway, the American Loan & Trust company and various officials in charge of the companies named.

NEW HAMPSHIRE HIGHWAYMEN

Attempt To Hold Up a Man on a Lonely Road Near Concord.

Concord, N. H., Nov. 12.—The police have been notified of an attempt to hold up James Barton on the Loudon road at 11 p. m. Barton says as he was driving home, and, when in a lonely place, three men jumped from the woods and called on him to stop. He paid no attention to them and struck his horse sharply. Three shots were then fired, two of which went through the dasher of his wagon and the other through the top of his hat, barely grazing his head. The would-be highwaymen then disappeared. There is no clue.

STATE PRINTING.

Transfer of the Contract from John Milholland to New York City.

Albany, Nov. 12.—The contract for doing the legislative printing for two years beginning on October 1 last, which was awarded to John E. Milholland by Comptroller Roberts, Attorney General Hancock and Secretary Palmer, has with their consent been transferred to the Wynkoop, Hallenbeck, Crawford company of New York city.

HALLOWAY MURDER CASE.

Judge Start Will Deliver His Charge to the Jury To-day.

Newport, Vt., Nov. 12.—Arguments in the Halloway murder case closed last night, W. W. Miles appearing for respondent Chase and C. A. Prouty for Mrs. Halloway, John Young closing for the state and all making strong pleas. Judge Start will deliver his charge to-day.

Deny the Report.

Philadelphia, Nov. 12.—The report that the general offices of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburg would soon be removed from that city to Chicago is emphatically denied to-day at the main office of the Pennsylvania railroad company in this city.

UNWISE DISCRIMINATION.

The Ohio Supreme Court has recently rebuked a favored method adopted by Legislatures of evading the Constitutional provision requiring the enactment of general laws relating to cities. The Legislatures of many States, including that of New Jersey frequently enact laws relating to cities having a population of over a certain number and less than a certain other number, and this is taken as a general law, although there may be only one city having a number of inhabitants between those designated in the law. The Ohio Legislature passed an act providing for the redistricting of "every city of the fourth grade of the second class which had at the last Federal census a population not less than 5,550 and not greater than 5,560, or which at any subsequent Federal census may have a population of not less than 5,550 and not greater than 5,560." This was making a finer distinction than in the laws usually adopted. The Supreme Court disposes of this attempt to pass a special law under a false guise in a short opinion containing this sentence: "We discover no reason why cities of the fourth grade of the second class, because at the last Federal census they had a population of not less than 5,550 and not greater than 5,560, should require exclusive legislation; and the classification of such cities in themselves upon such a basis is, in our judgment, too restrictive, uncertain and illusory, to relieve the act from the Constitutional infirmity of not being uniform in its operation throughout the State, but local and special in its character."

Chicago, Denver, St. Louis, Buffalo and SanFrancisco are all making a bid for the next Democratic national convention.

City election will be held on Tuesday, December 3d. The officers to be elected are: Three Members of the Common Council at large, City Treasurer, City Judge, City Collector, three Commissioners of Appeal, one Member of the Board of Education; and from each of the wards a Member of the Common Council, Justice of the Peace and a Constable. The Boards of Registry and Election will meet at the various polling places in the city on Tuesday, November 26th, for the purpose of correcting and revising the registry lists.

Patent for Car Lighting.

T. Kinsman, of this city, has been granted a patent on an apparatus for street car lighting.

—Tomorrow only, Wednesday, Nov. 13th, wire coat or dress hangers, two cents each, at VanEmburgh & Son's.

KIRMESS NOTES.

Little Things of Interest About the Big Event.

John Daly, manager of the Stillman Music Hall, furnished the scenery for the stage.

The decorations will remain in place for the firemen's fair which is to be held their in December.

The entrance at the Crescent Cycle Academy for the dancers will be the last door on the Fourth street side.

The Venetian booth is one of the most artistic of all. It was designed by Evarts Tracy, built by H. S. Thatcher and painted by Woolston & Buckle.

The numerous decorations for the hall were loaned for the occasion through solicitations of Mrs. Frank Cokefair and were arranged by the firemen of this city.

THEATRICAL.

F. B. Childs has been appointed manager of the Drake Opera House, Elizabeth, by Rich & Maeder.

Stetson's Company, under the management of L. W. Washburn, presented "Uncle Tom's Cabin" to a large and appreciative audience at the Grand Opera House last evening. The cast is a strong one. In the third act the landing of the boat "R. E. Lee," and the happy darkies working on the levee, and the child Eva's fearful precipitation into the river and her rescue by Tom was a life picture. Between the acts Stetsons uniformed band, which is mostly composed of colored men, enlivened the audience by discoursing southern pastimes. Previous to the performance the company gave a street parade.—Wilmington (Del.) Sunday Star. At Music Hall Wednesday evening.

RELIGIOUS WORKERS.

Already preparations are being made at the various churches for the Christmas music.

A special men's meeting will be held at Trinity Reformed church Friday evening of this week.

There was a good attendance at the cottage prayer meeting held in the Voehl building last night.

The women of the Seventh-day Baptist church are preparing for an elaborate musical to be held in the church.

The primary Sunday-school teachers' union held one of their best meetings yesterday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. building.

Next Sunday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. Men's meeting the music will be a special feature. A mixed choir of forty voices from the various churches will be present.

The Cat Was Disgusted.

An interesting experiment in the rearing of animals is recorded by a German journal. A country gentleman, having captured a young hare a few days old, conceived the idea of giving it as foster mother a cat which had just had a litter of kittens. The cat showed no objection to this curious addition to her family, and the herbivorous nursling seemed to take very well to the regime to which it was so unexpectedly subjected. The hare throve and grew, and the cat soon thought it time to begin the education of her foster child. For the catching of mice, however, the hare showed not the slightest disposition, and at each fault committed the adoptive mother administered vigorous correction with her paws. This produced but little improvement, and the relations between the two animals were becoming somewhat strained when one day they were placed together on the lawn in front of the house. The hare at once proceeded to nibble at the vegetation with remarkable avidity, to the evident astonishment and indignation of the cat, who could make nothing of such conduct. Finally, perceiving that she had nourished anything but a kitten, the disappointed nurse withdrew with an expression of unmistakable disdain.—Westminster Gazette.

KEEP PREPARED.

The Slogan of the Business and Professional Man.

The Sure Hope of the Busy Brain-Worker.

The Only Protection of Those Who Work and Toil.

Keep Yourself Strong, Vigorous and Well.

By Br. Greene's Nervura Blood and Nerve Remedy.

Nothing contributes to success like preparation. In every department of human activity this truth is constantly illustrated.

During the war of the rebellion the issues of battles were quite as often decided by the relative conditions, as by the strength of forces. The general or commanding officer who was best prepared gained the day; the surprised army was generally routed.

So in our daily affairs, the professional or business man who is constantly prepared for emergencies conquers his circumstances, emerges from every difficulty triumphant, and is a success; while the men and women whom events find unprepared are overcome or injured in their several ventures. Preparation is half of any battle in life.

So it is in regard to our health. If keep our system in a sound condition to meet the various conditions of the weather, the prevalent possibilities of contracting disease, and especially the great strain, wear and fatigue of our hurrying, rushing daily life, we are always prepared against these dangers.

The first requisite is pure blood and strong nerves. They command health and exempt us from the liability of sickness.

Don't neglect it. Don't think because you are comparatively well you are safe. It is not so. The blood needs constant attention. It requires toning, needs correcting often before it gives any sign. The nerve force, nerve energies and strength are being constantly used up in business, pleasure or dissipation, and our brain and nerves require strengthening and invigorating. Keep well and strong by taking Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, for its chief merit is that it not only cures weakness and disease, but it is a sure preventive of breaking down from overwork or other causes; a sure renewer of strength, power and vigor. It is recognized everywhere as the greatest medical discovery of the age because of this grand quality. It makes you well and keeps you well.

FREDERICK P. COGGESHALL.

Mr. Frederick P. Coggshall, the veteran bookseller of Lowell, Mass., used it and it made him well and kept him strong to work, vigorous to think and to plan, full of power, energy and ambition He says:

"My trouble was an affection of the head. I would go to bed and sleep like an infant all night, but would waken in the morning with a terrible pain in the head, which 'utterly incapacitated me for business. Getting no relief from remedies tried, a friend recommended me to take Dr Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I took the advice of my friend, and after taking it four or five days I began to experience great relief and was soon able to attend to business.

"If restless or troubled with insomnia at night I always take a dose of Nervura and get immediate relief. The invigorating qualities of this medicine are simply marvelous and after four or five doses I feel all right again. Other members of my family have used the Nervura and I strongly recommend it to all persons of a nervous temperament, or those suffering from undue mental or physical strain

Why waste time in trying uncertain and untried remedies, when here is a physician's prescription, a discovery made by the greatest living specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th St., New York City. If you take this medicine you can consider yourself under Dr. Greene's professional care, and you can consult him or write to him about your case, freely and without charge. This is a guarantee that his remedy will cure, possessed by no other medicine in the world.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces, such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

WITH ROD AND GUN.

Theodore Smith, of East Second street, went fishing Saturday night and caught a five pound bass, which is on exhibition at Thorn's fish market on Park avenue.

Meadow larks are plentiful this year all along Staten Island, and the shores of the Sound. There is a great abundance on Staten Island from Chelsea to Tottenville, and also at the meadows near Tremley.

With the cold snap have come numbers of wild duck. They can be found in abundance around the New Jersey lakes, marshes and ponds. The most numerous are the mallard, green winged teal and the blue winged teal. The wood duck, red head and black duck are also numerous.

John Harkins, of New Brunswick, the star baseball pitcher of the old West Ends, of Somerville, who has many warm friends in this city, will shoot a pigeon match at the Climax Gun Club grounds on Saturday next for a purse a $25 with Dutchy Smith, of this city.

During the open deer season of twelve days, which has just closed, at least thirty-five deer were killed in Atlantic and Cape May counties, a greater number than has been killed during any season for many years. The deer-shooters wanted a short, open season and they got it. The sportsmen declare the experiment of a short season has been a failure, and the next Legislature will be asked to give at least a month of open season, and the entire month of December will likely be suggested.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

There is some talk of forming a league of all the cricket clubs in the State.

The annual meeting of the Union County Cricket Club was held on Thursday night, and the following officers were elected: President, Thomas R. Miller; Vice-president, Thomas Jones; Corresponding Secretary, Cecil Martin; Recording Secretary, George Davis; Treasurer, Chas. Clarke.

GOLF

Interest among the Hillside members in golf continues to increase.

Ransom H. Thomas and Alexander H. Tiers, both prominent members of the Morris County Golf Club, played a match Saturday morning, which was won by Mr. Thomas, who defeated his opponent, and former champion of the green committee, by 6 up.

AT THE TRAPS.

On Thursday afternoon at Hyde's grove there will be prize shooting by the Independent Shooting Club. There will be a match between George Richter and Henry Haurand, and Joseph Blatz and Fred Hui, after which there will be sweepstake shooting by members of the club.

Plainfield Wins at Checkers.

The second series of checker games between Westfield and Plainfield was played Thursday night at the Westfield Leader office. Mair and Manning represented Plainfield and Ball, Whitaker and Lawrence played for Westfield. Plainfield won eleven games and Westfield ten, with three draws. The next games are to be played at Plainfield.

CYCLING COMMENT.

"Jonah" Wetmore, of Elizabeth, has arranged a series of bicycle runs for the purpose of showing the New York newspaper fraternity the beauties of New Jersey.

Al Hargan, the well-known rider, who was badly hurt by a fall near Chester, above Morristown, about ten days ago, is slowly recovering.

The Erie Railroad has decided to charge for transporting bicycles on its lines. Wheels will be rated as 100 pounds excess baggage, but the minimum charge will be fifteen instead of twenty-five cents.

PUNTS AND KICKS.

The game between Rutgers College and the Elizabeth Athletic Club on Saturday was the prettiest and most exciting yet played at Elizabeth this season. The home team won. Score 16 to 6. Two twenty-minute halves were played.

Vocal Sight Reading.

Classes according to the Holt-Damrosch system are being formed by Miss Anna O. Marsh, 915 Madison Avenue.

Classes numbering 20 and upwards will be $3.00 for ten lessons. Smaller classes will be $5.00 for ten lessons. Three classes (each, to number at least 20) are now being formed. One for children from five years to nine or ten, and one for young girls from twelve to sixteen or seventeen and for boys from twelve to fourteen, and one for young ladies and married ladies.

All who wish to join either of these classes should send their names in as soon as possible this week as it is desirable to start the classes immediately after the Kirmess. If any desire to join an evening class for mixed voices, please inform Miss Marsh promptly, and plans will be made accordingly.

Back Again.

Dr. E. B. Lighthill

of New York City,

whose practice in Plainfield has proved such a wonderful success has opened an office at

134 Crescent Avenue

(next door to his former residence) where he can be consulted from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., on

Tuesday and Friday

of each week.

DR. LIGHTHILL makes the treatment of deafness, catarrh and diseases of the throat, lungs and heart a specialty.

Piles radically and permanently cured in a few weeks without the use of the knife, ligature or cautery and without pain or detention from business. The most desperate cases yield unfailingly to Dr. Lighthill's unique method of treatment, with guaranteed success. Fistula, fissure and ulcers of the rectum are also completely and permanently cured without the knife or other surgical operation.

Diseases of the bowels, bladder and stomach, mental and nervous derangements, diseases of the skin and blood and all chronic and obstinate complaints affecting the human system, of whatever name or nature, are successfully treated.

DR. LIGHTHILL refers with pardonable pride to the remarkable cures of his former practice in Plainfield and to the reputation which he established throughout the State. He has in his possession hundreds of testimonials from well-known residents of Plainfield and vicinity, which can be seen at his office.

MELONS FROM DUST.

ONLY FRUIT THAT WILL GROW IN THE STAKED PLAINS.

Large and Juicy Watermelons Produced on the "Great American Desert," Where It Never Rains—A Partial Explanation of the Mystery.

When a stranger visits these "staked plains" of Texas, he soon learns not to be surprised at anything he sees. He has heard of this region all his life as a portion of the "Great American desert" and one of the driest parts of the world. He finds by actual observation that few crops will grow here on account of the dryness. It seems to be too dry for corn, wheat, oats, cotton, garden vegetables or fruit of any description. The few farmers in the country content themselves with raising hay or sorghum cane. Yet, strange to relate, there is one plant in whose favor nature chooses to make an exception. She seems to have made a law forbidding food plants to grow in this region and then arbitrarily to have suspended this law in one instance. To heighten the audacity of this move on her part she seems to have racked her brain for the vegetable growth which we would least expect to find here. The one she selected was the watermelon.

Every farmer's boy knows that ordinarily the watermelon requires a great deal of moisture before it will grow well. It also generally requires shade. In the east the watermelon patch is frequently in some pool or moist corner of the cornfield, where the growing vines will soon be overshadowed by the stalks of corn. This is not merely for the benefit of such neighboring boys as may desire to eat watermelons without disturbing the general public, but it is also for the benefit of the melons themselves.

Boys accustomed to look for melons in such places as that would be surprised to find them in this country lying out on the open prairie, where the hot sun glares down on them all day long, with never a cloud to interpose and never a tree or a bush for shade as far as the eye can reach. Sometimes not a drop of rain falls from the time the seed is planted in the spring until the melon is eaten in the early summer. Yet they thrive. And such melons as there are too! Long, slender ones and big round ones; light green ones, dark green ones and striped ones—and all ponderous, big fellows. To come some morning about sunrise, while it is yet cool, and see a vast stretch of such fruit nestling down amid the short, curly mesquite grass on some 40 or 80 acres of land is enough to make a white man's mouth water like that of a horse in a field of new clover and to make a black man drop dead in his tracks from derangement of the heart functions. This is nothing, though, compared to coming to such a patch about noon, when the vertical rays of the sun are pouring down at their fiercest and when your throat is parched with a thirst that is fiercer still. At such a time as this you slip your left arm through the bridle rein of your tired pony, lift some long, striped melon with both hands, drop it and allow it to break in some half a dozen pieces. Then you gulp down great mouthfuls of the juicy, watery, red pulp and forget that there is not a river or creek or spring or drop of surface water of any kind for 30 miles around. Then you pause for a moment and think of the wonderful power that can enable the small vine to find so much water in so dry a land. Then you break one or two especially big, juicy melons for the benefit of your pony, who has already been sniffing at them a little impatiently. If you neglect either this thought or this deed, you are a meaner brute than this same pony—which is saying a great deal.

The method of cultivating watermelons on the staked plains is comparatively simple. In consists in making a small hole in the ground and dropping a seed into it. After this the training of the melon is left to the melon itself. In some places you find what are known as wild watermelons, but it is commonly believed that these come up where tame melons have been thrown away, and their seeds have found a chance lodgment in the soil of the prairie.

It is easy to find a partial explanation as to how the melons subsist in such a dry region. The explanation involves an understanding of the water supply on the plains, which in itself is a remarkable matter. Dry as this country is, one can find water anywhere in it by digging about 50 feet for it. By boring a hole to that depth and inserting a two inch pipe one obtains a water supply which it is impossible to exhaust. It seems that a vast sheet of water underlies this whole region. This sheet of water is evidently considerably higher than the level of the country just south and east of the staked plains. The plains proper begin with Polo Duva Canyon, where rocky bluffs suddenly rise precipitously to the height of from 120 to 200 feet. The level of the vast sheet of subterranean water referred to is evidently from 70 to 150 feet higher than this adjacent country, and why the water does not run out is a mystery. Some peculiar formation of rocks like the rim of a washbasin must account for it. This water is clear and cool, and it is as good for all purposes as any in the world. Many people who have studied the matter believe that by using windmills to draw this water to the surface for purposes of irrigation the whole problem of agriculture in this arid country can eventually be solved.

There are several reasons why the "Panhandle" of Texas has not attracted any more attention than it has in the watermelon markets of the world. To begin with, the only railroad passing through the country is the Fort Worth and Denver. Many carloads of melons are shipped over this line every season to Denver, but they are all consumed in the Rocky mountain region, and hence attract little or no attention in the east. Then, again, the average Panhandler openly disregards the Scriptural injunction about not despising the day of small things. Unless he can market 10 or 12 carloads he thinks it is too small a matter to be fooling with. He is generally a stockraiser and considers anything of an agricultural nature as a trifle below his dignity anyway, especially unless it is on a very large scale.—Amarillo (Tex.) Cor. LINCOLN RELEASED HER SON.

A Widow's Grief Touched the Heart of the Martyr President.

Early in the spring of 1863, when Louisville and the entire south was manacled by the steel clad handcuffs of military law, a draft for soldiers was ordered, and the male population became wild. The late Dr. Thomas S. Bell was the head of the draft, and the citizens looked to him for the protection of their interests.

Among the prize winners on that historical occasion was a machinist's apprentice named Burns, who was the sole support of his widowed mother, Mrs. John Burns, whose humble home was in Washington street, between Preston and Jackson. When young Burns' name was pulled from the wheel, a military guard was sent to the shop for him, and he was marched instanter to the barracks, where his hair was clipped and a suit of blue was placed at his disposal. In less than two hours after his arrival he was a full fledged member of the One Hundred and Fourth Kentucky infantry and ready to meet the enemy.

Mrs. Burns, the boy's mother, was a small woman, of wiry frame and having but recently lost her husband, was almost distracted by her boy being snatched from her, but being plucky in the extreme she determined to visit Washington and try to head off the heartless Kentucky authorities. Some of her church people and neighbors contributed and quickly had round trip tickets and a few dollars in her purse. Then away she went and at a time when it was worth life to start from home to any part of the United States.

Arriving at Washington, the game little woman elbowed herself through the big crowd of soldiers in the depot. Then by a system of inquiries she footed her way to the White House. In the yard there she met a domestic, to whom she told her story, and the latter in turn told it to Mrs. Lincoln. Then she quietly called the great president to her little blue room, where she told about Mrs. Burns of Louisville, who was then waiting in the near hallway to hear the fate of her son, who was then a soldier in the One Hundred and Fourth.

Mr. Lincoln sent for Mrs. Burns to come before him, and she was soon in his presence, with her eyes showing every evidence of grief. She simply told the truth, as above—that her son was her only possible support and she had come to ask him to cause his release from the army.

"Why, certainly, madam," said the big hearted Lincoln. "No mother shall suffer the anguish you are now undergoing as long as my pen can make the stroke to relieve her. Be seated and wait an hour. Then you can return home happy, I hope."

Mr. Lincoln then turned, and as he passed through a door leading to the breakfast room he directed that she be dined at breakfast with the second ladies of the White House, and, sure enough, in an hour afterward Mrs. Burns was ready to leave Washington with an order in her pocket for her son's release from the United States army, not to be interfered with again during the war by either Kentucky or United States authorities.—Louisville Post.

A NICARAGUAN HEROINE.

How a Soldier's Daughter Defeated Captain Nelson's Forces.

It is well known that Lord Nelson, the hero of Trafalgar, had but one eye, and it is commonly supposed that he lost it in the ordinary fortunes of war. Such, however, is not the truth, if the story current in Nicaragua may be believed. In 1780 England sent out an expedition to enforce her claims to certain lands adjoining the isthmus. The point of attack was Fort San Carlos at San Juan del Norte. Two hundred sailors and marines under the leadership of Captain Nelson were landed. The cowardly garrison of Spanish soldiers deserted the commandant, but he refused to leave. His daughter, Donna Rafaela Mora, a girl of 15, remained by his side and determined to do all she could for her father and for her country. She took up her position behind an embrasure, seized a gun and when the party advanced fired directly at their leader. He fell, his eye pierced by a bullet. His followers were instantly thrown into confusion and the garrison, seeing their opportunity and inspired by this young heroine, returned to their duty and succeeded in driving the English forces back to their boats.

Donna Rafaela Mora was decorated by the king of Spain, commissioned a colonel in the royal service and pensioned for life.

Nelson's biographers merely state that he was repulsed at Fort San Carlos and claim that he lost his eye in Corsica. The foregoing story has, however, been considered authentic, and by reason of it General Martinez, the grandson of Donna Rafaela, was sufficiently popular to be elected president of the republic in 1857 by a grateful people.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Candlelight.

Hail, candlelight, without disparagement to the sun or moon, the kindliest luminary of the three, if we may not style thee their radiant deputy, mild viceroy of the moon! We love to read, talk, sit silent, eat, drink, sleep by candlelight. They are everybody's sun and moon. This is our peculiar and household planet. By the midnight taper the writer digests his meditations. By the same light we must approach to their perusal if we would catch the flame, the odor. Night and silence call out the starry fancies. Milton's "Morning Hymn In Paradise," we would hold a good wager, was penned at midnight, and Taylor's rich description of a sunrise smells decidedly of the taper. Even now a loftier speculation than we have attempted courts our endeavors. We would indite something about the solar system. "Betty, bring the candles."—Charles Lamb.

He Promised Nothing.

As the result of a wager the following advertisement was published in a French newspaper:

"I promise nothing! I engage to perform nothing! But send me 1 franc 50 centimes in postage stamps. Perhaps there is a little surprise in store for you. Who knows? Address, F. D., Postoffice. ——."

The impudence and apparent candor of this cool appeal to the public met with every success. Stamps rained in for several days, so that the winner of the wager was able to hand over a considerable sum to a local charity, after which he told the story in the newspaper, so that the dupes might know what had become of their money.

Fifth Monarchy Men.

The fifth monarchy men formed a religious sect that sprang up in the days of Charles I of England. They were so called from the fact that they asserted that in the last days the four ancient monarchies, the Assyrian, the Persian, the Babylonian and the Roman, would be restored, and to them would be added a Christian monarchy, or fifth monarchy, of which Christ would be the king.

NO CONSUMPTIVE WILL DIE

So Long as He Can Digest and Assimilate Food.

All physicians admit this. Yet here the difficulty begins. How can we build up the consumptive's body as fast as the disease tears it down? Let us consider.

Cough mixtures must be avoided because they frequently contain opiates which arrest the digestion. Their only effect on the cough is by stupefying the nerves. Let them alone.

All foods that are hard to digest must be avoided, especially fats and oils. Only those foods that are easily digested and assimilated should be eaten. Foods not thus accepted by nature do no good; they do harm. Not what is merely eaten but what is digested and assimilated gives flesh and strength.

Consumption is starvation, slow or rapid, as may be. The first symptom is, not necessarily a cough, but a tendency to lose flesh, to grow thin. Stop this tendency now. Don't wait for obvious lung trouble. That's only a later development—only a minor point.

Stop the wasting and you master the disease,—even though it may have made some slight inroads already. Increase the flesh and the danger is past.

What is needed is an especially-prepared food,—a nutriment in itself and a digester of other foods.

Such an article is the Shaker Digestive Cordial, made by the Shaker Community, of Mt. Lebanon, N. Y. It creates a natural appetite and insures the digestion of what is eaten with it. It overcomes the wasting which is fatal in the consumptive process.

A man may lose money and not die a bankrupt. One may have consumdtion and not die of it. This is science and sense. The success of this new remedy proves it.

A STRANGE TRAGEDY.

By W. CLARK RUSSELL.

[Copyright, 1895, by the Author.]

The doctor next day reported that the Dane was perfectly well and of sound mind, and that he stuck with many imprecations to his story. He described the ghost as a figure in white that looked at him with sparkling eyes and yet blindly. He was unable to describe the features. Fright no doubt stood in the way of perception. He could not imagine where the thing had come from. He was, as he had said, gazing at what looked like a spark or star to leeward when, turning his head, he found the shape close beside him.

The captain and the doctor talked the thing over in my presence, and we decided to consider it a delusion on the part of the Dane, a phantom of his imagination, mainly because the man swooned after he saw the thing, letting go the wheel so that the ship came up into the wind, and it was impossible to conceive that a substantial object could have vanished in the time that elapsed between the man falling down and the flap of sails which had called my attention to the abandoned helm.

However, nothing was said about the matter aft. The sailors adopted the doctor's opinion, some viewing the thing as a "Dutchman's" dodge to get a "night in."

A few days later brought us into cold weather. This was followed by the ice and conflicts of the Horn. We drove too far south, and for a week every afternoon we hove to under a close reefed main topsail for fear of the ice throughout the long hours of antarctic blackness. We were in no temper to think of ghosts, and yet, though no one had delivered the news authoritatively, it had come by this wild, bleak time to be known that Captain Griffiths and Miss Le Grand were engaged. Mrs. Burney told me so one day in the cuddy, and with a wicked flash of her dark eye wondered that people could think of making love with icebergs close at hand.

It was no business of mine, and seemingly I gave the matter no heed, though I could find leisure and curiosity sometimes for an askant glance at the captain and his beauty when they were at table or when the weather permitted the lady to come on deck, and their behavior left me in very little doubt that he was deeply in love with her, but whether she was equally enamored of him I could not guess.

We beat clear of the latitude of roaring gales blind with snow, and mountainous ice islands like cities of alabaster in ruins, and seas ridging in thunder and foam to the height of our mizzen top, and heading north blew under wide wings of studding sails toward the sun, every day sinking some southern stars out of sight, and every night lifting above the sea line some gem of the heavens dear to northern eyes.

I went below at eight bells on a Friday morning when we were two months "out" from Sydney, as I very well remember. The ship had then caught the first of the southeast trade wind. All was well when I left the deck. I was awakened by a hand violently shaking my shoulder. I sprang up and found Robson, the second mate, standing beside my bunk. He was pale as the ghost the Dane had described.

"There's been murder done, sir," he cried. "The captain's killed."

I stared at him like a fool and echoed mechanically and dully: "Murder done! Captain killed!" Then, collecting my wits, I tumbled into my clothes and rushed to the captain's cabin, where I found the doctor and the third mate examining poor Griffith's body. It was half past 6 o'clock in the morning, and the daylight strong, but none of the passengers was moving. The captain had been stabbed to the heart. The doctor said he had been killed by a single thrust. The body was clothed in white drill trousers and a white linen shirt, which was slightly stained with blood where the knife had pierced it.

Who had done this thing? It was horrible, unprovoked murder! Throughout the ship the captain had been the most popular man on board. The forecastle liking for him was as strong as sentiment of any sort can find expression in that part of a vessel. There had never been a murmur. Indeed I had never sailed with a better crew. Not a man had deserted us at Sydney, and of the hands on board at least half had sailed with the captain before.

We carefully searched the cabin, but there was nothing whatever to tell us that robbery had been committed. However, a ghastly, shocking murder had been perpetrated. The man on whose skill and judgment had depended the safety of the ship and the many lives within her had been foully done to death in his sleep by some mysterious hand, and we determined at once upon a course.

First I sent for some of the best and most trustworthy seamen among the crew, and bringing them into the captain's cabin showed them the body. I then, in my capacity as commander of the vessel, authorized them to act as a sort of detectives or policemen and to search every part of the ship, and all the berths in the steerage, and 'tween decks for any clew to the doer of the deed. It was arranged that the cabins of the first class passengers should be thoroughly overhauled by the second and third mates.

All this brought us to the hour when the passengers arose, and the ship was presently alive. The news swept from lip to lip magically. In all parts of the ship I saw men and women talking, with their faces pale with consternation and horror. I had not the courage to break the news to Miss Le Grand and asked the doctor, a quiet, gentlemanly man, to speak to her. I was on the poop looking after the ship when the doctor came from the young lady's berth.

"How did she receive the news?" I asked.

"I wish it may not break her heart," said he gravely. "She was turned into stone. Her stare of grief was dreadful—not the greatest actress could imagine such a look. There'll be no comforting her this side of England."

"Doctor, could he have done it himself?"

"Oh, heaven, no, sir!" and he explained by recalling the posture of the body and the situation of the hands, not to mention the absence of the weapon, why it was impossible the captain should have killed himself.

I don't know how it came about, but while I paced the deck waiting for the reports of the mates and the seamen and the passengers who were helping me in the search it entered my head to mix up with this murder the specter, or ghost, that had frightened the Dane at the wheel into a fit, along with the memory of a sort of quarrel which I guessed had happened between Captain Griffiths and Miss Le Grand. It was a mere muddle of fancies at best, and yet they took a hold of my imagination. I think it was about a week before this murder that I had observed the coolness of what you might call a lovers' quarrel betwixt the captain and his young lady, and without taking any further notice of it I quietly set the cause down to Mrs. Burney, who, as a thorough paced flirt, with fine languishing black eyes and a saucy tongue, had often done her best to engage the skipper in one of those little asides which are as brimstone and the undying worm to the jealous of their sex. The lovers had made it up soon after, and for two or three days previously had been as thick and loverlike as sweethearts ought to be.

But what had the ghost that had affrighted the Dane to do with this murder? And how were Mrs. Burney's blandishments and the short lived quarrel betwixt the lovers to be associated with it? Nevertheless these matters ran in my head as I walked the deck on the morning of that crime, and I thought and thought, scarce knowing, however, in what direction imagination was leading.

The two mates, the seamen and the passengers arrived with their reports. They had nothing to tell. The steward and stewardess had searched with the two mates in the saloon, or cuddy. Every cabin had been ransacked, with the willing consent of its occupants. The forecastle and 'tween decks and steerage and lazarette had been minutely overhauled. Every accessible part of the bowels of the ship had been visited to no purpose. No stowaway of any sort, no rag of evidence or weapon to supply a clew was discovered.

That afternoon we buried the body, and I took command of the ship.

I saw nothing of Miss Le Grand for two days. She kept her cabin and was seen only by the stewardess, who waited upon her. At the expiration of that time I received a message and went at once to her berth. I never could have figured so striking a change in a fine woman full of beauty in so short a time as I now beheld. The fire had died out of her eyes, and still there lurked something weird in the very spiritless and dull and vacant sadness of her gaze. Her cheeks were hollow. Under each eye rested a shadow as though it was cast by a green leaf.

Her first words were, "Cannot you find out who did it?"

"No, madam. We have tried hard—harder for the captain's sake than had he been another, for the responsibility that rests upon the master of an ocean going vessel makes him an object of mighty significance, believe me, to us sailors."

"But the person who killed him must be in the ship," she cried in a voice that wanted much of its old clear music.

"One should suppose so, and he is undoubtedly on board the ship, but we can't find him."

"Did he commit suicide?"

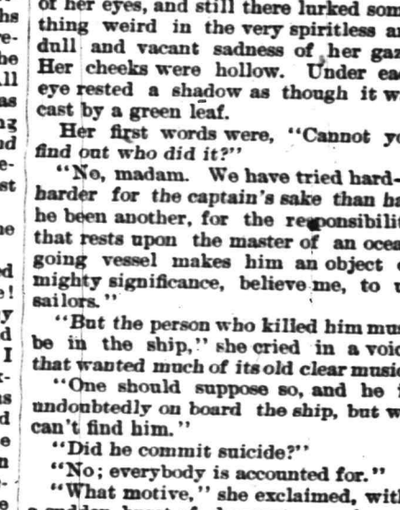
"No; everybody is accounted for."

"What motive," she exclaimed, with a sudden burst of desperate, passionate grief, that wrung her like a fit from head to foot, "could any one have for killing Captain Griffiths? He was the gentlest, the kindest—oh, my heart, my heart!" and hiding her face she rocked herself in her misery.

I tried my rough, seafaring best to soothe her. Certainly until this moment I never could have supposed her love for the poor man was so great.

The fear bred of this mysterious assassination lay in a dark and heavy shadow upon the ship. None of us, passengers or sailors, turned in of a night but with a fear of the secret bloody hand that had slain the captain making its presence tragically known once more before the morning.

It happened one midnight, when we were something north of the equator, in the calms and stinging heat of the intertropic latitudes, that, having come on deck to relieve the second mate and take charge of the ship till 4 o'clock, I felt thirsty and returned to the cuddy for a drink of water. Of the three lamps one only was alight and burned very dimly. There was no moonlight, but a plenty of starshine, which showered in a very rippling of spangled silver through the yawning casements of the skylights.



Plunged it once, deep and hard.

Just as I returned the tumbler to the rack whence I had removed it, the door of Miss Le Grand's cabin was opened, and the girl stepped forth. She was arrayed in white. Probably she was attired in her bedclothes. She seemed to see me at once, for she emerged directly opposite, and I thought she would speak or hastily retire. But after appearing to stare for a little while she came to the table and leaned upon it with her left hand, sighing several times in the most heartbroken manner, and now I saw by the help of the dim lamplight that her right hand grasped a knife—the gleam of the blade caught my eye in a breath!

"Good gracious!" I cried to myself instantly, "the woman's asleep! This, then, is the ghost that frightened the Dane. And this, too, was the hand that murdered the captain!"

I stood motionless, watching her. Presently, taking her hand off the table, she turned her face aft, and with a wonderfully subtle, stealthy, sneaking gait, reminding one strangely of the folding motion of the snake, she made for the captain's cabin.

Now, that cabin, ever since Griffith's death, I had occupied, and you may guess the sensations with which I followed the armed and murderous sleepwalker as she glided to what I must call my berth and noiselessly opened the door of it. The moment she was in the cabin her motions grew amazingly swift. She stepped to the side of the bunk I was in the habit of using, and lifting the knife plunged it once, deep and hard, then came away, so nimbly that it was with difficulty I made room for her in the doorway to pass. I heard her breathe hard and fast as she swept by, and I stood in the doorway of my cabin watching her till her figure disappeared in her own berth.

So, then, the mystery was at an end. Poor Captain Griffith's murderess was his adored sweetheart! She had killed him in her sleep and knew it not. In the blindness of slumber she had repeated the enormous tragedy, as sinless nevertheless as the angels who looked down and beheld her and pitied her.

I went on deck and sent for the doctor, to whom I communicated what I had seen, and he at once repaired to Miss Le Grand's berth, accompanied by the stewardess, and found her peacefully resting in her bunk. No knife was to be seen. However, next morning, the young lady being then on deck, veiled as she always now went, and sitting in a retired part of the poop, the second mate, the doctor and the stewardess again thoroughly searched Miss Le Grand's berth, and they found in a hollow in the ship's side, a sort of scupper, in fact, or the porthole, a carving knife, rusted with old stains of blood. It had belonged to the ship, and it was a knife the steward had missed on the day the captain was killed.

Since the whole ghastly tragedy was a matter of somnambulism all points of it were easily fitted by the doctor, who quickly understood that the knife had been taken by the poor girl in her sleep just as it had been murderously used. What horrible demon governed her in her slumber who shall tell? For my part, I put it down to Mrs. Burney and a secret fever of jealousy which had operated in the poor soul when sense was suspended in her by slumber.

We tried to keep the thing secret, taking care to lock Miss Le Grand up every night without explaining our motive, but the passengers got wind of the truth and shrunk from her with horror. It came, in fact, to their waiting upon me in a body and insisting upon my immuring her in the steerage in company with one of the 'tween deck's passengers, a female who had offered her services as a nurse for hire. This action led to the poor girl herself finding out what had happened. God knows who told her or how she managed to discover it, but 'tis certain she got to learn it was her hand that in sleep had killed her lover, and she went mad on the selfsame day of her understanding what she had done.

Nor did she ever recover her mind. She was landed mad and sent at once to an asylum, where she died, God rest her poor soul, exactly a year after the murder, passing away, in fact, at the very hour the deed was done, as I afterward heard.

THE END.

MUNYON'S

LIFE WORK.

He Gives the People the Means of Curing the Most Stubborn Diseases Without the Expense of a Doctor.

One Remedy for Each Disease.

Professor Munyon's system of curing diseases is now recognized everywhere. Catarrh, rheumatism, dyspepsia, nervousness, female complaints debility and every form of disease cured promply and permanently by Munyon s Improved Homœopathic Remedies, mostly 25c a bottle, to be had from any druggist, who will give you a copy of Munyon's Guide to Health free.

Personal letters to Prof. Munyon, 1505 Arch st., Philadelphia, Pa., answered with free medical advice for any disease.

Where Did I Get This Dreadful Cough?

No matter; the great question is, how shall I get rid of it? Use THE PINEOLA BALSAM, a soothing combination of the remedies nature has put in the pine and other balsamic trees. It cures the inflammation and tickling in the throat and if taken in time will prevent the spread of the disease to the lungs. Ely's Pineola Balsam is strongly recommended in cases of asthma. Twenty-five cents is the price. Tell the neighbors about it.

WHAT FOLKS SAY.

Do They Know What They Have Kidneys For?

If They Don't, They Know at Least When They Are Sick, and They Know When They Are Cured, What Has Cured Them.

See If the Following Applies to You.

Do you know what your kidneys are for?

They are for filtering and purifying your blood.

Do you suffer from pains in your back and sides, sleeplessness, nervousness, puffiness of your eyelids, swelling of your feet and ankles?

If you do, it is because your kidneys are not purifying your blood.

Bad blood is like bad water. It is poisonous.

But it is made in your body every minute. It is made from the waste that goes on in your body.

Whenever you move or think, you wear out some part of the matter which makes up your body or brain.

This waste matter is of no further use. It is like kitchen garbage. It must be thrown away.

Your blood puts new matter in its place and carries the waste to your kidneys.

Your kidneys filter it out of your blood and throw it out of your body.

This is what yodr kidneys are for.

This is why Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills will cure blood troubles and kidney troubles. Because they make the kidneys filter the blood.

Here is a letter from a prominent gentleman of Boston. He says:

Boston, Aug. 9th, '95.
Hobb's Medicine Co.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:—

It is with great pleasure that I recommend the wonderful medicinal properties of your excellent remedy. I have for years been a great sufferer from acute kidney troubles, and have tried every known medicine without any beneficial results.

Through the advice of a physician I was induced to try Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills, and after using the first box I was convinced I had at last found a permanent cure.

I am now perfectly well, and two boxes of Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills is what did it. It would be impossible for me to say too much in their praise.

Very truly yours.
James H. Lynch,
No. 26 Irving street.

Blood troubles don't mean skin diseases only.

They mean rheumatism, gout, anaemia, chlorosis, pale, bloodless complexion, lack of ambition, headache, dizziness, hysteria, neuralgia, etc.

These diseases are not generally called blood diseases, but they are blood diseases all the same.

They are, because they are caused by a poison in the blood which the kidneys don't properly filter.

The proof of it is that as soon as the kidneys begin to filter the blood all these diseases disappear.

And the best way to cure the kidneys and make them do their work of filtering the blood is to take Dr. Hobbs Sparagus Kidney Pills.

There is nothing harmful about Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills. Nothing but pure vegetable healing and tonic herbs and roots.

They are recommended by physicians and specialists who have tested them and found out their great curative powers, and thousands of people who have been cured by Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills, after they had given up all hope, will always continue to sing their praises.

Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills are for sale by all druggists, or will be sent prepaid to any address for 50c per box.

DANCES GAY AND PRETTY

Chapman, Conklin, Samuel Huntington, Emil Woltman, W. E. Lowe, F. O. Herring, Samuel McCutchen, C. S. West, and the Misses Schipper, E. R. Cock, Huntington, Maude VanBoskerck, Macready, Ayune Macready, Clara D. Finley, Ahrens, Graff, Pierson, Yerkes, Walz, Montanari.

In the solid little brick cottage of Germany, useful articles were sold, and many were the purchasers. Mrs. Mason W. Tyler was in charge of this booth and her assistants during the week are Mesdames T. Logan Murphy, Charles J. Taggart, J. E. Turrill, John H. Carman, Benjamin R. Western, John Haviland, Arthur T. Gallup, Anna Hannegan, Horsley Barker, George Wright, William L. Saunders, William Wright, and Misses Annie Murphy, Western, Haviland, Bartling Emma L. Adams, Anna Thorne and Helen Warman.

Japan was selected as the home of the toys and in a pleasant pavillion the Japanese maidens attended to the wants of their customers. This booth was under the charge of Mrs. Charles Seward Foote, whose assistants for the week are Mesdames George Clay, E. L. Finch, C. P. Ralli, William Lewis Brown, S. P. Simpson, L. Dennis, William Pelletier, and the Misses Ellis, Anthony, Morgan, Dryden, Rodman, Lawrence, Bowen.

In a grove of fur trees, the Gypsies camped out with their tent and tripod, and here they sold baskets and told fortunes. Mrs. J. W. Reinhart and Mrs. Howard Fleming were in charge and they were assisted by the Gypsy dancers.

Flowers and plants were on sale at the Parisian flower stall and a beautiful place it looked, daintly trimmed as it was with grass and flowers. Mrs. H. M. Stockton was in charge and her corps of assistants consisted of Mesdames E. H. Ladd, Evarts Tracy, T. S. Wheeler, Daniel Ginna, Frank Raymond, Fred Yates, and the Misses Dumont, Ginna, Huntington, Van Boskerck, Baker.

The stationery booth was an attractive one on the outside and on the inside as well with its handsome show of books, stationery, and the like. Mrs. F. G. Foster was in charge, assisted by Mesdames A. W. Haviland, J. R. Joy, Elliott Barrows, John D. Miller, and the Misses Emily B. Tracy, Elise Horne and Sarah Douglass.

The Spanish booth was a very attractive one with its handsome decorations of red and yellow, the artistic designs for which were all made by its manager, Mrs. S. A. Cruikshank. She was assisted by Mesdames A. T. Slauson, T. H. Curtis, J. F. Wieckers, M. Ackerman, D. T. VanBuren, T. E Hazell, H. L. Moore, E. H. Mosher, and the Misses Harriott, Louise Patten, Maude Lord, May Kirkner, Annie Horton, Louise VanZandt, Meredith and Titsworth.

The refreshment room was a popular place during the evening. It was under the charge of Mrs. O. T. Waring and Mrs. G. W. VanBoskerck. Last evening the waitresses were from the Church of the Redeemer and St Stephen's church. They were Misses Bessie Day, E. Thompson, Pond, Helen H. Phillips, Frances Phillips, Daisy Elsburg, Elise Suffren, Edith Clapp, Florence Beal, Roxburgh, Florence Duck, Josephine Simmonds, Sanford, Helen Hasbrouck, Beatrice Potter, Burt, Edson. The rest of the booths will be described in later issues of The Press.

After the last dance Miss Stewart was urged to step from behind the scenes where she was met by Mr. VanEmburgh who presented her with a large bunch of yellow and white chrysanthemums tied with Rob Roy ribbon from the Scotch lads and lasses.

While the beauties of the Kirmess were being discussed after the dances had been concluded, there was a subject on which the vast audience unanimously agreed and that was that if any one ever deserved credit, it was certainly Miss Stewart. Her wonderful executive powers, her control over the great number of dancers, and her complete success in an undertaking which would have staggered the ordinary woman or man, make her well deserving of the heartiest thanks that Plainfield can extend. So show your appreciation of her work and let another one thousand people gather in the Columbia Cycle Academy this evening as they did last to see the result of her wonderful training.

The music was furnished by George E. Rogers and an orchestra of twelve pieces. Owing to the fact that the orchestra had had no chance to practice except on Saturday evening there was some delay between the different selections and several minor mistakes were made. They were also badly handicapped by the lack of light. But despite all the obstacles they played very well, especially the opening selection, "Morning, Noon, and Night." With a little practice the mistakes of last evening will be remedied.

—Tomorrow only, Wednesday, Nov. 13th, plain table tumblers, 23 cents per dozen, at VanEmburgh & Son's.

THE MOTORMAN'S DIFFICULTY.

Too Many Levers to Handle to Stop a Car as Quickly as He Might.

We believe that it has been very fairly demonstrated that a four wheeled car can be brought to a standstill by the hand brake within a space so short that neither the airbrake nor the electric brake could do much better, and that the difference in favor of the two latter is more than counterbalanced by certain disadvantages inherent in them. A cable car is by no means as heavy as a motor car, nor is there a cable line anywhere in the country running at as great a speed as electric cars are habitually driven. We think also that there is no question at all but that an electric car, nowithstanding its greater weight, can be stopped more quickly than can a cable car and that all it requires with its present braking facilities is that those facilities should be applied intelligently.

A cable car cannot back out nor rely upon anything to stop its course but the adhesion of the wheels on the track. With the electric car, as with the steam locomotive, the wheels may be reversed as soon as the speed is reduced so that this may be done without skidding. The storage battery car is more difficult to stop than the trolley, if both are at the same speed, simply because the storage battery car weighs just about twice as much as the heaviest cable car.

The greatest trouble, in our opinion, with the braking facilities of our electric cars is that the motorman has too much to do already. He has the controlling lever in one hand, the brake lever in the other, a reversing switch, which we suppose he is expected to control with his teeth, while he blows a whistle with his mouth; a bell push to occupy one of his feet and the pawl on the brake ratchet which his other foot is intended to control and a sand valve that must be operated somehow. There is a canopy switch also, which, if he be very tall and sprightly, he might work with the top of his head. Now, supposing we add an emergency brake or two, as The American Machinist would have us do, that would have to be controlled in the same way that the one armed fifer held his fife while passing his hat for alms, and this, we think, would not be an effective method of control.—Electricity.

HOW WHALES LOVE.

The Mother Whale Is Faithful to Her Offspring Even In Death.

Captain Scoresby relates how one of his harpooners, having struck a young whale in order to secure the mother, saw her instantly arise, wrap her elippers round her young one and descend, dragging about 600 feet of line out of the boat with marvelous force and velocity. Again she rose to the surface, darted furiously to and fro, frequently stopped short or suddenly changed her direction, giving every possible intonation of agony.

The boats continued to pursue her closely for a length of time, while she, poor creature, seemed utterly regardless of the dangers which surrounded her. At last one of the boats approached so near that a harpoon was thrown at her, then a second harpoon and a third. Still she did not attempt to escape, but allowed the other boats to approach, so that more harpoons were attached, till, in the course of an hour, the poor animal was killed.

The fidelity of the male and female whale to each other exceeds that of most animals. Anderson, in his "History of Greenland," mentions that, some fishermen having struck one of two whales, a male and a female that were in company together, the wounded creature made a long and terrible resistance.

With a single blow of its tail it upset a boat containing three men, by which they all went to the bottom. When another boat came up, the other whale still remained by its companion and lent every assistance, till at last the wounded victim sank under the number and severity of its wounds, while its faithful partner, unable to survive its loss, stretched herself upon the dead body of her mate and calmly shared its fate.—New York Dispatch.

ESTABLISHED MAY 10, 1887. PLAINFIELD, N. J., WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1895. TWO CENTS A COPY—$5 A YEAR

LECTURER UNABLE TO APPEAR.

But Whittier's and Phillips' Comments On Lydia Maria Child Were Read.

The Plainfield Branch Alliance of Unitarian and Other Liberal Christian Women opened the season of 1895-'96 yesterday afternoon at three o'clock in All Souls church in a most auspicious manner, though the members were disappointed in not having Mrs. Chadwick, of Brooklyn, present, who was to have read a paper on the life of Lydia Maria Child. The Branch Alliance has planned a study of some liberal women, of which the above is one.

The members received word at a late hour that Mrs. Chadwick could not be present and a selected programme was arranged on the same subject. Mrs. S. R. Krom presided, and Miss Edith R. Leonard acted as secretary.

The first thing on the programme was the report of the religious news committee. Mrs. Leonard reported for the committee. It showed that the condition of Unitarianism throughout the country was excellent, as was also that of other denominations. Miss E. L. Reynolds then reported that twenty-five magazine and 207 papers had been distributed during the year.

Miss Edith R. Leonard read John G. Whittier's introduction to Mrs. Child's volume of letters. It was exceedingly interesting.

Mrs. Henry B. Wells read from the same book Wendell Phillips' remarks made at her funeral.

They were touching and paid great tribute to the life of the departed. Perhaps the most interesting feature of the meeting was the reading by Mrs. Leonard of several letters which were written by Mrs. Childs to Aaron M. Powell. They were exceedingly clever and portrayed, perhaps, more than anything else to those who knew her, a better conception of her character.

After Mrs. S. R. Krom announced the next subject, "Margaret Fuller and Sister Dora," on December 10th, upon which a paper will be read by Mrs. Charles T. Catlin, of Brooklyn, the meeting adjourned.

ONE YEAR YET BEFORE A VOTER.

William J. Hartpence Celebrates His Twentieth Birthday Anniversary.

Wm. J. Hartpence, of 315 Richmond street, passed his twentieth birthday and his friends planned to give him a surprise last night. The affair was arranged by William Wenzel and was so complete in every respect that Mr. Hartpense knew nothing of it till he arrived home about 8:30. Dancing and games helped to pass the evening in a pleasant manner.

Bert Naylor and Bert Blake furnished excellent music during the evening. About twelve o'clock the guests were served with refreshments. Mr. Hartpence received several useful presents from his friends. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hartpence, Mrs. Henry Angleman, the Misses Arthur, Kate Apgar, Keenan, Emma Angleman, and Cora Hartpence, William Wenzel, Forester Hartpence, Robert Keenan, and Gilbert Apgar.

Two Murder Cases Set for Trial.

The October term of the county court, with the exception of two murder trials, will terminate today with the trial of an appeal case from the District Court. The trial of Frank Freehill, the Rahway murderer, who killed Special Officer Jewell, will begin next Tuesday, and the trial of the Italian who stabbed a countryman to death at Westfield will take place November 20th.

Begun a Suit for $60,000.

A contract suit for $60,000 has been brought in the Union County Circuit Court by William Z. Larned, of Summit, against Reuben M. Manley, of Essex county. The suit is brought to recover the principal and interest on a coupon bond made by Luther O. Challerr, of Atchison, Kan., to the Kansas Trust and Banking Company, June 1st, 1889. The case will be tried at the next term of court.

Croup is a terror to young mothers. To post them concerning the first symptoms, and treatment is the object of this item. The first indication of croup is hoarseness. In a child who is subject to croup it may be taken as a sure sign of the approach of an attack. Following this hoarseness is a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's Cough remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the rough cough has appeared it will prevent the attack. It has never been known to fail. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

SCENES ALL HAVE VIEWED.

Pretty and Picturesque Places Shown on the Screen.

An appreciative and enthusiastic audience gathered at the Camera Club rooms in the Babcock building last night and witnessed one of the best, if not the best, exhibitions ever given by the Club. Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis in his entertaining manner explained the pictures which added materially to the enjoyment of the occasion. The slides, ninety-five in all, belong to the club members, and every one was a work of art. Those who are responsible for them include the late G. H. Babcock, J. Hervey Doane, Walter Freeman, F. R. Stevens, Harry Coward, Otto Ahrens, H. Y. Stillman, and John Naegle.

The views were principally about Plainfield and vicinity and when shown received hearty applause. After the exhibition those present inspected the rooms of the club and were highly pleased with them. O. S. Teale announced that the Rev. T. Logan Murphy would give an illustrated lecture Monday evening, December 25th, on "Ireland," in the club rooms.

A DECADE IN EXISTENCE.

Woman's Relief Corps, No. 10, Ten Years Old.

The Woman's Relief Corps, No. 10, Auxiliary to Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., was organized ten years ago Monday with a small number, and ever since there has been a gradual growth and increase, until today it is one of the most flourishing and influential organizations in the city.

The members have fulfilled their obligation in relieving the sick and needy, while at the same time they have been of incalcuable value to the Grand Army of this city, assisting them in perpetuating the grand principles of Friendship, Charity and Loyalty, upon which the organization is founded. It is probable that the corps will celebrate in an appropriate manner the passing of this tenth-mile stone in their history at an early date, which would be most fitting and proper.

VICTORY FOLLOWS DEFEAT.

Unable to Win the National Trophy They Retain the State Prize.

When the whist team of the Park Club get hold of a good thing they know enough to keep it. Thus far they are they are the only ones to hold the New Jersey State Challenge Trophy any length of time and they are likely to retain it for awhile.

Last night the Montclair whist team, Messrs. Mulford, Kloman, Harrison and Reed, were the guests of Messrs. McCutchen, Townsend, Howell and Rogers, of the Park Club, and after an evening of enjoyment, during which there was some fine playing, the Parks won by the score of 13 to 8.

The visitors were exceedingly well pleased with their reception and visit.

After the game light refreshments were served and the visitors left for their home.

DINED BY SHERIFF WYCKOFF.

Somerset Statesmen Gather Around the Board and Enjoy Hospitality.

Sheriff-elect W. W. Wyckoff, of Somerville, entertained a few of his Somerset county friends with an elaborate course dinner at the Hotel Somerset, Somerville, yesterday afternoon. Wit and humor reigned supreme and everybody had a good time enjoying the excellent speeches.

Those present included: Assemblyman-elect Charles A. Reed, Lawyer G. W. DeMeza, J. M. Smalley, Charles McNabb, of Plainfield and North Plainfield, County Clerk-elect F. W. Somers, of Bound Brook, ex-Sheriff Dilts, Senator Thompson, Postmaster Thompson, C. Elmi, H. D. Dilts, Judges Wagoner and Jamison, W. Hardgrove, ex-Surrogate W. H. Long and C. VanArsdale, of Somerville.

Reception to a Pastor.

The congregation of the Park Avenue Baptist church will tender a reception to Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Richardson on Tuesday in the church parlors.

Henry Wilson, the postmaster at Welshton, Florida, says he cured a case of diarrhœa of long standing in six hours, with one small bottle of Chambertain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. What a pleasant surprise that must have been to the sufferer. Such cures are not unusual with this remedy. In many instances only one or two doses are required to give permanent relief. It can always be depended upon. When reduced with water it is pleasant to take. For sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. R. Armstrong, Manager.

The first matinee of the Kirmess was held at the Columbia Cycle Academy yesterday afternoon before an audience of about 800 enthusiastic people, among whom the young folks were in the majority. The curtain was slightly late in rising, but when it did, after the selection "Light Cavalry" by the orchestra, it disclosed a pretty picture There grouped about the stage were all the little dancers in their many-colored costumes. The colored lights were flashed upon the scene and then the little court jester, like his older impersonator, signalled to his companions to rise, and the grand procession began, headed by the jester. On they marched, toddling little Japs with flat-crowned hats and queues, dainty Flowers with their attendant Bees, led by the Queen of the Bees, the brilliantly dressed Carnival dancers, the sailor lads and lassies, and the sweet English maidens dressed in white, with their baskets and wreaths of flowers. The grand march came to an end at last, and the dancers disappeared behind the scenes. The court jester was impersonated by Pendleton Rodgers.

When the last of the marchers had left the stage, the orchestra played a few lively measures and then, from behind the wings, there came a funny little band moving their hands in the true Mikado style and, from their queer costumes the spectators had no trouble in recognizing the Japs. And how funny they were. They kept the audience in roars of laughter as they toddled about carrying their little Japanese umbrellas. Perhaps the funniest of all was when a mattress was dragged out and the little Japs turned somersaults on it one after another. Even Barnum's circus could not hold a candle to it. A very pleasing feature was a vocal trio, "Three Little Maids from School" by the Misses Gladys Peck, Marjorie Ross and Grace Richardson. There was also a very pretty solo dance by Miss Helen Stevens. The continued applause at the close showed to what extent it was appreciated. The chaperones in this dance were Mrs. A. C. Vail and Mrs. Charles Lawson; the dancers were the Misses Florence Stewart, Constance Wilcox, Helen Stevens, Marjorie Howard, Dorothy Howard, Grace Richardson, Hannah Thayer, Caroline Martin, Gladys Peck, Marjorie Ross, Virginia Leland, Kathleen Phillips and Louis Minford, Irving Day, Bertram Leggett, Gordon Stewart, Minty Minford, Lothrop Ritchie, Kenneth Phillips, Jack Martin, Francis Wilcox, Douglass Waring, Billy Lambert.

When the last wee Jap was gone, the dance of the Flowers and Bees took place. First in came the Flowers, sweet little maids dressed in tight waists and fluffy skrits of pink, lavender, yellow and red. Their entire costume was of one color. After they had whirled and danced about, in rushed the swarm of Bees headed by their graceful queen. Their black bodies with yellow strips made the scene an artistic one as they buzzed about the Flowers, while the colored lights shone on them and the numerous bells, with which their costumes were covered, rang at every move. One of the flowers, Miss Dorothy Fleming, gave a charming solo dance.

The chaperone was Mrs. Edward C. Perkins, and the dancers were Dorothy Fleming, Charlotte Finch, Mary Faber, Eleanor Waring, Rosa Woltman, Alice Titus, Margaret Townsend, Mary Barlow, Helen Cruikshank, Eleanor Woodcock, Margaret Lowe, Katherine Titus, and Wickham Corwin, Dudley Barrows, Ralph Lawson, Van Wyke Brooks, Effingham Pinto, Harold Hegeman, Charles Perkins, William Barlow, Charles D. Waring, Reginald Roome, Elliot Barrows, and Dudley Wilcox. The Queen Bee was Grace Wilcox.

The Carnival dance was the next to claim attention and presented one of the prettiest sights in the whole Kirmess. They were a strange crew, from the King of Hearts to the little red and white Clown, but they danced well, keeping excellent time, and deserved the hearty applause which they received. The solo dance was given by Miss Bessie Phillips, and was called by the title of "Coming Through the Rye." Mrs. Frank C. Martin was the chaperone, and the dancers were May Murray, Ethel Murray, Bessie Phillips, Marguerite Phillips, Marie French, Mazie Day, Gladys Bigelow, Louise Curtis, Roxy Love, Anna Garrigues, Frances VanDeventer, Lucy Budlong, Francis A. Martin, Walter Cahoone, Pendleton Rogers, Gordon Abbot, Robert Abbot, John Phillips, Percy Phillips, Ralph Vail, Jack VanDeventer, Jimmy Scott, Harry Slauson, Brockholst Miller.

The catchest dance of all those in the matinee was the Hornpipe. It pleased everyone, as the little sailor lassies danced out, with heads first on one side and and then on the other. The costumes were not gay like those of the Carnival, but were pretty combinations of red and white. The girls all wore sailor blouses with skirts of red and white stripes, while their masculine companions were clad in the regulation sailor costume with mortarboard hats. There was something very pleasing in the lively motions of the sailors as they danced about the stage, first forward and then back. Mrs. Charles E. Brooks was the chaperone, and those taking part in it were Elsie Goddard, Helen Hartman, Marjorie Fleming, Dora Waring, Ursula Rowland, Edith Fisk, Ethel Crane, Clara Case, Leila Howard, Florence Curtis, Elsie Harman, Margaret Goddard, Virginia Hegeman, Edward Perkins, Clarence Roome, William Schoonmaker, Maxwell Perkins, George Evans, Howard Roome, Story Rowland, Frank Reinhart, Abbott Brainerd, Langdon Howard, Hollie Titus, Ralph Schoonmaker, Ames Brooks.

The last dance of the afternoon was the May dance, which was described and the dancers named in yesterday's issue of The Daily Press. The dance was much improved and was executed without a noticeable mistake.

All of the afternoon dances were heartily applauded and all that were present declared that the matinee was a great success from first to last, and that Miss Stewart was deserving of much credit for her instruction of the young dancers, the results of which were so enjoyable.

The first night of a performance is always apt to be full of mistakes which are corrected on the second evening. It was not exactly that way at the Kirmess, for there were not many mistakes on the first night, but those that were made were corrected in last evening's dances and but one slight mistake was noticed during the entire programme, which is saying a good deal for only the second evening. The Columbia Cycle Academy was not quite as well filled, but the spectators numbered very close on to the thousand of Monday evening.

There was scarcely any delay at the start and the orchestra began their opening selection, "Rob Roy," at a few minutes after eight. The opening tableau was as pretty as the night before and was again loudly applauded. Then the dances followed each other in rapid succession. The applause was, if possible, more generously given than on the night before. The Gypsy dance was especially applauded.

One of the favorite dances seems to be the Tarantelle, whose bright costumes and lively measures suit the artistic eye as well as the popular fancy. The Serpentine dance was not on the programme last evening, but in its place a clog dance was executed by W. J. O'Brien. It was a novelty, as a good clog dancer is not a frequent thing, and that fact was understood as was shown by the loud applause at the conclusion of his dance.

The Indians were there again and danced, hopped and yelled in the most approved manner. The war dance was improved last evening, if that were possible, as the nervousness of the first night had worn off and they braves entered into the full spirit of ther parts.

After the last war-whoop had died away and the dance was over, the jester, Wm. N. Runyon, appeared and treated his audience to an original song written for the occasion. There had been applause before during the evening, but it was not in it with the applause which Mr. Runyon received when he finished his song. The building fairly shook with the vigorous hand clapping. And it did not cease until he sang another verse. The words of the song were as follows:

My honored friends, a song I'll sing,
And the burden of my lay
Is just to urge you all to come
And make the Kirmess pay.
We've got the finest show on earth
Right here in Crescent rink.
And all that's needed for success
Is the merry golden "chink."
So come and plank your dollars down
And blow in all your "dust,"
Fill Muhlenberg's old treasury
So full that it will bust.
The Building Fund we want to swell
And with sufficient wealth,
We'll have the best place in the State
For building up the health.
Chorus:—So come and bring your neighors
To help us in our labors,
And then I think, be jabers,
We'll make the old thing go.

That "accidents will happen
In the best run family,"
Is a proverb that has been well known
Since 44, B. C.
So if your friends should break their necks,
A-tumbling down the stairs,
You'd surely want a real nice place
To send them for repairs.
And with an operating room,
Such as only gold can buy,
A broken neck would just be fun,
And oh what joy to die!
You cannot tell what moment you
May need the place yourself,
So the safest way is to help us out
With a great big wad of pelf.
Chorus:—So come and bring, etc.

We've wonders here from every clime,
And every foreign land;
From Greenland's icy mountains down
To India's coral strand.
We've got a supper here to sell
That's simply out of sight,
And all that it will cost you, friends,
Is fifty cents per night.
And after eating, if to smoke
The wish your minds besets,
Go patronize the Spaniards for
Cigars and cigarettes
And if dyspepsia comes to you,
Whose appetites are large,
We'll send you down to Muhlenberg
And cure you free of charge.
Chorus:—So come and bring, etc.

The dances were all over at twenty minutes of ten o'clock and the rest of the evening was spent in dancing on the stage or viewing and purchasing at the different booths. The refreshment room drew many of the throng within its walls and served them a dinner which, unlike those at many restaurants, tasted as good as it looked on the printed menu. Mrs. O. T. Waring and Mrs. G. W. Van Boskerck were in command with a staff consisting of Mrs. John Bushnell, Mrs. Craig A. Marsh, Mrs. H. P. Reynolds, Mrs. George H. Goddard, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Gilford Mayer, Miss Mary Tweedy, Miss Anna Opdyke, Mrs. E. Woltman, The Misses Embury, Mrs. Josiah Brown, Mrs. DeRevere, Mrs. Ruth C. Leonard, Mrs. Henry McGee, Mrs. George W. Rockfellow, Mrs. Van Alystyne, Mrs. N. P. T. Finch, Mrs. C. C. Guion, Mrs. Nelson W. Runyon, and Mrs. Utzinger.

Last evening the waitresses were from the Grace P. E. church, and the Holy Cross P. E. church. They were the Misses Hagan, Langdon, Betts, Elsie Smith, Helen Phfender, Eva Noe, Van Zandt, Gardner, Louise Egan, Rachel Emmons, Ada Bartling, Georgie Fountain, Alice Barker, Ida Fountain, Jean Harrington, Clara Woodruff, Fannie Western, Josephine Hall, and Laura Higgins.

The "Summer Garden," where ice cream and soda water were sold, was also patronized by many during the evening, and the waitresses were kept busy attending to the wants of their many customers. Those in charge of this favorite resort were Mrs. Henry Lapsley, Miss Edith Allen and Miss Martine. The room was prettily decorated with greens and flowers.

Another place which was kept busy during the evening was the Garden in Wales where Welsh rarebit was sold, while in the rear of the garden was a smoking room. A stone fence, made of canvas, surrounded the garden, while greens lined the inside of the walls. This booth was under the supervision of Mrs. J. Parker Mason, assisted by Mrs. J. E. Corlies, Mrs. H. C. Adams, Mrs. J. K. Myers, and Mrs. Walton, of Newark.

Art is represented at the Kirmess by the Florintine booth. It is lined with red, and with different pictures and paintings on the walls the booth presents a most artistic appearance. The commitee that looks after this booth consists of Mrs. I. N. VanSickle, Mrs. D. E. Titsworth, Mrs. W. M. Stillman, Mrs. J. D. Titsworth, Mrs. F. A. Dunham, and the Misses Bessie Titsworth, Lulu Lewis and Louise Clawson.

Last, but by no means least, is the French booth, a turreted castle overgrown with ivy, while inside the electric lights display a varied and choice assortment of fancy articles. This booth is one of the most attractive of all. Mrs. Albert Hoffman Atterbury is in charge of this booth, and is assisted by Mrs. Irving H. Brown, Mrs. Charles B. Corwin, Mrs. George C. Evans, Mrs. Charles J. Fisk, Mrs. Ellis W. Hedges, Miss Ginna, Miss F. E. Kenyon and Miss Whiton.

The music of last evening was a great improvement over that of Monday and the orchestra played excellently and deserved the commendation they received from many quarters. The opening overture was especially good. The programme for tonight is as follows:

Overture—"Semiramide".....Rossini
Tableau—Procession.....All Nations
Toreador Dance.....Spain
Highland Reel.....Scotland
May Dance.....England
North Country Harvest Dance.....Germany
Military Dance.....Russia
Serpentine Dance.
Gypsy Dance.....Hungary
War and Moon Dance.....American Indians
Procession—Tableau.

The programme for tomorrow afternoon is as follows:

Overture—"Stradella".....Flotow
Tableau—Procession.
Carnival Dance.
Japanese Court Dance.
Dance of the Flowers and Bees.
The Hornpipe.
May Dance.

The Indian dance which has made such a hit will not be given tomorrow evening.

Reserved seats for any evening may be obtained at Reynolds' pharmacy.

NO RECEIVER YET.

Disagreement About Who Shall Settle Up Somerset Bank Affairs.

Application was made to Chancellor McGill at the State House yesterday for the appointment of a receiver for the Somerset County Bank, at Somerville, to succeed the late William Y. Johnson.

The names of Counselor George H. Large and James Vanderveer were suggested, but objections were raised to these gentlemen because of their relationship to some of the defendants in a suit instituted by the stockholders against the directors for the recovery of certain monies alleged to have been misappropriated by the directors. The matter was finally adjourned until Tuesday next.

Results Are What The Press Brings.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Day, corner of Duer street and Park place, have just reported a remarkable recovery through the valuable advertising medium of The Daily Press. Last June their little daughter lost a gold necklace that was prized very much. Several months later the necklace was found by a borough man. The latter reads The Daily Press and he noticed the loss advertised. The paper was mislaid but, like the cat, it came back. This time the man's wife found it, and she secured the address and returned the necklace to the owner, which was duly appreciated.

Appointed a Guardian.

The Surrogate of the county of Somerset last Monday appointed Amanda Greder guardian of her infant child, Irving Greder, who receives $2,000 under the will of its grandfather, Charles Greder, of North Plainfield. Upon the application of Amanda Greder the Orphans' Court of that county made an order that she should have the sum of $4 a week from the legacy of $2,000 for the support of the child. W. K. McClure made the application in her behalf.

A Question Often Asked.

The question is often asked, when should glasses be worn? To this answer should be, that as soon as discomfort arises for need of them, they should be adopted. If your eyes are causing you anxiety, or if the glasses you are wearing are not suited to your eyes, call on Leech, Stiles & Co.'s eye specialists, who will be at 107 East Front street tomorrow from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. Examination free.

For a pain in the side or chest there is nothing so good as a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of pain. It affords prompt and permanent relief and if used in time will often prevent a cold from resulting in pneumonia. This same treatment is a sure cure for lame back. YELLOW FEVER ON SHIPBOARD

Thirteen of the Crew of a Norwegian Ship Stricken—Two Dead.

Newcastle-on-Tyne, Nov. 13.—The Norwegian ship Mindet, Capt. Christiansen, from Mobile, September 11, for West Hartlepool, has been towed in here with eleven of her crew prostrated with yellow fever. Two other members of the crew died on the voyage of that disease. Owing to the spread of sickness, the commander was unable to handle the Mindet's sails, and she drifted for several days and was finally picked up off this coast by a tug, which brought her into port. Everything possible is being done for the sick men, and the ship will be thoroughly disinfected before anything or anybody is allowed to land from her.

THE SCHLATTER CRAZE.

Utmost Care Required To Keep the Crowds in Subjection.

Denver, Col., Nov. 13.—The Schlatter craze is fast growing in intensity. Yesterday it was only by the utmost care that the great crowd was kept in subjection. Tickets bearing numbers were issued and all had to form in line according to the numbers. So many applied that the line at daylight extended four blocks. Schlatter dismissed the people at the rate of from 400 to 600 an hour, having declined for the first time to bless handkerchiefs while giving the touch.

Schlatter To Go to Chicago.

Denver, Nov. 13.—Francis Schlatter, the healer, will end his public work in Denver on Nov. 16, and after a rest he will depart for Chicago.

DUNRAVEN CENSURED.

The British Press Condemns His Insinuations.

London, Nov. 13.—Even Lord Dunraven's friends now admit that he made a serious mistake in issuing his pamphlet. One of the highest yachting authorities here, who is in constant touch with the leading members of the Royal Yacht squadron, comments that Lord Dunraven's action was greatly regretted and generally condemned by yachtsmen. The press as a rule has begun to follow the lead of St. James Gazette, which so strongly condemned Lord Dunraven.

JOHNSON ACCEPTS.

Will Race Michael When the Latter Places His Money.

New York, Nov. 13.—John S. Johnson telegraphs to the American Wheelman that he will accept the challenge issued a short time ago by J. Michael, the Welsh champion, for a series of match races to determine the world's championship. Michael offers Johnson $500 expense money to go to Paris, and Johnson replies that if the Welshman will place his money in the hands of the American Wheelman, it will be covered and the plans arranged.

THE ASHANTEE EXPEDITION.

Great Activity Displayed in Sending Stores for the Troops.

London, Nov. 13.—Probably not more than 300 troops will be sent from England to take part in the expedition against the king of Ashantee, but the whole West India regiment at Sierra Leone, and a naval brigade from the British West Africa squadron will be employed. There is great activity displayed in sending stores for the expedition from the Woolwich arsenal and other military depots.

LOOTED EVERY BEDROOM.

Thieves Make a Rich Haul in a Young Ladies' Seminary.

Norwalk, Conn., Nov. 13.—Thieves entered Miss Cornelia F. Baird's seminary for young ladies on Orchard street while the ladies and pupils were at supper and looted every bedroom in four dwellings of which the seminary is composed. Among the articles stolen were watches, chains, diamonds, rings, pocketbooks and pins estimated in value at over $1,000.

HAD TO RETURN.

Bark Thistle Lost One Seaman and Had Six Others Injured.

London, Nov. 13.—The British bark Thistle, Capt. England, which sailed from Swansea on the 9th inst. for San Francisco, was towed to Holyhead yesterday. She had lost one seaman and six others of her crew had been injured during the prevalence of a gale which she encountered.

AN INDIAN WAR FEARED

Bloodshed May Follow the Murder of Utes.

Interior Department Waiting for Full Details Before Despatching Troops to the Scene—Possibility that Trouble May Be Avoided—The Utes a Revengeful Tribe.

Washington, Nov. 13.—High officials here fear that another Indian uprising is indicated by the dispatch received at the Indian office from Indian Agent Day at Ignacio, Col., saying that two Ute Indians have been killed by whites in a wanton manner and that the Indians show by their sullen demeanor that they intend to seek revenge. The Utes are known as one of the craftiest and most revengeful tribes of all that race in this country, and they are also very powerful. No details were sent, however, and the officials desire to receive them before moving in the matter so as not to precipitable any trouble that may by any possibility be avoided. Therefore no troops will be ordered to the scene at present.

Finding of the Murdered Men.

The telegram says that Juan Tobias, an Indian policeman, while out hunting, found the bodies of Ravennough, a subchief of the Winnimiche band of Utes, and one of his men, who had been murdered by the whites. The bodies were partly covered by snow and had evidently been dead some time. The murder was committed between the big bend of the Dolores river and Plateau creek, off the reservation. They were hunting, a pastime secured to them by their treaty. There are other Indians in the same locality and a like fate may overtake them.

Fears More Bloodshed.

Agent Day says the absent Indians have not yet been informed of the murder and expresses a fear that when they are more blood will flow. The Indians on the reservation, he says, are counselling in a menacing manner, and he informs the commissioner that he deems it advisable to hold a company of cavalry ready to advance at once if necessary.

To Investigate the Affair.

Agent Day says that he himself is sick and unable to take any active part in the matter. He has wired Joseph Smith, an employe of the Indian service, to come at once to the agency. He has also wired the sheriff of Montezuma county te be on his guard and to aid Smith in investigating the affair.

Referred to War Department.

Commissioner Browning took Agent Day's telegram to Secretary Smith and the latter will probably refer it to the war department for its instruction.

HAS LOST THEM BUSINESS.

Dispute Between Clyde Shipbuilders and Their Employes.

Glasgow, Nov. 13.—The disputes between the Clyde shipbuilders and their employes continue without any change. The builders have lost an order from the Italian government for the construction of three gunboats and twelve torpedo boats, owing to their inability to furnish a guarantee that the boats would be delivered at a specified time. The Norwegian government has placed an order for torpedo boats with German builders for the same reason.

FIRE IN CHICAGO.

One Person Burned to Death and Five Injured.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—John Baramiski was burned to death, his wife and 24-year-old son, Martin, fatally injured and three other people badly hurt in a fire which destroyed two buildings, 390 and 392 Noble street. The fire was discovered by a policeman, who vainly endeavored to arouse the family. The firemen had to break in the doors. The members of the family were all unconscious, and they were rescued with difficulty.

NATIVES REPULSED.

Portuguese Inflict Great Loss of Life Upon East Africans.

Lisbon, Nov. 13.—A dispatch from Lorenzo Marques, Portuguese East Africa, says that the Portuguese troops attacked the army under the command of Chief Gungunhana, near Lake Coolera. After an engagement lasting forty minutes the natives were repulsed with great loss of life. Of the Portuguese forces five were killed and thirty-five were wounded.

Charged with Misappropriation.

New York, Nov. 13.—D. Edgar Anthony, a lawyer living in Brooklyn, was arraigned in the Tombs police court yesterday charged with misappropriating the funds of the National Mutual Insurance company, of which he was the receiver. He denied his guilt, but was held in default of $10,000 bail for trial.

The Steamer Irrawady Moved.

Asbury Park, N. J., Nov. 13.—The wrecking steamers at work on the stranded steamer Irrawady off this point, succeeded in moving her a little yesterday. More cargo will be discharged into the lighter and it is hoped that this will relieve her sufficiently to be floated.

CONVICTED OF TREASON

Cuban Sympathizers Receive Long Sentences.

Fourteen Years at Hard Labor for Varona and Aviles, Accused of Carrying on a Correspondence with the Rebels—Reports of Various Engagements.

Santiago de Cuba, Nov. 2, via Key West, Nov. 13.—The trial by court martial of Manuel Paloma Varona and Ricardo Aviles, accused of sympathy with the rebels and of carrying correspondence to them, was held yesterday in the jail of this city. The accused were sentenced to fourteen years' hard labor and will be sent to Ceuta to serve their time. A number of political prisoners were brought to this city last night from Guantanamo, and placed in Morro castle. All are prominent men of Guantanamo.

Could Find No Rebels.

The Spanish column of Gen. Garcia Navarro went on a scouting expedition through the country around the Baiquiri and Juragua iron mines and La Gran Piedra, but could not find a single rebel in all their march. On the morning of November 1 the guerrillas of Caney encountered a band of 150 rebels about a mile from that place. They engaged in a fight which lasted about forty minutes, the rebels having two killed and seven wounded, while the Spaniards had twelve killed and twenty-three wounded, among the latter a lieutenant. The rebels captured two mules laden with provisions.

Spaniards Capture War Munitions.

On Oct. 30 the Spanish column of Commander Rozabel, 200 strong, arrived at Guantanamo after being out two days. They had an engagement with the rebel leaders, Ruen and Gil, with 200 men, in Baiquiri and Vega Grande. According to Spanish reports the rebel loss was two killed and five wounded. The Spaniards captured some guns and ammunition and two horses. They had two wounded.

Preparing To Leave Cuba.

Lieut.-Col. Juan Tejeda and Commander Punet have been promoted to be a colonel and lieutenant-colonel of the army respectively, for their important services since the beginning of the war. Since the publication of the news that Gen. Pando has been ordered to come to Cuba many families have been preparing to leave Cuba, and a great number of men are making preparations to join the rebels in the field.

THE CUBAN REBELLION.

Official Statements Have Been Sent Out from Madrid.

Washington, Nov. 13.—The government authorities at Madrid have sent out official confirmation of the reported minor engagements which took place in Cuba the latter part of last week. The recent activity of the insurgents is due to their efforts to cripple the sugar industry at the time when the work is beginning. These efforts have failed. The Spanish authorities are still prevented from making decisive forward movements by the condition of the weather.

ELECTION OFFICERS HELD.

Nineteen Give Bail for Trial at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Nov. 13.—The election officers charged with fraud in connection with the returns of the late election were given a hearing yesterday afternoon before Judges Sulzberger and Gordon, and sufficient evidence was brought out to hold them for trial at the next term of court. There were nineteen of the men and they gave bail in sums ranging from $500 to $1,000 for their appearance at court.

AGAINST LYNCHING.

A Great Mass Meeting Held Last Night in Faneuil Hall.

Boston, Nov. 13.—Nearly 3,000 persons attended a mass meeting in Faneuil hall last night to protest against the practice of lynching negroes in southern states. The meeting was held under the auspices of the various colored societies of Boston and vicinity.

SEYMOUR RETURNS TO DUTY.

Commissioner of Patents Recovers from His Illness and Accident.

Washington, Nov. 13.—Commissioner of Patents John S. Seymour has returned to his desk after an enforced absence on account of illness. Mr. Seymour went to his home in Connecticut on a vacation, during which he was taken sick. Upon recovery he broke his ankle riding a bicycle.

The Venezuelan Dispute.

Washington, Nov. 13.—Lord Salisbury's failure to mention the Venezuelan question in his recent speech is construed here to mean that he attaches less importance to it and to the controversy over the Monroe doctrine than has been supposed.

Killed by a Stone.

Jamestown, N. Y., Nov. 13.—During a quarrel between Charles Oberg and John Leidblad, Oberg picked up a stone and hit his antagonist, inflicting a wound which will prove fatal. Oberg has been locked up.

NOTICE

is hereby given that the Common Council have fixed the 26th day of November, A. D. 1895, at eight o'clock p. m., at the Council chamber, No. 109 Park avenue, in the city of Plainfield, N. J., as the time and place for Townsend Rushmore, William T. Kirk and James C. INJURIES TO THE TEXAS

The Great Battleship May Be Rendered Worthless.

Information Refused at the Brooklyn Navy Yard—The Dry Dock Partly Flooded To Prevent Discovery of Her Condition—Twenty of Her Ribs Fractured.

New York, Nov. 13.—The news received here from Washington that the battleship Texas has been so badly damaged at the Brooklyn navy yard that she may be rendered worthless in time of war, has caused much comment in maritime circles both in this city and Washington. The accident, though similar to that which occurred to the Columbia at Southampton some time ago, is of a vastly more serious character. The dry dock in which she lies in Brooklyn was hastily flooded with water for the ostensible purpose of relieving the strain upon her, though it is whispered among those who should know something of the matter that this has been done to prevent prying eyes from discovering the full extent of her injuries and thus conveying to the public a knowledge of the crippling of a ship which has been considered a valuable member of our navy.

Difficult To Obtain Information.

It is difficult to obtain further information at the Brooklyn navy yard regarding her injuries, and internal evidence is not obtainable because Capt. Glass will not permit reporters to go below to make an inspection; nor will the officers give any particulars. They say that the rules of the navy governing their conduct in such matters forbid them to do so. The correctness of the report was at first denied, but when the text of the Washington dispatch was shown them by a reporter they only said that they could not discuss it. Inadvertent admissions, however, showed that the Texas had sustained damage. One officer said that, of course, the water had not been let into the dock for nothing. An officer in the yard said that all that could be said had been made the subject of a report to the department.

Extreme Precautions Taken.

The Texas was in the dock at Norfolk before she had received her armament, but after that had added to her draft it was deemed advisable to bring her here for docking at the larger wooden graving dock in Brooklyn. For this very reason, and in view of the Columbia's mishap, extreme precaution was taken, and it is assumed that so far as the preparation of the bed on which she was to rest was concerned, the work was properly done. She arrived here on Oct. 23 and went to the navy yard three or four days later.

Nature of Her Injuries.

It has been learned, upon good authority, that the bottom of the vessel for some distance amidships has been bent in, cracking the cement lining on the inner skin, and that at least twenty ribs or frames are fractured.

THREE MAY DIE.

Epidemic of Poisoning from Eating Head Cheese at Gloversville.

Gloversville, N. Y., Nov. 13.—An epidemic of poisoning from eating head cheese is now prevailing in this city. The latest victims are six members of a family who were reported to the authorities as showing symptoms of having been poisoned from this cause. Three of these cases, it is thought, will result fatally.

JUMPED FROM A STEAMER.

Suicide of a Passenger on the Portia for St. Johns, N. F.

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 13.—A passenger named George Buckingham, who was on the steamer Portia, from New York for St. Johns, N. F., jumped overboard before the steamer reached her destination and was not seen again. He had been second engineer on the steamer Muriel of the Quebec Steamship company until three weeks ago.

CLEVELAND DAY.

Special Train Leaves That City for the Atlanta Exposition.

Cleveland, Nov. 13.—Three hundred members of the chamber of commerce left last evening on a magnificent special train over the Big Four railroad for the Atlanta exposition. The party will celebrate Cleveland day at the exposition. The trip is made in the interest of trade extension as well as for pleasure.

French Ships for Constantinople.

Paris, Nov. 13.—At a cabinet council held yesterday M. Lockroy, minister of marine, accounced that the ironclad Devastation, the cruisers Charner and Faucon and the dispatch boat Linois had sailed from the Piraeus, Greece, for Constantinople.

Ex-Senator Thurman's Condition.

Columbus, O., Nov. 13.—Mr. Thurman's doctor said this morning that his patient was recovering so fast that he would be able to leave his bed soon. His injured hip is better and he has recovered his mental faculties.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Nov. 13.—The supreme national officers of the Catholic Knights of America are in session in this city.

Stabbed Himself in the Neck.

Holyoke, Mass., Nov. 13.—James Cassidy, aged 68, committed suicide by stabbing himself in the neck with a pocketknife.

Earthquake at Florence.

Florence, Nov. 13.—A slight earthquake was felt in this city yesterday No damage was done.

EUROPEAN RAILROADS.

Commercial Agent Moore's Report to the Department of State.

Washington, Nov. 13.—Commercial agent T. E. Moore has made a report to the department of state on European railroads and railroad speed. Russia built the greatest number of miles of new railroad during the year—678 miles; England the least, 224 miles. The average rate of speed per hour for fast express trains was: England, 51.75 miles; Germany, 51.25 miles; France, 49.88 miles; Belgium, 45.04; Holland, 44.73 miles; Italy, 42.34 miles and Austria-Hungary, 41.75 miles. The best speed of an English train is given at 63 1-4 miles per hour, when a record was made of 8 hours and 55 minutes between London and Aberdeen. The widespread interest caused by this wonderful performance had not ceased when news came from the United States of the record on the New York Central between New York and Buffalo, a distance of 436 1-2 miles, which was made in 407 minutes, or an average of 64 1-2 miles per hour.

CLOSED FOREVER.

Famous New York Tombs Court Soon To Be Demolished.

New York, Nov. 13.—The old Tombs police court, which, for seventy odd years, has been held at the corner of Franklin and Centre streets, closed forever last night. No ceremony attended the winding up of the historic institution. For several days the clerk of the court and the janitor of the building have worked overtime in transferring the papers, blanks and records from the old courtoom to the new one which was this morning opened in the new criminal courts building, not to be known as the Tombs police court but as the first district police court. Some of the most famous criminals in the history of this country have been arraigned in the historic structure now vacated. It will in a short time be torn down to make room for the necessary enlargement of the Tombs prison.

TEN THOUSAND HOME SEEKERS

Usual Rush to Enter Indian Lands About Nez Perces Reservation.

Julietta, Ida., Nov. 13.—Two hundred and fifty home seekers are in camp in this vicinity waiting for the opening of the Nez Perces reservation Nov. 18. Several families have just arrived from the east. Many are leaving here daily to look over the land and make their selections. Those who are returning are elated over their prospects. Several town sites have been located. It is estimated that there will be 10,000 persons ready when the word is given to enter. Many have been waiting for years for this opportunity. The reservation will furnish homes for more than 3,000 families.

WRECKS OF FOUR VESSELS.

A Schooner Found with Only Her Dead Captain's Body Aboard.

Montreal, Nov. 13.—The government steamer Aberdeen has arrived at Gaspe, having in tow the wrecked schooner Riverdale. The vessel had evidently been struck by a sudden squall, which dismasted her and filled her with water, and had it not been for the flour on board she would have sunk. The body of Capt. Adams was found in the forecastle. There was no sign of the other three men, including the captain's son, who formed the crew, nor of his daughter. All are supposed to have been swept overboard. The vessel, when found, was two miles off South West Point, Anticosti, and full of water, with only a foot of her hull visible.

Wrecked Near Parrsboro.

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 13.—The large schooner Llewellyn went ashore in the recent gale near Parrsboro. Her owner sent his other schooner, the Ellen, to the spot to save the cargo, and another storm wrecked the second vessel on the same rocks.

Found Abandoned.

Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 13.—The schooner Pavilion of Machias, Me., from Portland to Boston, was found abandoned off this coast by three fishermen, who worked her into this harbor. The whereabouts of the crew is unknown.

A LUTHERAN CONFERENCE.

The Creation of an Episcopate Under Consideration.

Lancaster, Pa., Nov. 13.—Clerical and lay representatives of Lutheran churches in New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Ohio, assembled in Grace Lutheran church for the purpose of considering the creation of an episcopate. The movement was started at the last meeting of the Pennsylvania synod, when a committee was appointed to call a convention to consider the advantages of proper oversight and the needs of the church in that direction.

THE END NEAR AT HAND

Sultan of Turkey Preparing To Leave His Capital.

The Powers Ready To at Once Begin Naval and Military Demonstrations—Ten Thousand Christians Murdered in the Past Month, According to Minister Terrell.

Washington, Nov. 13.—Wholesale arrests in Constantinople, and bloody massacres of the foulest kinds throughout the Turkish empire have brought matters in the east to such a pass that the dynasty is on the eve of disruption. The powers are fully awakened to the double dealing of the sultan, and are prepared to at once begin naval if not military demonstrations. This, it is now firmly believed, is the only course that can be pursued to stop the frightful slaughter of Christian men and women.

Sultan Prepares To Flee.

The sultan fully realizes the determination of the combined powers and has prepared to flee, and the first gun is momentarily expected. Terror is deep-rooted in the heart of the sultan. The imperial yacht remains anchored opposite the palace with steam up and every preparation has been made for the crafty despot's flight. One thousand bodies of murdered Armenians lie in the streets of towns near Angora and Palu, and many inhabitants of villages in the vicinity of Hadjin have been assassinated. Armenians, after being goaded to desperation, attacked the Turkish soldiery at Zeitoun, Asia Minor, and have practically taken possession of the town.

To Protect American Missionaries.

United States Minister Terrell, realizing the situation, has thrown etiquette aside and is using every means at his command to protect American missionaries. He reports that over 10,000 Armenians have been slaughtered in thirty days. After repeated efforts to bring the sultan to a sense of duty the only reply the powers have received to their identical notes is that something will be done at once, but "at once" has been said so often, and has never arrived.

"The End Is Near at Hand."

To add to the gravity of the situation, the finances of the Turkish empire are absolutely crippled, and as many well posted diplomats say, "the end is near at hand." Abdul Hamid II., the present ruler of Turkey, who is directly responsible for the crisis, has caused the death of more men and women than any potentate of his day. He has never had the slightest compunction about ordering murders for religious reasons, and hundreds of innocent women are known to be at the bottom of the Bosphorus as the results of his commands.

A Bloodthirsty Monarch.

When the sultan succeeded to the throne his first step was to have assassinated the 150 women who composed his brother's harem. Abdul Hamid followed his brother to the throne, after the latter had been proved semi-insane and an habitual drunkard.

Some Characteristics.

He is 53 years old and is known to be one of the rankest of cowards. His salary is $10,000,000 a year, but he is always in debt. His craftiness may be judged from the fact that he distributes valuable presents among the favorites in his harem, and at the same time constitutes himself their heir, so that all his gifts return to him or his heirs. He is the thirty-fifth monarch of the Turkish dynasty, which now seems to be on the eve of dismemberment.

NEWFOUNDLAND NEWS.

No Honest Reforms Can Be Expected from the Present Government.

St. Johns, N. F., Nov. 13.—The Telegram, the government organ, admits today the hopelessness of expecting any honest reforms from the present government owing to the pressure of the demands of its political supporters unless the ministry is compelled to pursue an economic course by the action of the governor or the colonial office. Much destitution is reported from the northern outports. A whole fishing crew of twelve men were left at one of the bleakest harbors of Labrador a fortnight age, with scarcely any provisions, owing to the vessel which went to bring them home being unable to reach them. The whole party will inevitably perish unless speedy relief is sent, so the government has ordered a mail steamer to proceed to Labrador and rescue them.

CLAIMS THE CHAMPIONSHIP.

Maher Will Defend the Title Against All Comers.

Pittsburg, Nov. 13.—John J. Quinn, the backer of Peter Maher, wires a New York newspaper that Corbett has actually forfeited the championship to Maher. Quinn says that Maher stands ready to defend the title in either public or private against any other aspirant for the honor in the world.

PLUMBERS' STRIKE ENDED.

Advance in Wages Granted, To Take Effect Next Month.

Pittsburg, Nov. 13.—The strike of the journeymen plumbers, which began Monday morning, for a restoration of a cut of 10 per cent. in wages made in February, 1894, ended yesternay afternoon at a conference. The advance was granted, but it is not to take effect until the first Monday in December.

Nail Works Destroyed.

Philadelphia, Nov. 13.—The wire nail mill of Philips, Townsend & Co. at North Penn Junction, a suburb, was destroyed by fire last night. The plant was an extensive one and was equipped with a large amount of costly machinery. The loss will reach $175,000.

Mrs. Gougar Defeated.

Boston, Nov. 13.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Helen M. Gougar versus Hon. Elijah A. Morse, M. C., for $20,000 damages for alleged libelous statements concerning her, yesterday afternoon rendered a verdict for the defendant.

Cleveland Leaves New York.

New York, Nov. 13.—President Cleveland left Jersey City for Washington on the "Owl" express, over the Pennsylvania railroad, at 12.15 o'clock last night

THE KIRMESS.

Ancient in its originality, modern in its development, effulgent in its production, the Kirmess stands out as a luminous and clever conglomeration of Plainfield beauty, manliness and gracefulness, well meriting all the encomiums that may be directed towards it by an admiring populace for its clever spectacular effect and artistic execution.

It is for a worthy cause and is deserving of all the patronage and profit that the people of this city can bestow.

Thomas B. Reed for Speaker of the House of Representatives, so the Republicans say.

Frank W. Somers was sworn in as County Clerk of Somerset county yesterday. He is the first Republican who ever held the office.

Governor Werts has appointed Senators Stokes, Williams, Thompson, Daly, Winton and Staats to canvass the election returns on November 26th.

Governor Werts yesterday issued his formal Thanksgiving proclamation, in which he calls upon all good citizens to thank God for peace and prosperity.

Already real estate men are beginning to feel a movement for the better since the trolley road extension ordinance was finally passed upon by the Common Council.

"He who laughs last, laughs best," runs the old axiom. Thus it is with Chicago, who chuckles long and loud at the holdups galore now being enacted in New York. If the Metropolis had only been a little more consoling to Porkopolis when the trolley holdup occurred in that town, why—but Chicago would poke fun at New York anyway.

A dark cloud has overshadowed the life of Miss Essie Jacques, the Westfield woman who was indicted by the Grand Jury for being a common scold, according to her sisters in the W. C. T. U., and they have rallied around her in her hour of trouble by resolving "that she has patiently endured misrepresentation and the odium of unfriendly criticism." Evidently there is wide difference of opinion between the Grand Jury and the W. C. T. U.

The decision rendered by Judge Lippincott declaring unconstitutional the act providing that the Courts of Common Pleas should have equal jurisdiction with all borough and town authorities in the granting of liquor licenses, shows that the legislation was special and applied only to Warren county. This decision upholds the construction put on the act by Borough Counsel Reed at the time when some of the North Plainfield officials claimed that they had the same rights in the license matter. Though Mr. Reed's advice was throught by some to be wrong, the error of their own opinions is now evident.

GATHERING OF AGED PEOPLE.

Birthday Celebration of Abner S. Coriell, of New Market.

Ex-Postmaster Abner S. Coriell, of New Market, celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary Monday night. There was a large attendance of old friends and neighbors present to extend congratulations. All of his children, ten in number, were present, except one son. Isaac D. Titsworth, who is in his ninety-first year, was also present. The youngest person present was young Abner Coriell, of Dunellen, a Daily Press newsboy, aged fourteen years, a grandson. Revs. Martine, Fletcher and Livermore were also present, and each made a few remarks.

During the evening a count was made of the number of aged people present, and it was found that there were thirty-eight persons present over sixty years of age, whose combined average age was seventy-two years. A bountiful supper was prepared, which all present very much enjoyed. It was after midnight before the happy company dispersed.

WOULDN'T TALK IN COURT.

He Was Up for Stealing Coal, But He Didn't Know Much English.

There was one case at the City Court yesterday afternoon, but the solitary prisoner seemed stricken dumb, for he stood looking at the Judge in a dazed way. After various questions the Judge elicited the fact that the man's name was something like Jim Merand and that he worked for Honan. After another attempt to make the young fellow talk, the Judge said:

"Do you speak English?"

"Only a little," murmured the Italian.

Sergeant Kiely made the arrest and charged the man with stealing coal off the cars of the Jersey Central last Sunday morning. The Judge asked him which he preferred, a fine of $5 or twenty days in jail, but the culprit said never a word but walked back to his cell. Honan, however, paid his fine.

A Wonderful Bible.

Percy Cannon, the blind young man of West Front street, will speak at the East Third Street mission tomorrow evening. He will exhibit one volume of a raised letter Bible which was presented to him by his women friends of this city. The Bible is a very handsome one, weighing 110 pounds and consisting of eleven volumes which, when placed on end side by side, cover a space three feet wide.

Where Credit Is Due.

Much credit is due Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh for his assistance in securing articles of incorporation for the Organized Aid Association. The necessary papers have not yet been transferred, but through the carefulness of the Corporation Counsel all drawbacks and difficulties will be overcome.

Thanksgiving Services.

The union Thanksgiving services this year will be held in the Trinity Reformed and the Seventh-Day Baptist churches on Thanksgiving morning at 10:30. In the former Rev. Herbert F. Randolph, of Grace M. E church, will deliver the sermon, and in the latter Rev. C. L. Goodrich, of the Congregational church, will deliver the sermon.

A Tumor Removed.

Arabella McAfee, the six year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. McAfee, of 510 East Second street, was taken to the hospital yesterday morning for the purpose of having a tumor removed from the forehead. Dr. F. C. Ard performed this operation in the afternoon, which was very successful.

RELIGIOUS WORKERS.

The regular meeting of the Young Ladies' Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, was held yesterday afternoon.

A. A. Taft, Mrs. J. H. Carney, Miss Grace Carroll, Miss Margaret Schuck and Miss Agnes Tingley have been selected as a Christmas committee at Grace M. E. church, and already plans for the celebration are under consideration.

About thirty-five members of the Epworth League of Grace M. E. church, went to Scotch Plains last evening in DeMott's stage and participated in a rally in the Methodist church at that place. They all had a thoroughly enjoyable time. Refreshments were served after the meeting.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The May Dance is part of the programme at the Kirmess this evening.

General Eli Long and family will return to their home in the borough on Thursday.

Miss Dora Cadmus, of Bayonne, is visiting her cousin, Mrs. W. C. Bodine of Pearl street.

C. T. Kissam, of Central avenue, has left for Asheville, N. C., to spend the winter for his health.

Miss Jennie Ross, of Park place, has returned after a visit with her sister at Somerville.

Miss Laura Hummer, of New Brunswick, is the guest of Miss Minnie Force of Grandview avenue.

Dr. and Mrs. H. K. Carroll, of the borough, have left town for Canada and points west. They will return about Thanksgiving.

The engagement of R. M. Stelle, of Central avenue, is announced to a Hoboken lady. The wedding will take place after the holidays.

Miss Maggie Parcell, of Long Branch, has returned to her home after a pleasant visit with the Misses Holmes of Grandview avenue.

The many friends in Plainfield of Eli Long, Jr., son of General Eli Long, of Grove street, will regret to learn that he is ill with the typhoid fever in Roosevelt hospital in New York.

The Misses Alice and Grace Carroll, of the borough, will entertain the Misses Alice Loomis, Clara Steiner and Margaret Schuck at their home Friday evening. A pleasing programme has been prepared.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. George Brown, of Grove street, will regret to learn that they are going south for the winter. The change is made on account of Mr. Brown's health, which is very poor.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart H. Patterson are still in Colorado, where they will be for some weeks, and will not be at home to receive their friends on the Mondays immediately after November 15th as they had anticipated.

Some of the New York papers give a list of the notable women expected at the meeting last night of the National Council of Women at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, to celebrate the eightieth birthday of Elizabeth Cady Stanton. In the list is the name of Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of Plainfield, representative of the State Federation of Clubs.

How to Save Money and Health.

Most people have some trouble with their health which they would like cured if it could be done easily and cheaply. Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th st., New York City, who is the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, makes the following offer: He gives you the privilege of consulting him, free of charge, through his great system of letter correspondence. Write him just how you feel and what symptoms trouble you. He will answer your letter, explaining your case thoroughly, telling just what ails you and how to get strong and well. He gives the most careful attention to every letter, and makes his explanations so clear that you understand exactly what your complaint is. And for all this you pay nothing. You do not leave your home and have no doctor's fee to pay. The doctor makes a specialty of treating patients through letter correspondence, and is having wonderful success. He is the discoverer of that celebrated medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. If you write him at once you will doubtless be cured.

E. B. Maynard, of North avenue, celebrated his birthday Monday, and that night he entertained a number of friends at his home in a very pleasant manner.

W. A. McGuire, a well known citizen of McKay, Ohio, is of the opinion that there is nothing as good for children troubled with colds or croup as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He has used it in his family for several years with the best results and always keeps a bottle of it in the house. After having la grippe he was himself troubled with a severe cough. He used other remedies without benefit and then concluded to try the children's medicine and to his delight it soon effected a permanent cure. 25 and 50c bottles for sale at Reynolds's pharmacy, Park and North aves. ENDEAVORERS ENTERTAINMENT.

Young Workers of East Third Street Mission Have a Good Time.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the East Third Street Mission gave a pleasing entertainment last evening, which was enjoyed by a large number of people. President R. W. Barnes spoke a few words of welcome, after which the following programme was rendered: Piano solo, Miss Barnes; recitation, Miss Mamie Jones; trio, "The Shepherd," Misses Freeman; violin solo, Clarence Mills; recitation, Albert Ford; vocal duett, Misses Mamie Jones and Lucy Jennings; recitation, Clarence Mills; trio, Misses Freeman; recitation, Miss Lillie Hope; violin solo, R. W. Barnes; piano solo, Clifford Braider.

Refreshments, consisting of cake, fruit and coffee, were served at the close of the programme.

Fatal Wreck This Morning.

A fatal accident occurred on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad early this morning about a mile and a half east of Short Hills. One engineer was killed and a fireman was badly injured.

The train was made up of four cars. The caboose and the four cars went down the incline and crashed into the newspaper train which leaves Hoboken about 5:30 o'clock. The newspaper train was going very fast at the time. The crash between the two was terrific.

The engineer of the newspaper train was killed, and his fireman was badly injured.

Happy Young Folks.

Charles Westphal, of South Second street, celebrated the eighth anniversary of his birthday last night by inviting eight of his boy friends to his home to make merry with him. The evening was spent in playing games and singing, after which an excellent supper was served. The young folks returned home early, much pleased with their entertainment and wishing their host many happy returns of the day.

Constitution Adopted.

About 125 members of the Catholic Club met at the C. Y. M. L. last evening and adopted the constitution as prepared by the committee, of which P. Casey was chairman. Matthew Cashin was president, pro tem. J. Gallagher acted as secretary. The club will meet next Sunday afternoon to transact business in relation to the by-laws.

Miss Yates a Host.

Miss Yates entertained the executive committee of the Parliamentary Club with a few others at luncheon today. The favors were miniature gavels, gilded and decorated with colors. Miss Elizabeth G. Yates, of Maine, is in town, and it is expected the members of the club will have the pleasure of hearing her at their class drill tomorrow morning.

Trial Postponed.

The case of Smalley against Bird came up at the Somerset County Court of Common Pleas in Somerville yesterday. All the parties interested and their lawyers were present, but at the wish of George W. DeMeza, counsel for Smalley, the court postponed the trial until the 29th.

Entertainment and Dance.

Those who are looking for entertaining and pleasant places to go should remember the Kirmess is not the only place, for the children of St. Joseph's church give an entertainment and dance in Saengerbund hall this evening that will be truly pleasing to all who attend.

A Special Conference.

A special conference of the Elizabeth local union of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew will be held in the Church of the Redeemer in this city tomorrow evening. The topic for general discussion will be "Our Duties."

To Aid Yerkes' Chapel.

The Temple Builders of the First Baptist church met Sunday afternoon and listened to letters from Dr. Bogg and Dr. Henricks who are working in the Nallor district, India. It was decided to send $100 to support a teacher at the Yerkes chapel there.

Miverva Temple, No. 4, Rathbone Sisters, entertained the Grand Lodge officers at their meeting last evening. A collation was served after the business was transacted.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces, such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. LOCAL SPORTS.

WHIST.

The whist match between the Park Club, of Plainfield, (challenger) and the Hamilton Club, of this city, (holder) for the A. W. L. challenge trophy, was played at the Hamilton Club on Saturday afternoon and evening. In addition to the interest always centred in an A. W. L. trophy match, there was an element which caused special attention to be directed to the match of Saturday, viz: that it was a meeting between Hamilton and the only team that has ever succeeded in winning an A. W. L. trophy match from the West Philadelphians.

On March 23, 1895, the Park Club, of Plainfield, prior to that time unknown to whist fame, jumped into prominence by defeating Hamilton by one trick, and when one week later the Plainfield representatives knocked out the crack four of the Philadelphia Whist Club by three tricks, they emphasized their right to be ranked among the prominent whist teams of the east.

In the match of Saturday last, therefore, the local players felt that not only was the trophy in the balance, but that they were bound to revenge the double defeat inflicted upon Philadelphia whist.

The visitors, however, came on admittedly confident of victory, and they had every reason to be sanguine, as they unquestionably had improved most decidedly over the form they showed in March, when they defeated the local teams. In the meantime they had played a number of matches for the championship of New Jersey, and as a result of their good work in that series now hold the title of champion of the State beyond the Delaware.

In the stock of confidence, however, the Jerseymen did not have by any means an exclusive corner, as the Hamiltonians, realizing that at the last meeting they did not play within many tricks of their game, were only too anxious to have a chance to wipe out past scores.—Philadelphia Daily Evening Telegraph.

The Union County Whist Club will meet the Park Club at the latter place next Tuesday night.

PUNTS AND KICKS.

This has been a season of surprise for most of the big colleges on the football field.

The Catholic Club of New Brunswick has a few open dates which it would like to fill with some first-class clubs. Address F. J. Collins, manager Catholic Club, New Brunswick, N. J.

The second Y. M. C. A. eleven will open the season at the Crescent Oval next Wednesday afternoon in a game with the "Trilby" team of Elizabeth, a strong eleven averaging about one hundred and forty-five pounds. The complete team has not yet been decided upon but many of the players have been picked out. Charles Dupee is a fixure at full back. W. Kirby Dwight will make an excellent quarter and Captain Voleny F. Green and Thomas A. Cumming will fill the other two vacant places behind the line. The line itself is a puzzle. W. M. McCutchen will play one end. W. L. McClure and Fred Pope are expected to fill the position of tackles and R. A. McGee and Edward Brown will act as guards. Centre and one end are doubtful positions.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Since the Elizabeth Wheelmen went into bankruptcy no effort has been made to reorganize the club.

Somebody in need of a wheel stole one belonging to L. G. Timpson, of 163 North avenue, Monday afternoon. He left it in front of the Columbia Cycle Accademy and when he went after it the wheel was gone. A suitable reward will be paid for its return.

WITH ROD AND GUN.

The shooting match on Saturday at the Climax Gun Club grounds will be between John Harkins, of New Brunswick, and John Benner, of Fanwood, stead of Dutchy Smith as was stated last night.

—Boys' clothing for boys from four to fourteen years is selling at half price at Edsall's great special sale. Those who wish to take advantage of this special offer need to make haste, as they are selling off fast.

GOLF

An important change in the future plans of the St. Andrew's Golf Club of Yonkers has been consummated which will lead to a change of location to a plot of rolling grassland possessing many natural advantages for a golf course, near Mount Hope station, some three miles above and about ten minutes ride by the New York and Northern Railroad beyond the present St. Andrew's station, where an eighteen-hole link will be laid out.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The New Jersey Bowling Association's tournament will consist of fifteen teams.

A new schedule of games will be arranged Thursday at Roselle for the Standard Bowling League.

The Union County Country Club, of this city, have entered a bowling team in The Westfield Standard Bowling League.

The bowling match between the Y. M. C. A. and Hope chapel teams at the Y. M. C. A. building last night was very exciting. Two games were rolled, each team winning one. The tie game will be rolled off about December 1st. Below will be found the score:

Dr. E. B. Lighthill

of New York City,

whose practice in Plainfield has proved such a wonderful success has opened an office at

134 Crescent Avenue

(next door to his former residence) where he can be consulted from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., on

Tuesday and Friday

of each week.

DR. LIGHTHILL makes the treatment of deafness, catarrh and diseases of the throat, lungs and heart a specialty.

Piles radically and permanently cured in a few weeks without the use of the knife, ligature or cautery and without pain or detention from business. The most desperate cases yield unfailingly to Dr. Lighthill's unique method of treatment, with guaranteed success. Fistula, fissure and ulcers of the rectum are also completely and permanently cured without the knife or other surgical operation.

Diseases of the bowels, bladder and stomach, mental and nervous derangements, diseases of the skin and blood and all chronic and obstinate complaints affecting the human system, of whatever name or nature, are successfully treated.

DR. LIGHTHILL refers with pardonable pride to the remarkable cures of his former practice in Plainfield and to the reputation which he established throughout the State. He has in his possession hundreds of testimonials from well-known residents of Plainfield and vicinity, which can be seen at his office.

than most merchants do. To lose interest in goods when they are sold is not our way. It's business for profit, but we find it to our profit when we serve you right and if there is a wrong we are always ready to right it.

Items of Interest.

25c for all-wool eider down flannel. All shades.

RUGS Bought an immense lot at an auction sale last week. Manufacturer wanted cash and he got it, but only half what the rugs cost him. We sell rugs 30x60 $1.59, 36x72 $2.59.

MATTING We have a hundred rolls of fine Japanese seamless inlaid designs. Only 14c the yard.

FIBRE RAMIE Heard of it? A new interlining, soft, pliable, tough, 100 per cent stronger than any other interlining on the market. Three colors, black, slate and ecru. Price 15c half what others cost and twice as good.

LACE CURTAINS $1.49 seems cheap for a pair of fine lace curtains and we add to the curtains for the same money a handsome white enameled curtain pole with fixtures, all ready to hang. Just a hundred pairs to sell at that price.

SKIRTS Three specials for this week that will interest you. $2.49 for a fine serge skirt. Colors, black or blue. $3.49 for a black or blue all-wool cheviot skirt. $4.50 for a black or blue all-wool serge, extra fine.

12c For adjustable sash rods. All complete. Fit any window.

UNDERWEAR See our underwear when the cold makes you think of it. No better made and the lowest prices of all. 27c for fleece lined vests and pants for ladies. 33c, 50c, 75c for men's white and colored wool shirts and drawers. Children's vests and pants start at 10c for white natural wool and fleece lined.

GLOVES You can well judge a store by the glove it sells. Our guarantee goes with every pair. No matter what the price may be. 25c, 35c, 50c for cashmere. 75c for chamois gloves, one of the best for street wear. Our $1.00 kid is the best of all. Import them direct from the manufacturer and guarantee every pair.

HORSE BLANKETS Horse owners will find it to their interest to price our blankets. We sell the 5a blanket and when you buy them you get the best. Stable blankets, sursingle attachment $1.19, $1.25, $1.37. All-wool, double woven blankets, handsome designs, $2.89 each.

BLANKETS and comfortables. Start at a 10-4 cotton blanet in white, tan and slate, 55c pair. A good comfortable, full size, turey red design, 93c each. A good honest blanket is that 10-4, nearly all wool, $2.98 pair.

SHEETS Three good reasons for skipping the trouble of making them at home. Full size pillow cases, 14c each. Full size hemstitched pillow cases 17c each. Full size Boston sheets made of the best quality muslin, 49c each.

THE POET'S DAY.

The poet's day is different from another,
Though he doth count each man his own heart's brother.
So crystal clear the air that he looks through
It gives each color an intenser hue.
Each bush doth burn and every flower flame.
The stars are sighing. Silence breathes a name.
The world wherein he wanders, dreams and sings
Thrills with the beating of invisible wings,
And all day long he hears from hidden birds
The multitudinous pour of musicked words.
—Richard Watson Gilder in Century.

NORDAU'S ERRORS.

Lombroso Tells Where the Author of "Degeneration" Goes Astray.

Even though starting from a new and just position, Nordau has gone astray.

Convinced of the scope of the new psychiatric weapon which he had in his hands, he has so far overshot the mark as to impair the effect of his purpose. More alienist than the alienists, he no sooner finds a neurotic or maddish author than he thinks his work itself can be demolished. Thus, after having demonstrated by a very subtle analysis that in Wagner the philosophic ideas concerning life are contradictory or archaic—such as the idea of the struggle between the flesh and the soul or between the spirit and the senses—he concludes that Wagner was therefore crazy and not a genius. Likewise, because of Tolstoi's mysticism or his destructive ideas on love and science, he deems Tolstoi insane and his books nonsense.

But probably all geniuses have the eccentricities and even the delirious ideas which he notices in Tolstoi, Wagner and Ibsen. The last chapter of Goethe's "Wilhelm Meister" is more incomprehensible and extravagant than the ideas of Tolstoi, while Balzac's scientific opinions and his innumerable fluids would find mates in the literature of insane asylums. To demonstrate that geniuses are insane is not difficult, because, as I and others before me have shown, genius is a form of degenerative neurosis. Certainly Poictevin, Mallarme and Ghil are degenerates and even mattoids. Tolstoi, Wagner and Swinburne may be mad or degenerate, but in addition to the qualities just named, and which belong to the ordinary insane, they have genius. This is what Nordau has too frequently forgotten. Degeneration, for one who follows my theories instead of destroying, fortified the diagonsis which proves them to be geniuses and enlarges its range, because only the mediocre have not maddish forms, for the very reason that they lack fecund originality, which is the basis of genius.

The man of genius is a man who does better than his contemporaries and in a different way. He is therefore an abnormal being, an exception. He is different from his environment. He is not completely sane as to his intellect. He has many physiological and psychological blemishes. He is afflicted either by the delirium of persecution, or by megalomania, or by religious delirium, more often psychic epilepsy.—Nordau's "Degeneration; Its Value and Its Errors," by Cesare Lombroso, in Century.

Hard to Read.

It is said that Jules Janin, the celebrated French writer and critic, was noted for the illegibility of his handwriting. It was so bad as to be a perfect nightmare to the printers, and only two compositors out of the whole staff of Le Journal des Debats were able to read it.

When he contributed to any other periodical, he was always forced to dictate his work to Mme. Janin, who wrote an excellent hand.

One day he wrote a letter to a friend, who, after much pondering and squinting, managed to decipher two or three words, which made him think that his correspondent must be Janin. He immediately started for the writer's home at Passy.

"Ah, here you are!" exclaimed Janin joyfully, as he welcomed him. "You have read my letter?"

"Not at all," replied his friend, with a smile. "I have received it and I've brought it for you to read it to me."

"Well," said Janin doubtfully, "I'll try."

Janin was not malicious, but occasionally he would say a severe thing, as if it were wrung from him without his being able to hold it back. One day a rich but ill natured man, who made sad havoc of the French language, called upon Janin, and began a tirade upon some trivial matter in execrable French.

After listening politely for some time, Janin at last replied to his visitor in Latin.

"What do you mean, M. Janin?" demanded the man angrily. "I don't understand you. I can't speak Latin."

"Try, sir, try!" cried the great critic. "You could not speak it worse than you do French."—Youth's Companion.

Cocoanuts.

The word cocoanut is derived from the Portuguese "coco," meaning monkey, because the base resembles a monkey's face. The tree was known to the people of Ceylon as early as 100 B. C., the milk being used by them for making cement. The cocoanut is one of the most useful of plants—root, trunk, leaf, sac and nut are made to yield tribute to man. The fiber of the husk furnishes excellent yarn and is preferred to horsehair for stuffing beds, cushions chairs and saddles. It is stronger and more elastic than hemp. The Polynesians twist small cords of this fiber, which serve in the construction of houses and canoes where Europeans would employ nails. The green nuts are grated for medicinal use. Grated cocoanut forms an ingredient of the East Indian condiment curry. In the Maldive islands labor is usually paid for in cocoanuts.—New York World.

A Gigantic Gasometer.

The largest and most costly gasometer in the world stands in the London suburb of East Greenwich. When full, it contains 12,000,000 cubic feet of gas. It is 180 feet high, 300 feet in diameter and weighs something like over 2,200 tons. Its cost, exclusive of excavation, was a sum equal to $300,000 in United States money. Experiment has proven that it takes about 1,200 tons of the best gas coal to fill this immense tank with gas.—St. Louis Republic.

His Fountain of Youth.

An anecdote of the historian Michelet, newly told but good enough to be old, concerns a friend who said to him, "How young you keep, in spite of your gray hairs!" For a reply the old author, whom 50 years of literary work had not exhausted, turned to his writing table and pointing to the inkstand exclaimed, "There is my fountain of youth!"

In some southern localities the colored people believe that if a crow croaks an odd number of times, foul weather will follow; if even, the day will be fine.

Trust him little who praises all; him less who censures all, and him least who is indifferent to all.—Lavater.

THE DREAMER.

He loves to watch the waves at play
Leap up the rocks with ceaseless roar
And see their snowy, showering spray
Dissolve in pearls along the shore.

The western sky is dear to him
When rosy day with twilight blends
And on the ocean's purple rim
The sun, a globe of flame, descends.

The white clouds sailing in the blue,
The white stars peering through the night,
He loves, because they bring to view
The fringes of the infinite.

He hears the music of the skies,
The thunder's bass, the song of birds,
And vainly tries to crystallize
His soul's rich harmonies into words.

And wandering in the autumn woods,
Far from the sight of human face,
His fancy fills the solitudes
With shapes of beauty and of grace.

What boots his idle dreams to those
Who with unconquerable will
Toil from the dawn till daylight's close
To keep the world from standing still?

He smiles and says his dreaming tends
To show the beauty of design,
To shape men's lives to nobler ends
And draw them nearer the divine.
—J. Scott in Chambers' Journal.

MOHAMMED'S VENGEANCE.

His Cruel Butchery of the Jewish Inhabitants of Medina.

Of Mohammed's cruelty and treachery one example will suffice out of many, all based on unimpeachable evidence. The Jews in Medina stirred up his fiercest vindictiveness by their exposure of his impudent appeals to forged quotations from their Scriptures in proof of his mission. Some of them, including two women, even dared to satirize his pretensions in clever pasquinades. For these affronts Mohammed, when he triumphed, determined to take a signal revenge.

Marching stealthily on the Jewish quarter, he surrounded the Jews, who offered to submit on condition of being allowed to leave Medina forever. But he insisted on surrender at discretion and was able to enforce his terms. He sentenced all the men to death, and the women and children to slavery. Some of his own people pleaded for mercy, but he was relentless. His sentence, he declared, was the judgment of the Most High God, pronounced in the highest heaven, and therefore irrevocable. The prophet himself personally directed the digging of the trenches which were to receive the bodies of the slain. That finished, the tragedy began.

The Jews, with their hands tied behind their backs, were led up in parties of five or six to the fatal trenches, forced to kneel down and were then beheaded and their bodies flung into the pits prepared for them. The butchery went on throughout the day and was continued for some time after sunset under the glare of torches, Mohammed standing by to enjoy the spectacle. Eight hundred adult Jews perished, while 1,000 women and children were reduced to slavery. Two hundred of these were given to the prophet by divine "revelation," and he sold them into slavery, with the exception of one beautiful Jewess, by name Rihana, whom he retained as a concubine, threats and the offer of being made one of his wives having failed to make her forsake the religion of her fathers.—Quarterly Review.

Pseudo Tomb of Mary and Lazarus.

In a recent issue of The Journal of the German Palestine society, Professor Gelzer of Jena discusses an interesting tombstone discovered at Cæsarea, in Palestine, and which first appeared in Le Revue Biblique, published at Jerusalem. The inscription reads: "Monument belonging to (or dedicated to) Mary and Lazarus." The language is Greek, and the inscription dates from the fourth or fifth century. The original editors, the Dominicans of Jerusalem, thought that it was merely a monument of two persons by the names of Mary and Lazarus. Gelzer, however, is of opinion that the Biblical persons of these names were intended, especially also in view of the fact that Mary's name precedes that of Lazarus. He draws attention to the fact that in the second half of the fourth and in the first half of the fifth century, the discovery of apostles' and prophets' tombs was "a flourishing and manifestly also a lucrative branch of industry." At that period it was claimed that the bodies of Joseph, Samuel, Zachariah, John the Baptist, and other Biblical men were found, and many of these pseudo relics were transported to the capital city of Christendom, Constantinople. It is not impossible that at this period also the pretended remains of the sister and brother from Bethany were transported to Cæsarea, which in the ante-Chalcedonian period—that is, down to 451—was the metropolitan center of the church in Palestine.

Bags' Count.

"I can't tell you any stories about myself," said D. G. Edwards, general passenger agent of the C., H. & D., "but I'll recall one about a conductor by the name of Bags. It was about 14 years ago. The Bee line and the Indianapolis and St. Louis were running independently, but the Bee line was interested in the other. One day there was a great cleaning out among the passenger conductors on account of some alleged irregularities and Bags was promoted from a freight to a passenger conductor. Union City, Ind., was then the dining station, and one of the duties of the passenger conductors was to telegraph ahead and inform them at Union City of the number of persons that might be expected for the meal. The situation was a trying one, but Bags was up to the occasion. He thought he might like a meal himself, so this is what he telegraphed:

"'Thirteen passengers without Bags, 14 with Bags.'

"The people at the dining station didn't know what difference the bags made in the calculation, but they knew that 13 and 14 make 27, and meals for 27 were in readiness. But the wording of Bags' messages underwent some improvement on the next occasion and was less ambiguous."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Absentminded.

Elsie—Yes, dear, my husband is a doctor, and a lovely fellow, but he is awfully absentminded.

Ada—Indeed!

Elsie—Only fancy! During the marriage ceremony, when he gave me the ring, he felt my pulse and asked me to put out my tongue.

Ada—Well, he won't do the latter again.—London Answers.

When Edward I made a prisoner of the Countess of Buchan, he decided not to put her to death, but instead ordered a large iron cage to be made in which she was exposed as a prisoner of war to the execrations and abuse of the English rabble.

CHAPTER I.

Miss Puss Norton—the "Puss" must have been a pet name, though it is not unusual in Kentucky and Tennessee; it is, however, the only part I have retained—was the daughter of a rich planter who lived not far from Corinth, Miss. She could not have been more than 20 years of age, if that, in the fall of 1862, for in the early spring of 1861 she was attending Professor Williams' seminary at Harrodsburg, Ky., and the course of four years was not half finished. At the same time her second cousin, Thomas Raymond, was a student at Center college, Danville, seven miles away. Tom Raymond was a handsome, dashing fellow, not a very good student, though mentally bright and very popular with his classmates—a fact which I cannot think due to his habit of carrying a pistol in his hip pocket, even when attending recitations. A majority of the students, and nearly all those from the extreme southern and southwestern states, regarded a knife or pistol as quite as essential an article of dress as their boots.

There is a story that Tom Raymond's pistol went off one evening in the Presbyterian church at Danville just as old Dr. Breckenridge, the able head of the theological school, was in the midst of one of his metaphysical sermons, and that for this the young man was suspended. But, be that as it may, young Raymond was suspended for having a pistol in church, and the other "pistol toters" had a lesson that made them look more carefully after their firearms in the house of God. This was in May, 1861.

At this time Governor Magoffin, General Buckner, commander of the state guards, and other Kentuckians in high places were praying for peace with their backs to the north and their faces to the south. Fearing that its appearance might frighten away the prayed for peace, the stars and stripes, where the flag was not actually destroyed, was kept in hiding, but the students in colleges and seminaries who sympathized with secession wore southern cockades to church and at recitation, and girls similarly minded were similarly decorated. A professor named White, who protested against this one sided demonstration in favor of peace, was forced to flee to his home north of the Ohio to escape the knives and pistols of a mob of chivalric youths who took exceptions to what they were pleased to call his "Yankee abolitionism."

Tom Raymond wore the biggest cockade in Danville, and it is said that on Sundays he wore two. He was undoubtedly a brave youth. He said as much himself, and the man rash enough to doubt him without a pistol at hand would have found himself in a bad box. Once a week, usually on Saturday, it had been Tom Raymond's custom to drive down to Harrodsburg to see his cousin, Puss Norton, and there were girls at Professor Williams' school and students at Center college who believed that the young people's interest in each other was not entirely due to their kinship. It was she who pinned the first southern cockade, made by her own fair hands, to his breast, and he wore it as the old knights did the silken favors of their ladyloves.

When Tom Raymond's pistol discharged itself and himself from college, he naturally looked for a field in which both could operate without the restraint of theological professors. He did not have to look far. His own state, Mississippi, was all aglow with martial fervor. Regiments were being raised like magic. Men greatly his inferior, at at least so Raymond thought, were being commissioned as officers, and so, with a laudable ambition, he made up his mind to go home and raise a regiment—to start with.

Having decided on this course, Raymond went at once to Harrodsburg and communicated his purpose to his cousin, and, to his great delight, he found that she not only sustained him, but that she was determined to go home with him. It was a bad time for schools in the border states. I will not pretend to say what arguments were used by the cousins, but no doubt Professor Williams, in view of the fact that the girl's father had already written for her to come home, made a virtue of necessity and permitted Miss Norton to leave school and return to Corinth with Raymond.

I can now say with certainty that Tom Raymond loved his cousin, and that in this he showed much better taste than in his barbaric fondness for pistols and his liking for garish colors.

The young people had to go to Louisville to take the railroad south. Raymond was for pushing on at once, but the young lady decided to visit an aunt, her mother's sister, who lived in the Falls City, and at the same time to do some shopping which would have been difficult to duplicate in Corinth at the best of times and would be quite impossible if the war continued, as it now promised to do. I state this circumstance to show that Miss Norton had forethought and an inclination to commercial transactions, which she subsequently cultivated to advantage.

Mrs. Kean, the aunt, was a Kentuckian and outspoken in her adhesion to the Union. Mrs. Kean's husband was from southern Illinois, and he was at this time quite sure that if it were not for his large real estate and flouring interests he would go south and enlist at once. Mr. Kean, for all his valor, was a very quiet man at home, where he found it to his advantage to keep his secession proclivities to himself. When Miss Norton and her escort appeared for a week's visit, Mr. Kean felt more comfortable and became more outspoken under his own roof tree.

It so chanced that at the very time Raymond and his cousin stopped at Mr. Kean's on their way home a nephew of that gentleman, Charles Leland by name and a resident of Chicago, had come down on a visit to his uncle. Charles Leland was about 22 years of age, a recent graduate of Harvard and then a law student. He was an unusually fine looking young fellow, had been the star athlete of his class and in addition ranked fairly well in his studies. Mr. Leland's father was a New Englander, "an abolitionist from conviction and an out and out Union man from principle," and the son was very much the same kind of a person.

I have purposely dwelt on these details the better to illustrate the division that existed among many families, north and south, and the better to introduce the three leading actors in this little war drama.

True to his antecedents and training, Charles Leland was self poised and not given to forcing his opinions down the throats of opponents, but this does not mean that he could not be brave and tenacious in maintaining them.

The Keans had always been very hospitable. Perhaps this is why that at this time their house was filled with guests—fugitives, coming north or hurrying south. A woman with less tact than Mrs. Kean, with such a diversity in her guests, would have found difficulty in avoiding an open rupture, and she certainly had difficulty, but her whispered counsel, rather than the breeding of her friends, avoided domestic war. She saw from the first the danger of having Tom Raymond and Charles Leland in the same house, and this danger was magnified to her when she found herself forced to put them not only into the same room, but to sleep in the same bed.

"Now, young gentlemen," said Mrs. Kean after the introduction, "I want no war talk in this house. Here at least we must have union, and you two must be friends, or pretend to be, which will answer my present purposes. After each has gone his way, if he feels that he must fight for the side he believes to be right and fights in a manly way, he won't forfeit my esteem, no matter which side he takes."

Very sensible advice this, and the young men laughed as they shook hands and promised to abide by it. But sharp eyed and shrewd though Mrs. Kean certainly was she had not secured peace by tabooing the war. It was soon very certain to her and her husband that the young men hated each other quite as heartily as they admired Puss Norton.

The young lady in the case was not long ignorant of the impression she had made on "the handsome Yankee," as she called young Leland when he was not in hearing. Instead of keeping her "southern sentiments" in the background, as her aunt advised, Miss Norton aired them before the Yankee, particularly when there was nobody else near, and she delighted to make such occasions, nor was he eager to avoid them.

"I think Puss is coquetting," was Mr. Kean's comment to his wife a few days before the young lady's departure for Mississippi, "but I am mighty sure of two things." On being asked to explain what these two things were, he continued: "First, that Charley is dead gone on Puss, and, second, that Tom Raymond would like to blow the whole top of his head off if he had half a chance."

One morning, just two days before Tom Raymond left, and when he was attiring himself with belt and pistol, as he had been doing with great regularity since his fourteenth year, Leland, with a sneer that the accompanying laugh did not wholly hide, asked him why he burdened himself with arms in the house of a friend and in a city where officers of the law stood on every street corner.

"The great God gave me power to defend myself," responded Tom Raymond, with fire in his eyes, "and so long as I can do that I ain't going to ask the help of any officer—not much!"

"Defend yourself from what?"

"From insult."

"Then every time you strap on this pistol you anticipate that some one is going to insult you?"

"That's it."

"How often have you had to use a pistol in this way since you first began the practice?"

"Not once, but I might have been insulted many a time if folks didn't know I had the thing handy." And Tom Raymond patted the stock of the pistol as if it were a dear friend.

"Then I am to understand that you would shoot a man for an insult, real or imagined, without giving him a chance to explain or shoot back?" persisted Leland.

"That would depend. But see h'ar, Mr. Leland, what fo' do you pahsume to talk to me in this way? If you want to carry a pistol, I won't object," said Raymond, with fight in his eyes.

"Thanks," replied Leland, "but if I ever do burden myself with a pistol I will have the warrant of the law for the act, and I will promise in advance not to carry it concealed nor to the table of a friend."

Mrs. Kean must have overhead this conversation, for she called her husband's nephew into the hall and at once assigned him to another room. Raymond reported the "insulting language of Mr. Leland" to his cousin and asked her advice about calling him out, but she opposed it and tried to soothe her irate lover by assuring him that she had a plan to get even with the Yankee.

Up to this time she had given Raymond ample reason for jealousy, but during the rest of their stay in Louisville he heroically endured her flirtations with his rival, under the impression that her set purpose was to encourage his love and then to scornfully reject him, which would be vengeance enough for even so impetuous a man as the Mississippian.

Miss Norton and her cousin resumed their journey south at the end of eight days, she taking with her two trunks full of dry goods and a pretty good knowledge of the leading Union people and secessionists in Louisville. True to his purpose, Raymond, on reaching home, enlisted in an infantry regiment, and through his father, who had been a state officer, secured a second lieutenant's commission.

Young Leland went back to Chicago, and before the summer was over he was down at Cairo, captain in a cavalry regiment. He was with Buell on the march south, distinguished himself on the second day at Shiloh, and was with the advance that entered Corinth after Beauregard's retreat. I have reason to believe that Miss Norton had not been long absent from his mind since they parted. I know that as soon as Corinth fell he embraced the first opportunity to dispatch a messenger to the Norton plantation, a few miles away, tendering his services to the young lady and her family "in any way that might be consistent with his duty."

That very day Miss Norton, looking the more bewitching for her pallor and nervousness, answered his message in person. She did not meet him as if she regarded him as an enemy, but rather as a friend whose services were sorely needed at this time. She told him that her father, though not in the army, had gone south to Grenada to avoid falling into the hands of the Yankees, and that her mother and a younger brother were unprotected on the plantation, and that the hands were uneasy and inclined to abandon the place.

She had a plan to get even with the Yankee.

Captain Leland sympathized with her in a manly fashion and promised to do everything in his power for the comfort of her family. He took her to headquarters, introduced her to General Buell, and so secured a guard for the Norton place. The hands who had come into the town were returned to the plantation, and for a month but few days passed that did not find the captain a visitor.

Leland's brother officers, with whom he was at this time very popular, joked him about "the pretty little rebel" and laughingly told him that he had surrendered at the first fire. Of his loyalty to the cause he had sworn to defend there was not the slightest doubt, any more than there was of his ability and valor, nor do I think that at any time, even when the worst came and a dishonorable death stared him in the face, he ever wavered in his allegiance.

It was through the captain's influence that Miss Norton was permitted to go south through our lines for the purpose of visiting her father, who, she said, though she did not disclose the source of her information, lay dangerously ill at Jackson.

While Buell and Bragg were racing on parallel lines for the Ohio in August, 1862, Captain Leland, temporarily on the staff of General Hamilton, remained back at Corinth. The first week in September he received a letter from Miss Norton, dated at Memphis, then held by the Union forces, with General Sherman in command. The young lady explained her presence by saying that after leaving her father at Jackson she had come up to Memphis from Vicksburg on a flag of truce boat. As she was free to go north she had paid a visit to Louisville and was now anxious to go home, but General Sherman had refused to pass her through the lines, and so she appealed to her kind friend Captain Leland once more for help, and could he come to her assistance?

Captain Leland, eager to show his devotion, secured a week's leave, hastened to Memphis and met the young lady at the house of a southern family with whom she was stopping. And now comes the first false step in the captain's wooing, and that love blinded him to a critical examination of his duty in the premises who can doubt?

HIS FIRST MEETING WITH LINCOLN.

How the Kindly, Homely Face Drove Away His Prejudices.

Charles E. Anthony's one meeting with Lincoln presents an interesting contrast to those of the men who shared the emancipator's interest in public affairs.

It was in the latter part of the winter of 1861, but a short time before Mr. Lincoln left for his inauguration at Washington. Judge Anthony went to the Sherman House, where the president elect was staying, and took with him his son Charles, then but a little boy—though the event is one which in mature manhood he remembers and will retain while he lives.

A good many men were present, and there was a constant pressure for admission at the door. Those who were admitted to Mr. Lincoln's presence seemed to have matters of a great deal of importance to talk about, which, of course, the boy did not understand. Nor did the failure to understand it trouble him at all. He played about the room, as a child will, looking at whatever interested him for the time, and when the interview with his father was concluded he was ready to go.

But Mr. Lincoln, ever interested in little children, called the lad to him and took him upon his knee.

"My impression of him all the time I had been playing about the room," says Mr. Anthony, "was that he was a terribly homely man. I was rather repelled. But no sooner did he speak to me and call me to come to him than the expression of his face changed completely, or, rather, my view of it changed. It at once became kindly and attractive. I went to him without any hesitation, though I was rather a timid boy, and did not resist at all when he gathered me up and placed me upon his knee. He asked me some questions, I remember, seeming instantly to find, in the turmoil of all the great questions that must have been heavy upon him, the very ones that would go to the thought of a child. I answered him without hesitation, and after a moment he patted my shoulder and said:

"'Well, you'll be a man before your mother yet,' and put me down.

"I had never before heard the homely old expression, and it puzzled me for a time. After a moment I understood it, but he looked at me while I was puzzling over it and seemed to be amused—as no doubt he was.

"The incident simply illustrates the ease and readiness with which Lincoln could turn from the mighty questions that seemed insoluble to the greatest minds of the nation, give a moment's interested attention to a child and return at once to matters of state—and solve them.

"The next time I saw him he was in his coffin, lying in state over here in the old courthouse. I was profoundly grieved."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Jumping on Ski.

"There is nothing a Norwegian cannot do on ski," says Mrs. Tweedie, with pardonable exaggeration, after witnessing the annual jumping contest at Christiania. The hillside on which the contest took place was "almost perpendicular," and ran down to the edge of a lake, on the icy surface of which were gathered many thousands of spectators.

Halfway up the hill was a small, low platform, built out in the snow, and so steep was the descent that the edge of the platform gave an opportunity for a leap of 80 or 90 feet.

There were 105 competitors, each wearing a large number on his breast.

At the word No. 1 rushed from the plateau on the hilltop down the hill itself. The pace was tremendous. On he came till he reached the platform. Then with a huge spring—his legs doubled up and his arms whirling like a windmill to keep his balance—he jumped.

It was a fine effort, but he could not regain his feet and went rolling over and over down the hillside in the snow. "That he did not kill himself during his series of somersaults, with nine feet of wood strapped to each foot, seemed to be miraculous." But he came out of his snow bath none the worse.

He was hardly out of the way when No. 9 appeared upon the platform. He was luckier or more skillful, and after his jump recovered himself and sped away down to the lake.

So, in rapid succession, the racers followed each other. Fully half of them landed on their feet, and no one was hurt, though a few ski were broken. The man who made the longest jump—88 feet—did not regain his footing, and the prizes—the king's cup and the ladies' purse—went to another man.

"We looked on and marveled," concludes Mrs. Tweedie.

Strange Relationships In Marriage.

It is rarely that a daughter becomes her mother's mother-in-law, yet this curious coincidence does occasionally happen.

A friend of mine, a colonel in the army, had been a widower for some years and resided with his sons and daughters in Plymouth.

At a ball given by the officers of his regiment he met a beautiful young girl, with whom he fell desperately in love, and, to make a long story short, they were soon married.

At the year's end there was an addition to the family. Of course the mother came to be with her daughter on this interesting occasion, and being a handsome, well preserved woman, the colonel's eldest son became much attached to her and before long led her to the hymeneal altar. Thus the daughter became mother-in-law to her own mother.

Another strange relationship is that of a lady who is mother-in-law to her two sisters in a somewhat similar fashion to the above, they having married her stepsons. I myself am cousin to my own sister, she having espoused my husband's first cousin, and am second cousin to my nephews—her sons.—London Tit-Bits.

Abstainers From Meat.

A vegetarian diet does not mean living on cabbage, turnips, carrots and potatoes, but simply abstaining from the flesh of birds, beasts and fishes. Bread, fruits, nuts, peas, beans and the various grains form a diet unrivaled for the production of health, strength and happiness, while, with the addition of eggs, milk, butter and cheese, a vast variety of dishes can be prepared suitable for every constitution or condition of life. Vegetarians having good digestions and clear consciences are always cheerful and happy—no pessimists among them.—Vegetarian.

Spermaceti is taken from the head of the sperm whale, a single specimen having been known to yield 12 barrels of this valuable substance. It was formerly in high repute as a medicine, and in 1427 was sold in Europe for medical purposes at about $5 a pound.

There is at Oxford a portrait of Charles I composed of minute letters. The head and ruff contain the book of Psalms, the Apostles' creed and the Lord's prayer.

FROM THE CORAL STRANDS.

A Man From India to Talk at the Y. M. C. A. Next Sudday.

On the urgent invitation of the Madras Missionary Conference, the American Young Men's Christian Associations sent their first representative to India in 1889, in the person of David McConaughy, formerly the General Secretary of the Philadelphia Y. M. C. A., to extend the benefits of the Association to the fifty million young men of that land.

Mr. McConaughy will relate some of his experiences in his work among young men in that land at the young men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. on Sunday at 4:15 p. m.

A mixed chorus of forty voices, largely from the Choral Society will occupy the platform and lead in the singing of Gospel hymns. A solo will also be rendered by Louis S. Bond.

Mr. McConaughy is especially qualified to help Christian men, and all such are invited to a meeting to be held at the building on Sunday at 9 a. m. Doors will be closed at 9:15.

WENT TO SLEEP IN THE HALL.

An Italian With an Irish Name Arrested Last Night.

One of the laborers who is employed at the sewer beds got drunk last evening and wandered out West Seventh street. At last the idea came to him that he ought to go to sleep, so he started for the nearest house, which happened to be Charles Potter's. The door was locked, so he went to sleep in the vestibule. At last he was discovered by the inmates and Officer Saunders soon escorted him to jail where he spent the night. This morning he was arraigned before Judge Coddington in the city court. He gave his name as Tim Murphy, although he looked very much like a native of sunny Italy.

He was given his choice between a fine of $3 or ten days in the county jail.

Misstep Causes a Bad Sprain.

A painful accident happened to Thaddeus Doane, son of Chief Doane, of West Fifth street, while visiting at No. 2 Patrol house in New York, yesterday. He had been up stairs and in coming down chose the pole in preference to the stairs, as he had done many times before. As he reached the floor he made a misstep and badly strained the cords in his foot. He returned home and Dr. Adams was called to see if any bones were broken. The doctor pronounced it a bad sprain. Doane suffered considerably as the sprain is a painful one.

A Wonderful Change.

Dr. Henry R. Cannon, the first County Clerk of Union county, visited this city, of which he was a former resident, a few days since and tried to locate John Laing's hotel. He was utterly astonished to see the splendid Babcock building on the site. He says the growth and progress of Plainfield is a marvel. He never dreamed of such a change.

Took Their Pictures and Released Them.

The five Italians who were held as witnesses in the Union county jail of the recent Italian homicide at Westfield, where a bartender was shot dead by one of his countrymen, were released from custody yesterday afternoon, as the State has been unable to capture the assassin and there was no use in longer holding the witnesses. Their pictures were taken, and the Prosecutor thinks he can get them whenever they are wanted.

Park Club Hospitality.

The Board of Governors and the House Committee of the Park Club have under consideration plans whereby the members and their friends will be entertained this winter. Something of a novel nature may be looked for, and thus the interest in the Park Club will be kept at a high standard.

Potatoes By the Carload.

Neuman Brothers, the popular Watchung avenue grocers, have just received a carload of fancy Jersey potatoes and are selling them at fifty cents per bushel. Call and examine their stock.

Henry Wilson, the postmaster at Welshton, Florida, says he cured a case of diarrhœa of long standing in six hours, with one small bottle of Chambertain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. What a pleasant surprise that must have been to the sufferer. Such cures are not unusual with this remedy. In many instances only one or two doses are required to give permanent relief. It can always be depended upon. When reduced with water it is pleasant to take. For sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. R. Armstrong, Manager.

CHILDREN OF MARY AMUSE.

SAENGERBUND HALL THE SCENE OF A JOLLY AUDIENCE.

Many Entertaining Numbers Rendered to the Pleasure of the Audience—Dancing Was Afterwards Indulged In.

The Children of Mary of the St. Joseph's R. C. church furnished their guests last evening in the Gesang and Turn Verein Hall with one of the best entertainments ever presented there. For sometime the affair has been in preparation and those present were amply repaid for going.

Miss Kittie Cooley opened the programme with an address of welcome, which was well spoken. Next came a fine rendition of "Scenes that are Brightest" from the opera of Maritana, by a large chorus. A recitation. "The Last Hymn," was given in concert by the following young women: The Misses Etta Blatz, May Kennedy, Lydia Boice, May Hughes and Anna Burns. It was well rendered and was heartily applauded for its merits. A feature of the affair was a song and dance entitled "Aunt Peggy and Uncle Dan," by James Callahan and Miss Agnes Baily. A clever recitation followed entitled "Disappointed Love," by Miss Kittie Carty. A vocal duet "I Know a Bank," by Miss Schmidt and James Baily were heartily applauded. Perhaps the most amusing feature of the programme was the dialogue "Precious Pickles."

Miss Mamie Walsh, Kate Kiely and Kate Egany took the part of the city girls, Miss Blanche Brizard made an excellent colored cook. Miss Pease assumed the role of Mrs. Caffrey, Miss Nellie Beglin that of Mrs. Gabble and Miss May Neely that of Sissy Gabble.

The situations throughout were very ludicrous and brought down the house.

W. J. O'Brien then entertained the audience with fancy dancing, which was very clever. Following this, "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean" was rendered by the chorus.

The programme closed with a selection "Good Night," by James Baily, Miss Schmidt, Miss Kennedy and J. Beck.

The balance of the evening was devoted to dancing, music for which was furnished by Eugene O'Reilly.

The entire affair was a complete success and will be continued this evening.

Miss Maggie Richardson, Miss Lizzie Diver and Miss Anna O'Neil presided at the lemonade table, while Miss Bridget Connolly and Miss Kate McMann looked after the ice cream and refreshments.

John Daily made an efficient ticket seller while Frank Blatz, in his usual courteous manner, acted as usher.

Peck's Bad Boy.

"Peck's Bad Boy" company, which has been so many years on the road, will appear at Music Hall Nov. 21st. An excellent programme is promised, one which presents an excruciatingly funny farce comedy, with the assistance of pretty women and witty comedians. Special scenery, including the famous grocery store, may be expected, and also magnificent costumes, bright music, specialties and fun of a wholesome kind from the moment the curtain rises until its last fall.

Back From the Sunny South.

Mrs. Florence Howe Hall has just returned from the south, where she attended the General Federation of Women's Clubs at Atlanta, and the Association for the Advancement of Women, at New Orleans, in company with her mother, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe. Both ladies were received with great courtesy and kindness in the sunny sonth.

New Bakery Firm.

The bakery at 138 North avenue, formerly occupied by Mrs. Walker, has been purchased by Messrs. John G. Stevens and Charles B. Overbaugh, and will be conducted by them as a first-class bakery in all respects. The store and fixtures are to be remodeled and made modern in all appointments. Notice of their opening will appear in the columns of The Daily Press.

Valuable Plans Found.

The set of plans belonging to Clum & Lancaster, the architects, which were lost at the North avenue station Saturday afternoon, were returned Tuesday afternon. by A. C. Lazzi, of Dunellen, who found them on his way home. They were uninjured.

Enterprise of The Press.

A noteworthy instance of newspaper enterprise was furnished by the Plainfield Daily Press yesterday which appeared on the street at four o'clock p. m. with a full account of the killing of John Gleason, less than two hours previous.—Cranford Chronicle.

A PEDDLER OF POLISH.

Insolence of an Agent Who Claims to Have a Silver Polish.

Housekeepers about the city have been troubled a great deal lately by two suspicious looking men, who have been calling at their homes.

They carry a quantity of what they call silver polish which they want to sell. On examination it is found to be nothing more than common white chalk On Wednesday one of the men called at a house offering his goods. but did not sell any. Yesterday morning he called at the same house. The daughter of the house met him at the door, and while she was calling her mother the man walked in the parlor and was closely scrutinizing everything in sight. When the lady appeared she told him that she wanted nothing and asked him why he persisted in calling. He told her if she would show him some silverware he would show her what the polish would do, but this the woman refused to do. It was with difficulty that she got him out of the house as he persisted in seeing everything possible. A little later the other man called and tried to work the same game, but was foiled.

A DISSATISFIED COMMUTER.

"Rapid Transit" Complains of the Slow Time of an Express Train.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—In a recent issue of your paper you lauded the Jersey Central Railroad Company for catering to its commuters—and that is well. It might also be well if, on the other hand, the same company was called to account for some of its "non-caterings," for instance, the poor service of train No. 67, (3:15 p. m. from New York).

The motive service on this, one of our principal afternoon trains, (certainly so on Saturdays,) is positively ludicrous. To this "so called" express with, (on Saturdays,) its club car and large complement of passengers, many of whom are impressionable Sunday visitors, is assigned a wheezy, little, antique engine, apparently totally inadequate to make schedule time and liable, as the train hands admit, to give out anywhere along the road. On Saturdays this train is always late, generally ten minutes or more, apparently due to slow running.

Improvement in the locomotive equipment and speed of this train, the cutting down of too liberal train schedules, and the putting on of a much-needed and promised five o'clock afternoon express from New York is the evidence that some of us old-time commuters are waiting for to convince us of a real live and broad catering tendency on the part of the Central Railroad Company. For that matter the 3:45 train would better suit the majority of its patrons if it were made 3:15.

Yours truly,
Rapid Transit.

Plainfield, N. J., Nov. 8, 1895.

Rehearsals Progressing.

The Choral Society are making steady progress with their weekly rehearsals and the members are enthusiastic in their efforts to excell all previous efforts. Especially noteworthy is the "Midsummer Nights Dream" which is being rehearsed with great care and full orchestral accompaniment and readings. Plainfield will have the opportunity, as a result, of listening to a concert which will be the finest ever given in this city.

Sewer Laborers Move.

About fifteen Italians who are working on the sewers have moved from the shanties on Somerset street to a place near the North Plainfield electric light station. The colored laborers will remain at the shanties. The township does not regret the fact that the Italians have moved, though the borough is not pleased with the idea.

Second Operation.

Owing to peculiar circumstances Drs. Zeglio and Long found it necessary to perform a second operation yesterday on Fred Townsend, of Coddington avenue. It was entirely successful and hopes for his speedy recovery are entertained.

Fixed at Last.

The wretched condition of North avenue in front of Love's wallpaper store was fixed last night and is now fairly passable.

For a pain in the side or chest there is nothing so good as a piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on over the seat of pain. It affords prompt and permanent relief and if used in time will often prevent a cold from resulting in pneumonia. This same treatment is a sure cure for lame back For sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North aves. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

SUIT OVER A WAGON.

Homan Brings an Action Against a Father For His Son's Purchase.

The case of J. P. Homan against B. A. Mumford, in tort, was tried before Justice Mosher this morning.

The facts appear to be that in 1893 Mr. Mumford's son, Charles S. Mumford, purchased a $165 wagon from Mr. Homan. After a certain amount of money had been paid, the latter wanted Mr. Mumford to go security for the payments of the wagon, which he did.

There yet remains about $40 to pay on the wagon. Mr. Mumford claimed it should have been a case on contract against his son, while Mr. Homan claims a case in tort against the father. Lawyer Angleman represented the defendant while the plaintiff was represented by Lawyer Swackhamer. Justice Mosher reserved his decision for one week.

BOTH WOMEN SAFELY JUMPED.

Had No Tickets and Did Not Care to Face the Conductor Again.

Samuel Johnson, conductor of the train over the South Branch road leaving here for Flemington at 6:10 p. m., had a scare Tuesday evening. When the train pulled out of the station he noticed two well-dressed young women in the last car, and asked them for their tickets. They searched but failed to find them, and asked him to come around later.

When the conductor returned the young women were missing. A thorough search of the train failed to reveal their whereabouts. A woman passenger said she saw them go out on the platform as the train was crossing a bridge. At the next station Conductor Johnson telegraphed back to Somerville to search along the tracks. He then proceeded to Flemington, expecting to hear that the mangled bodies of the women had been found where they jumped off. No trace of them was found.

It was ascertained that they were at their homes in South Somerville uninjured. They had jumped safely from the moving train. They seemed to greatly enjoy their adventure.

A VOTER NOW.

A Newark Young Man Surprised by Plainfield Friends.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Andrew Zeisz, of New street, last night by the friends and relatives of Mr. Zeisz's grandson, Charles Laing, of Newark, in honor of his twenty-first birthday. The evening passed very pleasantly in dancing and conversation, while a collation was served as the hour of midnight approched. The music was furnished by Hewitt.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Laing, Edward Laing, Miss Maggie Laing, Mr. and Mrs. E. Erb and children, Henry Knauer, Fred Schaufer and Will Perkins, of Newark; Miss Annie Volkman, Mrs. Lizzie Zeisz, Miss Lillie Zeisz, Miss Minnie Zeisz, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Haberle, Mrs. L. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. George Mehl, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Glaentzer, Miss Carrie Mehl, Mrs. S. Scheidecker, Miss Salome Scheideeker, Miss L. Mehl, Miss Lillie Laing, Ephriam Compton, George Schlereth, Bert Sutphen and Theodore A. Kurzhals, Jr., of this city.

—You are invited to call at Swain's on East Front street where will be found water colors, oil paintings, etchings, aquarelles, etc., in many new and beautiful subjects, also a choice selection of framing in gilt, white and gilt, quartered oak and gold.

Croup is a terror to young mothers. To post them concerning the first symptoms, and treatment is the object of this item. The first indication of croup is hoarseness. In a child who is subject to croup it may be taken as a sure sign of the approach of an attack. Following this hoarseness is a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's Cough remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the rough cough has appeared it will prevent the attack. It has never been known to fail. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale at Reynolds' pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

FIRST TWO DAYS RECEIPTS PAID ALL THE DEBTS.

Everything is Profit Now and the Event is Bound to Prove a Social and Financial Success—Better Each Night

Another day of the Kirmess has passed by and the interest in it shows no signs of decreasing. On the contrary, it is just the opposite, for yesterday's matinee was the largest attended of any so far, while last evening over 1,200 spectators, it is estimated, were present.

Now that some idea has been obtained of the receipts of the first two days, those in charge state that enough was received to pay all expenses, and that what is made now is clear gain for the Muhlenberg Hospital.

The event is growing better daily, for in dancing as in everything else "practice makes perfect." The orchestra has also greatly improved, and George E. Rogers, the leader, is receiving lots of well deserved praise. All the dances were given last evening except the Tarantelle, the Minuet and the clog dance. The programme was opened with a selection by the orchestra entitled "Semiramide," after which followed the opening tableau and the grand procession. The dances were all given in a most praiseworthy manner, while the solos and duets were pleasing and received much applause. The Highland Reel is becoming quite a favorite dance, with its catchy music and bright Highland costumes. Miss Louise Snediker and George Snediker made excellent leaders, entering fully into the spirit of their parts.

The Serpentine Dance by Mrs. Lemuel William Serrell was given last evening and brought forth the usual vigorous applause. There was one special feature of the dance which was much more enjoyable then the execution Monday evening. The colors in the small calcuim lights were so arranged that instead of only one color at a time being cast on her flying robes, the rays were divided, one half being one color and the other of another hue, giving the split color effect. The Gypsy Dance was a great improvement, as the young men have secured new costumes, which are much more appropriate to their character of Hungarian peasants. The change seemed to please the spectators and the dance, especially the duett of Miss Emma Schoonmaker and Miss Florence Abbott, was loudly applauded.

But the popular dance is still the War and Moon Dance of the American Indians. The war dance is very taking and the leaders of the two bands of braves, George O. Stevens and Charles D. Stillman, have the dance down to perfection. Stevens' war-whoop is especially effective. Miss Daniel's solo was a fitting climax to the dance. When the Indians disappeared, the spectators were in earnest for an encore and kept up the vigorous handclapping until the stage was darkened again, but the Indians had scattered to their wigwams and could not be rallied.

After the closing march there was a call for Will Runyon, but that popular young man would not appear. This evening, however, he sings another song written for the occasion. Among those present last evening were the members of the Entre Nous Whist Club, ot Washington Park, who occupied one of the boxes. There were a number of visitors last evening from Dunellen, Scotch Plains, Fanwood and Westfield.

The waitresses last evening were from the First M. E. and Congregational churches. They were the Misses Grace E. Overton, Eleanor T. Van Deventer, Ethel Simmonds, Elizabeth Cornwell, J. Louise Jenkins, Sarah Douglass, Adeline Parsons, Nellie Rockfellow, Nellie Winckler, Capitola Conover and Frances Demarest. The heat of the room made the Summer Garden and the refreshment rooms very popular places.

The programme for this evening is as follows:

Overture—"Raymond".....Thomas
Tableau—Procession.....All Nations
The Tarantella.....Italy
Clog Dance—W. J. O'Brien.....
Highland Reel.....Scotland
Court Minuet and the Gavotte.....France
Military Dance.....Russia
Gypsy Dance.....Hungary
Serpentine Dance.....
Toreador Dance.....Spain
Song.....Court Jester William N. Runyon
Procession—Tableau.

For the afternoon it will be:

Overture—"Fra Diavolo".....Auber
Tableau—Procession. Japanese Court Dance. Dance of Flowers and Bees. The Hornpipe. Carnival Dance. Procession Tableau.

Among those who deserve great credit in preparing for the Kirmess is Roy C. James, electrician for the Columbia Cycle Academy. Owing to a delay in the arrival of material, he was only given forty-eight hours to wire the entire hall, booths and everything. His success is very apparent. Considerable trouble has been caused by the blocking of the aisles, and the firemen and ushers have had considerable work to keep them clear. Both, however, deserve great credit for the way in which the large crowd has been handled and the avenues of exits kept open.

KIRMESS FANCIES.

THE SHADOW DANCE.

As the downy-coated moth
Trembles in the candle light,
So she flitted airly
Through the Shadow Dance tonight.

Silent as the spell of eve,
Graceful as the tawny doe,
Dainty as a dream of love
Danced she lightly to and fro.

Glancing shyly, smiling slyly,
Laughing merrily and free;
Gentle, airy, little fairy
From the realm of Arcadie.

Ah! I fear no dusky maiden
E'er was such a witching elf—
But what use are these poor verses,
When she is a poem herself. T.

STATE CHARITY PEOPLE.

David P. Hall Reads a Paper on Incurables in Almshouses.

The annual meeting of the State Charities Aid Association took place at Trenton yesterday. A number of ladies and gentlemen of this city, who are actively interested in charible work, being present. The afternoon session was devoted to a paper on "The Incurables in our Almshouses," written and read by David P. Hall, of this city.

The paper was prepared from statistics gathered from correspondence with all parts of the State, and Mr. Hall was warmly congratulated upon the skill and care with which the work had been done. It was voted by the Association to send a copy of this document to one newspaper in each county of New Jersey, and to print it in full in the annual report of the board.

The following Plainfielders were made members of committees of the State Charities Aid Association: Prisons and Penitentaries, H. P. Reynolds; Almshouses, Poorhouses and Children, Mrs. Dexter Tiffany; Elevation of the Poor in Their Homes, H. P. Reynolds and Miss Florence Tweedy; Laws, David P. Hall.

BUTCHERS DISAGREE.

Endress to Sue Arnold for Alleged Breaking of a Contract.

It is said that Fred Endress, the Liberty street butcher, has commenced suit against Charles Arnold, the Somerset street butcher, for violation of a contract which it is understood was made between them when the former purchased his present business from Mr. Arnold that the latter was not to open a meat market within five years after the deal in this locality. Mr. Endress has placed the matter in the hands of his lawyer.

Surprised.

Never was any one more surprised than Warner B. Philpitt, of Westervelt avenue, last evening, when a crowd of young ladies and getlemen called at his home to have a jolly time on his birthday. Music and dancing was the order of the evening with some fine quartette singing. Refreshments were served and it was morning when the lads and lassies departed.

Hurt His Foot.

Clarence Leland, of Elmwood place, sustained a severe injury to his right foot while at work in the Pond Tool Works yesterday. A heavy piece of machinery fell on his foot, severely crushing it. He was taken to his home where he will be confined for sometime.

Sewers Almost Finished.

The outlet sewer from Grant avenue to the sewage disposal beds was completed yesterday, and the rest of the sewers, with the exception of the house connections, will be finished this week.

John Rickert Home.

John Rickert, after an absence of several weeks from home, returned this morning.

W. A. McGuire, a well known citizen of McKay, Ohio, is of the opinion that there is nothing as good for children troubled with colds or croup as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He has used it in his family for several years with the best results and always keeps a bottle of it in the house. After having la grippe he was himself troubled with a severe cough. He used other remedies without benefit and then concluded to try the children's medicine and to his delight it soon effected a permanent cure. 25 and 50c bottles for sale at Reynolds's pharmacy, Park and North aves. ROMANCE IN REAL LIFE

Poor Philadelphia Girl Heiress to $15,000,000.

She Is a Daughter of a Gardener—She Says It Is "Nothing Extraordinary"—The Money Comes from Her Uncle, Who Amassed the Vast Fortune in Australia.

Philadelphia, Nov. 14.—A remarkable romance in real life has come to light by the sudden and unexpected inheritance of a fortune of $15,000,000 by the daughter of William Kelly, a poor gardener of this city. The legacy comes from the estate of a long dead uncle, Peter Kelly, who amassed a vast fortune in the Australian gold fields over thirty years ago.

Australian Gold.

Peter Kelly was living with his parents in Lancashire, Eng., when the Australian gold craze broke out, and he went there to make his fortune. Nothing was heard from him for many years until one day, nearly a quarter of a century ago, his mother received word that he would soon return home a millionaire. He did not come, however, but after some months a deaf mute, who had been a passenger with Peter on board the vessel bound for England, appeared and told of a violent storm at sea in which a number of passengers, including Kelly, had been drowned.

The Story Verified.

Inquiry was begun, and the story of the millions was verified, part of the money being in Australian banks. Kelly had never married, and had no relatives in Australia. The family received the interest on the fortune, which was valued at $15,000,000. Some time after Peter's death his brother William, who had come to America before Peter's departure for Australia, learned of the existence of a will in which all the estate was bequeathed to his child Elizabeth. Two years ago he engaged an attorney, and the legacy will be placed at the disposal of the girl this week.

"Nothing Extraordinary."

While at first reticent concerning the story Mr. Kelly and his daughter finally admitted that it was true, the girl adding in a nonchalant manner: "Why, there's nothing extraordinary in $15,000,000. People have had $40,000,000 left them by wealthy relatives."

MANY NEW LOCOMOTIVES.

Philadelphia Works Have Orders for Some Months Ahead.

Philadelphia, Nov. 14.—The Baldwin locomotive works have just booked several large orders for locomotives, which, with the work already in hand and under way, will keep the establishment busy for a long time. An order from the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad company calls for ten compound engines, and another from the Duluth & Iron Range railroad calls for ten heavy freight engines. The engines for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad are for immediate delivery, and those for the Duluth & Iron Range are to be delivered next spring. The twenty passenger locomotives which are called for in the order for forty engines for the Russian government are practically completed and it is expected that they will be shipped about December 1. The twenty freighs engines will follow as rapidly as possible.

NEWFOUNDLAND NEWS.

Arrests in Connection with Ship Scuttling Practices Expected.

St. Johns, N. F., Nov. 14.—Arrests in connection with the ship scuttling scandals, which the police are investigating, are expected to take place this evening. One of the objects of Premier Whiteway's visit to Canada is to protest against a recent order in council of the Dominion government requesting Newfoundland to stop piracy on the Labrador Coast. The liquidators of the Union bank will pay a dividend of twenty-five cents on the dollar, beginning next Wednesday. The liquidators have made a call upon the shareholders for the reserve liability on their shares. An attempt to enforce this demand would result in the impoverishment of hundreds.

GROUND TO PIECES.

One Hundred and Thirty-first Victim of Brooklyn's Trolley.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 14.—A boy seven or eight years old, supposed to be Moses Mosleovitz, while crossing Throop avenue at Lynch street yesterday afternoon, was run over by a trolley car of the Union avenue line and literally ground to pieces. John Burkkart, the motorman, and Theodore Hall, the conductor, were arrested. An immense crowd gathered, and, as the car was jacked up and the mangled body of the boy extricated, many women fainted, and threats were uttered against the motorman. This makes the 131st victim of the trolley cars in this city.

ONE KILLED, FOUR INJURED.

Buried Beneath the Falling Walls of a Glass Works.

Newark, O., Nov. 14.—By the falling of the walls of the new Heisy glass works now in progress of construction in this city yesterday afternoon, Samuel Cooper was buried in the debris and instantly killed. Albert Ross and Wm. Brookins of this city were seriously injured and Thomas Hastings and Addison Siddons of Mansfield were slightly injured.

Denial from J. P. Morgan & Co.

New York, Nov. 14.—J. Pierpont Morgan says that it is not true that his firm, J. P. Morgan & Co., holds the control of the General Electric company.

Brown Defeats Massachusetts I. of T.

Providence, Nov. 14.—Brown defeated the Massachusetts Institute of Technology eleven here by the generous score of 28 to 0.

EDWARD WEMPLE'S ARREST.

Sensation Created by It Throughout the Mohawk Valley.

Amsterdam, N. Y., Nov. 14.—The arrest of ex-state comptroller Edward Wemple at his home in Fultonville, yesterday, charged with arson, has created something of a sensation in this city and throughout the Mohawk valley, where he is so well known. His arrest, however, had been anticipated in certain circles during the past two weeks. Something like six weeks ago the Wemple foundry at Fultonville, in which the ex-comptroller had been interested since boyhood, was sold at assignee's sale. About the time a transfer of the property was to be made the foundry was found to be on fire and before the local firemen could do any effective work the building was consumed. The fact that the ex-comptroller had said that if William B. Wemple's sons could not retain possession of the property no one else would, led to suspicion being centred on him. There were a number of suspicious circumstances that tended to strengthen the belief that Wemple caused the fire, it having caught in a portion of the building where no fire had been used, and he having been seen in the building shorlty before the flames burst out.

FOR A NEW TRIAL.

Holmes' Lawyers Present a Petition with Fifteen Reasons.

Philadelphia, Nov. 14.—Formal application for a new trial for Herman W. Mudgett, alias H. H. Holmes, recently convicted of the murder of B. F. Pietzel, was yesterday filed in the quarter sessions court. The document was presented by lawyers Samuel P. Rotan and William A. Shoemaker, and the court will hear argument on Monday next. Fifteen reasons why a new trial should be granted are given. The first three allege that the verdict is against the evidence; the fourth asserts that new matter has been discovered since the trial, and the fifth declares: "That the district attorney in his opening speech made statements which were not proven and which related to other crimes which could not be part of the evidence, and they were of such a terrible nature that their effect on the jurors was of necessity so adverse to the defendant that it was impossible for them to decide purely upon the evidence in this case."
